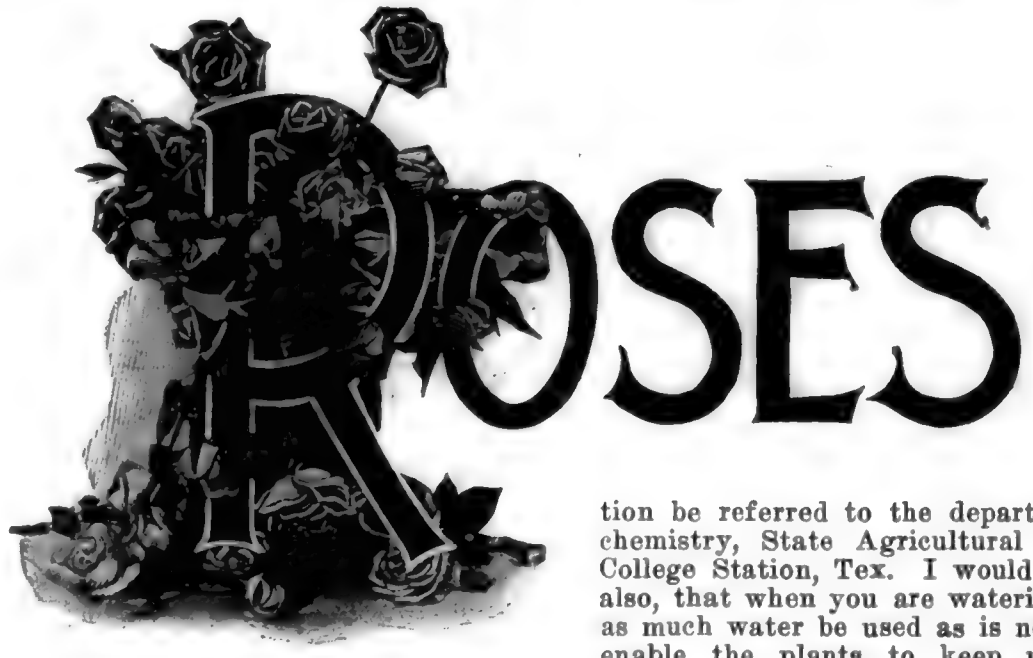
Bulbs of L. candidum usually arrive from Europe about the last part of August. The existing condition of ocean freightage is likely to cause considerable delays this year. All the really good candidums are grown in the north of France. They are of the true broad-petaled type, the only sort that is worthy of culture. Many larger bulbs that are received from elsewhere have thin scales. The bulbs are hollowed toward the center. They produce narrow leaves, puny spikes and small, miserable flowers. More of these are sold than of the north-of-France type. The latter has a rounder, firmer, and, for its size, heavier bulb; the foliage is broader; the spikes are strong; the flowers are large and broad-petaled, and there are six to ten flowers per stalk, sometimes twelve to fifteen.

It is necessary to unpack candidums at once when received, as they make leaf growth early; therefore their potting cannot be delayed. They do better if grown several bulbs together in 8-inch or 10-inch pots, rather than grown singly in smaller pots. After potting, stand the pots in a coldframe. If the soil was moderately moist, give no water until they dry out well. Protect from rains. A soaking right after potting may ruin half your bulbs. Let the leaf growth start, then water them moderately. When they have plenty of roots, stand them outdoors and leave them there until they have had several good freezings, before storing them inside or attempting to force them at all.

Achimenes.



Achimenes are not much seen nowadays. Though it is true that they are not adaptable for shipping purposes while in bloom, they are useful at this season where flowering plants are needed. I find the following a good trio to grow: Longiflora major, alba maxima and Margaretta. When they are in pans the shoots should be staked up if needed for room decoration, but if they are intended for piazza or conservatory use, perforated pans or wire baskets are the best receptacles for them, allowing the plants to hang naturally. Achimenes flower for several months and, for locations somewhat shaded, no finer flowering plants can be had at this season.

PROPAGATING SALVIAS.

Please tell me whether salvias make the best cuttings if old plants are taken up and carried over, or whether it is better to take cuttings this fall.

J. A. G.—Kan.

It is much easier to propagate some cuttings and carry these over than to bother with old plants. Plants propagated from cuttings can be depended upon to bloom earlier than seedlings and they make a more moderate growth when bedded out, but I have for many years considered seedlings far preferable to cuttings. Seed is cheap and germinates easily. Seedlings also make rapid growth and make better plants than stock raised from cuttings. Why not sow seed, therefore, and give the space salvias would take up in winter to something of more value? C. W.

ALKALI IN ROSE SOIL.

We are having some trouble with alkali in the water supply for our rose houses. As it is impossible to get our supply from any other source, we should like to know whether there is something we could get to neutralize the effects of the alkali. It seems first to discolor the foliage; then the plants start to die. They are planted in good, heavy soil, containing plenty of nourishment. They seem to do nicely at the start, but from sixty to ninety days after planting they show the effects. Any information on this subject will be appreciated. C. D. F. G.—Tex.

While it is doubtful if there is any feasible method of neutralizing the alkali in the soil, it would depend upon the nature of the alkali. As I have no knowledge of the nature of the water in Texas, I would suggest that the question be referred to the department of chemistry, State Agricultural College, College Station, Tex. I would suggest also, that when you are watering, only as much water be used as is needed to enable the plants to keep up their growth. But, since at best some alkali will accumulate in the soil, it will be advisable once a month, or oftener, to give the benches a thorough wetting down, with the idea of dissolving and washing out the alkali. RAMBLER ROSES FOR EASTER.

I have about 1,200 Baby Ramblers in 6-inch pots, all full of bloom. They are plunged outside in frames. I want to force them for Easter. About what time should they be cut back and taken into the greenhouse? How much pruning should I give them? They are now about two feet high and are bushy plants. W. J. H.—Pa.

Easter comes late next year, April 23, and your Baby Ramblers will be in ample time if you start them by the middle of February, giving them a minimum temperature of 55 degrees and running them a little cooler as the flowers begin to open. Do not prune your plants hard. Remove all dead and weak wood and shorten back the stronger shoots one-half their length.

ROSE BUDS NOT OPENING.

A customer of ours has a fine red rose bush, growing outside in a partly shaded place. It has been in this place for five or six years and has always flowered well until this season. The bush is covered with buds, but they wither instead of opening. We are mailing some of the buds under separate cover. The bush was fed with a little bone meal. A dozen other bushes, treated the same way, look well, except that the flowers are a little short in stem. If possible, please suggest a remedy. F. & F.—Wis.

From the appearance of the buds I should judge that the plant in question had lacked moisture and plant food at the root. If you can secure some cow manure, give the plant a top-dressing with it, or give it one or two soakings of liquid cow manure. I think you will find that this will make a decided difference to the plant's vigor.

C. W.

ROSE AND CARNATION COMPOST.

I should like to know whether a compost consisting of one-fourth of well rotted horse manure from hotbeds, about 1 year old, and three-fourths of good, rich soil, with one-thirtieth of bone meal added, would make good soil for roses in the greenhouse, if stacked up in the fall? Would this also grow good carnations? We would use well rotted sod, but the sod around here contains too much clay. Cow manure is scarce here. A. L.—Mo.

If you cannot procure cow manure, the next best article is well rotted horse manure. If you could procure this from a cellar where the manure has not been exposed to the weather, I would prefer it to the hotbed manure. Roses do well in a retentive loam, such as you have, and I should include some of it in your compost. Carnations do best in soil a little lighter, but are often grown in heavy soil. The compost will be all right if mixed in the fall, but I would not add the bone until spring.

MICHIGANDERS' HOLIDAY.

The annual outing of the Saginaw-Bay City Floricultural Society was held August 25 at Frankenmuth, a 15-mile trolley ride from Saginaw, in Hubinger grove, on the banks of the beautiful Cass river. Chas. Frueh, chairman of the entertainment committee, had everything in the best order when the picnickers arrived, at 9 a. m., about eighty-five strong. The weather was rather unsettled, but no one had a complaint to make.

The morning ball game, which was between the proprietors of Saginaw and Bay City, was won by Saginaw by the score of 7 to 6. Everyone was ready at 12:30 for the chicken dinner at the Nagele hotel. In the afternoon the other athletic events were run off, participated in by almost all, and enjoyed by the whole crowd. Winners of the various contests were as follows:

Baseball game—Young Saginaw, 9; Young Bay City, 6.
Wheelbarrow race, 100-yard dash—Bay City, first; Saginaw, second.
Fat men's race, 100 yards—Thos. Abele, first; Fred Goetz, second; Martin Keit, third.
Married men's race, 100 yards—Ed. Luetke, first; Aug. Rochon, second.
Single men's race, 150 yards—Howard Marsh, first; C. Bauer, second.
Three-legged race, fifty yards—Hosbach-Pussehl, first; Marsh-Marsh, second.
Potato race, fifty yards—Howard Marsh, first; Herbert Tohn, second.
Tug of war, Bay City vs. Saginaw—Won by Saginaw after most violent muscular tests.

SPANISH IRIS.

Please give me cultural directions for Spanish iris. S. M.—Kan.

Spanish iris can be grown in flats four to five inches deep, or planted in benches. A flat 12x24 inches and of suitable depth will accommodate seventy-five to 100 bulbs. They should be placed in the soil as soon as received. They must not be buried in soil or coal ashes like other bulbs, as they start to grow soon after planting. They will do well outdoors, and later in a coldframe. Start a batch in a night temperature of 45 to 50 degrees at night in December, and other batches in succession as needed. If they are planted in benches, let it be in a cool house, as much heat would spoil this iris.

For outdoor culture, plant in November. Never mind if they make growths several inches long before freezing weather; severe cold will not hurt them. Spanish iris is quite hardy and, if left undisturbed in good soil, will continue to flower for several years. Good varieties to grow are Louise, pale blue; Chrysolora, yellow; British Queen and King of the Whites, pure white.

PESTS ON ASTERS.

I have had considerable trouble of late with my asters, on account of the many pests. The trouble started with a small, white larva about one-half inch long, which bores into the stem of the plant at the surface of the soil, thus bringing about a wilting condition and finally the death of the plant. The next bad trouble-maker was a green worm, which eats the foliage and severs the buds. This is from one-half to two inches in length. Can you tell me how to get rid of these pests?

G. W. K.—Ia.

The borer I am not acquainted with. Perhaps some other Review reader may know of it and can suggest a remedy. For the green worm a poisonous spray will be necessary. Arsenate of lead, one pound to twelve and one-half gallons of water, will care for it. If you do not wish to have the foliage whitened, use Paris green. One ounce of this suffices for twelve and one-half gallons of water. Add a little lime, to remove any danger of burning. In the case of arsenate of lead, which is quite adhesive, one spraying will probably suffice. Rain washes away the Paris green and a second application may be needed. This will not discolor the foliage or flowers noticeably; it will also care for the black beetle which often attacks the flowers.

HOW TO TURN A SURPLUS INTO CASH

G. W RENARD
Florist
AVONDALE, CHESTER CO., PA.

Florists' Publishing Co.,
508 So. Dearborn St.,
Chicago, Ill.

August 17, 1915.

Gentlemen:-

Please discontinue my ad in The Review as I am sold out.

Kindly accept these few words of acknowledgement of the good results obtained from the expenditure of a small sum for advertising in The Review.

There are many growers like myself, who do not grow plants as a specialty for the trade, but who grow for their own use and, to be sure of having enough, usually produce some surplus. Frequently these surplus plants find their way to the dump, although some brother florist would like to buy them. In fact, I used to dump my surplus plants the way a great many other florists do until I found how easily I could sell them through Classified ads in The Review.

Very respectfully yours,
G. W. Renard

DOUBLE DAISIES FOR FORCING.

Please tell me whether there is a double daisy that is profitable for forcing. If so, please give its name and the degree of heat for it. S. M.—Kan.

Marguerite Mrs. Sander comes the nearest to being double of any of the so-called daisies. A good proportion of the white flowers come semi-double in winter, and from April through the summer the majority of the blooms come quite double. A night temperature of 50 degrees in winter, with a corresponding rise later in the season, suits this and other marguerites.

C. W.

SCRANTON, PA.

The Market.

Business has been uneven. Most days last week were quiet ones. The heavy rains we have been having did considerable damage to outdoor crops. There seems to be a little more funeral work, but aside from this trade is poor.

The market is glutted with asters, gladioli and sweet peas. The 5 and 10-cent stores are selling bunches of fifty sweet peas for 10 cents and asters at 10 cents per dozen. Amateur growers are selling the stores these flowers. Roses are plentiful, and are selling at from 75 cents to $2 per dozen. We are receiving a few of the new carnations, which are small.

Various Notes.

G. R. Clark reports a busy week with funeral work. This firm executed a large order for the funeral of the late Mr. Dorrflinger, at White Mills, Pa., the well known cut glass manufacturer. Mr. Clark has returned after summering at Wyoming, Pa.

John P. Brown reports business quiet. Miss Hattie Atkin, designer for Mr. Brown, is spending her vacation at Lake Ariel.

Daniel Evans, of Porter street, is cutting some large asters and gladioli.

Anton Schultheis's mums look promising this year. Mr. Schultheis expects to cut some mums in two weeks.

Miss Alice Zeigler, of A. L. Besancon & Co., has returned from a two weeks' vacation.

C. W. Baldwin has returned after spending the summer at Whites Ferry.

A card from J. T. Cokely, who is traveling through New York state, reports business on the road good.

S. Edelman, of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, has been showing a fine line of florists' supplies at the Hotel Casey.

F. J. M.

DAYTON, O.

The Market.

Business last week experienced a small improvement. A large number of funerals caused some of the lucky florists to work hard to secure stock for the pieces. The demand appeared to center on asters, gladioli and lilies. Good asters are hard to find. The outdoor-grown asters are practically ruined by the excessive rainfall and high winds. Gladioli are fast disappearing. The new crop of carnations is beginning to arrive. The blooms are fair, but the stems are short. Roses are of medium quality.

Club Picnic.

The Florists' and Gardeners' Association held its first annual picnic August 24, at the N. C. R. Country Club grounds. A game of baseball between the florists and gardeners resulted in a victory for the gardeners, by a score of 17 to 5. Races were participated in by the young people. The picnic was a success from start to finish.

Various Notes.

Dayton will build greenhouses for growing plants for the public parks and gardens. Material will be furnished by the J. C. Moninger Co., Chicago.

W. S. Kidder is building a conservatory and greenhouse for private use. The materials were furnished by the Lord & Burnham Co., of New York.

H. H. Ritter has returned from a pleasure trip to Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Cleveland and Columbus.

The Advance Floral Co. has discontinued its Arcade stand and will open a store on North Main street, about September 10.

Arthur Schmidt, of the firm of M. D. Schmidt & Son, has returned from a two weeks' vacation. B. E.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

No change yet for the better in the New York wholesale cut flower market. Surely, before the middle of September the season will open, and prosperity will be general. Retailers are optimistic and enterprising. Sales of palms and ferns have been heavy for future delivery.

Shipments of roses are increasing daily. One wholesaler says his receipts last week were nearly 100,000. Another says his average now is 30,000 a day. There are over twenty varieties of roses reaching the market. The market is flooded with No. 2s. From 25 cents to 50 cents is the quotation for these. The specials have risen slightly. Some of the novelties sold as high as $6 per hundred. The best grades of American Beauties are increasing. Prices are steady at last week's figures.

Few new carnations are arriving. The best of these brought $1.50 per hundred August 28. Valley, which was scarce a week ago, is now abundant, and prices are back again to normal. Lilies have been firm at better prices, some wholesalers asking $5 per hundred.

There are few orchids. The best bring 60 cents and up. Dendrobiums can be had at 25 cents and under. Early mums are here, but the demand has not materialized. October is early enough for these, especially if the flood of asters continues. Apart from America, there are few gladioli selling, and 50 cents per hundred is the figure asked, with many thousands unsalable at any price.

Some fine asters are now offered, but the flood of mediocre stock keeps prices low. Dahlias are coming fast, and will be at their best at the time of the exhibition of the American Dahlia Society in September.

There is an abundance of tritomas, cosmos, daisies, bouvardias, hydrangeas and goldenrod.

Various Notes.

R. Vincent, Jr., writes from Los Angeles of the splendid time he and other easterners have had in California, and reminds New Yorkers not to forget the launching of his pet ship, the American Dahlia Society, in September.

Next Tuesday, September 7, the members of the New York and New Jersey Association of Plant Growers will enjoy their annual outing in a sail up the sound and a banquet at Northport, L. I., the boat leaving the battery at 9:30 a. m.

Much sympathy is felt for Frank Frank, the Third avenue retailer, in the loss of his infant daughter, and for the sons of Lawrence Kervan, whose obituary appears on this page.

Horace E. Froment is back from his northern trip, and is enjoying his week ends at Asbury Park, N. J.

H. C. Riedel, of Badgley, Riedel & Meyer, will return next week from his month's vacation. J. Austin Shaw.

Thirty-six cases of immortelles arrived August 19 on the steamship Venezelos, from Marseilles, consigned to A. Hermann.

USINGER'S UTTERANCES.

W. Grant Kintigh, Irwin, Pa., is cutting some fine asters. He has made an attractive flower garden of his front lawn, which draws much attention.

William Cromack, Irwin, still deals in real estate, but he finds time to grow good flowers.

Miss E. Phillips, of Koerbel Bros., Jeannette, Pa., is spending her vacation in the east, visiting friends.

Joseph Thomas, Greensburg, Pa., is building another cistern, which will greatly increase his water supply.

Ed. Leizmann, Latrobe, Pa., is busy repairing his greenhouses. He is cutting some fine gladioli.

The Indiana Floral Co., Indiana, Pa., recently installed a new icebox, which is in harmony with the rest of the furnishings and adds greatly to the general effect of the establishment.

Mrs. W. S. Smathers, Indiana, after an illness of four weeks, is convalescent.

Miss Margaret Schneider, Johnstown, Pa., is showing some fine roses and carnations. She reports business increasing.

Bruce Walker, Johnstown, made good use of his windows by exhibiting a Shriners' design and a locomotive design in honor of the Shriners visiting Johnstown last week.

T. Malbranc, Johnstown, is cutting some fine roses and other seasonable flowers.

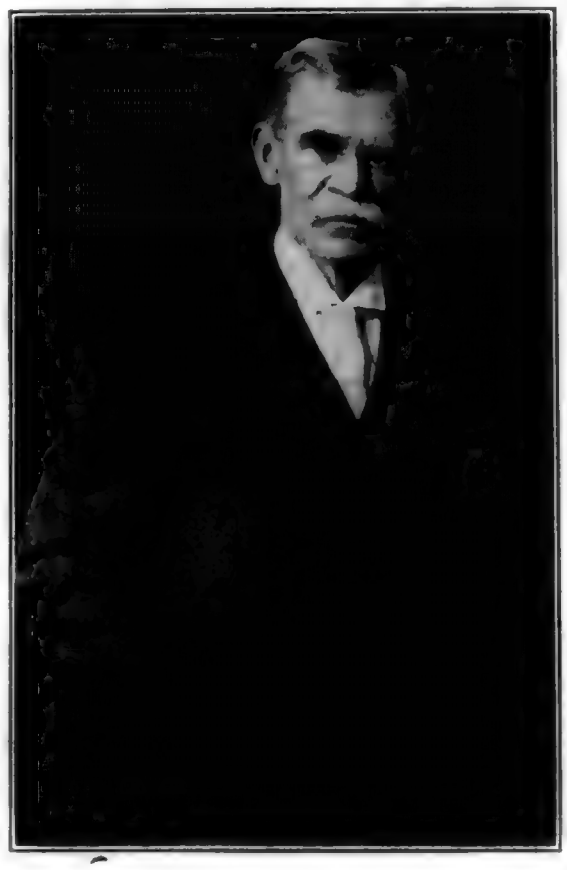
William Schrader, Johnstown, has been cutting some excellent asters.

Herman Neisner, Johnstown, though busy with his fall planting and the redecorating of his store, has still plenty of time to devote to his wonderful collection of birds, which he has gathered from all parts of the world.

W. T. U.

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—Although his place of business was almost completely burned out the other day, John E. Lapes comes up smiling and says he will soon have things shipshape again. The loss was partially covered by insurance.

OBITUARY



Lawrence W. Kervan.

Lawrence W. Kervan, head of the Kervan Co., 119 West Twenty-eighth street, New York, died at the Roosevelt hospital August 24, following an operation for intestinal trouble.

Mr. Kervan was born in New York in 1843. For twenty years he followed horticulture as a profession in Florida. Fifteen years ago he returned to New York, and with three sons established the Kervan Co., dealing in greens and other decorative material of a similar character for florists.

He was a veteran of the Civil war, having enlisted in the Fifth Connecticut regiment in 1861. He was at Winchester and Cedar Mountain, and was captured by the Confederates at the latter place and imprisoned for forty days at Belle Island. He was a member of Lafayette post, G. A. R.

Mr. Kervan lived at 7 West One Hundred and Eighth street, and is survived by his wife and four sons. The esteem in which he was held by the trade was shown by the large number of flowers at the funeral.

Lawrence W. Kervan.

J. A. Smith.

C. A. Smith, formerly of Minneapolis, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. P. L. Goodwin, Fargo, N. D., Tuesday morning, August 24. Mr. Smith had been living at his daughter's home for about a year. He was born in Vermont and came west about fifty years ago, locating at Northfield, Minn. He lived there from 1865 to 1875, when he moved to Minneapolis and established the Smith greenhouses. He prospered in the business, enlarging it from year to year until 1900, when he sold the property and business to the L. S. Donaldson Co.

Mr. Smith was 86 years of age. His wife died about three years ago, and Mrs. Goodwin is the only near relative who survives him. The funeral took place August 26 at Minneapolis, under the auspices of the Masonic order. Interment was at Lakewood cemetery.

John Roth.

John Roth, a florist of Quincy, Ill., was drowned August 15 while taking a pleasure trip in a launch. According to the other members of the party, Mr. Roth had climbed upon the stern of the boat to adjust an iron support, when waves from a passing launch rocked the craft, causing him to lose his balance. As none of the occupants of the launch could control the boat when Mr. Roth fell off, they were unable to render any assistance to the drowning man. The body was recovered three hours later. Mr. Roth was about 38 years of age.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN.

The Market.

Business is especially dull this summer, with a heavier cut of flowers than usual. Some have tried to remedy matters by cutting prices, while others have wisely held up to normal prices, and used their surplus in charity work and in gifts to friends and good customers. It seems to me from experience that the latter way is the better, for it brings customers whenever conditions improve.

Various Notes.

Mrs. H. W. Johnson began business in her husband's jewelry store a few years ago by selling flowers on commission for John Karsten. Her affable manner, coupled with natural ability for the business, caused a rapid growth in her trade. Later, hardy stock was planted on the home place and proved profitable. Last spring Mr. Johnson purchased the property of the Higley Floral Co., consisting of several acres of excellent land at the foot of Lookout mountain, on which were two good residences, three houses, 20x160, that had been built less than a year, and many hotbed sashes and coldframes. The Johnsons are contemplating opening a first-class place for their combined businesses on the main business street of the city.

Mrs. J. W. Crouch, whose place has been on Missionary Ridge for the last fifteen or twenty years, continues to do a good business. This remarkable woman continues to act as her own foreman, and is training her children to be expert in the business. While local business is dull, she is doing a good out-of-town business, shipping as far as New York.

John Karsten's business has made a good, healthy growth in the last two years. Things are looking well about the greenhouses, and will be in good condition when fall business opens.

Perhaps the most rapid growth in the florists' business Chattanooga has seen is that of W. F. Haeger. Five or six years ago he started in business with only a small counter in another store and no glass to speak of. Now he has, perhaps, the best retail place in the city and one of the best ranges.

F. B.

Penbrook, Pa.—Snyder & Hass are adding considerable glass this summer and expect to have 14,000 feet by October 1. They have been in business only two years.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

THERE will be more geraniums propagated for next season than ever before.

YOU can fool yourself twice as easily as you can fool other people—into believing your stock is as good as the best, for instance.

DETROIT probably has more first-class flower stores, according to population, than any other city in the United States. And there is no other city in which business is better this year.

ROSE growers are not worrying about the supply of Manetti for the approaching season. The reports from England and France indicate some reduction in production, but give assurance that there will be enough to meet the American demand, the European grafters being otherwise engaged at the moment.

THE carnation growers are having no end of trouble this season with stem-rot, due to weather conditions. In the central section of the country there are reports of growers who have lost from twenty-five to fifty per cent of the stock benched, and they are still going. Fortunately, there are plenty of field-grown plants to be had.

AT first it seemed that the advent of varieties of chrysanthemum that could easily be had in flower early had been a distinct service to the trade, but now there are those who suggest that the flower is cheapened for the whole season by an oversupply before there is any real demand. Mums are not wanted in quantity before snappy weather comes.

HONORABLE MENTION.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper. Among those who have this week enrolled themselves for more than one year in advance are:

TWO YEARS.

Richter, A. O., Philadelphia, Pa.
Brown, H. H., Birmingham, Ala.
Westergard, E., Lansdowne, Pa.
Weiant & Son, Newark, O.
Yule, F. G., Lincoln, Neb.
Chillman, A. E., Hulls Cove, Me.

The Review stops coming when the subscription runs out. The green notice with the last copy tells the story; no bills are run up; no duns are sent.

BIG BUSINESS.

Of course we wish the war would end, but in this wonderfully favored land of neutrality even the cataclysm that has engulfed nearly all of Europe has not checked more than momentarily the activity of business. Indeed, the war recently has added greatly to our commercial activity and is bringing to the American people almost incomprehensible sums of money. For instance:

The government reports of exports and imports for the month of July, just issued, are as follows:

EXPORTS.

This July	$156,746,121
Last July	59,218,363
Increase	$ 97,527,758

IMPORTS.

This July	$ 75,812,949
Last July	84,561,785
Decrease	$ 8,748,836

In other words, where we paid Europe $25,000,000 last July, this July Europe paid us nearly $80,000,000, or a difference in our favor of $105,000,000 in a single month. It can not but mean rapidly increasing commercial activity in this country.

And then, on the day after the government gave out the custom house figures a big Chicago bank published its calculations as to the crops of grain that are to pull the money to the middle west. With the harvest of many crops well along, the 1915 production is figured as follows:

Crop.	Estimated yield.
Wheat, bu.	1,003,000,000
Corn, bu.	2,983,000,000
Oats, bu.	1,352,000,000
Rye, bu.	45,700,000
Barley, bu.	224,000,000
Hay, tons	78,900,000
Cotton, bales	10,500,000

With the largest wheat crop ever harvested, middle-western florists can count with practical certainty on a good year.

SOME AZALEAS WILL COME.

A Chicago custom house broker and forwarding agent has the following from the British Foreign Office:

"I am directed by Secretary Sir E. Grey to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 16th ultimo, and to state in reply thereto that His Majesty's Government have already authorized the shipment of a considerable quantity of plants and nursery stock grown in Belgium to the United States.

"As regards future shipments, arrangements have been made with the Belgian government whereby these will also be authorized, provided that satisfactory evidence of Belgian origin is produced, and that the money in payment therefor is first deposited by the Belgian exporter at a bank in the United Kingdom.

"In each case a permit to ship must first be issued by His Majesty's consular officer at the port of shipment in Holland."

Just how much stock will be moved under these rather oppressive regulations is not yet apparent, but already small shipments of Belgian plants are arriving.

NEXT WEEK'S WEATHER.

Weekly weather forecast, issued by the U. S. Weather Bureau, Washington, D. C., for the week beginning Wednesday, September 1, 1915:

For the Region of the Great Lakes—Warmer weather Thursday will be followed by somewhat lower temperatures Friday and Saturday in the upper Lake region, and by seasonable temperatures elsewhere. The weather will be generally fair.

For the Upper Mississippi Valley and Plains States—Higher temperatures will be followed by a moderate fall about Friday and by seasonable temperatures thereafter. The weather will be generally fair.

For the Ohio Valley and Tennessee—Generally fair weather is indicated during the next week, with a considerable rise in temperature by Thursday and seasonable temperatures thereafter.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The Chicago market, during the last week, has developed unmistakable signs of summer's ending. To be sure, business is still quiet, but it is no longer in the comatose condition that is the usual concomitant of the summer months. Stock is good and getting better. The forlorn representatives of the outdoor flowers are all but gone, and greenhouse stock again holds the center of the stage.

The supply of roses is a trifle larger than it was a week ago, but in spite of this fact, they are clearing remarkably well. Prices, too, are firmer. This, however, is easily attributable to the improvement in quality. The cool weather has put a stiffness in the stems and a firmness in the flowers that go a long way to increase the demand. Young Beauties are still scarce.

Carnations demand attention. Of course, the field-grown stock has little to commend it now, but carnations from under glass are making their appearance on the market and, while the stems are quite short, the flowers are of excellent quality. It is no problem to move these, as they are picked up on sight. Gladioli, though not so abundant as last week, are still sufficient to meet the demand. Mid-season asters are plentiful, but really good ones continue scarce and clear accordingly. Valley, too, is scarce, but it is also poor in quality.

The receipts of Golden Glow chrysanthemums are daily growing larger, but it seems an impossibility to rush the season with them. Most of the wholesalers report them as extremely difficult to move, while those who succeed in disposing of them report that it usually is to stores that use them for the purpose of heightening a window

THE ROSES WE OFFER

A List That Merits Your Attention

HERE, in our store, you will find the largest supply of Roses on this market during the season now opening. Our growers have materially increased their plantings. And you know we always have insisted on quality—nothing but the best will do for our trade.

MILADY The finest Red Rose and offered in large quantity.

RUSSELL We have a heavy cut, mostly short and medium.

OPHELIA This rose is extremely popular—all lengths ready.

SUNBURST Our growers know how to get the deep yellow color.

KILLARNEY BRILLIANT Much higher color than Killarney.

MRS. WARD We have a large supply of short stems.

display. Lilies are the worst drag on the market. It is too bad, as there is much stock of most excellent quality.

Greens continue to move with extreme slowness, smilax keeping well in the rear of the main body.

Various Notes.

After a brief but pleasant visit with Chicago, Hinsdale and Aurora friends, O. P. Bassett and his wife turned their automobile toward the west early in the morning of August 30. They will motor to Denver, then south to the old Santa Fe trail, and west to the Grand Canyon and the petrified forest of Arizona. Three or four weeks will find them in Pasadena again.

Quite the opposite of the general verdict, Wendland & Keimel, Elmhurst, say they consider the Mrs. Ward rose at least as profitable as any other variety. They have grown two houses of it from which they have cut steadily for nearly three years. Recently these houses were given their first rest, a third house having been planted with the variety. Many growers have dropped Mrs. Ward as one of their least profitable sorts.

A branch store that for many years has been operated at 57 North Fifth avenue, as the Briggs House Florist, will be discontinued after August 30, according to Demosthenes Papatony, proprietor of the Briggs Florist, 228 West Madison street.

Because Gullett & Sons have begun shipping roses to the A. L. Randall Co., Eric Johnson made a trip to Lincoln, Ill., last week to look over the stock in the big new range. He says it never had been his privilege to see so interesting an establishment.

Believing that the time is ripe, D. P. Roy, for years well known in the trade, severed his connection with A. Henderson & Co., August 8, for the purpose of launching into business on his own account. Mr. Roy is busily engaged this week in making the necessary preparations incident to this move. He states that he will make a formal announcement of his plans next week.

The business property at 1602 West Chicago avenue, twenty-five feet west of Ashland avenue, 25x118 feet, south front, has been bought by Gust L. Pappas, of the Alpha Floral Co., and in charge of its store at Des Moines, for an indicated consideration of $21,500, subject to an incumbrance of $15,000. The building was valued at $6,100 in the deal, giving the land a valuation of approximately $600 a front foot, an unusually good figure for that neighborhood.

There was a baseball game August 29 between teams representing the two establishments of the George Wittbold Co., resulting in a score: Edgebrook, 17; Lake View, 5. Charles Meyer, of Lake View, was umpire.

Word was received, August 30, at the office of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association of the death of Mrs. Fred Schramm, the preceding evening, at the home of her son-in-law, Wm. Koehler, at Des Plaines. The funeral will be held September 2, with interment at the Town Maine cemetery at Park

An up-to-date flower store will be opened about September 16 at 1528 Hyde Park boulevard by R. L. & D. G. Nelson. The Nelson brothers will operate under the business style of the Beach Floral Co.

A new store was opened at 3222 South Morgan street September 1 by Joseph Papacek.

There is nothing like a good, cool day for moving, according to Paul Klingsporn, manager of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, who moved into a new home at 4858 North Lawndale avenue August 30.

A garden with arches trimmed in various colored ruscus, with imitation boxwood trees, pyramidal and globe shaped, made up of green ruscus, sphagnum moss and wire, is being built in one corner of the supply department of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., by T. E.

Waters. His idea in making this garden is to show the many uses to which ruscus may be put.

It is reported by Erne & Klingel that Leo Grohe has leased his father's greenhouses at 1014 Wolfram street, thoroughly remodeled the place and is ready for an active fall business. S. Grohe has been a hard worker for years and will take a rest.

That August business ran twenty per cent ahead of last year is the report of the E. C. Amling Co. Mr. Amling is looking forward to a season that will establish a new high record for his house.

Word came August 29 from the Peter Reinberg establishment that Superintendent Emil Reichling had returned from San Francisco, the first of the convention party to report in person. He devoted just seventeen days to his trip to the coast and was busy every minute of his time.

The trade sympathizes with R. J. Southerton, of Highland Park, whose son, Ralph, aged 8 years, was run over by an automobile August 29 and died within an hour.

That carnation growers will receive much better average prices this autumn than last is the belief of A. T. Pyfer.

People passing along the north side of East Jackson boulevard the last few days have been constrained to pause for a few minutes and note the details in a miniature Japanese landscape that has been worked out with infinite care by the window trimmers of the Fleischman Floral Co.

Two cars of French bulbs on track August 30 started a busy week for A. Henderson & Co., who are expecting Dutch stock within a day or two.

That White Wonder still is one of the most popular varieties is the report of Wietor Bros., who say the call for field-grown plants of this sort has exceeded their expectations.

An interview was had, August 26, with the gardeners of Lake Geneva, Wis., by A. Henderson, for the purpose of discussing their exhibits at the grand floral festival to be held in Chicago next November.

One day at the San Francisco exposition sufficed for Ed. Enders, right-hand man for C. A. Samuelson, and that one day was August 16, the day before the S. A. F. convention, but Mr. Enders did not wait. He spent several days at Mr. Samuelson's apple orchards in Idaho and reached home last week.

After enjoying a week's visit with her sister in Kewanee, Ill., Miss A. O'Neill, of George Reinberg's office force, is again back at her desk.

After spending a fortnight's vacation around Chicago, that finest of American summer resorts, Frank Ayers is again on duty at C. W. McKellar's.

The usual display of cut flowers and plants has given way to ladders, canvas and active calciminers in the salesroom of Sinner Bros. and M. C. Gunterberg, at 158 North Wabash avenue.

New fixtures and refrigerator in green finished wood and white tile were installed by the Paul J. Daemicke Co., August 26, in the store of Mrs. Theodore Callos, 58 East Randolph street.

One is more or less prepared for fish stories at this season of the year, but a snake story is a different thing—it comes as a shock. But a real snake came as a much more decided shock to the sensibilities of George Propps, employed in the Washington Flower Market, 108 North State street, the morning of August 30. Mr. Propps had removed a quantity of ferns from the "Young man, don't let me catch you buying Wire Designs here and there, all over the Chicago market, in the future," said the old man, pounding the buyer's desk.

A Wire for Florists

"Well, it doesn't seem to me of such great importance where I buy," argued the buyer; "all of the houses make practically the same discount."

"Yes, but stop and think. Compare the list prices of Kennicott Bros. Company and those of other concerns."

The buyer turned to the wholesale florists' catalogues on his desk (as you should take time to do). After a careful perusal, he looked up at the old man and, smiling sheepishly, said: "I guess you're right. Kennicott's seems to be lower in list prices than most of the other houses."

"Moreover," said the old man, "I want to warn you against letting the price question blind you to the fact that you are going to make up these designs into floral pieces. To make certain that your piece will stand up, when weighed down by moss, leaves and flowers, you must use Wire Work of good quality.

"No house has Wire Designs that can compare in quality with those manufactured in the Kennicott shop. They are no more—in the larger pieces even less—expensive than inferior Designs.

"I tell you, boy, let Kennicott Bros. Company know how much Wire Work we'll need this year—they will give you the special contract price."

"Yes, sir," said the buyer, with haste.

"And, my boy, don't be afraid of finding any 'con' in Kennicott's contracts."

The old man was right, as usual, and the moral is this: "Try, then buy"; don't "buy, then try."

Down in Old Mexico

The Mexicans use crude ox carts with heavy, solid wooden wheels and no turntables.

When the stolid oxen plod around a corner or bend of the road, the cart, instead of rounding the turn easily and smoothly, is dragged around to the direction the oxen go.

The clumsy, heavy cart, in its jerky turn, scrapes and tears up the earth, whereupon, when dire necessity compels, the Mexicans proceed to repair the road.

For centuries they have been repairing roads instead of changing their ox carts.

"Yes," a man from Tennessee admitted yesterday, "more than one florist handles poor stuff and then tries to repair his customers' feelings instead of changing the kind of flowers he sells."

street display case and was placing them on the counter when a snake three feet long, of ugly design and malevolent disposition, slid from his embrace. The effect on Mr. Propps was electric. After many wild guesses as to its species, it was identified by a specialist as a banana snake.

The Auburn Florist, 734 West Seventy-ninth street, reports heavy funeral business. In the near future this establishment will be enlarged by a substantial addition.

J. E. Pollworth, of the Chicago Feed & Fertilizer Co., has spent several months perfecting a system of costs which will be of practical use to growers. It is almost ready to go on the press and will then be distributed to those growers who seek to solve their operating cost problem.

A particularly good week in funeral work is reported by the Woodlawn Floral Shop, 871 East Sixty-third street.

The vacating of a store in the building owned by Mrs. Anna Kindler, treasurer of the Raedlein Basket Co., on Milwaukee avenue, brings an opportunity that she has long been looking for. No sooner had the tenant moved out than the carpenters were at work tearing away the old front in preparation for a modern one that will add much to the appearance of the building.

The Lake Forest county fair, which opened August 28, called for considerable floral decorating. Victor Young, manager of the Clark street store of the Geo. Wittbold Co., went to the north shore suburb on that day to decorate Mrs. Reuben H. Donnelley's automobile for the occasion.

Visitors.

Some take their pleasure in fishing while others find it in motoring, but it is quite seldom one has the fortune to meet a person who finds relaxation in traveling through the death-haunted deserts and mountains of old Mexico. There is, however, such a person, and his name is John Bommersbach, of Decatur, Ill. Mr. Bommersbach, who journeyed in company with a number of Pathe moving picture operators, has witnessed battles, executions and raids, and has more than once come near to losing his own head. He is a visitor on the market this week, preparatory to another long journey, and the strange part of it is, he is looking forward with actual pleasure to a repetition of his adventures.

Following the dictates of his energetic nature, Patrick Welch, of Boston, president of the S. A. F., who arrived in the city with his wife the morning of August 30, motored to Morton Grove, the day following, as the guests of the Poehlmann brothers, and inspected the greenhouses. As per their schedule, Mr. and Mrs. Welch left September 1 for Boston.

Passing one another, each on his way to exchange places with the other, father and son in the persons of Fred C. Weber, Sr., and Fred C. Weber, Jr., of St. Louis, were visitors on the market last week. The father was returning from an outing at Lake Geneva, Wis.; the son was on his way there.

Taking advantage of the cool, pleasant weather, Herbert Smith, of Frank B. Smith's Sons, Danville, Ill., accompanied by his wife and his son, Frank, motored to Chicago August 30. The following day they visited C. L. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn, and looked over the greenhouses at Hinsdale and Greggs. Mr. and Mrs. Washburn accompanied them on the return trip to the city. On the way, however, something went wrong, and while the ladies waited, the men rolled up their sleeves and labored for over two hours by the roadside.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The week ending with the first day of September leaves the market in better shape than at any time during the summer. Supply and demand are more evenly balanced than heretofore. There is probably an increase of a fraction, as one of the wholesalers put it, in the volume of business, with a smaller supply of high grade flowers. The surprisingly cool, wet weather has cut down production so that high grade stock is far less abundant. Valley has been short of the demand. Good roses have been quite scarce and asters that are perfect have been eagerly sought. There are lots of asters, but many of them deserve hard names and find correspondingly poor support, at a nickel a bunch or thereabouts. Gladioli from farther north and down east are selling fairly well, while Easter lilies are quite good stock and no longer receive slights. Dahlias are beginning to sell, rather earlier than usual, a sure sign that fall is near. Greens are still overabundant.

BERGER BROS.

DAHLIAS

Not quite ready for them, perhaps, but it's worth while knowing where you can get good stock of the best sorts, Princess Juliana, Jack Rose and the like.

to Lent, which, counting Sundays, will be 105 days. Here is the calendar:

Thanksgiving, Thursday, November 25.
Christmas, Saturday, December 25.
New Year's, Saturday, January 1.
St. Valentine's, Monday, February 14.
Ash Wednesday, March 8.
Easter Sunday, April 23.
Mothers' day, Sunday, May 14.
Memorial day, Tuesday, May 30.

Current Events.

Everybody who went to the store of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., to see Herbert G. Tull, George D. Clark or Charles H. McKubbin has been politely told that there are no accommodations for visitors upstairs, so that the name must be sent up and the official desired must be brought down. At least, this has been the case in the past. Now all is changed; things are not as they used to be. The acquisition of the building at 716 Chestnut street has again borne fruit. The lower floor has been in use for a long time, but the upper floor has only recently been acquired through the departure of a tenant. This gives a great field for office expansion that has been turned to excellent account. It will be hard to find more perfect appointments than the house of Dreer now has on the second floor of these two buildings thrown into one for its offices. The space, the arrangements and, above all, the light, are worthy of the highest praise. A side entrance and private stairway admit the visitor with passport to the second floor without passing through the store, where all will be found to more than merit this eulogium. A great improvement, on which the house is to be congratulated!

Greenhouse Building.

Last week William J. Muth, the enterprising representative in this territory of the King Construction Co., wired from North Tonawanda, N. Y., that he had closed the Michell contract for completion this fall. These improvements will consist of the erection of three pipe-frame greenhouses, each 22x125 feet, and one connecting passageway greenhouse 22x143 feet. The addition of these houses will increase the glass area at Andalusia by approximately 20,000 square feet. There will also be erected a new fireproof boiler house 22x43 feet. A new system of heating will be installed throughout the range.

H. A. Dreer, Inc., has contracted for the material and erection of four new greenhouses at Riverton. Three of these houses are to be 12x100 feet, and one house to be 22x150 feet.

Dingee & Conard Co., West Grove, Pa., has ordered two houses, each 30x150 feet. Harry E. Cooper, West Grove, Pa., will build a pipe-rafter greenhouse 50x150 feet. Leonard H. Dudman, Manoa, Pa., will build two connected greenhouses, each 25x125 feet, and install a new boiler. Frank Jackson, Sellersville, Pa., will add a house 28x120 feet.

Various Notes.

Robert Pyle, president of the Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa., will address the Florists' Club September 7, on the San Francisco convention. Nomination of officers will be made at this meeting. The election follows, at the October meeting.

B. Eschner, president of the M. Rice Co., is expected home September 4 from his two months' trip.

Frank L. Polites is settled in his new store at 1420 Chestnut street, but has been obliged to retire from his branch at Thirteenth and Chestnut streets, owing to the building being torn down.

Recent visitors include William S. Pine, Providence, R. I.; Edwin A. Seidewitz, Baltimore, and A. Villas, the Sunshine Florist, Minneapolis, Minn.

Robert A. Craig assured me the other day that the fall plant season has opened. The packing shed of the Robert Craig Co. fully justified the statement. There were cyclamens, ferns, crotons and dracænas, all enveloped in their traveling coats, ready for the road.

J. Max Nitzschke, with J. J. Habermehl's Sons at the Bellevue-Stratford, reports a fair amount of business this week, for the season. Mr. Nitzschke visited F. C. W. Brown, now general manager for the J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, and was much interested in the amount of summer business done there and also at leading stores in Detroit and Toledo.

The Joseph G. Neidinger Co. is busy with baskets and sprays.

Herbert G. Tull, treasurer of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., is at Buck Hill Falls, Pa., where everything is good, roads, golf, meals, etc. Did Mr. Tull notice the "Keep Off the Grass" sign?

Eugene Bernheimer jocosely invites his friends to jitney with him in his new car.

Henry M. Weiss & Sons Co. is shipping its first flowers of Alice and Mrs. C. W. Ward to the Leo Niessen Co.

Robert Q. Shoch has returned from three weeks in New England, where he describes business as good for summer.

William Morgenthau, formerly with Charles Fox, Sr., is now manager for C. T. Eldridge, Danville, Va.

The second annual outing given by the H. F. Michell Co., at Andalusia, September 8, promises to be a huge success. An attractive program has been distributed with the invitations. The special train leaves Broad street station at 11:45 a. m.

The junior partner of the firm of William J. Baker has been enjoying a brief holiday at Oakford, Bucks county, while Gilbert Baker has been putting up a great game at home.

Society Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Oyster Bay Horticultural Society was held in Fireman's hall Wednesday evening, August 25. J. Sorosick reported for the outing committee.

On the exhibition tables were some fine flowers, fruit and vegetables, which were judged by Messrs. Duthie, Hothersall and Humphreys. They awarded the society's prize to Alfred Walker, Henry Gibson and James Duckham; honorable mention to Frank Petroccia on two entries, Chas. Milburn, John T. Ingram on two entries, Chas. Mills, Katrine Hoyt and Henry Gibson; thanks of society to Chas. Milburn on three entries, and Chas. Mills; cultural certificate to Chas. Milburn and Alfred Walker.

Ernest Meyer, of Cold Spring Harbor; Wm. Ford, of Oyster Bay, and H. Gold, of Roslyn, were elected to active membership. A prize of $15 was donated to the American Dahlia Society for its coming show. Schedules for the Oyster Bay Horticultural Society's dahlia show, to be held in October, are now obtainable from the secretary. of the greenhouse property of E. L. Brillhart at Ludington, Mich., will take place on the premises at 10 o'clock, A. M., Wednesday, September 15, 1915. Property consists of 1½ acres of land, valuable house and barn, two glass houses well filled with many varieties of flowers and some vegetables and flowers in the open air, horse, wagon and usual tools, Giblin boiler and extensive piping. Property can be sold subject to encumbrances of $7,000, of which $5,000 is on the real estate and $2,000 on glass houses and growing things. Sale can also be made of the glass houses and plants separately, to be removed by October 1st. Ten years' time on the real estate debt. A few hundred dollars will give possession of this splendid business opportunity.

Administrator's Sale
Of Greenhouses and Floral Store

OWING TO THE DEATH OF BOTH PARTners, the business of the Neal Floral Company, at Geneseo, Illinois, will be sold in order to settle the estate. The property consists of about four acres of land, five greenhouses with about eleven thousand square feet of glass, a new two-story frame house, all located about one mile from the business center, and the fixtures and fittings of a floral store in a good business location downtown. There are included, also, plants, cuttings, bulbs, a heating plant, a complete equipment and the good will of an old established business. The property will be sold subject to a mortgage for $1100.00. Geneseo is situated on the main line of the Rock Island Railway, has a population of about thirty-two hundred people and the only greenhouse within twenty miles. The business will be sold on the premises at public auction, on Tuesday, September 7, 1915, at 2 o'clock p. m., to the highest and best bidder, for cash. Correspondence and inspection invited.

Geneseo, Ill., August 18, 1915.

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists — those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists— has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now —before you forget it?

Florists' Review,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:-

During the SIX MONTHS from March 4 to September 4 I have received from other Florists, by mail, telegraph or cable, orders to the amount of $513.25 as a result of my advertisement in the Retailers' department of The Review. With the allowance to senders the record for SIX MONTHS is:

Value of orders received----------	$513.25
Less 20% allowed senders--------	102.60
Net value of orders for SIX MONTHS--	410.65

It should be noted that this showing covers the DULL SUMMER MONTHS, when any addition to a Florists's business is decidedly welcome.

Retail Florists not advertising in The Review should profit by this letter.

Respectfully,
F. H. Weber

The Market.

Business last week was not so good as it should have been. The weather was cool, but stock was plentiful, nevertheless. Prices went down to rock bottom. While there was no glut, the stock was disposed of so cheaply that much of it might have been thrown away without much more loss.

The crop of roses has decreased greatly and some difficulty was experienced in filling all orders. Russell and Ophelia are scarce, and, in all probability, will remain so for several weeks. The stock is in fine condition, however, and is disposed of quickly. Asters are plentiful and are being cleaned up at prices that are extremely low even for this time of year. Gladioli are not so plentiful as they have been, but are being sold for almost nothing. Valley is in good supply, but there is no surplus, and the stock is moving readily. Market conditions are not so good as they have been, and it probably will be several weeks before normal conditions are reëstablished.

Various Notes.

The Market.

Weather more like the end of October than August was our lot for several days last week. The decidedly autumn-like nip in the air is bringing vacationists home from mountain, lake and ocean resorts. The shipping of cut flowers to these points this year proved a negligible quantity, the poorest in many years. The unusually cool and damp summer affected all the summer resorts. Business continues dull; with no signs of any early betterment.

Gladioli and asters continue to be market leaders. It is a disastrous season for gladioli. When one sees such choice varieties as Panama, Schwaben, Mrs. Frank Pendleton, Myrtle, etc., selling at $1 per hundred, and America, Mrs. Francis King and other standard varieties virtually going a begging at 50 cents per hundred, the condition of the gladiolus market can be imagined. Asters are selling better than gladioli. A few select flowers make $2 to $3 per hundred, but the general average realize 25 cents to 75 cents. Roses, due to the cool weather, are of good quality. Good flowers clean up nicely. A number of small blooms sell with difficulty. A few small carnations are seen, but no one wants them. Sweet peas are small and fewer in number. Cosmos does not sell well; neither do dahlias. Valley sales are irregular. There are a few cattleyas, but the demand is almost nil. Lilies of all kinds are abundant and are slow to sell. Quite a variety of other flowers arrive, but the demand for them is uncertain.

cultural hall August 28 and 29 was the best yet seen in Boston. Competition was unusually keen. The display of vegetables, garden flowers and wild flowers filled the main exhibition hall. Exhibits, thanks to the general rainfall of the last two months, were of fine quality and it was a delight to see the keen interest taken in the exhibition not only by the children and their parents but by large numbers of others. The encouragement of home and school gardens is the best way that this, or any other horticultural society, can interest the young generation in the products of the soil.

The meetings of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, which are always discontinued in July and August, will be resumed September 21. Dahlias and gladioli will be made special features at this meeting. Henry Penn and others have been asked to give their vacation experiences and an interesting meeting to start the fall campaign is assured.

Matthew F. Ruane, the well known Waltham florist, had a narrow escape from drowning August 26. He was one of the participants in a water carnival given by Waltham in honor of the visiting governors. He was one of many who wore suits of armor on the Elks' float, which had a hole driven into its bottom by striking a stump or rock. Three men were drowned and others rescued with difficulty. Mr. Ruane hastily discarded his armor suit and suffered no ill effects.

Peter Hylen, of Randolph, is cutting and shipping a grand lot of gladioli in all the leading sorts, and many asters and candytufts to M. Liebman.

Sam. Relby, buyer for J. W. Howard, of Somerville, was busy passing cigars at the markets August 28. It is an 8-pound girl this time. Having a boy and girl now, he is a proud man.

W. J. Thurston, of the Boston Flower Exchange, has tired of automobiling and has sold his Ford to Bert Holbrow, of Brighton.

The Sutermeister estate, of Readville, has large batches of Romans, Paper Whites and French Trumpet majors in the soil. They are disappointed with the slow germination of California-grown freesias as compared with home-grown ones. A Kiselkar has been purchased for making deliveries.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Club will hold a field day with the Breck-Robinson Nursery Co., September 11. Transportation will be furnished to all who take the 1:51 p. m. train at the North station. The train stops at the nurseries in Lexington. Those who prefer an electric ride can take the Cambridge terminal train at Park street, transferring at Howard Square to cars marked Arlington Heights, Lowell or Lexington, all of which pass the nurseries.

Penn the Florist had the decorations for the clambake given at the Pemberton Inn, Nantasket, August 26, to the visiting governors. Gladioli were chiefly used. Jacob Eisman, of the Penn staff, left August 28 for New York on his vacation. Funeral work here continues brisk.

The W. W. Edgar Co. is finishing the erection of a new garage and stable, and is making other improvements. The stock of winter-flowering plants is in splendid shape.

Aquatics, fancy caladiums, gladioli, perennials, phloxes and lilies were featured in Galvin's Park street window displays last week.

Patrick Welch is enthusiastic over the S. A. F. convention in California, which he considers one of the best ever held. His trip proved a most profitable and delightful one in every way. Courtesies were shown him at every important stop.

Paul E. Richwagen, of Needham, and H. A. Stevens, of Dedham, are sending in unusually fine asters. Mr. Stevens saves his own seeds and has realized $3 per hundred for flowers when the majority of flowers on the market sold at 25 cents to 50 cents.

I have never seen roses of any better quality than those of August of this season, thanks to the absence of intense heat. The Budlong Rose Co., of Auburn, R. I., have Ophelia, Killarney Brilliant, Black Beauty, Hadley, Mock and Russell of grand quality, more suggestive of November than August.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Business reports show improvement. Counter trade has been better, and there has been considerable funeral work. The weather on the whole has been better, with less rain than previously. Heavy consignments continue to arrive from many sources, and they are cleared fairly well. Roses have sold well during the last week; the quality is good, but the weather softens them considerably. Valley is good, but scarce. Orchids, too, are quite scarce. There is an abundance of gladioli on the market. While there is no glut in asters, there are many more than trade calls for. A few good dahlias are seen. Sweet peas are poor just now, being water-soaked. Easter lilies are somewhat scarce. The supply of carnations is light. Smilax is scarce; all other greens are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Dewey Lester, of the Rochester Floral Co., is away on a two weeks' vacation, visiting friends at Newark and Auburn, N. Y.

Visitors last week included a representative of H. B. Burdick, Saginaw, Mich.; H. C. Newkirk, of the Burt Olney greenhouses, Albion, N. Y., and Thomas Cogger, of Melrose, Mass.

A special meeting of the Rochester Florists' Association was held Monday, August 23, at the wholesale store of Geo. B. Hart, for the purpose of informing the members what has been done in regard to the flower show. Besides the private exhibits by the local florists, it was decided that the following firms would be responsible for a table decoration for two days at a time: Salter Bros., H. E. Wilson, J. B. Keller Sons, F. Schlegel's Sons, J. Thomann & Sons, Geo. T. Boucher and H. P. Neun.

W. H. Workman and his son, of Oswego, N. Y., made an automobile trip to this city last week, calling on several florists.

George T. Boucher says his business is picking up slowly. He had a heavy day with funeral orders August 26.

A new store, known as the Flower Shop, under the management of Lars Goranson, opened August 28, on North Plymouth avenue.

to work at Exposition park for the flower show now being held. The decorations are chiefly of southern smilax and spruce trees, with hugé baskets of smilax and wistarias overhead. The hall is large and lends itself to decoration splendidly.

Salter Bros. are growing a fine strain of gloxinias of various shades, some having as many as twenty blooms.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

The weather last week was more like fall than summer. It appeared to have a beneficial effect on cut stock, and consignments arrived in good condition. Funeral work was plentiful, and helped to clean up the surplus stock. Short-stemmed roses were abundant and hard to move at any price. Beauties, Hadley, Kaiserin and Russell with long stems brought good prices. There are few carnations of good quality being received. Lilies and valley sell well. Asters were abundant last week, the light shades and purple having the call. Prices on asters were low; extra fancy brought $3 per hundred. There was a reduction in the supply of gladioli and tuberoses, which will give place to dahlias and cosmos. A few Golden Glow and Smith's Advance chrysanthemums are arriving. There are plenty of greens on the market, which meet with a good demand. Retailers are looking forward to the opening of schools and Labor day, which mark the opening of the fall season.

Annual Picnic of Seed Firm.

Various Notes.

George S. Hampton, treasurer of the Joseph G. Neidinger Co., of Philadelphia, was here last week calling on the trade. He exhibited a large line of florists' supplies at the Jefferson hotel. This is the first visit Mr. Hampton has made to this city.

J. F. Ammann, secretary of the Illinois State Florists' Association, and Mrs. Ammann, left August 28 to attend the meeting of the executive committee of the association, August 31, at Peoria, Ill. E. W. Guy, of Belleville, Ill., a member of the committee, left August 30 to attend the meeting.

Frank X. Gorly, manager of the baseball team of Grimm & Gorly, has his team up at top in the Business Men's League. Mr. Gorly is sure of displaying the pennant in the company's show windows at the end of the season.

Arthur W. Schisler, of the Schisler-Corneli Seed Co., last week purchased a 377-acre farm near Clayton, Mo. The amount paid was $60,000. The land will be used by the company as a trial ground. The tract is now under cultivation, with the exception of thirty acres.

and J. H. Flackmann, representing Schlecht's process-packed Christmas trees, of Duluth, Minn., called on the trade last week.

Mrs. Buechel, head of the Riessen Floral Co., on South Broadway, says that summer business has been good and that the opening of the old Southern hotel across the street should bring a great deal of business to them.

W. A. Rowe, of Kirkwood, returned from a week's vacation and is now ready for the fall season to open. He has his place in fine shape for a big crop of cut stock.

The establishments of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. and the Windler Wholesale Floral Co. are undergoing redecorating under the supervision of Paddy Patton and Albert Gumz.

Quite a number of the county growers visited the wholesale district last week. Among them were W. J. Pilcher, W. J. Edwards, Philip Goebel, A. Ahner, A. S. Cerny, Hugo Werner, August Hartmann, W. A. Rowe, O. C. May, Wm. Winter and Gustave Vennemann.

John Connon, head of the Connon Floral Co., Webster Groves, Mo., who spent the summer months in Idaho, returned last week.

Charles Young reports that they have commenced building a range of greenhouses on the recently purchased land on the Olive street road. They expect to stock the houses before cold weather sets in. Walter Young, in his new Oldsmobile racer, makes frequent trips to the place.

It is reported that after September 15 the five wholesale houses will be open all day on Saturday, but continue to be closed on Sunday.

Housing the carnation plants has kept the county growers busy. Some of the Kirkwood, Webster Groves and Clayton growers have their mum stock in excellent condition, and expect a fine crop of blooms.

Souvenir postcards are being received from St. Louis florists who are taking trips after the close of the S. A. F. convention.

The St. Louis Florists' Club will hold its installation meeting next week, September 9, on the grounds of the H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co., at Nursery, BUFFALO.

The Market.

Trade conditions have improved. There is a marked change for the better. One week of cool weather had a good effect on business. Funeral work was plentiful last week. Roses are scarce, and the popular varieties are poor in quality. Taft, Key, Russell and Maryland are the best. Killarney, White Killarney, Ward, Milady and Ophelia are off crop. Cecile Brunner roses are excellent, but have little demand. Gladioli still are plentiful and cheap. Asters are abundant. Auratum, Japanese and Harrisii lilies are arriving in great quantities, and are almost a drug on the market. Sweet peas are a thing of the past. The few that are arriving have been spoiled by the heavy rains. Snapdragons, calendulas and cosmos still are being received. There is an abundance of Asparagus Sprengeri and plumosus. Smilax and hardy ferns are also plentiful.

Various Notes.

The first yellow mums of the season, Golden Glow, were shown at Stroh's Quality Shop last week. Snapdragons, coreopsis, cosmos, Golden Glow, gypsophilas and centaureas continue to arrive from Attica, N. Y.

The Lenox Flower Shop had an artistic display of gladioli in front of its store last week. The gladioli were arranged in window boxes and hanging baskets, and attracted much attention.

S. A. Anderson showed some unusual tritomas, which came from Ohio. They were massed in great quantities in the display window and attracted much notice. Tritoma is rarely seen here, and Mr. Anderson had many inquiries from patrons as to its name.

Miss Edna Goehring has returned from Cleveland and Akron, where she spent a part of her vacation.

Barney Meyers, of Lancaster, is growing some excellent montbretias, cosmos and gladioli.

Harold Brookins is doing good work in his first attempt at rose growing. For the last two months he has cut excellent Maryland and Killarney. He is cutting fine gladioli.

Wm. A. Adams and family are spending their vacation at Wilson, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. William Palmer will remain at their cottage at Lake of Bays, Canada, during September. They expect to return about October 1. Trade at the store of W. J. Palmer & Son last week was brisk, keeping the entire force busy.

The Lord & Burnham Co. has been awarded the contract for the erection of a greenhouse, 70x150, for Jerry Brookins, of Orchard Park. The house is to be used exclusively for sweet pea culture.

E. A. Fetters, of Detroit, Mich., passed through this city last week on an auto tour.

Frank J. Schoen, of the James Eadie Co., Cleveland, was a visitor last week.

F. J. Baum, of Kingsley, is putting in a new McCray refrigerator, which is finished in white enamel.

Miss Minnie Wilson was tendered a surprise party on her birthday, August 26, by the store force of S. A. Anderson. They presented to her a string of pearl beads, and many other gifts were given by her friends.

Several good-sized weddings have been booked for September. As the number of debutantes for the season is small, there will be little work coming from that source. E. C. A.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

A number of retail florists have reported that business was fair for August, which is usually the slowest month of the year. There continues to be some funeral work to keep the stores occupied, but the volume is not large. Growers are not making large sales. They are exceedingly busy getting plants in good shape for the coming season. Chrysanthemum and carnation plants are growing nicely, and give promise of a large yield. Other flowers are doing as well.

The flood of gladioli and asters continues, and there are comparatively few other flowers. Cut hydrangea blooms are received in large numbers. Roses are of fairly good quality for this time of the year. There were a few Easter lilies on the market last week. The prices of all flowers were exceptionally low.

Various Notes.

H. A. Strobell reports that he has had considerable funeral work of late. August business was fine for a summer month. July was a little below July of last year, but August business was enough larger to make the general average for the summer above that of last year.

Fred P. Wolfinger and wife are on a trip to California, where they are visiting the Panama-Pacific exposition.

J. F. Noll & Co. had an attractive window display last week. The window was dressed with garden tools, bags of seeds and numerous vases filled with asters. Each variety of asters on display was labeled so that the passers-by could learn the names. In the background was an immense bouquet of lilies. R. B. M.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, John M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

S. F. Leonard, Chicago, was born September 4, 1852.

Joe L. Schilder, of Schilder Bros., Chillicothe, O., is a Chicago visitor this week.

The Schisler-Corneli Seed Co., St. Louis, has invested $60,000 in a farm of 377 acres at Clayton, Mo., for seed growing and trial grounds.

Arthur L. Deal, son of the managing director of W. W. Johnson & Son, Boston, England, is here for his annual selling trip among seedsmen.

The Hoermann Seed Store, of Terre Haute, Ind., has been incorporated by Frank Hoermann, L. J. Quinian and M. E. Hoermann. The capitalization is $5,000.

Frost has done considerable damage to the seed crops in Michigan and Wisconsin, but the extent of loss will not be apparent for some time. Beans are thought to be rather hard hit.

The Harrisii crop has turned out even shorter than anyone predicted, but the Harrisii is not the essential item it was before Japanese bulbs were stored from one season to the next.

An extended tour of the western seed districts and the Pacific coast country is being made by A. H. Smith, treasurer of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, and his wife. They will return about September 18.

The Formosa lily bulbs are about all in and most of them have been delivered on advance orders. The crop this year was smaller than usual and there appears to be nothing that can develop into a surplus.

Some of the Holland houses that had sold French bulbs in America have found difficulty in getting space on the steamers and have notified customers their shipments could not be floated before September 1.

K. Van Bourgondien & Sons, Hillegom, Holland, have established a permanent American headquarters at 147 Magnolia avenue, Arlington, N. J., with C. J. Van Bourgondien, a member of the firm, as resident manager.

W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, supplementing previous reports, state that the only extreme shortages among their new sweet peas are on Fordhook Pink and Fordhook Rose; their new early winter-flowering varieties of sweet peas at Floradale have yielded fair to good crops, including several of their choicest novelties.

Considerable interest is taken in this season's crop of alfalfa seed in California. According to a report from Susanville, Cal., C. A. Patrick, of the Rudy-Patrick Seed Co., Kansas City, has contracted for about 250,000 pounds in that district. It is reported that a larger crop than that of last year is expected.

A most enjoyable motor tour of the northern Michigan seed districts is being made by W. W. Barnard, president of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago. Arnold Ringier, secretary, will take his outing at

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Santa Cruz, Cal.—The Santa Cruz Bulb & Plant Co., which of late has been a heavy advertiser in certain trustful trade papers and, indeed, was represented in two of them in their issues of August 28, is in the hands of its creditors. Attachment against the company, which originally was conducted by Alfred Mitting but more recently by his son, Ernest Deroo Mitting, amounts to about $1,000, but returns are said to be not yet all in. The attaching creditors are bulb growers in the vicinity of Santa Cruz, who had turned their freesia and calla bulbs over to the Mittings to be sold. Some of these growers had received small payments on account, but many are said to have received nothing and prospects for realizing on any claims are thought to be poor, as there are practically no assets and bankruptcy proceedings are said to be in contemplation. Attachment proceedings were begun about August 21 and both Mittings, father and son, are said soon to have left Santa Cruz and their present whereabouts is said to be unknown to their creditors. Alfred Mitting, the father, will be recalled as once before having been engaged in the bulb business at Santa Cruz and subsequently in the nursery business at Holland, Mich., where he traded as the Berrydale Experiment Gardens.

BIG SHIPMENT OF FRENCH BULBS.

Another large shipment of French bulbs arrived at New York August 19, on the steamer Venezelos, from Marseilles, bringing the total number of cases received to date to 11,341. This was the second large shipment of the 1915 crop, the first, of 2,795 cases, having arrived August 7. It is a certainty that there will be no scarcity of French bulbs in this country this year. Another shipment similar in size to the

GET AWAY

Better get away on that vacation. Drop matters and go at once. Just one thing to do before leaving—sow a flat or two of my original Silver Pink Snaps, so that when the early mums are off you will be ready with a filler—a filler that will fill your space and pocket, too.

There is no snapdragon like our original Silver Pink Seedlings. From the day they peep through the soil until the last horn blows, they excite wonder and pleasure, by constantly pushing and striving to outgrow everything in sight. One enthusiastic admirer says, "They have one on chick weed for growth." This wonderful growth means productiveness, which in turn means profit.

Do 'em today—decide on a vacation and sow seed of our Silver Pink Snapdragon. New crop of same, $1.00 per pkt.; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. Fancy, fresh seed of Nelrose, Buxton, Garnet, Yellow, White and Mixed, 35c per pkt.; 3 for $1.00.

Plants all sold until Sept. 20, when we can again supply your every need. This has been a record year for our Silver Pink. Make up your seed order today. Free cultural directions. All orders cash or C. O. D.

NOTE: All of our seeds are specially grown, and are scientifically cared for, being saved from plants of the original stock still in our possession, propagated by cuttings. Beware of seeds offered from seedling plants. They will be a spurious lot and bring sorrow to the sower.

Remember, our one business is growing snapdragons.

Premium American Pansy Seed

Toole's Giant Prize Strain of Pansy Seed is grown on our own farm under our personal supervision. All seed is carefully saved by hand from the best plants. Besides varieties that we have originated ourselves, this strain contains all other giant flowered varieties that we have found of superior merit. We use the greatest care to include the proper proportions of the different shades and colors, which we have found best for general sale after thirty years' experience growing and selling pansy seeds and plants, for both the wholesale and retail trade.

Prices: Pkt. of 300 seeds, 20c; 1000 seeds, 40c; 1/8 oz., 90c; 1/4 oz., $1.50; 1/2 oz., $2.50; ounce, $5.00.

Woman versus Mystery

I finally drew strong on my imagination and forced myself to believe I was more than anxious to be the Queen at this social function; however, I have often felt more comfortable at a wake.

The real cause of this discomfort was due to the plain, simple fact that I was trying to be sociable and was working against the grain, and making a bad job of the deal, as I was in the mood to read and talk to myself and no one else at the time.

Although I sallied forth to meet the Hero of the Fracas, and I was as stiff looking as a young Army Lieutenant on his first field performance—well, I marched along the corridors as far as the balcony overlooking the lobby, and suddenly beheld the "Big Show" that I was to play the role of leading lady with. I balked? I certainly did. Right then and there I decided he is a wise man who understands himself, as I was a complete and shrouded mystery to myself. My temperature rose to nine thousand degrees, and then froze; I recovered from the physical shock, and now I know you can drive a horse to water, but you can't make him drink. Says I to myself, Nix, nothing doing, I didn't want to, and now I won't, and at this point——

GET AWAY

Better get away on that vacation. Drop matters and go at once. Just one thing to do before leaving—sow a flat or two of my original Silver Pink Snaps, so that when the early mums are off you will be ready with a filler—a filler that will fill your space and pocket, too.

There is no snapdragon like our original Silver Pink Seedlings. From the day they peep through the soil until the last horn blows, they excite wonder and pleasure, by constantly pushing and striving to outgrow everything in sight. One enthusiastic admirer says, "They have one on chick weed for growth." This wonderful growth means productiveness, which in turn means profit.

Do 'em today—decide on a vacation and sow seed of our Silver Pink Snapdragon. New crop of same, $1.00 per pkt.; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. Fancy, fresh seed of Nelrose, Buxton, Garnet, Yellow, White and Mixed, 35c per pkt.; 3 for $1.00.

Plants all sold until Sept. 20, when we can again supply your every need. This has been a record year for our Silver Pink. Make up your seed order today. Free cultural directions. All orders cash or C. O. D.

NOTE: All of our seeds are specially grown, and are scientifically cared for, being saved from plants of the original stock still in our possession, propagated by cuttings. Beware of seeds offered from seeding plants. They will be a spurious lot and bring sorrow to the sower.

Remember, our one business is growing snapdragons.

Premium American Pansy Seed

Toole's Giant Prize Strain of Pansy Seed is grown on our own farm under our personal supervision. All seed is carefully saved by hand from the best plants. Besides varieties that we have originated ourselves, this strain contains all other giant flowered varieties that we have found of superior merit. We use the greatest care to include the proper proportions of the different shades and colors, which we have found best for general sale after thirty years' experience growing and selling pansy seeds and plants, for both the wholesale and retail trade.

Prices: Pkt. of 300 seeds, 20c; 1000 seeds, 40c; 1/8 oz., 90c; 1/4 oz., $1.50; 1/2 oz., $2.50; ounce, $5.00.

deners and truckers; carefully compiled and well illustrated. Tomatoes, being among the Livingston specialties, occupy five of the total twenty pages, and a variety of tomato originated by the firm is featured on the front cover.

W. E. Marshall & Co., New York, N. Y.—Illustrated fall catalogue of "Marshall's Matchless Bulbs"; twenty-four pages and cover. Also contains lists of hardy plants, flower seeds for fall sowing, azaleas, rhododendrons, hydrangeas and lilacs for forcing, grass seed mixtures, weed killers, insecticides, fertilizers, etc.

John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, Ill.—"The Moninger Proof Book," a presentation of "facts and figures" on Moninger greenhouses; contains forty-eight large pages, printed and illustrated in attractive style. The size of the pages permits the use of diagrams of complete transverse sections of greenhouses, printed on a sufficiently large scale to exhibit the outlines distinctly. Other pictures show, with equal clearness, separate details in the Moninger methods of construction.

Sakata Nurseries, Rokkakubashi, Kanagawa, near Yokohama, Japan.—Wholesale catalogue of lilies, hardy perennials, alpine novelties, hardy shrubs and trees, tree and flower seeds of Japan; sixty pages, illustrated. Among the specialties are dwarf trees, hardy aquatics and semi-aquatics, bamboo plants, pot-grown Japanese maples, stock plants for grafting, etc.

Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago and New York.—"Bulbs and Hardy Plants for Autumn"; fifty-six pages, illustrated. Besides bulbs and perennials, the lists comprise ornamental shrubs and trees, fruit trees, small fruits, vines, vegetable and grass seeds, wheat, rye, seeds of biennials and hardy perennials, poultry supplies, tools and requisites.

Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, Pa.—Wholesale catalogue of bulbs, seeds, perennials, roses, ferns, spiræa clumps, strawberry plants, hardy climbers, florists' supplies, garden tools and other equipments; seventy-two pages, freely illustrated. Small green inserts are used to draw attention to novelties and specialties. The seed lists include flower, vegetable, grass and farm seeds, with the leading brands of mushroom spawn.

W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.—An illustrated folder in regard to the new Spencer sweet pea, Fiery Cross, with descriptions and recommendations and an account of the origin of the variety.

William Elliott & Sons, New York, N. Y.—An 8-page, illustrated wholesale catalogue of bulbs, roots and miscellaneous requisites, such as hotbed mats, plant stakes, glazing materials, fertilizers, insecticides, etc.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa.—"Dreer's Autumn Catalogue" of bulbs, roots, plants, roses, shrubs, evergreens, aquatics, small fruits, vegetable plants and roots, seeds, tools and general supplies; eighty pages, well illustrated, and arranged in the accurate manner that is customary with this company. The plants listed include a wide range of both outdoor and greenhouse stock; the bulb and seed lists are also comprehensive.

Chrysanthemum

By Arthur Herrington

Formerly president Chrysanthemum Society of America.

The most complete and comprehensive work on the cultivation of the chrysanthemum that has yet been published in America. Its scope and character may be gleaned from the list of contents, which comprises chapters on composts; planting; benches, boxes or pots; general cultural details; crown and terminal buds; feeding, its object and application; care of the buds; exhibition and judging; specimen plants, plants in pots; raising from seed and hybridizing; sports; hardy chrysanthemums; chrysanthemums for south and west; insect pests and diseases; classification and selection of varieties for special purposes; history of the chrysanthemum, etc. The book will be welcomed for the lucid, comprehensive, as well as the practical character of its contents. Handsomely illustrated. 168 pages, 5x7 inches. Price 50c postpaid.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

There has been little doing in a retail way during the last week. Except for funeral work, there has been little call for flowers. But all have learned to expect such a condition at this time of year, when the holiday feeling is abroad and all outdoors calls loudly. Outside shipping, however, keeps up remarkably well to all points except the hot valleys and desert sections, where it has fallen off somewhat. Indoor roses are of poor quality as yet, owing to the warm weather. Carnations are only fair, and the best thing in the way of cheap flowers is the aster, which has kept up well. Chrysanthemums are in, but there is little call for them. Dahlias are useful for making a display, but do not sell well. Greens are plentiful and good. Pot ferns are slow in selling and there is an oversupply.

Convention Visitors.

To give a list of convention visitors who were here last week would practically be to repeat the names of those who were at San Francisco, for almost everyone who was at the Bay City high jinks came on to sample Los Angeles hospitality. There were naturally a great many reunions of old friends, as well as much making of new ones, and there were great talks over old times and those departed. But the biggest reunion of all was the auto ride and barbecue put up by the 1915 committee, under the management of Fred Howard, Fred Hills, Henry W. Kruckeberg and others of our local boosters and workers. While the program looked formidable, it was carried out almost in its entirety, and schedule time was as closely adhered to as possible.

The meeting place was at Howard & Smith's, at Ninth and Olive streets, at 9 a. m., and the crowd was a revelation. The number was judged to be about 250, but it would have puzzled a sheep man to sort them into fours and count them.

An early start was arranged and all got away to South park, where the beautiful plantings were much admired. Superintendent Shearer, it should be noted, was among the party and his remarks upon the various works carried out in the parks were interesting to us all. Exposition parks were next visited and then the interesting Doheney gardens and greenhouses, at Chester place. A start was made then for the Western avenue entrance to Griffith park, and the superb drive over Mount Hollywood was enjoyed to the full by all. The grades here have been skillfully made, the roads have been carefully banked and a good surface was found. Mr. Shearer is surely to be congratulated on a fine piece of engineering work. Unfortunately, the day was hazy and the magnificent views usually to be had from here had largely to be taken for granted.

The north end picnic grounds were reached at 12, noon, and here the barbecue was served and everybody did perfect justice to it. Mayor Sebastian and some of the ladies of the party were delayed on the road by engine trouble, but they arrived in plenty of time for the moving picture men. The afternoon was spent at the Busch and Huntington gardens; refreshments were again served at the latter and the day was finished with a drive over the grades at beautiful Elysian park. All, I believe, enjoyed themselves to the full and it was a most enjoyable day throughout.

Various Notes.

Friends of Cecil Hart, the young man who was sent out by the park department to look for orchids and rare plants in South America, have been a good deal worried on account of not having heard from him, and now the news comes that he is down with fever and his recovery is doubtful.

Calling at Hills' Nursery the other day, I was surprised to see how the outside stock had improved. It seems only an extremely short time ago that Mr. Hills made the last addition to his nursery, and this consisted of bare, unpromising looking hillside, but it is now covered with an elegant growth of ornamental trees and shrubs, in the finest of health and condition. In the greenhouses everything is in first-class order and there is a splendid stock of ferns, which are Mr. Hills' specialty. I noted particularly some extra heavy 8-inch Roosevelt, which were above the average in quality. This fern is becoming a little more popular among growers. Whitmani is here in all sizes and Mr. Hills seems to have the knack of so handling his stock as to have always plenty of vigorous young specimens to take the place of those sold. Hence the houses always look well furnished. The adiantums, growing below the other ferns, have been recently cut back and have started into splendid growth again. The whole place is in perfect order and is a great credit to Mr. Hills' cultural knowledge and hard work.

Mr. and Mrs. Alois Frey, of Crown Point, Ind., arrived here August 25, about the same time as a large consignment of their colored freesia bulbs, which Mr. Frey intends to plant here this season, to see how they do in sunny California.

C. B. Knickman, representing McHutchison & Co., New York, is in town calling on the trade.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The local trade continues to be as busy as ever, though the shipping business still is a little quiet. There has been a good deal of funeral work. The exposition management is entertaining more liberally than before, and many of the functions require large decorations. While flowers in general probably are more plentiful in San Francisco than ever before, the daily offerings clean up well at fair prices. The small outdoor stock is holding up well. A good many forget-me-nots are appearing, and new pink and red Shasta daisies are shown. Sweet peas still hang on. Carnations are scarce and poor, specials selling at 60 cents wholesale. Amaryllis is plentiful and cheap. Supplies of gladioli are limited and of only fair quality. Good dahlias are shown, and they are holding their popularity well. Zinnias sell readily when made up in artistic baskets, but otherwise move rather slowly. Asters are fully holding their own. Some really good mums are to be had, consisting mostly of Golden Glow and October Frost. There are also Monrovias, a few nice Crockers and an occasional bunch of rose-pink and white pompons, which promise to be popular as usual. The general run of prices is nothing extra. Lilium rubrum still is seen everywhere, and finds a good demand. There are not many Lilium tigrinum or auratum, and supplies of giganteum are limited. A good many short roses are shipped in, but really good stock is scarce and cleans up quickly. A few good Beauties are seen. Ophelia is immensely popular; Killarney Brilliant sells well in some quarters and Hadley is holding its own. A few forced violets are appearing, but nothing fit to ship will appear for several weeks. Cyclamen blooms are fine and quite popular. There has been a good demand for valley, but there is no shortage. The quality is good. The few orchids that appear are fine, and clean up quickly. Gardenias are well taken.

Convention Echoes.

The reception of the Ladies' S. A. F., in the California building at the exposition, on Florists' day, August 20, was, for the ladies at least, one of the most enjoyable functions of the convention period. Including the local and visiting ladies, there were over 100 present. Talks were given by all the visiting ladies and several of those residing near San Francisco. A farewell address was given by Walter Hofinghoff, chairman of the local committee on ladies' entertainment.

A considerable number of the visiting florists were entertained by the Los Angeles trade last week. Some of them are expected back in San Francisco before they start east.

Messages have been received from some of the party who went to Eureka August 21 with Charles Willis Ward, indicating that he is giving them royal entertainment. In the party are Daniel MacRorie, Mr. Shearer, superintendent of parks at Los Angeles; Professor Stevens, of the University of California; Frank Pelicano, Peter Rock, Mr. Urquhart, of the Panama-Pacific exposition; John Morley and H. Plath. The party reached Eureka August 21. They visited the Cottage Gardens Nursery the following day, and from there went to the nursery farm at Carlotta. In the afternoon they inspected the big mills of the Pacific Lumber Co., at Scotia, where the giant redwoods are cut into lumber. Sunday evening, August 22, a reception was given at the hotel in Eureka, and the next morning the party set out for the famous Ah Pah ranch, traversing the densest and finest forests of giant redwoods.

Various Notes.

Warlow's Flower Shop has succeeded Yamato the Florist at 1328 Polk street.

The Motroni Floral Co., which started business several months ago at 1806 Fillmore street, near Sutter, has an attractive store, fitted up in cream-colored pergola effect.

Charles Stappenbeck, of the American Florist store, has returned from a vacation in Plumas county.

Mrs. R. E. Darbee has been doing well with basket assortments, with which she is doing considerable window work. She is shipping a good deal of miscellaneous stock, and last week sent a large shipment for a fair decoration in Kansas.

The E. W. McLellan Co. is having its new store well fitted up, and the appearance is greatly improved by the nice showing of ferns and flowers in the window. The basement is occupied as a salesroom by aster growers, who are bringing in a big cut.

H. Avansino, of the Fairmount Floral Co., has returned from a vacation in Marin county, where he was preparing land for a planting.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co. has a large lot of cyclamens, which are coming in earlier than ever before. They have been flowering nicely for a week or more, giving a good cut of blooms, and now many of the plants are being sold.

A. O. Stein is showing many new baskets decorated in his own establishment. Mr. Stein had a busy week with decorations. He provided for two large weddings, a luncheon and dinner dance.

Eric James, of Oakland, shipped in some exceptionally fine cockscomb last month. It was handled by many shops, and proved to be quite popular.

Charles Navlet's stand in the Emporium department store is starting the bulb season early, because of the opportunities to sell to the tourists. Attention was directed to the department by a window display, and large orders are being left by visitors from all parts of the country. Most of the stock is grown in California, and is unusually fine. Mr. Navlet is getting out his fall catalogue. S. H. G.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business last week was a little above the average for the season, due to a good demand for funeral work. Good asters, gladioli, sweet peas and auratum and rubrum lilies are in oversupply. Carnations cut from newly benched plants have appeared. There are plenty of good roses. The new dahlia, Minnie Burgle, adds color to several window displays. A second crop of blooms from the delphiniums is coming in. Cattleya Gaskelliana is the only variety of orchid producing blooms and the supply is not equal to the demand.

Various Notes.

C. C. Ruenitz devotes his entire range to growing pot plants. At his store on upper Washington street, he keeps a display of them that includes a 10-year-old cactus, Cephalocereus senilis.

Fred Wiedemann has gone to southern Oregon on a hunting trip.

J. I. Robinson is bringing in carnations cut from new plants.

Niklas & Son say they have been cutting Golden Glow mums for over three weeks.

Officials of the park bureau are making a strong effort to destroy the elm beetles which have appeared in several sections of the city.

Meadowbrook Farm, located on the electric line five miles east of the city limits, was bought five years ago by the Mountain View Floral Co. It now is all under cultivation and is used by the company as a nursery. The land slopes gently to the south. The soil is loose, with a little gravel, and is easily cultivated. Its fertility is evident in the vigorous appearance of the stock. The company grows imported and native shrubbery and ornamentals, a variety of perennials and trees. The principal product is rose plants, of which about 250 varieties are grown. To supply the demand for own-root plants, a quantity of cuttings is grown, but the growers strongly favor budded stock, which they claim is more enduring and produces better. French Manetti stocks are used extensively, but for some varieties of roses other stocks have been found preferable. At the company's city plant, at East Seventy-second and Mill streets, propagating is done and several acres are filled with roses and nursery stock. Considerable work has been done this summer on repairs to the greenhouses. The western part of the company's city land adjoins Mt. Tabor public park, and is wanted for a site for a highway, which will be a part of the scenic boulevard system.

The Market.

The weather has been extremely dry and warm, but perennials are holding out exceedingly well. Gladioli are a glut on the market. Sweet peas and asters are plentiful. There are no greenhouse-grown flowers being offered, except a few pink roses and a few carried-over carnations, but as there has not been a large demand for any of them they are not greatly missed. The newly planted carnations appear to be in splendid shape, but there will be no cut for at least another six weeks. The growers are not represented in the downtown stores, as the other flowers are principally grown by amateurs.

Business last week was not up to the standard, but the near future probably will be more prosperous, as more decorations have been demanded. There is a good demand for orchids, but the quantity offered is small.

Various Notes.

Mrs. L. W. McCoy has her greenhouses planted and stocked for the fall season. Gene Lambert, at the store, is reporting good business.

Rosaia Bros. had a decoration for the bankers' convention.

J. P. Burns, manager of the Hollywood Gardens, is cutting good orchids. He has a splendid house of ferns.

Thomas Wiley has returned from his trip to San Francisco, where he attended the Scotch Clans' meeting. He had a pleasant trip, but was so greatly engaged with his party that he did not have time to see much of the florists' convention.

W. S. Goldsbury, formerly of the Crescent Floral Shop, will join the force of the Buyer & Bell Co.

Dahlia Show.

The fifth annual dahlia show of the Tacoma Dahlia Society, held August 20 and 21, was a marked success. None of the previous shows could compare, in either quality or quantity, with the dahlias of this year's show. The large attendance was unprecedented. Thousands of spectators flocked to the roof garden of the Rhodes Bros.' building, where the exhibits were displayed. Although the weather was excessively hot, the dahlias, sweet peas, asters and other flowers withstood the heat admirably, the blooms remaining fresh until the close.

The judges chosen were Mrs. H. W. Lindhart, Alfred Jacobson, J. W. Milton, George Seaverns, F. C. Smith and L. Graham.

The Awards.

J. R. Thompson, secretary of the Tacoma Dahlia Society, won the $10 prize offered by the Tacoma Florists' Association for the best six vases of fall flowers. John Benthien was judged to have the best exhibit of the professional class. In the florists' division, A. A. Hinz was first, the Northwestern Floral Co., second, and the Smith Floral Co., third. Alfred Jacobson, florist at the Western Washington Hospital for the Insane, at Fort Steilacoom, was awarded a prize for twelve vases of sweet peas, and a large showing of blooms, ferns and plants won recognition for the Metropolitan park district.

The amateur classes, which constituted the greater part of the show, consisted of numerous entries of dahlias, sweet peas, gladioli, asters, chrysanthemums, hydrangeas, sunflowers, etc. Mrs. E. F. Alexander, of Gravelly Lake, won the grand trophy, the highest award of the show.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Vice-president, John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; Secretary, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.
Forty-first annual meeting, Milwaukee, Wis., June 22 to 24, 1916.

APPLE GROWERS REORGANIZE.

A new organization, known as the American Association of Apple Growers, was formed last week at the Planters' hotel, St. Louis. The new formation takes the place of the old organization known as the Apple Growers' Congress. The following compose the executive committee: H. M. Dunlap, of Savoy, Ill., chairman; Thos. Bregger, of Champaign, Ill.; Professor W. A. Ruth, of Urbana, Ill.; H. W. Funk, of Normal, Ill., and H. C. Irish and T. C. Wilson, of St. Louis, Mo. The next meeting will be held at St. Louis next March, to which members from every state east of the Rocky mountains and north of Texas are invited. Plans will then be made to enlarge the association. It is intended that a general convention be held in August. H. C. Irish, of St. Louis, is secretary of the executive committee of national organization.

J. J. B.

SOUTHERN ASSOCIATION MEETS.

At its annual convention, at Hendersonville, N. C., August 25 and 26, the Southern Nurserymen's Association elected the following officers for the coming year:

President—A. I. Smith, Knoxville, Tenn.
Vice-President—Harry Nicholson, Winchester, Tenn.
Secretary-Treasurer—O. Joe Howard, Pomona, N. C.

Atlanta was selected as the place for the next convention of the association, in August, 1916.

Larger opportunities to dispose of nursery stock was the subject of much inquiry and discussion at the convention. The possibilities of introducing fruit trees in the general plan of crop diversification, of increasing the number of small home orchards and of disseminating practical instructions to small fruit growers were talked of as means of enabling the nurserymen of the south to increase rather than reduce the size of their plantings.

Before the convention adjourned a committee was appointed to compile educational literature to be used in conducting an educational campaign with a view to encouraging more home orchards and the better care of fruit trees. The members of the association were strongly in favor of more coöperation among the members and among the various organizations, state and sectional, in an effort to hasten the coming of prosperity.

CALIFORNIA OFFICERS.

One of those slips that occur in the transmission of news by telegraph was responsible for the statement in The Review of August 19 that Charles Howard, of Hemet, was honored with the presidency of the California Association of Nurserymen, whereas the man elected to that office was John W. Armstrong, of Ontario. Charles Howard was first of the vice-presidents elected.

CONNECTICUT SUMMER OUTING.

An automobile trip to Lake Compounce and a day of much fun and a little business composed the annual summer outing of the Connecticut Nurserymen's Association.

The feature of the day was a baseball game, between W. E. Campbell's "Forsythias" and C. R. Burr's "Barberries," which the former won by a large margin. The game was notable for Burr's coaching, Hunt's batting, Hoyt's catching, Campbell's pitching and Wilson's base-stealing. Secretary Frank L. Thomas umpired.

After dinner, at the Casino, the party visited the points of scenic interest about the lake. President W. E. Campbell presided over a short business session, during which the Brainard Nursery & Seed Co., of Thompsonville, was elected to membership.

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Trade is quiet here, with a good quantity of stock coming in. Some excellent Beauties are to be seen, but the demand for them is light. Other roses are fine, including Kaiserin, Ophelia, Bulgarie, Richmond, etc., and the supply is fully equal to the demand. Carnations look promising and it will not be long until we shall be receiving some fair cuts from the early planting. Asters are plentiful, though most of the florists' crops are failures and we are depending mostly on the folks out in the country, a number of whom are sending in fine stock. If all the asters that were planted had done well, this community would have been swamped with them. Gladioli are coming in rather slowly, but are sufficient to meet all demands. Valley is not plentiful, but the demand is not heavy. Of lilies there are plenty to go the rounds. The state fair this week is creating a good demand for decorative plants for various exhibits.

Various Notes.

Vacation times are about over and nearly all the members of the craft are back on the job again, ready for the expected prosperity.

Sherman Stephens was in a serious condition on Saturday, August 21, and his family were called to the hospital, as they were afraid he would not be able to pull through, but he is reported to be somewhat improved and his friends are hopeful. J. M.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

The market is well supplied with gladioli and asters, the latter being of fine quality, which makes them sell readily.

The lowest temperature for August in nineteen years was recorded August 26. The temperature dropped to 42 degrees.

The funeral services of Mrs. Chas. Kelsey, a Grand Rapids woman prominent in all musical organizations of the country, was held August 26. This funeral kept the florists busy for a couple of days.

Henry Smith says carnation plants are all in and his force is getting ready for violets.

Eli Cross is displaying roses that are fine for the season.

The Wealthy Avenue Floral Co. has some fine chrysanthemums just about ready to cut.

Frank Farney, of the M. Rice Co., was in the city last week.

URBANA, O.

R. H. Murphey's Sons are adding to their extensive rose range eight houses, 20x100. This firm does an exclusive wholesale business in rose plants and hydrangeas.

The Urbana Floral Co., formerly the Reeser Plant Co., has taken a plunge in gladiolus growing this year.

Wenner and Jesse Lee Botkin, the rising florists of the East Lawn Gardens, have returned from their summer outing at Lakeside, O., where they were registered in the Boyville camp of the Kappa Sigma Pi.

S. W. Carey, the North End Florist, is cutting some good white carnations.

The heavy rains of July and August have been disastrous to the geranium stock, but have made cannas and salvias the finest for many years.

The East Lawn Gardens are making some additions, including a show house and a front entrance, which greatly improve this establishment. J. G. Botkin established his place in 1900 with only a few hotbed sashes. The outlook is encouraging, since there are five sons and two daughters, who assist Mr. and Mrs. Botkin. Mr. Botkin grows a general line of bedding plants and cut flowers. He has made a specialty of growing asters for C. E. Critchell, of Cincinnati, since 1905, usually planting from 35,000 to 50,000. The outdoor gardens are equipped with the Skinner irrigation system. J. G. B.

SUMMIT, N. J.

The Colonial Flower Shop, of which William Death is proprietor, has had considerable funeral work lately. Mr. Death is attending to repairs at his greenhouses.

Emerson C. McFadden, who has made a specialty of smilax and asparagus, is planning to grow sweet peas for the coming season.

Louis Forbinger has been putting in new benches in his greenhouses, and otherwise putting his greenhouses in order for the coming season.

Palms and Other Seasonable Stock

A splendid lot of Kentias in all sizes.

THERE is NO SCARCITY of PALMS at DREER'S

COCOS WEDDELIANA.

OUR SUPPLY of Palms, and particularly that of Kentias, is not at all affected by the war tie-up of Belgian stocks. We are carrying the usual large quantities and full line of sizes of the well known Dreer quality, but as the general supply of this class of stock is much smaller than usual, due to this blockade, there is certain to be a scarcity as the season advances. The demand during August has been heavier than we have ever experienced during that month, and we are positive that there will not be sufficient good stock to last throughout the season. We therefore recommend that you cover your requirements early. If you are not ready to accept immediate delivery, let us book your order, and we will set aside and reserve your stock, making delivery at any time between now and October 15.

HENRY A. DREER, 714-716 Chestnut St., PHILADELPHIA

THE ABOVE PRICES ARE INTENDED FOR THE TRADE ONLY

A. J. Guttman, grower of roses, has been installing cement sidings in one of his greenhouses.

M. McDonald reports business exceedingly quiet. Practically all of the products of his greenhouses are sold at retail locally.

Charles P. Behre, grower of roses, has been installing new benches. He says his sales fell about 2,000 blooms below those of last year, but his receipts were thirty per cent less than the receipts of last year. He sells most of his output through the New York commission houses.

John Evans, who makes a specialty of Killarney and Sunburst roses, is planting his bushes for the coming season.

John N. May has torn out about 600 feet of benches in his greenhouses and replaced them with new ones. He has done considerable piping and made other necessary repairs. R. B. M.

"A Bird in the Hand"

You know the adage. Well, a Hydrangea in America is worth several Azaleas in Belgium right now. Of course, the Azaleas may get out of Belgium; we don't know; conditions may change; certainly it is not possible to get anything out of Belgium at present. The war may end next week, but the chances are it won't. Are you going to take that chance? Can you afford to depend altogether on imported forcing stock, when there is plenty of good forcing stock right here at home—"Made in America"—stock that you know you can depend on?

HYDRANGEAS, for example. We offer:

OTAKSA, with 7 to 10 branches, at $25.00 the 100.
" " 5 and 6 " at 20.00 the 100.
" " 4 " at 15.00 the 100.

French Novelties, all the best ones, at $5.00 the 100 addition for the same sizes.

They are all in six-inch pots now, plunged outside, and growing like weeds, rich, deep-green, healthy foliage, and "fat" stems that promise big heads of bloom. They will grow into money for you, and you can cash 'em next Easter.

There won't be any surplus of blooming plants next Spring. Stick a pin in that. We want every progressive florist to get in touch with us.

BOUNDBROOK, N. J.

The Boundbrook Nurseries are building a small greenhouse beside one of the other houses. It will be 9x100, just wide enough for two side benches. Blooms have been cut from the Golden Glow chrysanthemums since July 15. The company has many fine mums under glass, and a fine lot of carnations. The nursery department is slow just now, but the proprietors, E. P. Bryan and A. W. Bryan, expect a brisk business in the fall.

Business is quiet at the Boundbrook store of George Schmidt, of Somerville. There is some funeral work, but little transient trade.

Charles Zvolanek is making extensive alterations at his greenhouses. He has planted his sweet peas for the coming season.

John Wild has a large number of chrysanthemums, which will begin to flower early. They will be followed by sweet peas.

Ludwig Wild has 2,500 gardenias and 18,000 mums under glass. He plans to have 2,000 pansy plants for cutting during the winter months. Sweet peas will be planted after the mums have finished blooming. R. B. M.

LANCASTER, PA.

The early chrysanthemums are making their appearance. Some good late asters are in the market and find buyers easily. Dahlias are to be found in great variety.

F. A. Suter has a large planting of the newer varieties of dahlias, and is starting to cut some of the early ones.

The American Gladiolus Show, at Atlantic City, was attended by the following Lancaster county florists: Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. Herr and son, Irwin; Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Barr and son; Mrs. Unverzogt, Ira H. Landis and H. K. Rohrer.

Rodney Eshleman, of B. F. Barr & Co., is spending his vacation in the New England states.

Lemar Landis has returned from his orchard at Cold Springs Farm, in lower Lancaster county. He has harvested some fine peaches.

Recent visitors were William P. Ford, of New York, and Jacob Becker, of Philadelphia. H. K. R.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Market.

Business is good, while the supply is still short, especially of quality stock, as the result of so much rain and hail, which is also a handicap to those who are building and remodeling. Work is going on so slowly it will cause some delay in planting. Asters are improving in stem and flower. Lilies are of good quality and are plentiful. Roses are of exceptionally fine quality. American Beauties are more in demand than in any previous summer.

Various Notes.

Business at Arthur Newell's is holding up well and the demand for funeral designs is especially heavy this summer. Miss Mamie Klein, of this establishment, has returned after a trip of five weeks to the Pacific coast, where she visited the Panama-Pacific and San Diego expositions. She called on the trade in several of the coast cities and returned home well pleased with her trip.

Joseph Austin was one of the victims of the recent hail storm. His loss in glass amounted to about 2,500 square feet, besides the loss of a fine lot of begonias and other plants. The storm seemed to hit him harder than anyone else. W. J. Barnes was hit and lost a few hundred feet of glass with little damage to the plants inside, but it ruined all of the pot stock plunged outside, especially the pot chrysanthemums. Adolph Mohr lost about 600 lights of glass at both places. A few Lorraine begonias were damaged.

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Welch, of Boston, and Mr. and Mrs. A. Lange, of Chicago, were guests of Samuel Murray one day last week. Miss Hayden is again at her post in Mr. Murray's store after an enjoyable trip north.

G. K. Parker, manager of the Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co., says that business at the store has been good through August and he is well pleased with the way the books look.

Mr. Gray has the greenhouses on the W. A. Ruhl farm, which will be devoted to carnations, sweet peas and vegetables. This place is all steel and comprises about 60,000 square feet of glass. Until recently it was under the management of Mr. Pratt. W. J. B.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

THE COAL MARKET.

The coal men, who have been dull-spirited in accordance with the dullness of trade, are getting busy and cheerful. It is admitted that the increase in business is not strong and uniform, and the activity even now is scarcely as great as would naturally be expected at this late season of the year. Still, there are stirrings that indicate a genuine awakening and foretell the inevitable approach of the real autumn rush.

The general cheerfulness in the coal trade is subdued by the fear of a shortage of cars for the movement of the fuel. Such a shortage is predicted about this time nearly every year and does not always materialize. Sometimes, perhaps, the rumors of lack of cars have their origin largely in the minds of coal dealers who wish to frighten backward buyers into line. But diligent students of the situation seem now to be sincerely of the opinion that "under the circumstances it is not wise or safe to delay any longer than is absolutely necessary the purchase of coal for storage."

As to the Chicago trade in smokeless coal, it is stated that "the market is strengthening. Some concessions were made on track coal and even on spot coal, about the middle of the month, but mine-run for September delivery is firm both on track and on spot at the new circular price of $1.40. The lump and egg situation is not quite so strong."

HOUSTON, TEX.

One week has passed since the storm, and the florists have about cleaned up the wreckage and are beginning to rebuild. After checking up the stock, we find the damage to amount to about twenty-five to thirty-five per cent. In two or three weeks we shall not know we had a storm. Everybody is working a large force of men, and will soon have things straightened out.

All the florists are enthusiastic over the S. A. F. convention for next summer. We will shortly name our committees, and get busy early in the game. We propose to make this a record-breaking convention for the society. I firmly believe it will come right up to the best convention the S. A. F. has ever known, if it is not a record-breaker. The publicity we are going to give the convention the coming year will

THE REWARD OF MERIT

Our Boilers were installed to heat 2,304,450 sq. ft. of glass in 1914

The White House Greenhouses—U. S. Propagating Gardens Washington, D. C.

HEATED BY KROESCHELL BOILERS

The Conservatories of the President of the United States and the U. S. Propagating Gardens are located opposite the Washington monument at Washington, D. C. Over forty greenhouses are devoted to the growing of cut flowers, orchids, stove plants, tropical and decorative stock, and all bedding and ornamental plants for the U. S. Government buildings and grounds at Washington.

A No. 11 KROESCHELL BOILER was installed in 1906 for the high temperature houses. This boiler replaced a number of other makes and made a remarkable record for fuel economy.

UNCLE SAM'S IRON FRAME RANGE ERECTED IN 1910 IS HEATED BY KROESCHELL BOILERS.

The Plant Introduction Garden of the United States Department of Agriculture at Chico, California, is heated by No. 2 Kroeschell Boiler and Generator System.

In 1912 two No. 5 KROESCHELL BOILERS were installed for the new range of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, at Garrett Park, Md.

The U. S. Government's new establishment, the Northern Great Plains Field Station, at Mandan, N. Dakota, ordered a No. 7 KROESCHELL BOILER for the new greenhouse range erected in 1913.

August, 1914, two more No. 11 KROESCHELL BOILERS were ordered for White House Conservatories and U. S. Propagating Gardens, Washington, D. C.

The Plain Facts About the Merits of Cast and Wrought Iron Boilers

BOTH have their limitations. Both have their advantages.

For ranges up to 30,000 feet, cast iron boilers are by far the most economical. Not only most economical in coal, but they cost less to set up and cost far less to keep in repair.

Truth to tell, the repairs on a Burnham are next to nothing. Even the grates will last a surprisingly long time, because they are made of a special heat-withstanding iron mixture. They are also made extra heavy and double under-braced against warping.

In some cellars the jacket on a wrought boiler will rust out in a few years. While in the same cellar, a Burnham would be good for years and years, as the cast iron resists rust.

If your water is acid or contains some destructive minerals, you will have to re-tube a wrought boiler every few years. Look at the rust-eaten tube on this page—that's what will happen.

But the Burnham Boiler can use the same kind of water and scarcely be affected.

The Burnham you can bring from the car in sections in any lumber wagon. With a big riveted together wrought boiler, it's an engineering job to load it, and a prodigious task to pull it.

For the man with the moderate sized range the Burnham Cast Iron Sectional Boiler is the one to buy.

If you want to talk it over, say when and where and we'll be there.

stir up interest throughout the United States, and few of the members will feel like staying at home. As far as trade exhibits are concerned, we have a large auditorium, and I am sure it is going to be packed to its capacity. I cite as an example our Texas State Florists' Association, which is as yet a small organization; we were able to stir up enough interest to fill a good-sized building with exhibits. Now compare, if you please, the Texas State Florists' Association and the great S. A. F. and you will have in comparison the kind of exhibition we shall have at the 1916 S. A. PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

The usual summer apathy continues. Nearly all of the stores have been repainted, renovated and put into condition for the fall openings; the greenhouse men have overhauled their ranges and are well advanced with benching, and all along the line work is well advanced for the beginning of fall.

Asters hold the center of the market, and are of good quality and in large supply. The latter may be said regarding gladioli. A few cactus dahlias find a demand, but on the whole there is little doing.

Various Notes.

Byron H. Nixon, of Summit, has an unusually fine showing of dahlias, his field containing many choice specimens.

The T. J. Johnston Co., of which Ed. Brooke is proprietor, has had some attractive window displays of dahlias. Miss Jordan is spending a two weeks' vacation on Prudence island, in Narragansett bay.

Charles Lapham has taken a store in the Littlefield building, on Broad street, Central Falls, which he is fitting up for a retail shop.

John J. Johnston, of Johnston Bros., has been granted a permit for the erection of a greenhouse, 32x152 feet, on Hope street, near Rochambeau avenue. A large shed will also be erected.

Walter S. Sword and family, of Valley Falls, have taken a cottage at Warwick Downs, overlooking Narragansett bay, for the month of September.

Abe Littman is having his retail store, on Westminster street, repainted inside and out and all the nickel parts on his large icebox renewed.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

The growers of valley in this locality are sending into the market only half of the quantity of these flowers that they have been accustomed to shipping. There were a number of fair sized wedding orders last week, and for the first time since the end of June several of the wholesalers sold completely out on valley before all orders were filled. Northern-grown American Beauty roses are of good quality and are meeting with fair demand considering the season. White roses sold well all the week for wedding decorations. There is considerable snapdragon to be had, but practically no demand for it. Gladioli are selling better, but practically without price. The supply has decreased greatly. Plenty of good asters are to be had, but even the best of these fail to bring a good price. Rubrum lilies were here last week for the first time this season.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pfister have returned to Washington from a long stay in Switzerland. Mr. Pfister was formerly engaged in the retail flower business on Connecticut avenue, and it is said that it is his intention to reopen in this city as soon as he finds a suitable location.

The store of the Leo Niessen Co., at 1214 H street, northwest, has just been repainted and redecorated throughout in preparation for a busy fall season. Part of the front of the store has been railed off for office purposes, and it is planned to increase the number of employees. An automobile truck will be added.

Milton Redman has returned from a vacation spent at Atlantic City, N. J. Miss Minnie E. Shea enjoyed a pleasant trip to Springfield, Mass., and other points near by in New England. Both Mr. Redman and Miss Shea are employees of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co.

Katherine Seibert, of B. F. Barr & Co., Lancaster, Pa., was a recent visitor.

Louis L. Bowdler has brought suit in the District Supreme court against the former owner of the property at Fourteenth and I streets, northwest, where he conducts a retail flower store, for the recovery of $20,000 damages for alleged breach of covenant. He states that he leased the store for a period of three years from February 15, 1913, and by the terms of the covenant the defendant agreed not to sell the premises without first giving him an opportunity to purchase, but the property was disposed of without the stipulated opportunity being given him. He sues for a further sum of $1,000 covering damages alleged to have followed the closing of a hallway, the use of which had previously been granted him.

Miss Nellie Brueninger, bookkeeper for Gude Bros. Co., leaves for a two weeks' stay in Atlantic City.

Some time ago we were awarded a contract to build the greenhouse shown above on the right, which then adjoined two smaller ones. After comparing the results in the three, we were ordered to tear down the old ones and replace them with another of ours—that's the one on the left.

Had the original houses been properly designed and properly constructed, they would not have been doomed to the scrap heap.

In the selection of a greenhouse builder an owner must use discrimination or take the consequences.

Under these circumstances, why take chances? We design and build them right in the first place. We go anywhere to submit plans and prices.

The Market.

Business conditions last week in the wholesale market were about the same as those of the week previous. Asters are more plentiful, and this week's cut is expected to be the heaviest of the midseason crop. The best of the asters arriving now are being sold at a fair price, but for short and medium stock, low prices are the rule. In roses the demand is light and the supply ample. Gladioli still are arriving. The demand for them is only fair. Dahlia shipments are light. There is a sufficient supply of greens.

Various Notes.

William E. McKissick spent part of last week touring the battlefield of Gettysburg and surrounding territory.

L. H. Klein is supplying the market with a fine lot of ferns, cut dahlias and asters. His shell-pink and lavender asters of the Crego type are especially good.

J. J. Perry, C. M. Wagner and Conrad Hess were the judges of the floral exhibits staged at the Timonium fair.

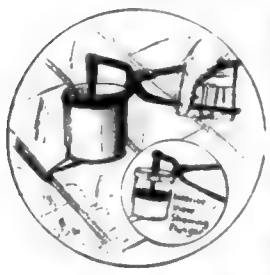
Otto Bauer, manager of the Washington branch of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., was in town August 29.

The Baltimore Cut Flower Co. is handling a nice lot of potted ferns.

B. G. Merritt is cutting good Russell roses. The stems are not of the longest, but the blooms are good for this season of the year.

George Hermann, of New York, was in town calling on the trade last week.

J. J. Perry and family motored to Washington August 22, but tire trouble impaired the enjoyment of the trip.



Charles Siegwart is cutting good blooms of Hadley.

R. Bruce Hamilton, son of James Hamilton, was married to Miss L. E. Wood, at Towson, Md., August 27. The parents of the couple were unaware of the marriage until it was announced at a party being held at the Hamilton residence that evening.

J. E. Bartell has a good lot of Hoosier Beauty planted. He has planted a large number of Bridesmaids, asserting that this rose does better than any other pink he has ever grown.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Business is steady and is showing indications of picking up in the near future. The supply has decreased a little, but is still more than sufficient to care for all present needs. Shipping business is good. The supply of roses is large and includes some excellent offerings in Beauties, Ophelia, Radiance, Hoosier Beauty, Taft, My Maryland, Killarney and White Killarney. Asters are at their best and are in large supply. Lilies are again plentiful. The gladiolus cut is still large, but Americas are running short. Carnations are now a regular factor. Some fine hardy hydrangeas may be had. New wild smilax has been added to the list of greens. It is excellent.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Critchell, while at Richmond, Ind., last week, visited the greenhouse ranges in that vicinity and they report everything to be in first-class shape. The young roses and carnations are unusually far advanced and bumper cuts from this district may be looked for in the coming winter.

William Murphy has gone to his cottage at Chenaux islands.

The Market.

Business improved slightly last week. The weather has taken a decided turn, and an exceedingly low temperature has prevailed. There has been no rain for a week.

Outdoor stock is on the wane. Gladioli are holding out the best, with asters a good second. Some exceptionally large asters have been noted lately. There is not a great demand for them, however. Golden Glow chrysanthemums, the first of the season, appeared on the market last week. They were fine specimens, with large, full flowers, long stems and good foliage. As usual, the prices for these harbingers of autumn were rather high. Roses are continuing to improve and are being shipped in in larger quantities. American Beauties are only fair in quality, and do not meet with much demand. Easter and auratum lilies are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Extensive improvements and renovations are under way in the downtown store and conservatory of the Flick Floral Co. The store is being completely redecorated, and a large McCray refrigerator is being installed. An Overland delivery car has been ordered.

A. J. Lanternier is showing Golden Glow chrysanthemums, the first of the season. Mr. and Mrs. Lanternier motored to Fort Recovery, Huntertown, Ind., August 29, to visit their daughter, Miss Hilda Lanternier.

Mr. and Mrs. David Vesey are the proud parents of a baby girl, who arrived last week.

The Bradley Flower Shop is preparing for the opening of the fall trade. The firm is showing some fine yellow mums in the store at the Jefferson theater.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey's new Overland delivery car is now on the street.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Vesey received a visit from the stork a few weeks ago, which presented them a fine boy.

A visitor last week was Harold S. Lion, of Lion & Co., New York.

The Bradley Flower Shop reports having had the decorations for the Randall-Williams wedding, in which were used several crates of southern smilax, the first yellow mums of the season, yellow gladioli and yellow dahlias. The bride's table was a miniature formal garden.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

WORKING ON THE WYNDMOOR RAILROAD

The Myers & Samtman Short Line, operating between Greenhouse and Field, does not cover many miles, nor is its rolling stock large, but it pays heavy dividends in health and energy. Its officers welcome rival lines, which can also earn big dividends, but cannot diminish theirs.

CLEAR the track! Here comes the fast freight on the Wyndmoor railroad, otherwise known as the Myers & Samtman Short Line. It is on the way from Greenhouse to Field. If you can't find those stations on the map, you will be thankful to be informed that they are both in Springfield township, Montgomery county, Pennsylvania — or, in other words, at Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia.

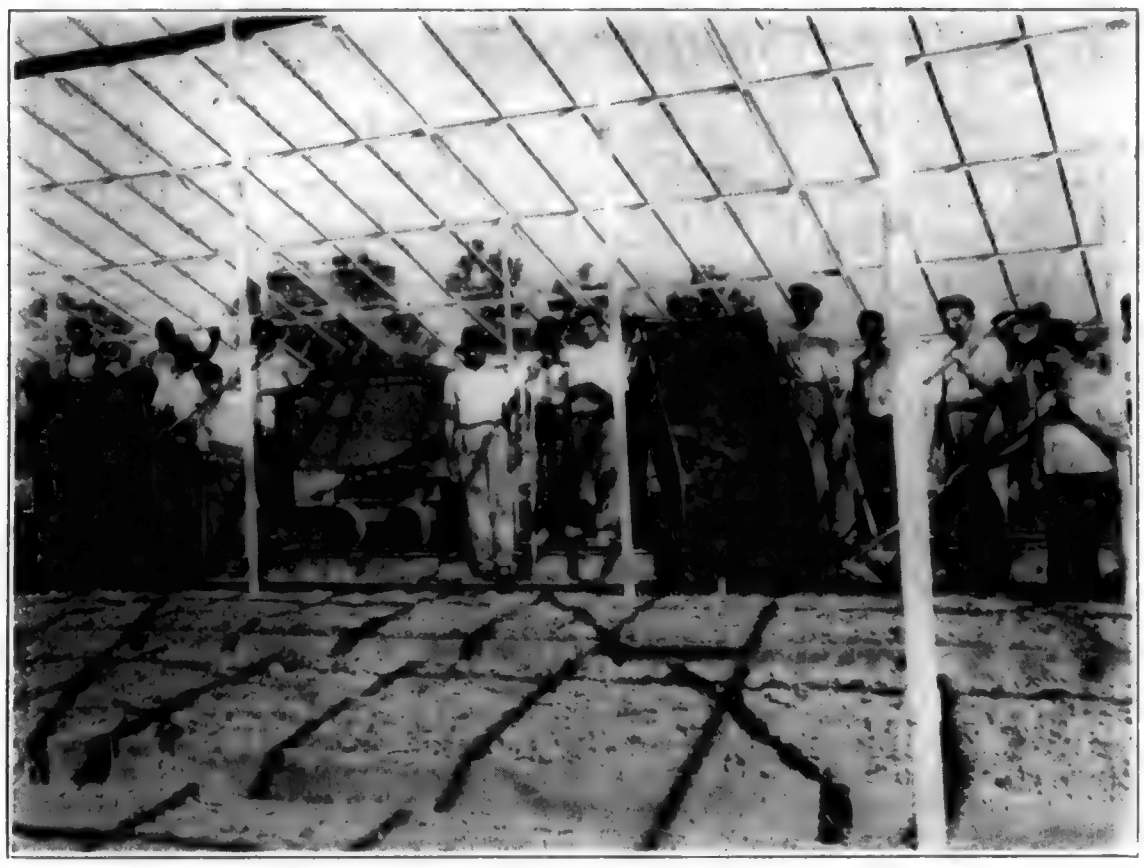
Roadbed of the Wyndmoor Railroad.

It is a small railroad, to be sure, but then it's young. Despite its youth it is notably successful, and pays big dividends to the operators as well as to the officers of the road. To the former they are in the shape of health, happiness and energy, and to the latter in the shape of time, money and worry saved. The capital stock of the road is fully paid up, and there is no bonded indebtedness. The officers are: President, Frank P. Myers; vice-president, Martin Samtman; general manager, Joseph S. Myers.

The history of the road reaches back three years. At the beginning of that time Myers & Samtman were in a quandary. Their prosperity had brought them a problem. They already had a large range, and were adding a house 55x300 each spring. Their books showed that benches filled each year with fresh soil and fresh plants were generally more profitable than those occupied by plants carried over. On the other hand, there was the ever increasing difficulty of getting the houses emptied and cleaned, and filled and planted in time. Every man who wanted work was hired and given plenty of it each spring. All the regular men did their level best. But in spite of all efforts made, the work dragged. It was too heavy. More than this, the unusual strain told on the regular employees after replanting was over. They were completely played out. Nor were the extra men any better. So it had come to the point that everyone dreaded the spring. It really seemed as though progress were barred.

The solution of the problem came with the idea of replacing the wheelbarrows with some mechanical method of transporting the soil from field to greenhouse and vice versa. Cars and track were decided upon. So ten industrial, ball-bearing steel cars were purchased, each of which holds one cubic yard, or thirteen wheelbarrow loads, of soil. Twelve hundred feet of 24-inch track, half a dozen curves of varying degrees of sharpness, some turntables and several switches completed the equipment. The track is shifted from bench to bench and house to house as needed.

It is not extraordinary that the railroad did not reach the top-notch of success the first season. This was principally due to lack of knowledge and experience. At first the track broke down the benches in the greenhouses. To prevent this, the blocks that had been used to support the tracks were replaced by 3x6 spruce planks, which distributed the weight over several supports. There was also a partial change made in the means of propelling the cars. While they could be moved by hand with ease on the level, it was found advisable to hook together five cars and attach a pair of horses to them where the track was upgrade. With a few such minor changes the system became perfected. The last two years the operation of replanting the houses has become comparatively easy. It is not now, of course, a light task, but the men do not look forward to it with the dread of the old days, and are not fagged when it is completed.



Picking up Local Freight.

Unloading Freight at Field on the Wyndmoor Railroad.

The scenic views of Wyndmoor railroad on this and the following page show plainly the modus operandi. The houses are quickly cleared of the old soil, which is dumped in the field alongside the track. What is not removed from the cars by tipping is easily taken out with the hoe. It is not much more of a job to refill the houses. When the cars are on the tracks on the benches, they can be shifted on the trucks so that the soil can be distributed where it is wanted. The watch showed that ten cubic yards of soil was distributed and leveled in fifteen minutes by thirteen men.

"A wonderful energy-saver" is the description of the road by the officers. "The dread in looking forward to replanting is, at Myers & Samtman, a thing of the past. The wheelbarrow has been discarded except in the smallest houses. When replanting is finished, the men are all ready for the fall campaign instead of being fagged. The matter of economy, while it is important, is of secondary consideration compared to the energy that is conserved in the force."

RETARDING PAPER WHITES.

How should the bulbs of Paper White narcissi be kept in order to have a succession of three or four crops during the late fall and winter? I have been storing the bulbs in a cool, dark cellar, intending to make different plantings, but I have been obliged to plant them in two or three weeks, because the growth was too strong and I feared that if I did not plant them they would become worthless. W. B.—Mich.

Nothing is gained by unduly delaying the planting of Paper Whites. Plant them in flats and store them in as cold a cellar as you have. The plants can be kept back just as well in this way as by attempting to keep them out of the soil, and the longer they are out of the soil the poorer their quality will be. I have no trouble in keeping Paper Whites until the end of February in a cold cellar. These are potted as soon as received and are brought along in batches, the first flowering early in November. C. W.

ROCHESTER FLOWER SHOW.

Draws Large Attendance.

The Rochester exposition and flower show, formally opened by the mayor August 30, has attracted large crowds. September 2, over 22,000 people were present, a record-breaking attendance. September 11 will be closing day.

The flower show is a new attraction. No efforts were spared on the part of the committee to make it a success. The building in which the show is being held is elaborately decorated with nearly 100 cases of southern smilax. Hanging from the girders are eleven large baskets of smilax and wistaria blooms. The floor space of over 20,000 square feet is well filled by the exhibitors. Thousands of spikes of gladioli and large quantities of annuals and perennials are shown. Considering the time of year, the displays of roses were exceptionally fine on arrival, but the warm weather soon spoiled them. There are no prizes offered for any exhibit, but the amount of good advertising obtained amply repays the exhibitors. There are twenty-four exhibitors, each of whom has made a fine showing.

Dreer's Lily Pond.

Probably the center of attraction is the lily pond, which measures thirty-six feet in diameter, surrounded by a rockery, filled with ferns, fancy-leaved caladiums, etc. The fountain is fringed with Cyperus Papyrus, the Egyptian paper plant; Thalia dealbata and Acorus Japonicus variegatus. Bordering these are nelumbiums, Egyptian lotus, in a variety of colors. The pond is filled with the greatest assortment of water plants ever assembled in this section. Prominent are the blue nymphæas of Zanzibar. This beautiful pond is mainly the work of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., of Philadelphia, and is in the charge of their representative, John S. Hay.

This same firm is responsible for an excellent exhibit of decorative plants, which includes araucarias of various sizes, Adiantum gloriosum, Cocos Weddelliana, Cibotium Schiedei, crotons of numerous varieties, Pandanus Vietchii and utilis, Phœnix Roebelenii, Polypodium Mandaianum. A half-dozen well colored pineapples have attracted much attention. This display is in the personal charge of James J. Karins.

R. & J. Farquhar & Co., of Boston, have a good exhibit of gladioli, lilies and heather, with water color paintings of their special lilies. Wm. Bersher, of Boston, is in charge.

Pierson's Roses.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, Conn., have a good showing of palms and ferns, as well as an elegant display of cut roses, which are received daily, of such new varieties as Hoosier Beauty, Lady Alice Stanley, Wm. Randolph Hearst and Red Radiance. The firm also shows fine Golden Glow mums and a vase of Eucharis Amazonica. Harry J. Anderson is in charge.

John Lewis Childs, Inc., of Flowerfield, N. Y., has a splendid exhibit of his well known gladioli, which occupies a large space.

H. C. Newkirk and J. W. Langenbach are in charge of the exhibit of the Burt Olney greenhouses, of Albion, N. Y. Their exhibit of roses is quite good, especially Ophelia and Aaron Ward.

H. E. Wilson, of Rochester, has an exhibit of palms, ferns and foliage plants, surrounded by sod, with a large quantity of gladioli and small baskets of flowers, fern dishes, etc. On a table at the end of the exhibit is shown a floral design daily. A huge bulletin board, on which about 200 tags of the leading florists of the United States and Canada were shown, advertised florists' telegraph delivery.

The Rochester Floral Co. shows a basket of cut flowers daily, besides palms; ferns, foliage plants and large vases of gladioli.

The Sunnyside Dahlia Farm, of Victor, N. Y., of which Mrs. Fred Higinbotham is proprietor, is represented by a good-sized display of choice dahlias of nearly 150 varieties.

Some Retailers.

J. B. Keller Sons have a good exhibit of a table decoration with a small fountain in the center. Roses and asters have been used extensively. On both sides are grouped palms, coleus, variegated privet, etc.

Fred Schlegel's Sons are responsible for a rustic garden with a pool, around which are rocks, ferns and aquatic grasses. They also have a good showing of annuals.

Hundreds of ruffled gladioli are on exhibition, from A. E. Kunderd, of Goshen, Ind.

Salter Bros. have an exhibit of gloxinias, foliage plants, palms, polypodiums, and baskets of phlox, snapdragons and statice.

Aster plants by parcel post are offered for spring delivery by the Crescent Seed Farm, under the management of Schuyler Arnold and Erwin L. Tucker, of Spencerport, N. Y.

Thomas Cogger, representing C. Keur & Sons, of Hillegom, Holland, is making a large display of gladioli grown at his home, at Melrose, Mass. The collection is of 100 varieties.

F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N Y., has a fine display of ferns (of many varieties. The whole of the exhibit was purchased by Geo. T. Boucher.

Rochester Displays.

George B. Hart has a good exhibit of maidenhair ferns, Asparagus plumosus and Easter lilies, with a good-sized vase of American Beauties.

Ed Brockman's space is laid out as a large bed of asters of all shades. A smaller bed of salmon pink geraniums makes a pretty effect.

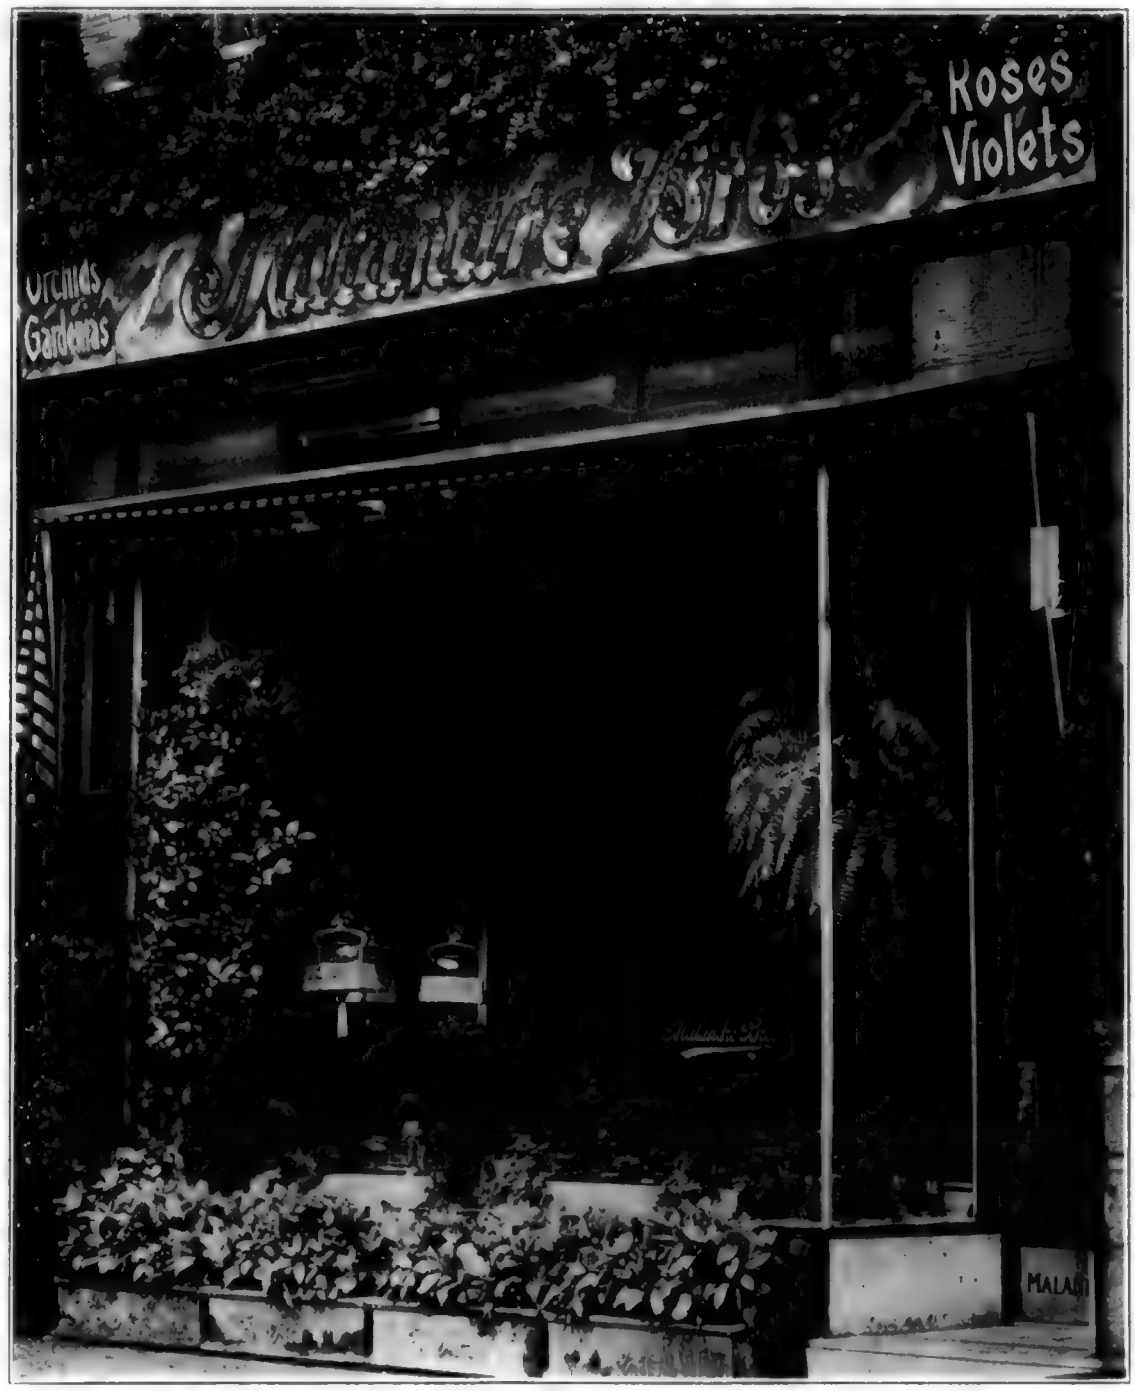
The Rochester park department has an effective collection of shrubs and foliage plants and a large quantity of Lorraine begonias and maidenhair ferns.

Jacob Thomann & Sons, with Fred Thomann in charge, have a beautiful display of Rochester White gladioli.

John House has a good quantity of variegated privet and some lemon trees.

Frank Levinge has a small display of window boxes filled with geraniums, and in the foreground a good assortment of annuals.

There is a wonderful display of flowers at the exhibit of James Vick's Sons, with H. L. Glenn in charge. More space is occupied by this seed house than by any other exhibitor.



During the first week two days each were allotted to Salter Bros., H. E. Wilson and J. B. Keller Sons for table decorations. Beautiful effects were seen.

Miniature Japanese Garden in Window of Malandre Bros., New York.

MALANDRES' JAPANESE GARDEN.

Maintaining their reputation for high-class window displays, Malandre Bros., the New York retailers, have been exhibiting at their store at 2077 Broadway a miniature Japanese garden of elaborate design. It has attracted a great deal of attention from the pedestrians on that famous thoroughfare. The work was done by members of the firm, whose decorative skill is well known. A view of the store front while the Japanese garden was exhibited is given herewith. The admirers who continually lined the front of it are, however, absent; they were shooed away by the photographer.

Youngstown, O.—The Kay-Dimond Co., a merger of the Geo. W. Kay and R. W. Dimond Co. stores, was incorporated recently at $10,000. George Kay, R. W. Dimond, Blanche Kay, T. M. Fontaine and Elizabeth Fontaine were named as incorporators.

Albany, N. Y.—William C. Gloeckner recently had an F. T. D. window of globes and telegraph wires that, he says, "cost only $1.65 in money, including the signs, and was the means of booking an average of three telegraph orders a day while the display was in." He had the window photographed and now is distributing cards carrying the cut inscribed "The most talked of window in Albany."

I have been storing the bulbs in a cool, dark cellar, intending to make different plantings, but I have been obliged to plant them in two or three weeks, because the growth was too strong and I feared that if I did not plant them they would become worthless. W. B.—Mich.

Nothing is gained by unduly delaying the planting of Paper Whites. Plant them in flats and store them in as cold a cellar as you have. The plants can be kept back just as well in this way as by attempting to keep them out of the soil, and the longer they are out of the soil the poorer their quality will be. I have no trouble in keeping Paper Whites until the end of February in a cold cellar. These are potted as soon as received and are brought along in batches, the first flowering early in November. C. ROCHESTER FLOWER SHOW.

Draws Large Attendance.

The Rochester exposition and flower show, formally opened by the mayor August 30, has attracted large crowds. September 2, over 22,000 people were present, a record-breaking attendance. September 11 will be closing day.

The flower show is a new attraction. No efforts were spared on the part of the committee to make it a success. The building in which the show is being held is elaborately decorated with nearly 100 cases of southern smilax. Hanging from the girders are eleven large baskets of smilax and wistaria blooms. The floor space of over 20,000 square feet is well filled by the exhibitors. Thousands of spikes of gladioli and large quantities of annuals and perennials are shown. Considering the time of year, the displays of roses were exceptionally fine on arrival, but the warm weather soon spoiled them. There are no prizes offered for any exhibit, but the amount of good advertising obtained amply repays the exhibitors. There are twenty-four exhibitors, each of whom has made a fine showing.

Dreer's Lily Pond.

Probably the center of attraction is the lily pond, which measures thirty-six feet in diameter, surrounded by a rockery, filled with ferns, fancy-leaved caladiums, etc. The fountain is fringed with Cyperus Papyrus, the Egyptian paper plant; Thalia dealbata and Acorus Japonicus variegatus. Bordering these are nelumbiums, Egyptian lotus, in a variety of colors. The pond is filled with the greatest assortment of water plants ever assembled in this section. Prominent are the blue nymphæas of Zanzibar. This beautiful pond is mainly the work of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., of Philadelphia, and is in the charge of their representative, John S. Hay.

This same firm is responsible for an excellent exhibit of decorative plants, which includes araucarias of various sizes, Adiantum gloriosum, Cocos Weddelliana, Cibotium Schiedei, crotons of numerous varieties, Pandanus Vietchii and utilis, Phœnix Roebelenii, Polypodium Mandaianum. A half-dozen well colored pineapples have attracted much attention. This display is in the personal charge of James J. Karins.

R. & J. Farquhar & Co., of Boston, have a good exhibit of gladioli, lilies and heather, with water color paintings of their special lilies. Wm. Bersher, of Boston, is in charge.

Pierson's Roses.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, Conn., have a good showing of palms and ferns, as well as an elegant display of cut roses, which are received daily, of such new varieties as Hoosier Beauty, Lady Alice Stanley, Wm. Randolph Hearst and Red Radiance. The firm also shows fine Golden Glow mums and a vase of Eucharis Amazonica. Harry J. Anderson is in charge.

John Lewis Childs, Inc., of Flowerfield, N. Y., has a splendid exhibit of his well known gladioli, which occupies a large space.

H. C. Newkirk and J. W. Langenbach are in charge of the exhibit of the Burt Olney greenhouses, of Albion, N. Y. Their exhibit of roses is quite good, especially Ophelia and Aaron Ward.

H. E. Wilson, of Rochester, has an exhibit of palms, ferns and foliage plants, surrounded by sod, with a large quantity of gladioli and small baskets of flowers, fern dishes, etc. On a table at the end of the exhibit is shown a floral design daily. A huge bulletin board, on which about 200 tags of the leading florists of the United States and Canada were shown, advertised florists' telegraph delivery.

The Rochester Floral Co. shows a basket of cut flowers daily, besides palms, ferns, foliage plants and large vases of gladioli.

The Sunnyside Dahlia Farm, of Victor, N. Y., of which Mrs. Fred Higinbotham is proprietor, is represented by a good sized display of choice dahlias of nearly 150 varieties.

Some Retailers.

J. B. Keller Sons have a good exhibit of a table decoration with a small fountain in the center. Roses and asters have been used extensively. On both sides are grouped palms, coleus, variegated privet, etc.

Fred Schlegel's Sons are responsible for a rustic garden with a pool, around which are rocks, ferns and aquatic grasses. They also have a good showing of annuals.

Hundreds of ruffled gladioli are on exhibition, from A. E. Kunderd, of Goshen, Ind.

Salter Bros. have an exhibit of gloxinias, foliage plants, palms, polypodiums, and baskets of phlox, snapdragons and statice.

Aster plants by parcel post are offered for spring delivery by the Crescent Seed Farm, under the management of Schuyler Arnold and Erwin L. Tucker, of Spencerport, N. Y.

Thomas Cogger, representing C. Keur & Sons, of Hillegom, Holland, is making a large display of gladioli grown at his home, at Melrose, Mass. The collection is of 100 varieties.

F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., has a fine display of ferns of many varieties. The whole of the exhibit was purchased by Geo. T. Boucher.

Rochester Displays

George B. Hart has a good exhibit of maidenhair ferns, Asparagus plumosus [illegible] use of American Beauties.

Ed Brodmann's [illegible] large bed of asters in all shades. A smaller bed of pigeon post geraniums makes a pretty effect.

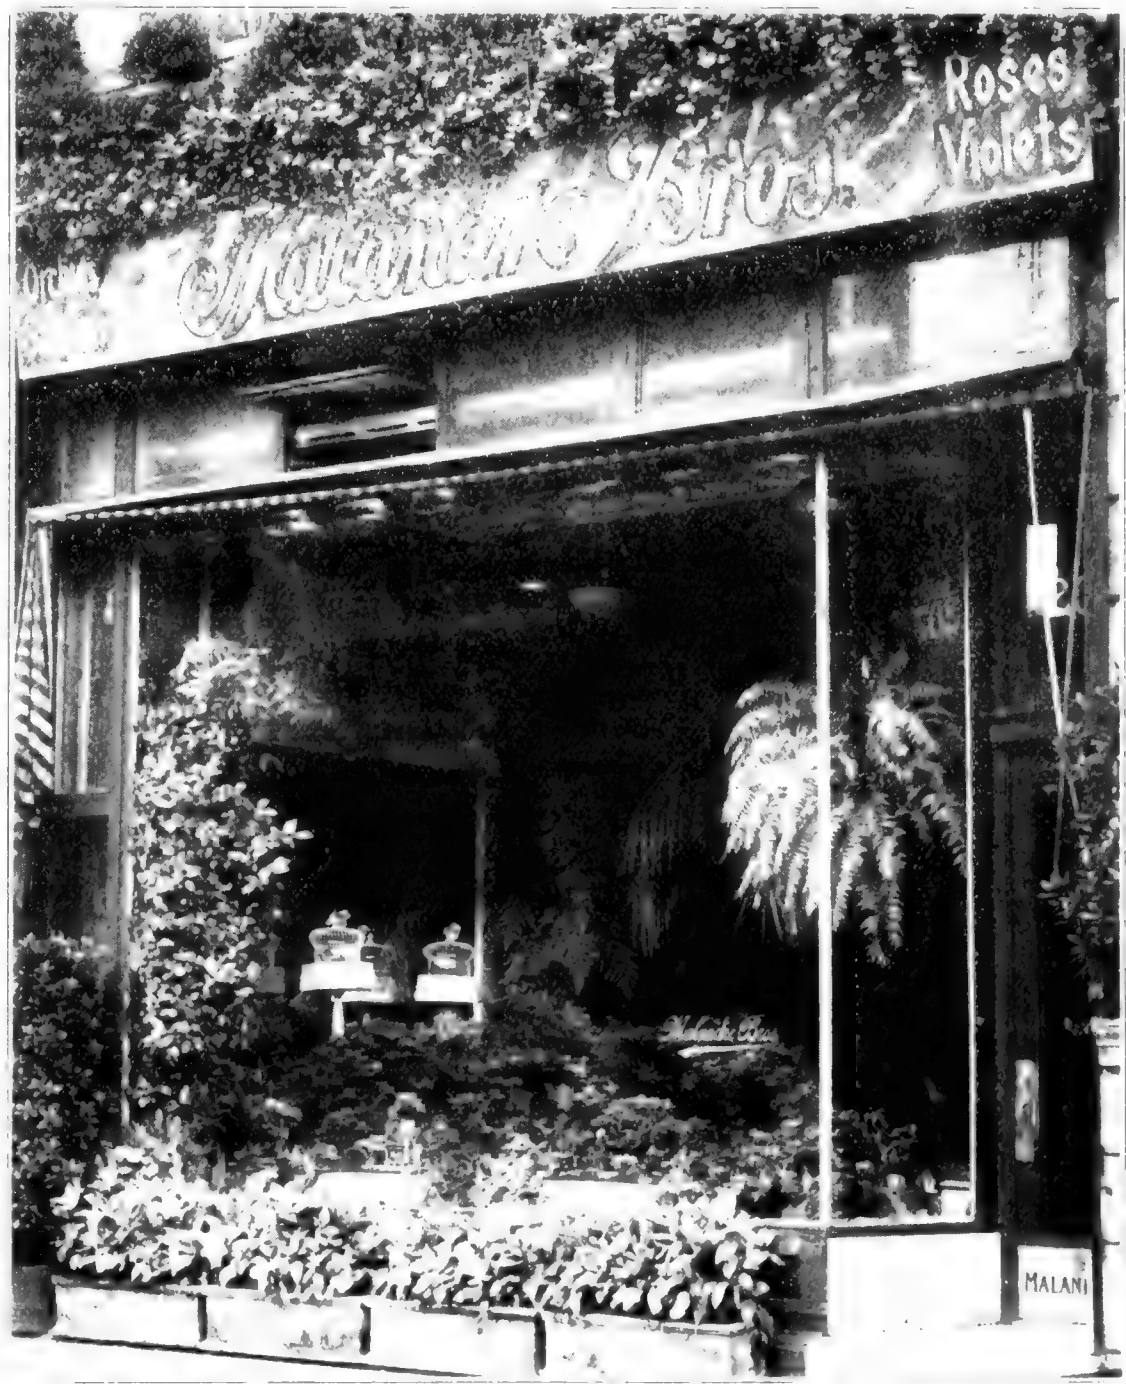
The Rochester park department has on exhibit a collection of shrubs and foliage plants and a large quantity of Lorraine begonias and maidenhair ferns.

Jacob Thomann & Sons, with Fred Thomann in charge, have a beautiful display of Rochester White gladioli.

John House has a good quantity of variegated privet and some lemon trees.

Frank Levinge has a small display of window boxes filled with geraniums, and in the foreground a good assortment of annuals.

There is a wonderful display of flowers at the exhibit of James Vick's Sons, with H. L. Glenn in charge. More space is occupied by this seed house than by any other exhibitor.



During the first week, two days each were allotted to Salter Bros., H. E. Wilson and J. B. Keller Sons for table decorations. Beautiful effects were [illegible]

Miniature Japanese Garden in Window of Malandre Bros., New York.

MALANDRES' JAPANESE GARDEN.

Maintaining their reputation for high-class window displays, Malandre Bros., the New York retailers, have been exhibiting at their store at 2077 Broadway a miniature Japanese garden of elaborate design. It has attracted a great deal of attention from the pedestrians on that famous thoroughfare. The work was done by members of the firm, whose decorative skill is well known. A view of the store front while the Japanese garden was on exhibition is given herewith. The admirers who continually lined the sight of it are, however, absent; they were shooed away by the photographer.

SCALE ON NEPHROLEPIS.

I am sending under separate cover a few fern leaves which are badly affected with some sort of pest. Can you tell me of a remedy?

G. E.—N. Y.

This is another example of the troublesome fern scale that is so frequently found on nephrolepis. The first thing to do is to cut off all the fronds that are as badly infested as the specimens submitted, and to destroy them. If the plants are in pots, dip them in a solution of fish oil soap and nicotine or tobacco extract. The solution should consist of one ounce of the soap and one teaspoonful of forty per cent nicotine to one gallon of water, and the treatment should be given two or three times at intervals of a week or ten days. W. H. T.

SCALE INSECTS ON FERNS.

I am sending you some fern fronds that are infested with small white insects, which seem to be spreading among our ferns with great rapidity. We do not know what the pest is, nor are we able to check it. Please tell us what it is and how to get rid of it.

J. S.—Wyo.

The pest in question is one of the scale insects, the full grown specimens of which are also to be seen on the fern fronds in the form of a flat brown scale. Any fronds that are as badly infested as those sent for inspection should be cut off and burned.

If the plants are in pots, the best treatment would be to dip them in a solution of an ounce of fish oil soap and one teaspoonful of nicotine, forty per cent solution, to one gallon of water, repeating the dose at intervals of one week for a time. If the ferns are planted out, they could be sprayed with the same solution. After dipping, the plants should be laid down to prevent the drip from draining into the soil. As this pest is a persistent one, several treatments may be needed to overcome it. W. H. T.

WORMS ON FERNS.

A short time ago we wrote to you about a species of worms that have been damaging our ferns. We told you about our unsuccessful attempts to check the pest and asked you to suggest some other remedy. You replied that the worms, according to our description, seemed to be some sort of caterpillars and that they could probably be subdued by means of hellebore. Now, we are satisfied that we have not made clear the character of these "varmints," as they do not appear to us to be caterpillars. We are therefore forwarding a few of the worms, under separate cover, and should like to get some further information about them.

We are now fumigating with nicotine extract, which we have been told by a brother florist will kill the young worms just after they are hatched, but does not affect the older ones. We contemplate fumigating once a week for about six or seven weeks, thus insuring the killing of these pests when they are hatched. We will endeavor to give you a detailed report after this experiment, as to the results obtained. This same florist informs us that these worms originated with the fern growers in Florida a number of years ago, but are now pretty well scattered over the country. He informed us that his place was at one time badly infested with them, but he got rid of them by the nicotine route. However, if this does not prove successful here, I will give the hellebore a trial.

T. N. C.—Tex.

The worms in question are the caterpillars of some moth, and bear some resemblance to the currant worm, but I am unable to say whether they are that particular pest or not. This correspondent states that he has tried various remedies, but finds that arsenical compounds strong enough to kill the worms will injure the plants to which they are applied. It would seem, therefore, that powdered hellebore, thoroughly dusted over the plants, would be the most suitable remedy in this case, as this vegetable poison is the most satisfactory preparation that is used against the currant worm.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

["How to Lay Out Suburban Home Grounds," by Herbert J. Kellaway, landscape architect. Published by John Wiley & Sons, Inc., New York. New edition, enlarged. Size, 6x9 inches; 134 pages; illustrated with forty-one halftone plates and fifteen plans and maps. Price, bound in cloth, $2 net.]

The object of this book, as stated by the author, is to assist people of moderate incomes in their efforts to secure beautiful home surroundings. The suggestions that he offers, he says, "are not intended to deal with the treatment of large estates or explain the many principles of landscape architecture, but only as an incentive to good taste."

Yet, though he does not befog his readers with the more abstruse and technical principles of landscaping, he does state clearly such simple, practical principles as are necessary to an intelligent planning and planting of home grounds. He does not lay down cut and dried rules, without reasons to sustain them or explain them, but so illuminates the whole subject as to enable the readers to see clearly how to formulate their own rules for specific cases. And the illustrations, being really illustrative, show the successive steps in the landscaper's work, from the drafting of the preliminary plan to the completion of the job.

FAIRY RING.

We are sending you, under separate cover, one of our carnation plants, and we should like to have your opinion as to whether the plant is attacked by any serious disease. The plants were benched about five or six weeks ago and most of them are making new growth. We have sprayed them every week with Bordeaux mixture, but the leaves continue to dry up as if they were attacked by some fungus. We picked the dead leaves off at intervals, thinking the trouble was caused by the plants receiving a check from transplanting, but another bench, which we planted about two weeks later, does not seem to be affected. The season has been extremely wet and the plants made a rapid growth. After benching the plants, we cared for them just as we did last year, when we had no trouble. The plant enclosed is the worst one in the whole bench. S. E. C.

The specimen submitted showed a number of fairy ring spots. You will distinguish these by the shape of the spots and the distinct circle around the edge of each spot. There are a good many dead leaves, which are merely the result of the check sustained by the transplanting. Your spraying with Bordeaux mixture was the correct thing. Supplement this with picking off every leaf that shows one of these round spots. Keep picking them off till the plants are free from the disease. Reduce the syringing to a minimum as soon as the plants are able to stand up without it, which they should do by this time, as moisture will aggravate this trouble. Give all the ventilation possible, both day and night.

A. F. J. B.

STIGMONOSE.

Will you please let me know what caused the spots on the enclosed carnation? Is it anything that will hurt the plants? They are still in the field and are growing strongly. The weather has been wet and cold here. Is there anything that will cure it, if it is a disease? L. M. & S.

The spots mentioned in your query are caused by the disease known as stigmonose. It is the same disease which is prevalent throughout the country and which usually is most noticeable during the winter and early spring. The wet weather is undoubtedly responsible for its appearance at this time, but if you will bench the plants and handle them carefully, they will probably give good results this winter. After the plants are established on the benches, follow a moderate course of culture. Refrain from undue feeding and do everything possible to promote a sturdy, well matured growth.

GOOD CRIMSON CARNATIONS.

We wish to know of a new red carnation that is darker than Victory and about the color of old Harlowarden, one that is suitable for this district, southeastern South Dakota. We have tried Pocahontas, but it is not what we want. We want one that is a free bloomer, with a good stem and a double fringed edge, if there is such a one.

T. N.—S. D.

The only crimson carnations on the market considered worth growing are Pocahontas and Princess Dagmar. The latter has fringed petals, but is not up to Pocahontas in freedom of bloom. We grow only Pocahontas in this color and consider it fully equal to the Enchantress tribe for freedom. A. F. J. B.

BADLY INFESTED WITH THRIPS.

Will you please tell me what is the matter with a few of my carnations and suggest a remedy? I enclose some samples. Only a few of the plants show the trouble, but last winter a whole house was badly affected.

W. B.—Ohio.

Your carnations are badly infested with thrips, which are most probably responsible for the curling up of the leaves. Those light spots, also, are probably caused by the same pest. You do not state whether the plants are in the house or outdoors, but in either case the remedy will have to be practically the same, except that the trouble will be more difficult to handle outdoors than inside. First of all, dispose of all the vegetation, such as grass or weeds, from around the plants. If the plants are inside, clean up not only inside the house, but around the outside as well, because with the ventilators open day and night the pests will come inside as fast as you can kill them off. If the plants are in the field, the same procedure will be in order.

Having cleaned up the premises, the next thing in order will be to spray the plants thoroughly and often with one of the nicotine solutions. Apply it at least twice weekly; three times will do no harm. Keep the soil stirred or cultivated frequently. Dusting the plants heavily with tobacco dust should also prove beneficial. You will likely be obliged to keep up this warfare until cool weather sets in, to hold the pests in check. Then, if you will keep after them next winter, you will be able to get rid of them altogether.

ROOT-KNOTS ON CARNATIONS.

We are sending you, by mail, a sample of our carnation plants from the field. On examining the plants this morning, we find a number of little knots on the roots and we are anxious to know what you think about these and what we should do to our soil to get rid of the trouble. The ground these plants are in is a sandy loam and was planted last year in corn. What crop can we put in that this disease will not thrive in, and what can we do when planting these carnations in the greenhouse? G. F. C.—Tex.

I am not able to give you any definite information about these root-knots on your carnations. We have had no personal experience with them and I have seen only one or two similar cases. In one case the plants seemed to make fair growth in the field, but during the winter they became stunted and ceased growing altogether. I certainly would not risk benching any plants that showed the least sign of these knots; neither would I use the soil they have been growing in.

I would suggest that you send specimens to a number of the leading experiment stations, such as the Department of Agriculture at Washington; the Department of Floriculture of the University of Illinois, Urbana, Ill.; the Massachusetts Agricultural College, Amherst, Mass., and the Department of Agriculture of Cornell, Ithaca, N. Y. Some one of these ought to give you the information you need. A. F. J. B.

Carthage, Mo.—Thomas R. Johnson and Dolly Johnson, proprietors of the Carthage Greenhouses, have sued Oscar D. Graff, of Joplin, the former owner, for $3,000 damages. The proprietors allege that O. D. Graff represented the business to be yielding certain profits at regular intervals, and that they bought the property on his representation alone. Since then they have found that the business was and is a losing one, instead of a paying one. Hence the damages asked.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE—AND WHY

DAVID WELCH.

FEW florists have not heard of Welch Bros. Co., Boston, the oldest wholesale florists' house in the country. Many have met in person Patrick Welch, president of the S. A. F. But Edward and David Welch, though well known in New England, are less in the limelight than their brother. David had to forego his annual trip to Ireland this summer on account of the submarine activity; so he spent last month at Rockland, Me., where the photographer caught him as he was taking one of his morning jaunts on his white charger, like a commander of the Allies out of uniform. So strenuously did Mr. Welch exercise at Rockland that he left behind seventeen pounds of his avoirdupois when he returned from the Pine Tree state, but still carries sufficient for identification. W. N. C.

Geraniums

PROPAGATING.

The propagation of geraniums is attended with less risk when delayed until late September or October, but cuttings can be taken now, and if they are allowed to lie on the potting bench a few hours to dry before being placed in the sand, there will be less damping off. A wet July and August has made all wood outdoors unusually soft and succulent, and a spell of hot, muggy weather after the cuttings are taken is liable to cause a heavy loss. Trim the leaves off closely. If left on, they will only wilt and cause rot later. Do not shade the cuttings at all; they need the full sun. Many growers stand their flats outdoors and have good results. Be sure the drainage is good; otherwise heavy thunder showers are likely to damage them seriously. I like to stand them where sashes can be placed over them to throw off heavy rain.

WINTER GERANIUMS.

Remove all flower trusses from winter geraniums as they appear and give the final potting before the last of September. Suitable sizes of pots are 5-inch and 6-inch. It is astonishing what splendid plants can be grown in these sizes of pots, if they are properly cared for. Use cow manure sparingly in the soil, but add a 5-inch pot of fine bone to each bushel of soil, and, once the plants are established, give top-dressings of Clay's fertilizer or fine bone once in eight or ten days. Do not use liquid manure; it produces a soft growth. The other plant foods named build up stocky plants.

BLIGHT DUE TO DAMPNESS.

I am sending you some geranium leaves which seem to be affected by a disease or blight. I put out several beds of S. A. Nutt geraniums last spring and they seemed to be nice, healthy plants. Now they are almost a total wreck. These beds are not in one location and have not the same exposure or soil. They are some distance apart in different parts of the city, but all the beds have had geraniums in them for several years and they always did well before. If you know of any way to overcome this trouble, please let me know. W. K.—N. Y.

The cause of the blighted foliage is unquestionably the long spell of humid, sunless and rainy weather experienced in the east since early in July. I have seen many other beds which were perfectly healthy when planted out and they are now in the same condition as yours. There is little you can do toward alleviating the trouble except to pick over the plants somewhat. A spell of dry, sunny weather would soon put new life into the plants. Geraniums simply cannot stand continuous wet weather, but always present a more or less miserable appearance under such conditions. C. W.

GERANIUM FOLIAGE DISEASED.

Under separate cover I am sending you a sample of geranium foliage which is covered with blotches and small spots of an ash color. Many of the leaves are turning more or less yellow in streaks and splashes, either down the side, or, in some cases, through the middle of the leaf. Can you tell me the cause of this, and the remedy?
J. G. B.—Mass.

The leaves when received were completely dried up. An affection of the kind you mention is not at all unusual. If the plants were outdoors, it can safely be attributed to the abnormal climatic conditions experienced in July in your section—tremendous rainfalls, a heavy atmospheric humidity, and, for a considerable period, little sunshine. With clear and drier weather, your plants will grow out of their trouble. If the plants are under glass, pick off the worst affected leaves and give a spraying of Bordeaux mixture or Fungine. Repeat the application a week later. Spray on a clear day when the foliage is dry, and sufficiently early in the day so that any moisture will dry up before nightfall. C. W.

EASTER GREETING GROWERS.

Pelargonium Easter Greeting is conceded by many growers to be one of the best pot plants in America, yet it is neither propagated to the extent justified, nor known to the public as are plants of less beauty. The explanation may be found in the fact that many growers consider Easter Greeting a poor producer of cuttings because of its great flowering qualities.

This belief, however, is not substantiated in the case of J. N. Spanabel & Sons, East Palestine, O., who produce heavily of Easter Greeting.

Last summer this concern put 800 5-inch stock plants in the field, but owing to a busy season and adverse weather conditions, the stock was not planted until June 20. The plants were cultivated in the same manner as other plants in the field. Three crops of cuttings were secured, the first cuttings July 31, and the last ones September 25. From the three crops 17,500 cuttings were obtained, and an average of ninety per cent were rooted. Judged by this record, Easter Greeting can hardly be called a poor cutting producer.

J. N. Spanabel & Sons attribute their success to keeping the flowers off the stock plants. After the cuttings were in the sand there was nothing to hinder proper rooting. When potted, the plants were not kept too dry, or the stems would be likely to harden and not produce nice plants. A temperature of 45 to 50 degrees was found best. In a higher temperature the plants would be liable to make a soft growth, which would mean trouble later. For blooming at Easter, plants were shifted to 4-inch pots in November.

The accompanying illustration shows the members of the firm of J. N. Spanabel & Sons photographed among their plants. The head of the concern is in the center and around him are his sons, A. A., E. E., L. L. and R. R., beginning at the top left and proceeding clockwise.

Penn Yan, N. Y.—James Macfarlane, who was for a time in charge of the greenhouses of the Lake Keuka Floral Co., has been appointed florist for the New Hampshire college experimental station. He assumed his duties September 1.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

FERTILIZER FOR MUMS.

As a fertilizer for chrysanthemums in pots and boxes, would one teaspoonful of bone meal, sprinkled around each plant, be too much? Would one teaspoonful of nitrate of soda to six quarts of water be about right? As the latter is so powerful a fertilizer, I prefer to mix it in small quantities, so as to be sure of what I am doing. I should hate to kill with kindness. Would it be advisable to use either of these at intervals of a day or two?

P. R. I.—La.

One teaspoonful of bone is not enough to hurt a plant in a pot or box. Probably P. R. I. is aware that the finer the meal, the better the results. A teaspoonful of nitrate of soda in six quarts of water is also safe. A rough and ready way to calculate is to put a 4-inch potful of soda in a kerosene barrel of water, which is supposed to be about fifty gallons, and this can be used about once a week. Personally, I prefer to use sulphate of ammonia rather than nitrate of soda, as the former seems to be better suited to chrysanthemums. Chas. H. Totty.

STEMS EATEN BY GRUBS.

Will you kindly let me know what to do for my chrysanthemums? I have possibly 200 or more plants in the open ground, and every here and there one of them is hanging its head just as if it were scalded. The leaves look sick. I dig the plants up early in the morning, but can find no worms or bugs. Still, there must be something that eats them, for the stems are hollow and seem to be cut off entirely from the root. I water and spray every day and the plants were perfectly healthy looking until this trouble began. I have sprinkled the ground rather heavily with hydrated lime.

P. R. I.—La.

The trouble is caused by an insect that eats the sap and inner tissues of the stem, leaving nothing but the shell of the plant, so that the plant naturally falls over when moved by the wind or when sprayed. This pest is by no means common, but almost every year some section of the country reports trouble with it. The eggs are deposited by a butterfly in the stem of the plant, and the larvæ, when hatched, proceed to work either up or down the stem, eating their way out as they go. They usually go downward and consequently the plant generally separates at the root. P. R. I. will see that the plants are eaten down to a point where there is a hole, and there the worm has made its escape.

There is no insecticide that can touch this pest, because to kill the grub would mean death to the plant. The same grub is often present in the common burdock; in fact, I think the burdock is the host plant, and this furnishes another reason why weeds of all descriptions should be kept cut down around a florist's establishment.

Chas. H. Totty.

PROPORTION OF FERTILIZER.

Will you kindly let the readers of The Review, as well as myself, know what proportion of phosphate of ammonia should be used for chrysanthemums, roses, etc? I had the directions once, but have lost my memorandum book. I am now especially anxious to produce fine foliage on the plants.

E. T.—Kan.

I have never used phosphate of ammonia for chrysanthemums, so I am unable to state its proportion. Is E. T. sure he does not mean sulphate of ammonia, which is an excellent fertilizer and largely used? A safe proportion of sulphate of ammonia is one pound dissolved in a 50-gallon barrel of water. This is applied when the plants are making a strong, vigorous growth and is one of the finest fertilizers for chrysanthemums that I know of. It is readily soluble and is available for use by the plants almost immediately.

Chas. H. Totty.

LEAF-MINERS ON MUMS.

I notice here and there a few leaves at the bottom of my Polly Rose chrysanthemum plants that have brown spots on them like those on the leaves enclosed. What is the cause of these spots? H. A. C.—Ala.

The spots on the leaves are caused by the leaf-miner, the same insect that attacks celery. This pest lays its egg between the tissues of the leaf, and when hatched it has the inner and outer leaf-skin to protect it. Therefore it cannot be reached by insecticides of any kind and the only method of fighting it is to take the infested leaves off the plants and burn them.

Chas. H. Totty.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS FOR SOUTHERN FLORISTS

YOUNG POINSETTIA PLANTS.

The present is a good time, in the south, to start making the last batch of poinsettia layers. They root a little more quickly this month, and, as they also make a smaller growth between the time of layering and rooting, they are more easily handled and established after being potted off. Shift any 2½-inch pot stock into 3-inch pots, to carry them along until time to put them into their flowering pans, which is during the latter part of September or early in October.

These plants, when handled right, are not especially touchy in regard to cool or changeable temperatures. Last year we had ours on a side bench in the rose house, with the side glass removed, and the night temperature fell to 52 degrees inside for a full week before a fire was started. The plants grew strongly, with a fine color.

The two most important factors in their fall culture in the south are the watering and fertilizing. They should always tend to the dry side and should be well sprayed with a fine stream to check mealy bug. For fertilizing, a top-dressing of pulverized cow manure, not too fresh, is preferable to manure water. This should be renewed each week from the middle of October until the bracts have developed. A night temperature of 56 degrees is enough till the bracts are developed, after which a little less heat will be all right, with a lessened water supply. L.

CARNATIONS IN THE SOUTH.

Two weeks after planting is a good time to give the beds their first working. By that time the weeds and grass have become big enough to be easily pulled. The ground can be worked pretty deeply, with no attempt at smoothing it off, but rather leaving it in a rough state. Each week for another month the beds can be worked again, smoothing the surface and breaking up any lumps at each operation. When the carnations are grown on solid beds, as they should be, they can be worked much longer without injury than when grown on raised benches. Indeed, on solid beds it is possible to work the surface lightly until spring approaches. If the right moisture is maintained in the beds, there is no danger of the roots appearing on the surface. When the roots appear early on the surface of a solid bed, you may be sure the moisture is deficient underneath.

After the carnations have been planted a month, under southern conditions, I notice there is decidedly less loss from stem-rot among the plants grown in soil used for the second and third years than among the plants grown in fresh soil. The difference is as much as one to four. Of course, this may prove nothing, but it is a point that will bear watching. Plenty of moisture at the roots of the plants, with a good syringing each bright day and a thorough dampening of the walks, will be routine work for a few weeks yet. Needless to say, give all the ventilation possible. Keep all the flowering shoots pinched back until the end of September, after which a few may be left to develop into flowers for October. L.

PLANTING SWEET PEAS.

In the south, if sweet peas are wanted for the holidays, the seed should be planted early in September, on solid beds, in rows three feet apart. We plant as follows, to prevent any damping off:

The bed is first filled with fresh soil and manure, in the proportion of three to one, and allowed to dry out for two weeks. A good soaking is given the day before planting. Where the rows are to be, the soil is drawn up into low ridges, and a furrow or deep drill is made along each ridge. A little fresh, wet sand is run along each drill; the seed is sown and only lightly covered with a little more sand. The only water given until the vines are well started on their supports is applied on each side of the ridge. By this method we have never had the least trouble with stem-rot. The plants need lots of water and fertilizing after they have started to bloom. A night temperature of 50 degrees or under is about right. Along the gulf coast they are grown mostly outdoors. L.

THE HARDY FLOWER GARDEN.

The Hardy Sunflowers.

Among the robust-growing perennials there is now a preponderance of yellow-flowering subjects, and prominent among these are the helianthus, or hardy sunflowers. Out of a large number of these the following are most worthy of culture and practically all are blooming now: H. rigidus Miss Mellish, beautiful, large, single, golden yellow flowers, growing six feet in height; mollis, downy foliage and lemon-colored flowers, four to five feet in height; Wolley Dod, single, deep yellow; Soleil d'Or, double yellow flowers, quilled petals; multiflorus plenus, double golden yellow. These double sorts are less hardy than the singles and should be lifted and stored in a cellar or frame in cold and wet localities. Multiflorus maximus is a large, single, golden yellow sort, six inches or more in diameter. Orgyalis, the willow-leaved sunflower, carries medium-sized pale yellow flowers in abundance in September. Maximiliani, the latest of the whole family, grows eight feet in height. It will not flower before the middle of October.

Rudbeckias, or Coneflowers.

Closely allied to the helianthus are the rudbeckias, or coneflowers. One or two of these have been flowering for some time; others are just at their best. Everyone, of course, knows R. laciniata Golden Glow, a beautiful thing; the only trouble with it is that it is too common and too easy to grow. The single laciniata is pretty, and the lower growing, densely branched R. subtomentosa has been producing its masses of brilliant lemon flowers for some weeks. R. purpurea, the giant purple coneflower, carries reddish purple flowers; it is a good perennial and does not spread so rapidly as to be a nuisance. The perennial Black-eyed Susan, R. Newmani, with deep orange yellow flowers and a deep purple cone, is still flowering, while nitida, or Autumn Glory, six feet in height, with pale yellow flowers, is just opening.

Asters, or Michaelmas Daisies.

The hardy asters, or Michaelmas daisies, are among our most beautiful fall hardy flowers, and of late years these have been wonderfully improved by British specialists. New varieties are sent out annually, so that the list of these is now almost bewildering. I append a list of twelve sorts, which I have found to give a good range of colors, and all are first-class varieties. Anyone not caring to bother with named varieties should get a packet of seeds from a good specialist and they will get a really wonderful assortment of flowers. Here are a dozen good varieties to grow: Beauty of Colwall, double lavender; Lil. Fardell, single bright pink; St. Egwin, charming light pink; Top Sawyer, light blue; Starlight, dark, fading to light blue; Lævis, pale heliotrope; Hon. Edith Gibbs, pale blue; Perry's Pink, reddish pink; Robert Parker, light blue; Bertha Cubitt, pale amethyst; Umbellatum, pure white, and Elsie Perry, rose-pink.

Boltonias and Heleniums.

The boltonias, or false chamomiles, have flowers closely resembling the asters. Like them, they are all well adapted for cutting. They are robust and tall growers, and, to keep them within bounds, they should be transplanted every second year. B. asteroides, with white flowers, is the variety usually most in evidence, but B. latisquama, with pink flowers tinged with lavender, is the finest variety for cutting. There is a dwarf form, B. latisquama nana, growing two and one-half feet in height, about half the altitude of the type.

The helenium, or sneeze weed, is a vigorous-growing, free-flowering and showy perennial. H. autumnale superbum, deep golden yellow, and H. autumnale superbum rubrum, reddish terra cotta, are now at their best. Each grows six feet in height. H. grandicephalum striatum, orange striped with crimson, has been in bloom for some time, but is still good. It grows three to four feet in height. H. Riverton Gem is a fine variety, color old gold suffused with rich terra cotta. All the heleniums need frequent transplanting, as they spread rapidly.

ELIZABETH, N. J.

J. W. Blakely, 80 Broad street, reports business fair for this time of the year. He has had more funeral work than usual for the summer season, and some weddings. Mr. Blakely has returned from his vacation at Boothbay Harbor, Me.

Henry Leahy, 1171 East Jersey street, states that business has been normal during the summer and that he has not experienced any of the depression he hears others talk about. Business has been quieter than during the winter and spring, but not more so than usual. He thinks business will be unusually good during the autumn.

Hutchinson's Flower Store, at 277 Broad street, which was closed during the month of August, reopened September 1.

Mrs. C. M. Hutchinson, 1216 North Broad street, has returned from the seashore, where she stayed during the month of August and until after Labor day. R. B. M.

WILL MEET AT MOLINE.

One of the most successful meetings ever held by the executive board of the Illinois State Florists' Association was in session at Peoria August 31. The meeting was presided over by President C. W. Johnson, of Morgan Park. Those in attendance were Secretary J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville; Treasurer F. L. Washburn, of Bloomington; Vice-President E. W. Guy, of Belleville; Vice-President A. C. Brown, of Springfield; Vice-President Andrew Peterson, of Hoopeston; Vice-President John Staack, of Moline; Ex-President Charles Loveridge, of Peoria, and George Washburn, of Bloomington.

It was decided to hold the next annual meeting at Moline March 7 and 8, 1916. The secretary was instructed to invite the Iowa State Florists' Association to meet at the same time and place. The president and secretary were instructed to arrange the program. It also was decided that hereafter all members pay for their own banquet tickets, the cost being not to exceed $1.50 per plate.

It was voted that hereafter the judges be selected by the president before the meeting and that all new varieties be judged by regulation scale of points. The secretary was instructed to draw up resolutions for publication to amend the constitution to the effect that all members who have paid a total of $10 in dues shall be entitled to a life membership certificate, the same to be presented at the next annual meeting for adoption.

The visitors were entertained by Ex-President Charles Loveridge and family. The meeting was held in the spacious directors' room of the Farmers' Loan Association, through the courtesy of Mr. Loveridge, who is vice-president of the institution.

NEWPORT, R. I.

The Market.

It is many years since Newport has enjoyed as successful a summer as the one closing. The exhibitions of the American Sweet Pea Society and the American Gladiolus Society, as well as those of the Newport Garden Association and the Newport Horticultural Society, gave considerable impetus and interest along trade lines.

Society Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society was held August 24. Considerable discussion was given to securing quarters for the society. A committee will be appointed to take the matter up this winter.

Two new members were elected. It was voted that awards made by the judges in the recent exhibition be approved, and that the premiums be paid. The John Scheepers silver cup, won by James Watt, gardener for Mrs. William G. Weld, at the gladiolus show, was presented to the winner by Andrew K. McMahon, treasurer of the society.

W. H. M.

HOUSTON, TEX.

The following committees have been appointed for the Texas state flower show, to be held in Houston, November 17 to 20:

R. C. Kerr, general chairman; A. L. Perrin, secretary; P. M. Carroll, treasurer.

Trade Display—W. J. Baker, Ft. Worth, chairman; H. O. Hannah, Sherman; Chas. Alff, Jr., Austin.

Exhibition and Hall—C. L. Brock, Houston, chairman; A. F. Koehle, Sherman; Bird Forrest, Waxahachie; E. E. Stone, Dickinson.

Premiums and Judges—Tom Wolfe, Waco, chairman; Ed Hall, Austin; J. E. McAdam, Ft. Worth.

Admissions—P. M. Carroll, Houston, chairman; A. L. Perrin, Houston; C. H. Blecker, Houston.

Publicity—S. J. Mitchell, Houston, chairman; L. J. Tackett, Ft. Worth; Louis Oesch, Dallas.

Amateur Exhibits—R. G. Hewitt, Houston, chairman; W. T. Hauser, Houston; H. Dirken, Houston.

Entertainment—H. H. Kuhlmann, Sr., Houston, chairman; and all members of the Houston Florists' Club.

Decorations—H. H. Kuhlmann, Jr., chairman; John J. Boyle, Houston; Mrs. M. A. Hansen, Galveston; Mrs. F. L. Cotney.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

The weather last week was warmer and better than any during August. Consequently a larger amount of stock has come to the market. The exposition called for a large quantity of decorative plants and palms, and many flowers were used at the flower show each day.

The warm weather has had a bad effect on all kinds of roses. On arrival they are in first-class condition, but they open too quickly, even in the icebox. Ophelia, Sunburst and Russell are the best keepers, and sell nicely. American Beauties are not good. The stems are short and the blooms are small. The supply of carnations is limited; most of them are cut from outdoor plants. Sweet peas are unsatisfactory. Easter lilies are good, but without demand. Valley is becoming more plentiful, and sells fairly well. There is an abundance of gladioli on the market. Asters are plentiful and move fairly well. There is an abundance of tritomas, phloxes, Japanese lilies, Golden Glow, helianthus and Shasta daisies. Yellow mums are making an appearance and sell easily.

Various Notes.

R. J. Rapalji has returned from a trip through New York and Pennsylvania.

An artistic window display was shown by the Rochester Floral Co. for the opening of the horse show. Flowers of the Rochester colors were used. In the window was a wooden horse and cart decorated with yellow, blue and white ribbons. The display attracted considerable attention.

Salter Bros., at the opening of the horse show, furnished a large horseshoe made of hardy hydrangeas and Golden Glows, studded with purple asters.

Schuyler Arnold, of the Crescent Seed Farm, had an extensive display of cut asters at the Brockport fair.

E. F. Kennon, of the Climax Mfg. Co., Castorland, N. Y., called on the trade last week. Mr. Murphy, of N. F. McCarthy & Co., Boston, was a visitor also.

C. W. Sutherland, of Barnard, N. Y., is cutting some exceptionally fine Peerless Pink asters. The stems are extra long. Mr. Sutherland finds no difficulty in disposing of them.

The W. E. Kirchhoff Co., of Pembroke, N. Y., is shipping in choice gladioli, which sell well. Frank Pendleton, Jr., is particularly good.

H. J. H.

USINGER'S UTTERANCES.

Karl Kuny, of Altoona, Pa., is taking advantage of the dull business period by spending most of his time at his summer cottage.

C. W. Eifler, of Altoona, has been forced to cut away some of his land and take down one of his houses because of the regrading of the streets.

A. A. Whitbred, of Altoona, is cutting fine gladioli and asters.

L. S. Peterman Co., of Altoona, had a large amount of funeral work last week.

Adolph Engelman, of Tyrone, Pa., is building a new house, 40x200, which is of the Lord & Burnham Co. construction.

George Crissman and Miss Crissman are at the Rochester flower show. They made the trip in their new Mitchell automobile.

W. H. Brouse & Son, of Tyrone, are erecting a house to take care of the increasing business.

Mrs. G. G. Parker, of Philipsburg, Pa., who was recently operated on, is slowly recovering.

Mrs. William Blacker, of Clearfield, Pa., is making a number of improvements at her greenhouses.

Mrs. C. W. Espy, of Brookville, Pa., is spending a few months with her daughter at Fairwood, Va.

C. W. Espy & Sons have taken first premiums for a showing of ten varieties of roses and for ten potted flowering plants, and a second premium was awarded them for an exhibition of ten varieties of shrubs at the Brookville agricultural fair.

H. W. Girton, manager of the Mountain Park Greenhouses, at Ridgway, Pa., is growing some excellent chrysanthemums.

The St. Marys Greenhouse Co., of St. Marys, Pa., had quite a run of funeral work last week. One order was for a wreath of five dozen orchids.

The Kane Greenhouse, of Kane, Pa., is building a store in connection with the greenhouse.

W. T. U.

Pekin, Ill.—George A. Kuhl and wife have returned to their home after an outing at Harbor Springs, Mich. They made the long trip home by motor, stopping to see a number of florists on the way.

Baraboo, Wis.—At the summer meeting of the Wisconsin State Horticultural Society, held at Madison, August 25 and 26, William Toole, Sr., of Pansy Heights, read a paper on "Herbaceous Perennials for Home Grounds."

Hackettstown, N. J.—Under a lease with an option clause, the Center street greenhouses have been taken over by A. D. Herrick and Arthur L. Ross, of New York. Mr. Ross, who has been with Siebrecht & Son, of New York, will be the practical man in the enterprise, while Mr. Herrick will take charge of the outside business of the new firm.

Columbia, Mo.—Charles E. Miller and Brice Edwards, former students of the College of Agriculture of the University of Missouri, will invest $10,740 in a greenhouse business this fall. A greenhouse 82x300 and a propagating house 20x80 will be erected by the John C. Moninger Co., of Chicago. A 120-horsepower boiler will heat the buildings. Work will begin in November.

Champaign, Ill.—J. E. Yeats has torn down the greenhouses which he leased to Gustave Johnson for the last few years, and is building a new range. When it is completed, Mr. Yeats will have, he says, 60,000 feet of glass, including the range near Mt. Hope cemetery. The old range is planted entirely to his new red rose, Mrs. Sarah Yeats. Plants only will be grown at the new range, and cut flowers at the cemetery establishment.

Jersey City, N. J.—Charles Reitman, of 110 Bond street, Trenton, has filed a petition in the United States District court at Trenton against Bonnot Bros. and also against the individual members of the firm, Emil Bonnot and Leon Bonnot. He claims they are insolvent, and asks that they be declared bankrupt. He charges that they owe the New York Cut Flower Co. $6,935, and that this claim has been assigned to him.

Berlin, N. Y.—A company of motion picture producers recently secured the permission of Arthur Cowee for the use of his fields of gladioli as a stage setting for a rural photoplay. They considered Mr. Cowee's grounds an ideal scenic background for the play, which was entitled "Gladiola." For a week the players were busy filming the numerous scenes, and there were many spectators on hand daily to witness the unfolding of the plot.

Albion, Mich.—The florists' craft was well represented in the recent industrial and civic parade by the decorated automobile of Arthur H. Dew, of 407 Perry street. Mr. Dew's car received the commendation of the judges of the entries not only because of the artistic arrangement of palms and ferns, but for the symbolic thought carried out with the children in the car. A young girl dressed as an angel sat in the back of the car holding chiffon ribbons running to the flower girls on the front of the running boards, and then on to two smaller girls seated on the front guards. The entire front of the car was trimmed with roses. A placard bearing the words, "Flowers are angel messengers expressing joy, love and sympathy," preceded the car.

OBITUARY

George J. Walther, Sr.

George J. Walther, Sr., founder of the business now conducted under the name of his son, George, Jr., on Sixty-third street, Chicago, Ill., died late on Wednesday evening, September 1, at the Walther homestead on Lowe avenue, at the age of 77 years. Though he had been in feeble health for the previous two years and had done little active work during that time, he was not supposed to be dangerously ill until last February, when he suffered a stroke which the physician said was due to a hemorrhage of the brain. A third stroke of the same nature was the immediate cause of his death.

He was born near Darmstadt, in the province of Hesse, Germany, October 29, 1837, and came to America when 15 years of age. After residing in New York state about a year, he journeyed directly to Chicago and settled on the north side of the city. While living there, he was married, June 6, 1865, to Miss Mary Selig, who survives him. In 1873—two years after the great Chicago fire—he removed to the south side, where he shortly afterward bought a tract of ground on Lowe avenue, in Englewood. There he started business as a vegetable gardener and built the residence which has been the Walther home for the last thirty-three years.

In 1883 and 1884 he erected several greenhouses, but he continued to devote his attention chiefly to vegetables until about ten years later. Then he began the growing of flowers, which soon became his main crop. He opened his first store in 1893. About fifteen years ago he retired from the management of the business, placing it in charge of a son and a daughter, George, Jr., and Louise L. The younger man has become one of the best known figures in the Chicago market and in the Chicago trade generally. The senior Walther, however, did not then withdraw entirely from the business, but concentrated his energies at the greenhouses and grounds, where he actively superintended the production of the crops until his health began to fail, about two years ago.

The funeral services were held at his home, Saturday afternoon, September 4. The unusually large attendance and the abundance of floral offerings bore testimony to the high esteem in which he was held. The surviving members of the family, besides those already mentioned, are Anna A. and Catherine D. Walther, both residing at the family home; Edward J., of Montana; Frederick P., of Montclair, N. J., and Ralph A., of Lake Forest, Ill. None of them is engaged in the florists' trade except George and Louise.

Richard D. Griffin.

Richard D. Griffin, one of the leading members of the Albany Florists' Club, died August 26 at his home, 192 Second street, Albany, N. Y., after a few days' illness from pneumonia. The deceased was born in Albany fifty-seven years ago. He entered the city fire department when a young man, but later was employed by the bureau of parks as assistant gardener. Following a change in political administration, he left the city service and secured employment as gardener for several large estates, which work he continued until the time of his death. Mr. Griffin is survived by his wife, a son, Russell, and a daughter, Mrs. J. Linden.

Eugene W. O'Hara.

Eugene W. O'Hara, of Los Angeles, Cal., was instantly killed by the accidental discharge of his shotgun, September 2, when starting from San Bernardino, Cal., on a hunting trip. He was 53 years old, a native of Scotland, but born of Irish parents. For many years he had charge of the greenhouses and landscaping on large private estates in the vicinity of Boston and elsewhere, and he removed to Portland, Ore., about ten years ago. He took a position with the Portland Seed Co., having charge of its nursery department. After serving eight years in this position, he went to California and in a short time entered the employ of Howard & Smith, of Los Angeles. This position he held up to the time of his death.

He owned a residence at Portland, Ore., which he had not occupied since the death of his wife, about five years ago. He was active in organizing the Portland Floral Society and was a popular member, serving a term on the board of trustees. His only known relative is an aunt, who lives in southern California. A Portland Masonic lodge took charge of his remains.

Edwin Lonsdale.

The brave old Duke of York,
He had ten thousand men;
He led them up to the top of the hill,
And he led them down again.

A note of triumph rather than sadness is expressed in the words of the song he sang and loved so well. They recur now, when it is meet to offer fitting tribute to a noble life, full of achievement and of warm-hearted friendship—Edwin Lonsdale has gone forth to meet his Creator.

A telegram from Los Angeles, Cal., brings tidings that Edwin Lonsdale died in a hospital there Wednesday afternoon, September 1, after a long illness borne with great courage. These are the plain facts. What do they mean? That many, many of us who are scattered all over this wide land have lost a friend, a friend to whom we could always turn for companionship, sympathy and counsel; a friend whose cheerful greeting and hearty laugh won and held for him a warm place in our hearts; a friend long to be remembered.

Edwin Lonsdale was born in Shrewsbury, England, October 6, 1845. His boyhood days were spent at Shenstone. When a lad he commenced work as a gardener at Enville Hall, the country seat of the Earl of Stainsford, one of the great show places of England. Stephen Taplin, brother of James and uncle of William H. Taplin, was at that time in charge of the grounds and greenhouses at Enville Hall. Here this lad had opportunity to develop his taste and acquire knowledge in his chosen calling.

Edwin Lonsdale came to America in 1869. He secured a position with Thomas Meehan & Sons, Germantown, Philadelphia, but soon after returned to England with the intention of going into business with a partner in London. This plan fell through. He returned to this country in 1871, going out to California. There he held positions with John H. Sievers in San Francisco, and Mr. Rock in San Jose. In 1873 Mr. Lonsdale returned to Philadelphia and rented the Fletcher greenhouses, on Thorps Lane, Belfield. Here he forced roses and grew a general line of plants for local consumption. When there was a surplus he took his stock to town and soon found that he got a better price for it at wholesale in the city stores than he did at retail among his neighbors. This suggested the idea of growing especially for the wholesale market. So, with his brother-in-law, John Burton, who was renting greenhouses at Church and Chew streets, Germantown, he decided to embark in business on a more extensive scale. Ground was purchased at Wyndmoor, near Chestnut Hill, in 1882, and on it were erected four greenhouses, 25 x 100 feet each, by the new firm of Lonsdale & Burton. Each partner continued to operate his leased greenhouses, a foreman being placed in charge of the new property. The firm of Lonsdale & Burton was the first of the strictly wholesale cut flower and plant growers of Philadelphia. Their affairs prospered, more greenhouses were built, then two fine dwellings, when first one partner and then the other came there to live. Roses, notably American Beauty, were the leading crop. There were other things, palms, carnations and smilax, all in wholesale quantities.

Mr. Lonsdale was always fond of trying new things. One of his great successes was made at this time with the hybrid perpetual rose, Mme. Gabriel Luizet. Mr. Lonsdale saw the possibilities of this beautiful rose with the perfect foliage. He secured a stock, planted it out in solid beds in the greenhouse and made a hit with it. Its popularity lasted for four or five years, high prices being realized by the firm for the blooms. With carnations Mr. Lonsdale was extremely successful, both as a grower and as a hybridizer. To his skillful work with the camel's-hair brush we owe many beautiful seedlings. Grace Battles, a lively light pink flower of good size and fragrance, was in its day a great carnation; so, too, was Helen Keller, a large white with carmine markings.

The firm of Lonsdale & Burton dissolved in 1887, Mr. Burton retaining the greenhouses and the eastern portion of the property, while Mr. Lonsdale took the western portion and built new greenhouses and a dwelling thereon. The remarks made at that time by those considered as in a position to know seem funny now. They said that the firm had been successful, but would they do well in the future? With their energies divided and double the amount of glass, would the places prosper? It was doubtful. They did prosper, nevertheless. Both places produced fine stock and increased their glass area. Mr. Lonsdale continued his hybridizing with plants, producing some notable crotons. Two of his best seedlings, Robert Craig and Edwin Lonsdale, are among our standard varieties today. He was continually trying new plants, paying a high price for small plants or cuttings, or seeds that he believed to possess merit, growing them, and, if they came up to his expectations, distributing them. Swainsona galegifolia alba owes its American popularity to Mr. Lonsdale, who grew it and recommended it as a good plant for general cultivation where fine white flowers were desired. Mr. Lonsdale first exhibited Begonia Gloire de Lorraine in Philadelphia, marking it "Not a century plant, but a plant of the century," to the delight of his friends. Begonia Lonsdale, a selection of Begonia Lorraine, now a fixed type, owes its perpetuation to him. These are just a few instances of the many plants that owed something to Mr. Lonsdale. In some it was their origin; in others, their fixed identity through selection and propagation. Geraniums, fuchsias, cannas, all claimed a share of his attention.

Among his fellow men Mr. Lonsdale was always popular. Every office where work for their mutual advantage or leadership was required, was his in time: Secretary of the Germantown Horticultural Society, secretary of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, secretary and president of the Philadelphia Florists' Club, president of the American Carnation Society, "the pick of floral presidents, the president of pinks;" president of the Society of American Florists, were all offices that Mr. Lonsdale filled with credit. His speech in the S. A. F. convention, when the question of a nominating committee and a secret ballot was up for discussion, is still remembered. Mr. Lonsdale arose and with an emphatic gesture of his own said, "Let everything be open and aboveboard," and sat down. The house was with him and the motion was lost. As a horticultural writer Mr. Lonsdale takes high rank. He assisted in organizing the first trade paper and was a frequent contributor to its columns, and to many other papers. His reply to Grove P. Rawson on the subject of foliage burning is historic.

There are few men who have suffered as Edwin Lonsdale suffered. The loss of two, and then a third, lovely flower from his home, misplaced confidence, business embarrassment that led to the loss of that home itself, were blows of terrible force. Then it chanced that Girard College needed a gardener, a man of ability. It was said that no one man ever had so many letters of high recommendation written for him as had Edwin Lonsdale for the position at Girard College. The amount of wire-pulling was tremendous. When the trustees of Girard College appointed Edwin Lonsdale gardener, every florist in Philadelphia felt that the appointment was directly due to his own individual efforts and was modestly glad it was so. Mr. Lonsdale did good work at the college, proving a worthy successor to George Huster. His decorations of the tomb of Stephen Girard, his croton beds, his schizanthus and his fuchsias, will be remembered with pleasure. Six years ago W. Atlee Burpee invited him to go to Lompoc, Cal., to grow sweet peas and other plants for seed. He accepted. It would be better out there in that balmy climate for Mrs. Lonsdale, he said, and Mr. Burpee had been kind. Philadelphia gave a great farewell dinner that was really wonderful. Everybody was there to wish God-speed to the dear old Duke of York and the evening was a happy one.

Out in Lompoc valley Edwin Lonsdale strove to improve a farm until it became a garden where seed production and seed tests could be conducted under the most favorable conditions. He continued his hybridizing. One of his recent letters spoke of a new color in the petunia. Despite ill health, his letters up to a month ago were always cheerful, though recognizing the seriousness of his condition. Perhaps Tennyson's beautiful lines may come to us as from him:

Twilight and evening bell,
And after that the dark,
And may there be no sadness of farewell
When I embark;
For though from out our bourne of time and place
The flood may bear me far,
I hope to see my Pilot face to face
When I have crossed the bar.

Joseph J. Bechamps.

Joseph J. Bechamps died unexpectedly, on Labor day, September 6, at his home, 300 State street, Flushing, N. Y. Mr. Bechamps succumbed to arteriosclerosis on the day preceding his seventy-sixth anniversary. He was an extensive grower of carnations at his Bayside greenhouses, where he had been in business for thirty-three years. The products of his 30,000 square feet of glass he had shipped exclusively to J. K. Allen, of New York, for more than twenty-two years.

Mr. Bechamps is survived by two daughters and three sons, who will continue the business. Burial was made Thursday, September 9.

John Bubach.

John Bubach, one of the most widely known "knights of the grip" in the florists' trade, died at Spring Valley, N. Y., August 28, from hasty consumption, and was buried August 31 in the United States cemetery at Cypress Hills, N. Y.

Mr. Bubach worked on the road for Lion & Co., New York, for about ten years; for Schloss Bros., New York, for about two years, and for the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, for a year and a half.

WATER MAY CAUSE TROUBLE.

What is the matter with the enclosed specimen of Asparagus Sprengeri, and what is a remedy for it?

T. E. & S.—Ind.

Without any particulars as to the conditions under which the asparagus is growing or the treatment it has received, it is not easy to say what has caused the trouble, but the condition of the specimen would seem to indicate that something is wrong with the water supply.

Do you get your water from a city supply, and does the water company use chloride of lime in its filters? In the absence of further data, it seems probable that something of this character may have done such an injury.

W. H. T.

WORTHLESS A SECOND YEAR.

If Paper White narcissi, Roman hyacinths and giganteums are forced for flowers next winter, and if they are taken out and planted in the field in the spring, will they bloom again in the following fall if taken up and put in the house and forced? A. F. C.—Miss.

No. These bulbs are of little value for planting out, and are absolutely worthless for forcing purposes a second year.

The Review brings results.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

THE selection of Houston for the 1916 S. A. F. convention has caused another wave of discussion similar to that which followed the vote to meet in San Francisco. There is every reason to suppose the society will, as years go by, hold many meetings in cities remote from the principal trade centers, and no real reason that The Review knows of why it should not do so. The most important work of the society now is done by the executive board, but the organization can no doubt arouse greater interest and do most good by meeting in many distant places instead of meeting constantly within a limited radius.

PROSPERITY COMING.

"Business revival will be slow, but the country's greatest era of prosperity will soon dawn," said William A. Law, president of the American Bankers' Association, in a recent interview. "A banner crop movement will further increase the volume of bank reserves, already abnormal. The country faces labor problems never known, including unprecedented labor shortage consequent to revived business. The present upset of business and national wave of economy will disappear. Business improvement has already slightly begun and will continue to its full revival and marvelous prosperity."

WHEN a stranger attempts to pay for a purchase with a check calling for cash change, take a second thought; it's a danger signal.

IMPORTS MORE LIKELY.

A degree of relaxation is apparent in the British blockade against German commerce, as a result, no doubt, of the change in Germany's submarine policy. Not only is it easier to get permits for the shipment of Belgian products, such as azaleas, through Holland, but the authorities are less skeptical when American importers seek to convince them of the ownership of articles of German origin. It seems at the moment that the situation has greatly improved, with the prospect that the trade will be able to procure many articles of European origin that it had been thought we must do without.

ABOUT FACE!

We are reminded of an editorial printed August 1, 1914, in a trade paper little read in the west, which, appearing just before the Boston convention, was published for the evident purpose of keeping the members of the S. A. F. from voting to hold its 1915 convention in San Francisco. "Few would enjoy the heat of the railroad journey in August. Arrived at San Francisco, how many would care to sit in meeting when there were so many wonderful sights to be seen on the outside? What would become of the trade exhibition?" Those are words that were used. But the S. A. F. did hold its 1915 convention in San Francisco in spite of that editor's effort to prevent it, and today it would be a pleasure to read his eulogiums of the meeting except for the suspicion that he may be trying to square himself for what he said a year ago.

THE NEW EXPRESS RATES.

Did you note that express rates advanced September 1? The Interstate Commerce Commission authorized it, figuring that the increase would amount to an average of 3.86 per cent.

The following table, it is said, is representative of the increase that took place on first-class shipments, which include cut flowers and florists' supplies:

1 to 5 pounds	$0.05
6 to 29 pounds	.04
30 to 49 pounds	.03
50 to 70 pounds	.02
71 to 99 pounds	.01

Second-class shipments, which include plants properly packed, are increased in rate to the extent of seventy-five per cent of the above amounts.

AMERICAN GLADIOLUS SOCIETY.

Selection of Next Meeting Place.

At the Newport meeting the officers were elected for two years, but the exhibition and meeting will be held annually as heretofore. The executive committee, consisting of the president and secretary ex-officio, T. A. Havemeyer, Montague Chamberlain and Arthur Cowee, will submit the names of three cities to the members of the society to be voted on, to determine the place of the next show. Only those who have paid their dues to 1916 will be entitled to vote.

H. Youell, Sec'y.

NEXT WEEK'S WEATHER.

Weekly weather forecast, issued by the U. S. Weather Bureau, Washington, D. C., for the week beginning Wednesday, September 8, 1915:

For the Region of the Great Lakes—Overcast weather and showers will be followed by fair weather and moderate temperature until about September 12, when showers are again probable.

For the Upper Mississippi Valley and Plains States—Fair weather and moderate temperature will prevail until about September 11 or 12, when local showers are probable, to be followed by fair weather the last two days of the week.

For the Ohio Valley and Tennessee—Showers will be followed by generally fair weather and moderate temperature until September 13, when showery conditions are again probable.

DOES IT PAY?

You Know It Does!

Here is a brief message from a florist who has had an ad in the Classified department of The Review:

Please discontinue our ad on carnation plants, as it has sold 8,000 plants, our entire surplus.

The record shows that stock to a value of $320 was offered and that only $4.50 was spent for advertising. Does it pay? Well, rather!

What stock have you that you would like to turn into cash?

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Although business is generally reported somewhat quiet, there is an improved tone in the market. This is making itself felt in the increased ease with which the large supplies of stock are handled and may be accepted as indicating the arrival of the autumn season.

The supply of first-class roses is abundant, but it is not more than equal to the demand. There is no end to the list of varieties from which to select, and, whereas short stems are generally the order of the day at this season of the year, the present market affords large quantities of long-stemmed stock. Russell, of course, still holds the lead, and Sunburst also finds a strong demand. Milady is in good supply but not yet in much request, as the weather is too warm for red flowers to sell well. Richmond is less in evidence this season. Beauties are available in almost all lengths and are moving quite well. The quality has improved.

The supply of carnations is daily increasing and the quality of the flowers is good. The demand, though quiet, is more than sufficient to take care of all receipts. Asters are of somewhat better quality this week and are moving accordingly. The gladiolus, that so lately dominated the whole market, is rapidly declining, in quality as well as quantity. Valley and orchids form a class by themselves, in that they are both distinctly on the short side of the market.

There has been an appreciable increase in the daily receipts of chrysanthemums. Golden Glow is available

We Offer a Special Crop of Beauties

TO start your fall trade right, use our Beauties. Our crop now on is the finest we have seen in many months; can supply long and medium stems in quantity. Remember, we shall handle more Beauties this season than any other wholesale house in the United States. You always can get what you want if you order of us.

RUSSELL - MILADY

The quality of these Roses will make it pleasant as well as profitable for you to handle them. The cut is large and you can build trade on them with confidence of a steady supply.

OPHELIA - SUNBURST - WARD

You will find it decidedly profitable to carry these Roses steadily in stock and to get your supply regularly from us.

THE KILLARNEYS

PINK—BRILLIANT—WHITE

While we have good supplies of Killarney and White Killarney, we are specially strong on Killarney Brilliant. We want you to order Brilliant because we know you will like it.

HEADQUARTERS FOR BRUNNER AND ELGAR

FANCY ASTERS

The Asters we offer this week are the best of the season to date. You can get here Asters that are exhibition stock, as well as smaller stock for work.

EASTER LILIES

A large supply of Giganteums, the flower that makes the most show for the money when worked up in sprays.

MUMS

Golden Glow and Smith's Advance are ready; other sorts coming soon.

VALLEY

We can supply good Valley all the time; to avoid disappointment order here.

EVERYTHING IN GREENS

None of our customers has had any difficulty getting all the good Ferns that were needed—we always have them. Also headquarters for Plumosus Sprays, Sprengeri, Smilax, Galax, Adiantum, etc., etc.

in almost any reasonable quantity, and the early white, Smith's Advance, though less abundant, is in fair supply. They sell, but there is nothing approaching a demand for them. There is no inconsiderable quantity of Easter lilies on the market and much of it is excellent stock, but finds almost no demand. Rubrum lilies and tuberoses also adorn the tables of the wholesalers.

Seasonable stock, which is a most useful commodity when standard stock is scarce, suffers accordingly when roses are plentiful. So the dahlias, cosmos and the others of their ilk, though none too abundant, are experiencing little demand.

Greens of all kinds and in any quantity are in the market, and there they remain for the most part.

Labor day was quite generally observed in the trade. Although many of the houses remained open until well along in the afternoon, a number of them closed at 12 o'clock. In previous years the wholesale houses have kept open, but this year the postoffice made not even one delivery, which resulted in a number of orders for Monday shipment not being received until Tuesday.

August Weather.

In certain ways August was unusually favorable for florists, and in certain ways unfavorable. There was only fifty-one per cent of the possible sunshine, against sixty-nine per cent as an average. The records of the weather bureau show the mean temperature, 66.6 degrees, was the lowest August mean within the records of the weather bureau beginning in 1871. The mean temperature for the summer, as a whole, averaged lower than in any previous year with the single exception of 1875. The highest temperature was 86 degrees, and the lowest 47 degrees, the latter being a record for low temperature in August. The maximum did not reach 90 degrees on any day this season, and it was only in 1875 that a similar record was made. The August rainfall, 4.33 inches, totaled considerably above the seasonal normal, as in the previous three months. The percentage of sunshine was lower than in any previous August.

Various Notes.

Charles F. Edgar, formerly with B. F. Barr & Co., Scranton, Pa., and later with the Edwards Floral Hall Co., at Atlantic City, has come to join the staff of the Fleischman Floral Co.

There is nothing like traveling about a strange country with your eyes open and your mind in a receptive state if you want new ideas. So says C. Frauenfelder, 3343 West Madison street, and he ought to know, for he has tried it. While in California with his family last month, he made note of all the attractive stores, both florists' and otherwise, that he saw. By consistently doing this in the various cities and always exercising his prerogative of asking questions, Mr. Frauenfelder has amassed a body of ideas that will be given concrete form next winter in a remodeled or, more accurately speaking, a rebuilt store. We are assured that there will be nothing else like it in Chicago.

Four well defined seasons a year, even if they do not always come in the same order, are much to be preferred to the perpetual balminess of an eternal summer, in the opinion of Miss Agatha M. This appreciation she ranks as of more real value to her than anything she saw on her trip to the Pacific coast.

SELL YOUR CUSTOMERS right at the start of the season some of the new kinds of roses, and watch how quick they will come back for more. They want to see different roses—different colorings, and if you are the first to show them, you get the business. People have seen Killarneys for years and are tired of them. Killarney is a splendid rose, and will always be used extensively for making up, etc., but as a gift rose the newer kinds are more attractive.

Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty, Russell, Shawyer, Sunburst, etc., we are now cutting in large quantity, and selling at very moderate prices—3 cents to 6 cents for these new kinds. Or we are making up the assorted boxes which were so successful with us last year at $5.00 and $10.00 A liberal count, well assorted, of the new roses, in either priced box.

The fact that the August sales of the A. L. Randall Co. ran ahead of last year is affording F. M. Johnson much pleasure. It will be remembered that in August, 1914, nearly everyone was anxious to lay in a stock of florists' supplies and it was much the largest August the Randall concern had known up to that time.

The cashier's desk will be moved to make room for a larger display space in his window and a fresh coat of white enamel will add much to the store and fixtures. Next month Mr. Ronsley will have an announcement of considerable importance to make.

Garden flowers now are selling much better than in July and August, according to Erne & Klingel, who have made a specialty of such stock this summer. Larkspur is said to be a particularly good seller.

"HALT!"—

cried the old man, as he looked up from the war news.

"Yes, sir," answered the buyer, with due military alacrity.

"Now is the time to order your Chiffons, Ribbons and all other supplies."

"Why should I?" argued the buyer—buyers always dislike being told when or how they should do anything, even though it be for their own good.

"Because," said the old man, sagely, "all of the florists' supplies are either imported or would be affected by a shut-off on imported goods. In either case the prices are apt to be forced up any time." So saying, the old man started back to his sanctum.

"I say, young man, you'd better try Kennicott's Quality Cuts before you place the season's order anywhere else. They have installed a new Chiffon and Ribbon department. If they're as satisfactory in those supplies as they are in Wire Designs (and they are) that is the house to place your season's order with."

"All right, sir," said the buyer (but, as buyers are apt to do, he was about to put the matter off)—

"My boy, make out that trial order now, and send it, before you forget, to Kennicott Bros. Co., 163 N. Wabash Avenue—that's the address. Yes, of course, Chicago."

The old man seldom makes mistakes. The same contract prices and satisfying values will be given to you.

There are, perhaps, many advantages attaching to a cool summer. For one thing, it has, in the opinion of George Chronis, of Johnson & Chronis, Forty-seventh street and Lake Park avenue, been responsible for their experiencing the most successful summer season in the history of the firm.

An exceedingly attractive building is being erected by Albert Fuchs at the northwest corner of Broadway and Grace street, almost on the site of the greenhouses he ran for many years. The cost is placed at about $400,000. The building is in the German medieval style of architecture with its characteristic gable treatment. It will have a frontage of 140 feet on Broadway and 268 feet on Grace street. The first floor will contain a theater with a seating capacity of 1,800, said to be the largest outside of the loop district; ten stores, and a buffet and restaurant. The second floor will be occupied by offices and ballrooms, while the third will be occupied by bowling alleys and billiard room and will contain twenty-two alleys and twenty-two tables. There will be parking space for 150 automobiles.

The Profit From Withered Flowers

The withered flower problem has always been a loss to you—hasn't it? You never heard of it from a profit stand point before.

The profit that is possible from withered flowers is to sell the flowers before they spoil and are thrown out. This is easily done through their proper preservation in a

McCray Florist's Refrigerator

Here the flowers are preserved at an even temperature and are kept fresh and cool. No other refrigerating system is so efficient as the McCray. It stops the loss from spoilage so common with inadequate refrigeration.

In addition the McCray, with its beautiful plate glass doors and sides permits an inviting and attractive display of the flowers. The compartments are of different sizes to accommodate the various lengths of stems.

The outside woodwork may be had in any finish to match your store's interior. The linings may be secured in either plate mirror or white enamel and are very attractive.

Make up your mind right now to increase your business and decide upon a McCray Refrigerator to help you do it. Every enterprising Florist needs a McCray. Write and learn why.

Visitors.

B. Eschner and Mrs. Eschner, of Philadelphia, passed through Chicago September 3 on their way home from a tour of Alaska and the Pacific coast, occupying nine weeks. Although in the earlier days of the M. Rice Co. Mr. Eschner gained a personal acquaintance with retail florists by calling on them in nearly all parts of the United States, this was his first trip to the coast and he and Mrs. Eschner both found it highly enjoyable. In passing through Chicago they had only time between trains for one brief call at The Review office.

Members of the Chicago trade were visited last week by the following: Eli Cross, Grand Rapids, Mich.; C. E. Schaefer, of the La Crosse Floral Co., La Crosse, Wis.

READING, PA.

The Market.

Business showed a decided improvement last week, with a daily increase in funeral orders. The opening of the three leading theaters, on Labor day, called for many loads of palms, baskets of cut flowers and floral horseshoes. The wedding orders for October are already large and will require the engagement of an extra force of men. Another welcome addition to the fall trade will be the combined openings of twenty-eight firms and the principal department stores next week. For this occasion the florists are well prepared. Palms will predominate as decorations.

Cut flowers are plentiful, especially asters, which have become a glut in the market. Gladioli sell well, as the supply is far less than the demand. Roses are fairly plentiful, with Russell selling best. Carnations have not yet made their appearance. Dahlias are as yet in poor supply. Golden Glow chrysanthemums find little demand and must go at low figures. Early chrysanthemums are not readily salable in this section.

Club Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the retailers was held in the Moore building, at Fifth and Penn streets. Arthur S. Smith delivered an address on "Brain Life in Plants," and proved himself to be an able speaker, holding the closest attention of a large audience for an hour and a half. The public was invited and, as a result, standing room was at a premium.

The regular business of the association will be transacted September 23. Two meetings will be held each month. The speaker for the October meeting will be William Girvin, of Leola, Pa., whose subject will be "Carnations."

Alfred Linden, gardener for John Holst, and Arthur Smith were elected to membership. At the next business meeting Irvin Giles, chairman of the publicity committee, will address the association on "Coöperative Advertising."

Various Notes.

Heck Bros., of Wyomissing, are cutting a large number of Golden Glow chrysanthemums of first-class quality.

Layton Butts, of Wyomissing, has started a rose boom in this city, which is a welcome visitor. He is cutting a heavy crop of Shawyer and Sunburst.

C. J. Huesman & Son have completed a new greenhouse, 20x100, a new planting shed and an office, 20x40.

Paul Blachman has been kept exceptionally busy on funeral work, of which he makes a specialty.

At John H. Giles' store many new features will be introduced during the coming season. This place has received a thorough renovating and presents an attractive appearance. H. C. H.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The week shows several changes. Roses shortened in supply under the influence of cool weather, really good stock selling well. Then came warmer weather, bringing in heavier supplies, with depressing effect. Asters were in oversupply. Many were damaged. The general condition of the aster market was bad. Valley lilies continue short of the demand, making a firm, rather active market with good prices. Easter lilies have also fared well. Cattleyas are high in price, with prospects of a decline on increased receipts. Gladiolus America has been in pretty good demand. Golden Glow chrysanthemums have not sold well. Dahlias are coming into season. Some fine stock is beginning to meet with favor from the buyers. There has been a fair amount of shipping for these. Beauties, the finer grades of other roses, valley and occasionally cattleyas have been in request.

Labor day was generally observed in this city. Most of the wholesale houses, though not all, and many of the retail stores were closed at noon, curtailing business, or perhaps it would be more accurate to say that the holiday curtailed business so the stores closed for lack of something to do and the workers had a chance to enjoy themselves.

Current Events.

The death of Edwin Lonsdale, which occurred in Los Angeles, Cal., September 1, is keenly felt in this city. Mr. Lonsdale made friends of all who knew him. His hearty greeting and jolly laugh will be sadly missed from our gatherings. One of our most successful business men remembers how, on his first appearance at the Florists' Club, it was Mr. Lonsdale who came to him and made him welcome so that he quickly felt at home. Another recalls how, when illness deprived him of his foreman, it was Mr. Lonsdale who sent an expert to look after his place so that nothing suffered. Still another of our leading men tells how Mr. Lonsdale, with patient care, taught his son the art of hybridizing, as he taught many other young men the finer points of gardening. Surely, such a life has elevated the standard of our profession and of the men who follow it.

special train to Andalusia, while the other side advised the beholders to "Always sow Michell's evergreen grass seed." It was clear why this advice was given when the heavily laden special reached Andalusia, for it would be hard to find a finer lawn than the great stretch along the Pennsylvania railroad tracks that fronts the Michell farm. The effect of the lawn is superb. There are eight large beds of cannas, each containing 1,200 plants of one variety, and smaller beds of choice evergreens set out in this vast stretch of velvet green tract. The finest standard varieties, like King Humbert, Mrs. Alfred F. Conard and Gustav Gumpper, were in these beds. They were a sheet of bloom. At the entrance was a large trial bed of cannas, where many more sorts were showing their mettle.

On the hill beyond the lawn the collation was served to nearly a thousand guests, gardeners, florists, members of the various suburban horticultural societies and their wives and daughters. It was a great gathering.

Back of the lawn is the practical part of the farm, the trial grounds and fields of growing stock; 400 varieties of perennials, half a dozen of each variety, furnish material for a week's study; a like field of roses bordered by climbers; acres of hardy phloxes, dahlias, irises, peonies, sage, and over beyond the greenhouse range seems to be greatly increased for the hardy roses. Surely the house of Michell has something to show and is showing it well, as every one in that throng of happy guests will gladly testify.

Various Notes.

The funeral of Edwin Lonsdale took place from the residence of his brother-in-law, John Burton, Wednesday afternoon, September 8. Men prominent in all branches of the profession were present in full force to pay their last tribute of respect. There were many beautiful floral offerings. The interment was at Ivy Hill cemetery.

Robert Pyle, president of the Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa., gave a most interesting account of his visit to the San Francisco and San Diego expositions at the September meeting of the Florists' Club. The officers who have served so well in 1915 were renominated for 1916. Resolutions on the death of Edwin Lonsdale were adopted.

Recent visitors include Myer Gottlieb, New York city; Herman Warendorff, of the Ansonia, New York city; H. F. Littlefield, Worcester, Mass., and Miss Tillie Held, with Charles Held, Baltimore, Md.

W. E. Fowler is no longer with the Highland Rose Co. Mr. Fowler has been manager of the company's plant at Morton, Pa., for thirteen years.

Renard Bros. have taken over the Millbrook Lea Greenhouses, at Whitford, Pa. This firm is composed of two brothers, G. W. Renard, who has greenhouses at Avondale, Pa., and Henry Renard, who has greenhouses at Downingtown, Pa. Both brothers will continue to operate their present plants. All three plants specialize on carnations. They took charge of the Millbrook place September 6.

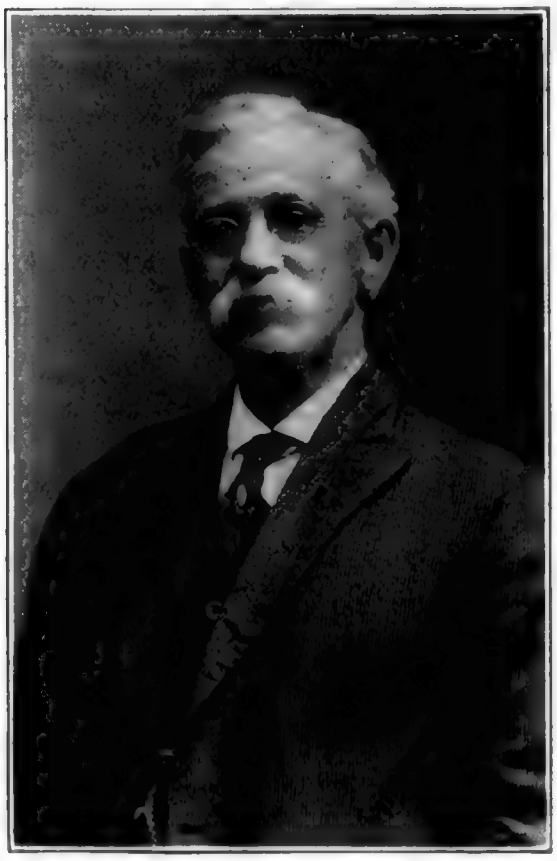
W. J. Baxter, formerly with the Moore Seed Co., will assist W. J. Muth in looking after the interests of the King Construction Co. in this territory.

William Landerer, lately with the Joseph Heacock Co., at Roelofs, Pa., has accepted the position of manager for the Highland Rose Co., at Morton, Pa.

Berger Bros. are receiving some choice dahlias, among them Bertha von Suttner, a show pink with lavender shading.

Verona & Steinhoff celebrated their anniversary at the flower store of N. Suellenberg & Co., September 3. Each purchaser in the store on that day received a coupon with a small bouquet of flowers at the flower department.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., has its annex at 716 Chestnut street completely filled with bulbs, Holland and French. The stock is exceedingly fine, indicating a great growing season abroad.



H. Bayersdorfer & Co. have a new combination basket bowl and fernery of Japanese make that is unique.

BENWELL'S ANNIVERSARY.

Thomas J. Benwell completed fifty years of service with A. H. Hews & Co., the North Cambridge, Mass., pot manufacturers, August 31. In recognition of his long and faithful service, the directors presented him with $50 in gold. Mr. Benwell hails from Birmingham, England, where he was born in 1851. He had the unusual experience of crossing the Atlantic three times in sailing vessels with his father before he was 2 years of age. In 1865 he started work with the Hews Co., at the plant in Weston, Mass. In those days the output of pots averaged 5,000 weekly and it was his duty and that of another boy to watch the pots, which were all dried outdoors, and if any rain happened along the pots had to be picked up and carried under cover.

In 1869 A. H. Hews & Co. moved to North Cambridge, where they are now located. It is interesting to note the difference in the output now and fifty years ago. Last year 20,000,000 pots were sold. Machinery was first used in the manufacture of pots in 1869 and George Wilson, of Malden, bought the first load of machine-made pots.

Mr. Benwell has been on the road as a salesman for the firm for over thirty years and there are few in the trade in New England who do not know his honest and ever cheery countenance. The loss of his right arm a number of years ago, which would have made many men despondent, has made no difference to the geniality and cheerfulness of our friend. W. N. C.

the winter schedule, $4 per hundred and up. Labor day ended the summer season, and the opening of schools brought the people back to town. As a result, business is expected to show more activity this week.

Various Notes.

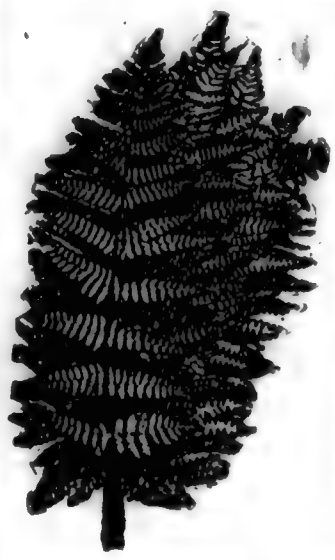
Thomas Curley, who has been in the hospital for several weeks from stomach trouble, is slowly convalescing.

Willis S. Pino was a business visitor to New York and Philadelphia last week.

Elmer E. King, of Attleboro, Mass., is overhauling and repairing his greenhouses. He has 40,000 geraniums doing well.

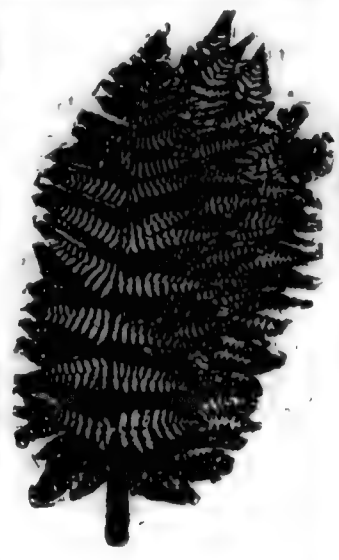
W. A. Bowers has installed a new outfit of show cases and a refrigerator for L. Dimond & Sons.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Carpenter have returned from a pleasure trip to Alberta and other Canadian provinces.



Work on two greenhouses for Frederick Hoffman, of Pawtucket, is progressing rapidly. The houses will be 35x85.

Maurice Miller has reopened his store on Westminster street.



Mrs. Charles Smith has returned from a month's stay at Sharon, Mass. Mr. Smith was busy with orders for a large funeral last week.

Philip Lavery, manager for J. B. Canning, is enjoying a two weeks' trip to Atlantic City and New York.

A suit for $1,000 damages has been filed against the Westminster Greenhouses. The plaintiff alleges that an automobile belonging to the concern collided with his wagon, striking him to the ground and injuring him.

In the annual schedule of taxable property filed last week, trade individuals and concerns were listed as follows: W. E. Barrett Co., $68,000; Elizabeth O'Connor, widow of Timothy O'Connor, $132,640; the Shepard Co., a corporation, $1,941,260, and L. Dimond & Sons, $88,600. W. H. M.

SCRANTON, PA.

The Market.

Scranton last week had the honor of entertaining the delegates to the encampment of the Spanish-American War Veterans. The largest military parade Scranton has ever seen was held August 31. It is estimated that over 100,000 people witnessed the parade. The florists were kept busy with corsage work for the military ball. All our flower stores had their windows decorated for the convention.

Funeral work was good the first part of last week, but dropped off the latter part. The market is glutted with asters, which are sold at from 50 cents to $2 per hundred. Good sweet peas are about done for. Easter lilies are good. Roses also are plentiful. Good valley is scarce.

Various Notes.

Muir & Co. had a large flag in their window, made of red, white and blue immortelles. Mrs. M. Muir is spending two weeks at Buffalo.

Baldwin last week cut the first Golden Glow mums that I have seen this season. He is cutting about 2,000 asters daily at the Wyoming farm.

John Dymond, of Clarks Summit, is cutting some fine cactus dahlias.

John W. Beagle reports a heavy call for Boston ferns. He is cutting some fine Easter lilies.

Miss Anna Griffiths, of the West Side Floral Shop, reports a busy week with funeral work.

Miss Copper, with Schultheis, has returned from a two weeks' vacation.

Wm. MacDonald, of Moosic, is cutting some fine new carnations and his mums look promising. Mr. MacDonald has been spending the summer at Falls, Pa.

B. E. & J. T. Cokely report business good. Mr. Cokely states that the sales on commission seeds this year were far beyond last year's. James Gallagher has returned after spending two weeks at Waymart, Pa. F. J. M.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

The month of August closed about like any other August, and September has started out with enough stock to do a fine business if it could all be sold. The only scarcity is in valley and white roses, but these will come along in a few days. There are no carnations, but gladioli and asters are plentiful and occasionally some one sends along a bunch of early chrysanthemums, for which there is no demand.

The wholesale houses all seem fairly active, but there is not much evidence of an increase in orders. The retailers say the outdoor flowers are still taking care of the regular customers and they are still depending on funeral work for business. The torn up condition of our streets almost puts some of our retailers out of business and it will be October before they have finished.

Various Notes.

Almost everyone has had his vacation and is trying to get settled to business except Harvey Sheaf, manager for Mrs. E. A. Williams, who is in Philadelphia and New York and goes from there to San Francisco via New Orleans, hoping to return by the time trade is nicely under way.

The employees of Randolph & McClements, including the ladies, were the guests of Walter Breitenstein, one evening last week, at his bungalow at Sandy Creek and the event was a corn roast and an outdoor dinner. All report a splendid time.

P. S. Randolph & Sons have been making a feature of gladioli this summer.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. is shipping large quantities of field-grown carnation plants. Clarke.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

Business has been good, with plenty of flowers to supply the demand. The new crop of carnations is coming in and the flowers are good. Dahlias and gladioli are plentiful. Roses are in big crop. A little fire was needed August 30 and 31, as the temperature dropped to 47 degrees, the coldest weather we ever had in August.

Various Notes.

Julius Niednagel & Sons are having a good cut of roses and outdoor stock, with a good demand. Their mums and carnations are coming along well. Fred Chapman, of this firm, has had as visitors his daughter, Mrs. J. E. Rhodes, and son, of the Capital City Floral Co., Madison, Wis. During their stay they saw considerable to interest them. On one occasion Mr. Niednagel gave them the use of one of the Niednagel machines and a trip to Newburg was made. The party called on Otto Kuebler and inspected his greenhouses.

Royston & Fenton are cutting a nice crop of roses. They have discarded Bridesmaid and planted Killarney and Ward in its place.

The Blackman Floral Co. is cutting the first crop of indoor carnations. The carnations in the field are giving good, salable flowers. The rose crop is heavy, fine American Beauty and Killarney being cut. The newer roses are doing well. Business is good. This firm furnished a large number of bouquets of roses for a local shoe firm, which were given to its patrons.

Lunkenheimer & Blackman, a queen's-ware firm, was recently incorporated for $25,000. The members of the firm are Mr. Lunkenheimer, James Blackman and George Blackman. E. L. F.

Joplin, Mo.—The Joplin-Galena Greenhouse Co. has filed articles of incorporation, with a paid in capital of $15,000, divided into shares of $1 each. The corporation has other greenhouses at Galena, Kan. The stockholders of the concern are Anna Lyscio, Glenn A. Duncan, J. M. Short and E. B. Morgan.

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists — those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists — has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

Fred H. Weber,
...Florist...
Boyle and Maryland Aves.
St. Louis, Mo., September 5, 1914.

Florists' Review,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:-

During the SIX MONTHS from March 4 to September 4 I have received from other Florists, by mail, telegraph or cable, orders to the amount of $513.25 as a result of my advertisement in the Retailers' department of The Review. With the allowance to senders the record for SIX MONTHS is:

Value of orders received----------	$513.25
Less 20% allowed senders--------	102.60
Net value of orders for SIX MONTHS--	410.65

It should be noted that this showing covers the DULL SUMMER MONTHS, when any addition to a Florists's business is decidedly welcome.

Retail Florists not advertising in The Review should profit by this letter.

Respectfully,
F. H. Weber

The Market.

Business was good last week, the cool weather making trade quite brisk. A considerable volume of funeral work kept all the downtown florists busy. Roses, especially white, are scarce. All varieties are good, but the foliage of Mock and Killarney is poor and mildewed. Asters are fair; the white varieties are scarce. The supply of asters cleans up each day as fast as it comes in. The good varieties bring a reasonable price. Gladioli still are coming. Americas are smaller than they have been. There are a few carnations shown. They are small, short of stem and pale in color. The assortment of cut flowers is becoming somewhat meager, for garden flowers and sweet peas have gone.

Various Notes.

At the branch store of W. J. Palmer & Son new-crop carnations are shown, but they are short of stem.

The Market.

The tide has turned. At least, there were indications September 4 of stability and progress in the rose market. White roses were not to be had at all, and all other roses worthy of the name commanded better prices than have prevailed for many a day. The supply was little above the general demand. Size and quality were more in evidence, also. American Beauties are fast improving and the novelties all sell at satisfactory rates, some touching $8 per hundred.

The shipments of carnations are still light. A few fine Laura Weber arrive daily. In another week the supply should become normal.

The gladiolus supply is fast lessening, and prices are up to $1 and $2 per hundred. The latter figure, however, is only for the novelties and America. The flood of asters is at high tide. Everything mediocre is almost unsalable. Some excellent stock comes in that is well worth twice what is asked for it. The dahlia shipments are already large, but no demand whatever has yet materialized.

Valley was higher September 4. Orchids hold their values well, and the supply is certain to increase soon. There are many Golden Glow mums in the windows, the usual supply of tritomas, outdoor stock of many kinds, and the finest Hydrangea paniculata grandiflora ever seen in New York.

Various Notes.

Labor day was celebrated here with great enthusiasm. All the flower stores, wholesale and retail, were closed at noon.

R. Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., is in New York this week completing arrangements for the exhibition of the American Dahlia Society.

Lecakes & Co. were surprised to find the store flooded to the depth of several inches Saturday morning, September 4, the result of a broken water pipe on the third floor of the building. Considerable damage resulted.

W. H. Siebrecht, Jr., and family have spent the summer at Southampton and Chappaqua, N. Y.

Next Monday, September 13, the initial meeting of the season of the New York Florists' Club will take place at the society's rooms, on West Twenty-third street. B. The Market.

In spite of midsummer-like weather, business is a little better than a week ago. The gladiolus glut is rapidly passing and prices on this flower have improved. Asters, thanks to the spell of clear, warm weather, are of improved quality. They are arriving in great numbers, however, more than the market can gorge. Roses have suffered somewhat from the heat and a good many short-stemmed flowers have been cleared at low prices. White roses have been in strong demand at advanced prices, chiefly because few were coming in. Beauties for the season are remarkably good. The best make $20 per hundred. Of the newer roses, Hoosier Beauty and Ophelia are popular.

rive, but they are small and short-stemmed and compare unfavorably with asters. Golden Glow mums arrive from a few growers, but there is no rush to buy them. Sweet peas are few and of inferior quality. Cosmos is seen on a number of stands, but sells poorly as yet. Lilies are abundant and good. Some good valley is seen, but the majority is of inferior quality. The cattleya scarcity is still acute and prices rule high.

At this early date some Erica melanthera and Begonia Gloire de Lorraine have made their appearance.

Various Notes.

The Montgomery Co., of South Hadley, Mass., grows roses exclusively. There are three houses of King construction, each 50x500. This season a good many Hoosier Beauty are being tried and it is doing well. Ophelia, Hadley and Russell are a trio of other favorites. Other sorts grown are Ward, Sunburst, Killarney Queen and Killarney. The cut is handled by P. J. Donahoe, who also sells American Beauties of excellent quality from Paul M. Pierson.

John Barr, of South Natick, is already sending in large shipments of carnations. Alice is proving particularly free as an early fall bloomer. The plants housed average of larger size than ever before.

wholesale flower industry came in for unstinted praise.

F. J. Dolansky is already cutting some Cattleya labiata. He also has some nice Odontoglossum grande.

S. E. Spencer, of the Brooklands Gardens, Woburn, is sending to A. Hastings a grand lot of Schwaben gladioli and other good novelties. These are selling quite well.

Peter Fisher and M. A. Patten have been spending a few days at Bar Harbor, Me., and enjoyed immensely the glorious scenery and things of horticultural interest on the island of Mount Desert.

Jackson Dawson, September 4, completed forty-four years of service as superintendent of the Arnold Arboretum. He looks hale and hearty, although now nearing his seventy-fifth year, and is a veritable encyclopedia of everything pertaining to hardy plants.

J. T. Butterworth has imported a large additional batch of Cattleya Miss Williams from England. He finds this one of the finest orchids for blooming at a time when cattleyas are scarce. He also has a fine lot of Cattleya Harrisoniæ, in addition to odontoglossums and phalænopsis.

The wholesale markets now are open until 5 p. m. Saturdays. The half holiday prevailing in July and August might well have been continued through the present month for all the business there is.

Indications point to a large attendance at the field day of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club with the Breck-Robinson Co. at the Lexington nurseries September 11. At the club meeting September 21, in addition to the local speakers, M. C. Ebel, secretary of the National Association of Gardeners, will be present. The next convention of the N. A. G. will, it is expected, be held in Boston.

William Sim, one of our largest and most successful growers of gladioli, is nearly done cutting for this season. With indoor tomatoes he has had a most successful season. His single violets look fine in the field.

Thomas Roland has two of his large Revere houses planted with roses, 26,000 in all. He is trying Hoosier Beauty among new varieties. Among older sorts are Hadley, Ophelia, Sunburst, Killarney and Russell.

Boston sent a small delegation to the San Francisco convention and from comment it will not be any larger at Houston in 1916. It will be good for the south to have the convention there, but a trip south in mid-August is not attractive to northerners and I am of the opinion that the attendance of New England members will be as disappointing as at San Francisco.

The writer received a letter from Wallace R. Pierson at Adler Sanatorium, San Francisco, this week. Mr. Pierson's many friends in this section will be glad to know that he is improving wonderfully and hopes to be better than ever. He says the time spent in convalescing has been the happiest of his life, thanks to the kindnesses of a host of friends.

Thomas Capers, of Wellesley Hills, is already sending in a nice lot of Beacon, Alice and other carnations.

The Market.

Business last week was not rushing. The wholesale market was in an excellent condition, as all seasonable stock was plentiful and of better quality. Retailers, however, did not buy heavily, and some of the large consignments that came in were left over.

Roses in all varieties are plentiful and are greatly improved in quality. The bulk of the roses, however, have short stems, especially the Killarney varieties. Russell, Hadley and Kaiserin have better flowers and longer stems. Beauties are in splendid shape and the supply equals the demand. Prices are quite low for the quality offered. Carnations are showing improvement in both size and stem. The supply of asters far exceeds the demand. Extra fancy sells at $3 per hundred and ordinary stock is sold as low as $5 per thousand. There was a big reduction in the supply of gladioli and tuberoses. Dahlias are coming in heavily and some extra fancy are seen daily, but they meet a small demand. A few violets are in, but as yet have little call. The quality is poor. Lilies and valley hold their own. Cosmos is scarce, but large consignments are looked for. Greens are in good demand.

Various Notes.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association held its monthly meeting September 1, at the Eleven Mile House. The meeting was the largest attended of the year. All officers were present, and much important business was disposed of. The heads of the five wholesale houses, C. A. Kuehn, H. G. Berning, W. C. Smith, George H. Angermueller and Frank Windler, were present, and stated that their intentions were to keep open all day after September 15, with the exception of Sundays, on which day they would be closed. This plan was acceptable to the members of the association.

John Steidle, of Olivette, has started to consign his entire stock to H. G. Berning. For many years Mr. Steidle sold his output direct to Fred C. Weber. His stock is classed among the best coming to this market, especially the roses and carnations.

Edward Kalisch, of Kalisch Bros. Floral Co., who spent two weeks at Sheboygan, Wis., on a fishing trip, returned September 1. He visited Chicago, Indianapolis and Cincinnati on his way home.

Miss M. S. Newman's store, at Spring and Olive streets, was opened for business September 1. Miss Armstrong returned from Colorado and attended to the opening. Miss Newman, who has spent two months in Colorado, is expected home the end of this week.

Fred C. Weber, Jr., with Mrs. Weber and son, has returned from a two weeks' northern trip. Fred C. Weber,

William Grey, who has been with the Mullanphy Flower Co. during the year, resigned his position September 1 and left for Kansas City, where he has interested himself with P. Larkin. Mr. Grey's home is in Philadelphia.

E. P. Griffin, superintendent of parks at East St. Louis, Ill., and L. P. Jansen, gardener at the Adolphus Busch estate, are back from the park superintendents' meeting held at San Francisco. Both were elected to serve as vice-presidents.

Joseph Miller, formerly with William W. Schultz, at Peoria, Ill., is spending a few weeks here with friends.

Miss C. Beck, assistant professor of botany at New Hampshire College, Durham, N. H., and John Schnabel, assistant horticulturist at the Florida experiment station, Gainesville, Fla., were recent visitors. They spent all of their time at the Missouri Botanical Garden.

William C. Smith is out with a new Hupmobile touring car.

William A. Seeger, Jr., president of the Mullanphy Flower Co., and Mrs. Beulah Kirk Ranford, of Chattanooga, Tenn., were married August 31. The couple will soon depart for a honeymoon trip through the south.

Vincent Gorly, of Grimm & Gorly, is home again after a month's stay on the Pacific coast. Frank X. Gorly left September 4 with a party of friends for a 10-day trip up the Mississippi river.

Jacob H. Prost, superintendent of parks and city forester of the special park commission of Chicago, spent a few days here on his return trip from the Pacific coast. Mr. Prost was the guest of Julius Koenig, city forester, and visited all the city parks and play grounds.

C. H. Thompson has resigned his position as assistant botanist of the Missouri Botanical Garden. Mr. Thompson has accepted a position as assistant professor of horticulture at the Massachusetts Agricultural College, Amherst, Mass.

The newly elected officers of the St. Louis Florists' Club will meet this week for the purpose of arranging a program of meetings for the fall and winter.

ican Association of Park Superintendents, en route from the convention at San Francisco, arrived here September 4, and were taken in hand by Superintendent Strehle for a ride through the parks. After a luncheon at the City Club, the party was taken through Tower Grove park and the Missouri Botanical Garden. A dinner at the Sunset Inn completed a pleasant day. J. J. B.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

Business shows an increase that would make one believe that the fall weather has arrived, although this is partly due to the large amount of funeral work. Stock is more plentiful and of better quality, but most of the good cut flowers are from the greenhouses; outdoor cut stock is becoming poorer. The supply of roses is larger, but they are well cleaned up before the day ends. Prices are advancing a little, but will not climb much more, as the wholesalers have begun to receive some excellent Golden Glow chrysanthemums, with a promise of white chrysanthemums for next week. Carnations are coming back to the market, but their stems are extremely short. Lilies became scarce during the latter part of the week.

Various Notes.

A visit to A. F. Barbe's greenhouses found stock in splendid shape. He has one house of Killarney roses; three houses of chrysanthemums, with all of his Golden Glow showing color; four houses of carnations, one house of stocks and one house of snapdragons and sweet peas. The rest of the space is devoted to ferns and pot plants. He reports business good for this time of year.

T. J. Noll has returned from the Pacific coast, where he attended the S. A. F. convention. He says the trip was delightful. He stopped at Denver to make arrangements for stock.

Arthur Newell reports that business is good and that funeral work is above the average

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. had a remarkably heavy run of country funeral work last week. He says that stock is improving greatly.

The Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. is cutting some extra fine Golden Glow chrysanthemums, the first of the home-grown blooms. The firm is also cutting some fine Beauties for this time of year.

that last month was the best August in their experience.

Henry Kusik & Co. are still handling some good asters. Their roses are improving and they will have a fine lot of Lilium rubrum for next week.

E. J. Barnes has a baby girl at his home. She arrived Monday, August 30. Mr. Barnes has been building an addition to his residence.

August Luther, Jr., reports that business at his new location has been a great deal better than was expected. He has a heavy trade in blooming pot plants, to which he devotes his entire place, except the space that is used for bench chrysanthemums.

The Peterson Floral Co. is preparing for winter business and is now making some changes in the store. Funeral work has been good here throughout the summer.

Among the visitors last week were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Vincent, Jr., of Baltimore, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. F. Gude, Miss Amelia Gude and Louis W. C. Gude, of Washington, D. C.; Vincent Gorly, of St. Louis, Mo.; L. Vanhaverbeke, of Eureka, Kan.; A. Kakuda, of the Yokohama Nursery Co.; Mrs. T. S. Hillyer and Miss Hillyer, of Austin, Tex. W. J. B.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, John M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE relaxation of the British embargo affords a prospect of the resumption of imports of German seeds.

THE death of Edwin Lonsdale, manager of W. Atlee Burpee's Floradale Farm, at Lompoc, Cal., is recorded in this week's obituary column.

THE prospects for the usual imports of lily of the valley pips are so poor that holders of 1914 crop in good condition are advancing prices to stretch the supply as far as possible.

ALARMIST reports are out regarding the frost damage to beans, estimates running all the way from fifteen to forty per cent, but it should be remembered that things seldom turn out so bad as they seem.

THE retail department of the Central Seed & Bulb Co., of Benton Harbor, Mich., has been discontinued. E. S. Thompson and his associates will devote their energies toward developing the wholesale end of the business, which has been growing rapidly.

AUGUSTUS CASPERS, seedsman, nurseryman and florist, at Rochelle, Ill., is making preparations for adding a wholesale and mail-order seed department to his interests. Mr. Caspers says catalogue and price lists will be ready for distribution about January 1, 1916.

SOME people still insist on the earliest possible delivery of their giganteum lily bulbs, in spite of the fact that the better ripened stock is well known to be superior, and the early shipments are on the way, due shortly. The Japanese appear to have the market under control, the crop not being so large as last year.

J. C. ROBINSON, Waterloo, Neb., stated September 6: "We have just learned from Rocky Ford, Colo., that the cucumber prospects at that point are not nearly so good as they were ten days ago. At that time there was a prospect of fifty per cent of a crop as compared with last year, last year's crop being unusually large. Present prospects would indicate not over twenty-five per cent of the crop we had a year ago."

SUBSTITUTE articles of incorporation have been filed by the Shugart-Ouren Seed Co., of Council Bluffs, Ia., for the purpose of making possible an increase of capital stock from $50,000 to $100,000, and for other changes in the organization. The life of the corporation is renewed for a period of ten years and eight months from November 1, 1915. C. G. Ouren, president, and J. D. Davis, secretary, are the signers of the new articles.

THE Ollioules market for Paper Whites has had more than the usual ups and downs this season and the outcome is awaited with interest. Those who held the opening prices to be artificially high felt their views confirmed by the fall in price that soon took place, but almost immediately the market went up again. Today the exporters say there will be no surplus, but there are those on this side of the water who look for a big break in to sow seed of Snapdragons. They will "get away" awful quick these warm autumn days, and soon make nice, bushy plants to fill up any vacant space. They are money-makers for every grower, large or small. Our original Silver Pink will lead the list, but we have others that fit in nicely. Note a word from Texas:

Sherman, Texas, Aug. 23, 1915.

G. S. Ramsburg, Somersworth, N. H.

Dear Sir:—Please find our check for $1.00, for which please send us one packet of your Silver Pink Snapdragon. Got a packet last season and seed germinated fine. The flowers were the finest we ever saw. They outsold our roses and carnations.

Very respectfully,
H. O. Hannah & Son.

Seed of our famous Silver Pink Snapdragon, $1.00 per pkt.; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. Seed of Nelrose, Buxton, Garnet, White, Yellow and mixed, 35c per pkt.; 3 for $1.00.

Plants all sold. Next lot should be ready in about three weeks.

Make up your seed list. All orders cash or C. O. D. Free cultural directions.

ASK CHANGE OF SEED RATES.

Railroad rates on timothy seed are the subject of a complaint to the Interstate Commerce Commission by the Chas. H. Lilly Co., of Seattle, and the Portland Seed Co., of Portland, against the Northern Pacific railroad. It is pointed out that the rates on the seed from Lenore, Lewiston, Vollmer, Culdesac and Grayville, Idaho, to Washington and Oregon, were commodity rates before June 30, 1915, being 40, 35, 58, 41 and 61 cents respectively. Since then class rates have been charged to Seattle and Portland, 58, 52, 76, 59 and 75 cents respectively. The rates from Seattle to eastern points, such as Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City, were not changed, and the rates from Lenore and the other points to Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City were also unchanged. It is alleged that the rates on timothy seed westbound from these points in Idaho to Seattle and Portland are unreasonably disadvantageous to Seattle and Portland to such an extent as to be practically prohibitive, while unduly advantageous to cities and localities east of the points named in Idaho. The restoration of the former rates is requested. E. H. P.

SEED GROWING AT ATASCADERO.

It has been reported that the Holding Colony at Atascadero, near Arroyo Grande, Cal., is making, or is about to make, an important venture into the flower seed business under the direction of L. C. Routzahn, but Mr. Routzahn states that he has nothing to do with it except that at present he has crops grown on contract there. He writes in part:

"In regard to putting out flower seeds at Atascadero, the facts are these: The Routzahn's Co. contracts with the residents of the colony to raise seeds. The plan does not differ from our usual custom. In this instance there simply are more people to contract with. For several years we have been working more into the European method, and this is an enlarged opportunity along these lines. Of course these small growers are furnished with our own choice stock seed and the cultivation and roguing is supervised by ourselves and we take the product exclusively. I believe the Holding Colony later on expects to take up the mail order business, but with this, except perhaps selling them some seeds, we have no interest. They have some good seed land, but we presume only a fourth of our products will be raised there another year. The people seem to be an unusually intelligent lot and we have no doubt the plan will work out to the profit of all concerned."

It has been reported that the colony

Woman versus Mystery

At this point I judged myself an unsociable being, and could not explain the situation to myself, and had no hopes of clearing myself to the man in the case.

I felt as flat as a cemetery slab or a dead concrete slab; I finally retreated to my very comfortable room and decorated my card with this inscription: "Dear Jimmy: I cannot see you, simply can't explain. May." He still carries the card, and, really, he loves his wife better now than ever; one good thing to my credit for the welfare of my own sex. We defeated Bachelor Girls never get a fair deal anyway; if we meet one thousand people, just exactly one thousand opinions are formed; they can't all be right, so have mercy on the Business Girl of this period. We appeal to some as horned curiosities, mental monstrosities, too popular to love one man; love of money is eating our hearts away; too selfish and cold to love and care for children and a husband; our popularity is robbing us of the right man the good Lord intended us for. I can't afford the printers' ink to print all the different opinions; well, there wouldn't be any ink left to print the truth on the Business Girl question. This is all BOSH. I know I am in business to make a living and I certainly can do it, as long as—well, I believe the fat man is still in the Hotel, he—

DENAIFFES RESUME.

Denaiffe & Son, whose seed business at Carignan, France, was established in 1810 and suspended in 1914, have resumed operations, Maurice Denaiffe, the son, with several other heads, having received their discharges from the army after a year's service, the French government having deemed it advisable that Denaiffe & Son should keep alive their important industry. The business was stopped suddenly, a year ago, by the calling into the military service of over 600 Denaiffe employees, besides every active head of the business. The new office of the concern is now in another quarter, some distance out of the present war zone, in France.

Charles Johnson, of Marietta, Pa., American agent for Denaiffe & Son, will remove to Berkeley, Cal., about November 1.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

H. A. Hyde, Watsonville, Cal.—A list of carnations, chrysanthemums, perennials and other plants, roses, bulbs, vines, small fruits, fruit trees, ornamental trees and shrubs, vegetable plants, etc.; twenty pages, illustrated with views of different parts of Mr. Hyde's establishment.

Hitchings & Co., Elizabeth, N. J.—"Hitchings' Supply Book," a 116-page catalogue of materials for the construction and equipment of greenhouses. The paper and printing are of high quality, and the entire arrangement of both text and illustrations is tasteful and effective. The first part of the book explains, by pictures and descriptions, various processes or stages in the making, setting up, testing and operating of sectional boilers; then follow lists of boilers, pipe fittings, general greenhouse materials, sashes, frames, etc., with pictures showing many details in the Hitchings methods of construction.

Peter Henderson & Co., New York, N. Y.—A 64-page, illustrated catalogue of bulbs, plants, shrubs, small fruits, seeds of vegetables and hardy perennials, sweet peas, lawn grass seeds, jardinieres and other ornamental receptacles, tools, greenhouse and garden requisites, insecticides, fertilizers, etc. Some of the grass seed mixtures are distinguished by such names as Terrace Sod, Shady Nook, Sunny South, Athletic Field, Seaside, Putting-Green, Fair-Green and Tough Turf. Colored pictures on the covers show two collections of tulips.

Armand y Hermano, Marianao, Habana, Cuba.—A 130-page, illustrated catalogue, printed in the Spanish language, and listing roses, plants, conifers and other ornamental trees, fruit trees, flower and vegetable seeds, wreaths and other floral designs, garden tools, etc. About twenty-five pages are devoted to roses. Among the illustrations are many attractive views of the firm's buildings and grounds.

St. Joseph, Mich.—A. N. Richardson, who has had many years' experience in a Chicago seed store, plans to open a retail flower, plant and seed store in the Union Banking Co. building, about September 11.

NOTICE

To all American Nurserymen and Seedsmen desiring to keep in touch with commercial horticulture in England and the continent of Europe: Your best means of doing this is to take in the

Horticultural Advertiser

Our circulation covers the whole trade in Great Britain and the cream of the European firms. Impartial reports of all novelties, etc. Paper free on receipt of 75 cents, covering cost of postage yearly. As the H. A. is a purely trade medium, applicants should, with the subscription, send a copy of their catalogue or other evidence that they belong to the nursery or seed trade.

Chrysanthemum

By Arthur Herrington

Formerly president Chrysanthemum Society of America.

The most complete and comprehensive work on the cultivation of the chrysanthemum that has yet been published in America. Its scope and character may be gleaned from the list of contents which comprises chapters on composts; planting; benches, boxes or pots; general cultural details; crown and terminal buds; feeding, its object and application; care of the buds; exhibition and judging; specimen plants, plants in pots; raising from seed and hybridizing; sports; hardy chrysanthemums; chrysanthemums for south and west; insect pests and diseases; classification and selection of varieties for special purposes; history of the chrysanthemum, etc. The book will be welcomed for the lucid, comprehensive, as well as the practical character of its contents. Handsomely illustrated. 168 pages, 5x7 inches. Price 50c postpaid.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

IN BEAUTIFUL SANTA BARBARA.

The illustration on this page is only a suggestion, but to anyone who knows southern California the suggestion is so good and so true that it will bring to mind the pleasant, shady oak groves, the restful beauty and the possibilities for enjoyment of just such a scene. It is a corner of the Mission Oak Nursery, at Santa Barbara, where Albert Beverly is wont to dispense the good things of life to those who approach it in an appreciative spirit. [Kindly observe, Mr. Editor, that I said "it," not "them," and do not accuse me of not being explicit.] H. R. Richards.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Funeral work again constituted the biggest item in the business this week and there was no great amount of that. Roses were never in the writer's recollection so poor, either from indoors or out, as now. The outdoor flowers have a burnt-up appearance, with no solidity of bud or petal, while much of the indoor stock being sent in is from young and undeveloped plants. Carnations are fair and keep their color and substance fairly well. Given some cooler weather, such as we are now enjoying, and the outdoor flowers will be better. Chrysanthemums are beginning to be more plentiful, but there is little demand for them as yet. Centaureas are getting past their best, but dahlias are in their prime and most attractive. Goldenrod, delphiniums and other hardy stock help out the display. In greens, huckleberry easily holds first place and this useful plant is becoming almost indispensable. Asparagus of both kinds is cheap and good, maidenhair about equal to the demand.

Various Notes.

Thomas Wright, of Wright's Flower Shop, has gone into the mountains for deer and the boys at the store are looking forward to a venison supper. W. Wern says that business is coming along fairly well for the season.

E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., and J. R. Fotheringham, of San Francisco, are among our trade visitors this week. Sydney Bayersdorfer, E. J. Fancourt and M. Reukauf have also been here.

The Freeman-Lewis Co. reports good business and Mr. Freeman reports a good time shooting doves.

Chrysanthemums are now a leading feature with Murata & Co., whose business is said to be picking up materially.

Having to serve on the jury is still postponing O. C. Saakes' trip to San Francisco.

H. W. Turner is entirely rearranging his heating plant. Another large steam boiler, about the same size as the one in use, is being installed, both in a new shed and above ground, which will eliminate all danger of flooding and make the boilers much easier to handle.

The Germain Seed & Plant Co. has the material on the ground for the new greenhouses at the nursery on the Whittier road. There will be two houses, each 30x300 feet, but only part will be built this fall. The heat of the last few days has been against nursery and seed sales.

Art in a Nursery.

Edwin Lonsdale died at Naturopathic hospital September 1. The remains were sent east for burial. Few of his old friends who were in the city before and after the convention were able to see him.

At the L. A. Floral Co. the out-of-town demand keeps up well, large shipments going out daily.

J. Rolleri, of the California Evergreen Co., has made quite a change in the looks of the Broadway store, a new office and fittings for supplies greatly improving it. A full line of ribbons and supplies has been put in.

Geo. W. Smith has returned from his northern trip, looking and feeling much better for the change.

H. R. Richards.

WENATCHEE, WASH.

There has been a small demand for cut flowers here, but a fair amount of funeral work has come in. The florists are preparing for a good fall and winter business.

The Milot-Mills Co. will open a downtown store this fall. This firm will have 3,500 rose bushes to cut from this winter and about 7,000 chrysanthemum blooms for the market. The company was exceedingly fortunate in escaping a heavy hail storm some time ago, which had centered a short distance away. The grasshoppers attacked the mums this summer, but by careful hand-picking the insects were exterminated. Outdoor vegetables were ruined. L. I. Milot and C. A. Mills started the Milot-Mills Co. six years ago with 6,000 feet of glass, and now have over 35,000 feet.

shops, as a result of the great number of visitors here to attend the exposition. This has furnished an outlet for the best flowers obtainable, and the less desirable stock has gone into decorations of one kind and another, so the daily offerings have been cleaned up well. The returns for August were particularly gratifying, as that is usually about the quietest month of the year here.

There is little change in the nature of the offerings since last week, but on the whole the flowers have improved. Chrysanthemums are coming in more freely and show better quality. There are large supplies of October Frost and Monrovia, and a good many Crocker are appearing. They clean up readily at 75 cents to $1.50 a dozen. Dahlias continue plentiful and the quality is excellent for this time of year. They are used to good advantage for show purposes and work in nicely in decorative work. The supply of gladioli is dropping off, but so is the demand, and there is enough good stock to fill requirements. Some fine late asters are being received. Good carnations are still scarce, but better offerings are expected shortly, as the cut from the young stock is improving rapidly. Amaryllis, offered in great quantity, finds a fair demand. Zinnias are plentiful, but the quality is poor and they do not move well. Sweet peas still appear in limited quantities and the good stock is readily absorbed. Small outdoor stock, which has flooded the market for weeks, is beginning to drop off.

Hot weather is having some effect upon the rose offerings, but, on the whole, the quality averages a little better than it has for several weeks. Ophelia, Hadley, Ward and Killarney Brilliant are all doing better. Long stock sells readily. Valley was scarce last week. Lilium rubrum is keeping its popularity well, and the limited quantity of tigrinum moves quickly.

Various Notes.

The United Flower & Supply Co., which handles the output of chrysanthemums from the Japanese growers, is receiving more and finer stock daily. Crocker, Monrovia and October Frost are plentiful and the company expects to start shipping about the middle of the month. The same firm will ship violets this season also.

J. A. Axell, of the E. W. McLellan Co., says that while some violets are already appearing on the market, his firm will not begin shipping east until about October 15, the usual time, when the flowers will have good keeping quality.

At a well attended meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society last week, in the Phelan building, it was decided to hold regular meetings on the last Tuesday of each month. Arrangements are also being made for joint meetings with the men at regular intervals, to promote harmony between the two organizations.

A new flower shop is being opened at 1462 Sutter street, by Mr. Kuentzel.

Frank Pelicano is bringing in a big cut of fine dahlias, which figure prominently in his store windows. The present cut consists principally of the four varieties, Delice, Geisha, Mrs. Kidwell and Minnie Berger.

H. Avansino, of the Fairmount Floral Co., says business has kept up better this summer than in former years, and he attributes the increase largely to the vast number of visitors attending the exposition.

following the conventions here last month, returned the first of the week and they are of one accord in the opinion that the trip was a grand success. They were the guests of Charles Willis Ward at Eureka for two days, before leaving on the trip to the Klamath river, and Mr. Ward entertained them to the best of his ability, which means that they were well cared for. The automobile trip of 100 miles from Eureka up the coast was one of the pleasant features of the trip, and equally pleasant was the 3-mile ride up the Klamath river in canoes and a gasoline launch, which brought the party to the camping ground at the mouth of Ah-Pah creek, where Mr. Ward had a most comfortable and picturesque camp in the heart of a redwood timber belt ready for their reception. They remained there a week, hunting, fishing and tramping over the hills. One of the local members states that the tramping was his favorite diversion, as the scenery was wonderful. He says he had no idea such a beautiful natural growth of ferns existed in the state. Professors R. T. Stevens and C. F. Shaw, of the University of California, returned home August 28 and the rest of the party came in August 30, including Daniel MacRorie, H. Plath and Frank Pelicano.

Charles Willis Ward, of Eureka, Cal., has purchased the remainder of the Eden tract, approximately fifty acres, adjoining the eight acres which he already owned in the tract, on which are located the Cottage Gardens nurseries. It is understood a portion of the new purchase will be used for necessary extensions of the nurseries.

A. J. Burt, of Spokane, Wash., remained in San Francisco for a fortnight after the convention, to visit the exposition and study the markets here.

The Market.

Business for the month of August was better by a considerable percentage than that of the same month a year ago. The demand for flowers last week showed a marked improvement over the previous week. This increase was due to an improvement in general business conditions and is considered as an encouraging opening of early fall trade.

With the exception of asters, there were no surplus flowers. The cut of carnations has increased slightly, but the cut of roses has decreased until there is a scarcity of some colors. There is a good cut of Ophelia, but barely enough to go around. Orchids are getting more plentiful and are of excellent quality. Gladioli, sweet peas and some varieties of garden flowers still arrive in large quantities, and some of the stores are showing blooms cut from their cyclamens.

Various Notes.

Philip Breitmeyer, ex-mayor of Detroit, stopped over on his way home from the S. A. F. convention.

Wm. F. Kasting, postmaster of Buffalo, was entertained by H. J. Millott during the short stay he made here. He was accompanied by his son.

A. J. Clarke has some fine photographs of the attendants at the S. A. F. convention.

Max Smith is with his family at Cannon Beach. T. C. Luke, of the store force, has returned and L. Doving is spending his vacation in the Siskiyou mountains hunting deer.

Donald Wadsworth, who for a year has been with the Kelso Floral Co., at Kelso, Wash., has taken a position in the store of Martin & Forbes Co.

Leo Wiedemann is bringing in a good cut of Cecile Brunner roses.

The first Czar violets, Oregon-grown, have appeared.

W. Thompson, manager of Thompson's Horticultural Works, reports that he has more work in sight than he can attend to. He has taken the exclusive agency for Oregon and Washington for the John A. Evans Co., of Richmond, Ind., and has orders booked for several sets of Challenge ventilator lifts. He is looking after repairs and alterations at the St. Johns Green-

Vegetable Forcing

FUNGUS ON TOMATOES.

Please let me know what to do to keep the blight or fungus away from tomatoes in a rose house, as for the last two years I have not been able to grow tomatoes satisfactorily on account of this fungus. I grow them on side benches, planting them eighteen inches apart, one row to a 3-foot bench. The varieties are Best of All and Michell's Forcing. Last year I restricted the root surface, with no better result, so this year I will give them the whole bench. I always use good rose soil.

C. T. M.—Pa.

I do not know what blight you refer to, unless it is mildew. Tomatoes are subject to this, unless grown in a dry atmosphere and not exposed to cold drafts. They do much better in midwinter in a restricted border, as this checks the rampant growth and the flowers set more freely. You cannot grow them successfully unless you have a fairly dry atmosphere. The plants must not be sprayed over. A winter minimum of as near 60 degrees as possible is about right. Let the plants dry out well between waterings. Blow some powdered sulphur on the foliage at the first appearance of mildew. A border eighteen inches wide is better in midwinter than one double the width. Try Comet and Lister's Prolific as winter forcers. C. W.

PESTS ON MELONS.

Under separate cover I am sending you a box of live bugs and some leaves of my cantaloupes. These bugs are destroying my cantaloupe vines rapidly, eating them up in a few days. I should like to know what they are and how to destroy them. They also get onto my cucumber vines. Also, please tell me what the cotton-like insect is on the enclosed plant. E. T. O.—Ill.

The contents of the bottle had turned practically to jelly and had an offensive odor. I could not see what the pests were. If this is an insect eating the foliage, spray with arsenate of lead, four pounds to fifty gallons of water. This destroys any leaf-eating pests. If green or black fly troubles you, it is necessary to lay the shoots over and spray with a nicotine solution, as these affect the lower sides of the leaves.

The white, woolly insect is mealy bug. Use a strong pressure of cold water directed through a spray nozzle on your coleus and other plants attacked, in order to clean them. On coleus you cannot use any strong insecticide for mealy bug without injuring the plants. On tough-leaved plants such remedies as Aphine, fir tree oil and kerosene emulsion can be used.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Vice-president, John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; Secretary, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

Forty-first annual meeting, Milwaukee, Wis., June 22 to 24, 1916.

THE F. & F. Nurseries, at Springfield, N. J., have added to the perennial department, and expect an increase in business this fall.

DAVID KYDD, of West Haven, Conn., treasurer of the New Haven County Horticultural Society, has announced his intention of starting a nursery business this fall.

IN a report on those engaged in agricultural pursuits the Department of Agriculture says that 143,462 people in the United States are gardeners, foresters or nurserymen.

THE Elizabeth Nursery Co., of Elizabeth, N. J., has commenced work on the erection of a large storage house to replace the building destroyed by fire several months ago. The building will be 30x60 and will cost about $15,000.

R. J. COE, of Fort Atkinson, and M. S. Kellogg, of Janesville, Wis., spoke on "Shrubs for Small Plantations and Their Disposal," before the annual meeting of the Wisconsin State Horticultural Society, at Madison, August 25 and 26.

G. W. VAN GELDEREN, Boskoop, Holland, announces that W. B. Van Eyk, who has visited the trade in America in his interest the last nine years, has been admitted to partnership, the firm being known as Van Gelderen & Co. Mr. Van Eyk plans to continue his trips to this country, as he will have charge of the selling and shipping.

EDWIN D. PARNELL, manager of the North Jersey Nurseries, Millburn, N. J., ascribes the decrease in the nursery business in the last year in part to the increase in the automobile business. A large proportion of the great number of automobile buyers find the upkeep heavier than they had expected, and therefore cut down their expenditures in other lines.

ROTTERDAM MAIL LOST.

Malters & Ware, New York, have received a cable from the Association of Holland Nurserymen to the effect that the greater part of the mail on the SS. Rotterdam was destroyed by fire. This vessel left New York August 21 and arrived at Rotterdam September 2.

The Association of Holland Nurserymen requests duplicates of all letters that may have been on that steamer.

IN DULUTH'S PEONY GARDENS.

Early in the summer I had a delightful visit at that fine northern city by the "unsalted sea," Duluth, Minn. The people there are progressive and are waking up to the possibilities of home and city adornment.

Those northern regions, with their cool, moist climate, are particularly well adapted to the development of some of the most beautiful flowers. I recently attended the Minnesota summer meeting at the grounds of the Agricultural College, and though I have also been present at the national peony shows at

Pot-Grown Strawberry Plants

There are many varieties of Strawberries, but for general home use I recommend these four varieties:

Success for early, Wm. Belt and Chesapeake for mid-season, and Stevens' Late Champion for late. These will give a bountiful supply of fruit from the beginning to the end of the season. The price to the trade is $2.00 per 100; $17.50 per 1000.

WILL SHIP DIRECT TO YOUR CUSTOMERS, using your shipping tag. Send me your orders. Strong plants now ready.

PEONY ROOTS

In comparing prices note our strong divisions are 3 to 5 eyes.

We offer, to the Trade, Strong Divisions, three to five eyes, of the following varieties of Peonies, guaranteed true to description, f. o. b. our station, at the prices named. Our stock is grown on land suitable for the development of fine roots and our large stock enables us to make a low price. No order taken for less than five of a kind. The following varieties offered subject to being unsold on receipt of order. Ask for descriptive catalogue of these and other varieties. Illustrated Catalogue Free.

Harrisburg, Pa., July 20, 1915.

S. G. Harris, Tarrytown, N. Y.

Dear Sir—Last October I received 75 to 100 Peonies from you. I won't sing "Tell Me the Old, Old Story" for you, but in the last ten years I have been Peony stung—harpooned and trimmed until I refuse to resent a raw deal on Peonies any more. I just quit. I now take that time to tell the man who has given me a square deal—"Shake, you are a gentleman and a scholar and sure earned your money."

Last year I bought from you and ———. His plants were good and worth the price. Yours were large, looked better and were much heavier. This season not more than one-third of his had flowers. All of yours, but a few, had blooms, from one to five, many of which were very large. The boys made more than the price paid for the plants from the blooms sold from them Decoration Day. You sell the best plants for the money I ever saw. If I can arrange, I want to put in more this Fall.

Some Son of Belial got him hence with the Peony catalogue you sent me. I will certainly thank you for a copy, as it was one of the few catalogues I wanted to keep.

Men like you deserve the good will and patronage of decent people and I am glad I had the good fortune to deal with you.

Wishing you continued merited success, I am,

Yours truly,

Rochester, N. Y., August 27, 1915.

Responding to your quotations of the 27th ult., the Peony roots that you sent us last year were strong and heavy and carried a number of good eyes and the plants suited us in every way, that is the reason we are back with an order today.

HYDRANGEAS

Our Hydrangeas are all grown in the open ground during the summer, where they make a very luxurious growth, producing heavy heads. They are potted up in August and will be thoroughly rootbound in October. They are extra heavy this season and will not only produce flowers from the shoots but also from the dormant buds at the base. They cannot be better and will satisfy the most critical.

Boston and Chicago, nowhere have I seen displays which could equal the peony show at this meeting. The large building, including halls and stairways, was filled with the flowers. Though we can grow as good peony roots in my state, Nebraska, as can be produced anywhere, I am willing to admit that Minnesota can beat the world on peony blooms. Mr. Ruff, of St. Paul, had 175 of the choicest varieties on exhibition and other progressive growers were in evidence. The Brands made a display of their best. One of their varieties was an enormous pink, like a glorified cabbage. They were selling it at $15 per root and could hardly supply the demand. Another immense one, a deep red, was going at the same price.

In Duluth at the time of my visit, most of the peonies were not in bloom. It appeared likely that they would not be before the middle of July and would continue to bloom till the first part of August. I visited several gardens and saw the plants forming enormous buds, ready to open into the finest blooms the sun ever shone upon. Thus these peony gardens are real cold storage affairs, keeping fresh blooms in all their splendor a long time.

It is no stretch of imagination to say that in a few years Duluth will be sending its magnificent peonies to the Twin Cities and even to Chicago, where they will arrive in all their freshness and beauty. The leading citizens of Duluth are awake to their opportunities. The city is becoming a summer resort. Even in late June and early July, 1,000 visitors per day were registering at the hotels. Personally, I had a cordial reception. Judge Cutting, of the Municipal court and an enthusiast on flowers, had the Duluth Herald publish the article concerning my work which The Review so kindly gave to its readers in the issue of June 24. The Herald reproduced both the article and the portrait. So the doors flew open for me and hearty handshakes were given, followed by delightful automobile rides.

I predict that five years from now Duluth will have the most charming flower gardens to be seen in many miles. When the present enthusiasm reaches high tide you will see a beautiful city, with its natural parks and matchless gardens, giving cordial welcome to its thousands of delighted visitors.

"A Bird in the Hand"—

You know the adage. Well, a Hydrangea in America is worth several Azaleas in Belgium right now. Of course, the Azaleas may get out of Belgium; we don't know; conditions may change; certainly it is not possible to get anything out of Belgium at present. The war may end next week, but the chances are it won't. Are you going to take that chance? Can you afford to depend altogether on imported forcing stock, when there is plenty of good forcing stock right here at home—"Made in America"—stock that you know you can depend on?

HYDRANGEAS, for example. We offer:

OTAKSA, with 7 to 10 branches, at $25.00 the 100.
" " 5 and 6 " at 20.00 the 100.
" " 4 " at 15.00 the 100.

French Novelties, all the best ones, at $5.00 the 100 addition for the same sizes.

They are all in six-inch pots now, plunged outside, and growing like weeds, rich, deep-green, healthy foliage, and "fat" stems that promise big heads of bloom. They will grow into money for you, and you can cash 'em next Easter.

There won't be any surplus of blooming plants next Spring. Stick a pin in that. We want every progressive florist to get in touch with us.

The Market.

The weather last week was cool and cloudy. Labor day was cloudy and there was some rain, but not enough to stop the holiday arrangements made for the day. Most of the trade closed up in the afternoon. Business in general has continued weak, although there have been some good-sized funeral orders, which have helped materially.

Carnations are still absent from the market, and growers say that it will be about three weeks before the new crop starts to come in. Roses remain rather scarce, but orders for them are being taken care of easily. The supply of long-stemmed Russells is not equal to the demand, and orders are being turned down on this particular item. Valley is scarce and is cleaned up daily. There have been large orders for this stock and Easter lilies, and they are moving readily. The early chrysanthemums are arriving, and excellent stock is being disposed of each day. Gladioli are plentiful, but the quality is deteriorating. Asters are as fine as can be seen anywhere. They are plentiful, but move quite well.

Various Notes.

M. A. McKenney & Co. report that they have been exceptionally busy with funeral work. There were several large funerals last week, and in some cases this firm had the entire order.

John Rindfleisch, of Beloit, Wis., visited Milwaukee September 4.

Dayton, O.—Of the bids submitted for the two greenhouses which the city intends to erect this fall, that of the John C. Moninger Co., of Chicago, was lowest, amounting to $886. The greenhouses will be 21x50, and will be heated by the municipal waterworks.

FIELD-GROWN

Carnation Plants

IT is our pleasure to be able to offer to the trade, this season, the finest lot of field plants we have ever grown. The Pittsburgh district has enjoyed an exceptional summer. Cool days and nights, just enough rain, plenty of dew. Just that weather on which carnations delight and thrive. Our stock has no disease of any kind, no stem-rot, no dead foliage, no spider. All plants guaranteed first quality and size, in good healthy condition, true to name. We dig carefully, give liberal count and pack to ship anywhere. We are carnation specialists, our men know how.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

The closing of the first week in September found the local market in much better shape than it has been for some time. Business for the month seems to have been a little bit better than in previous years.

Flowers in all lines, with the exception of orchids, gardenias and valley, continue to be plentiful. There is difficulty in securing orchids, and prices are high. Gardenias are almost equally scarce. Shipments of valley are only fifty per cent of normal. Roses are good for this season, but the sale is slow. Carnations are beginning to come into the market in quantities, but they are short-stemmed and meet with little demand. Asters have about reached high tide. Dahlias are offered in larger quantities, but are not yet at their best and do not meet with much demand. The first October Frost chrysanthemums have made their appearance, and sell well.

Various Notes.

William J. Boas, trading as William J. Boas & Co., paper box manufacturers, of Philadelphia, has filed suit in the local court against Z. D. Blackistone, Fourteenth and H streets, northwest, for $622.46, covering boxes sold to the latter.

Among the visitors in Washington during the last week were Robert Shoch, representing the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, and William E. McKissick, of the Leo Niessen Co., Baltimore.

Enormous crowds will fill the city the latter part of this month, when the members of the Grand Army of the Republic will hold the fiftieth and last encampment, according to William F. Gude, chairman of the citizens' committee which has charge of all arrangements therefor. Mr. Gude states that he expects that a large number of florist veterans will attend and it is his desire that all of these call at the store of Gude Bros. Co. and register.

The Washington Floral Co., on Fourteenth street, near New York avenue, northwest, recently has had erected above the store a large electric sign bearing the words "Flowers, Popular Prices." The sign is more than six feet in height. C. L. L.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.

Business was good last week, especially because of the many funeral orders. Celosia in red, pink and yellow is coming in, and all the stores are displaying it prominently.

Charles F. Edgar, who has been in charge of the floral work at Hotel Traymore, for the Edwards Floral Hall Co., left last week to join the Fleischman Floral Co., of Chicago. Mr. Edgar's many friends wish him success.

George H. Berke had a busy week with funeral work. Five large orders for the better kind of work kept the force busy.

The Edwards Floral Hall Co. has replaced its Little Giant delivery car with a handsome Garford 1-ton car.

Robert & Henri will open a store on Chestnut street, Philadelphia, in the near future. Leases will be signed this week. H. C. H.

SEDALIA, MO.

Roses arrived in large quantities during August. Funeral work was plentiful and there were decorations for several weddings.

The Archias Floral Co. has a choice stock of carnations, of a quality above the average. Asters are a thing of the past. Miss Grace Duncan, the designer, has returned from her vacation. Mr. and Mrs. Archias have been attending fairs. Last week they visited Clifton City, Mo.

Charles Pfeiffer is having his carnations tied up. He says business is normal. The glass at his greenhouses is being overhauled.

Harry Ullrich, formerly employed by one of the local growers, has returned to Kansas City.

Dr. J. E. Cannaday, of the State Fair Floral Co., has been out of town attending to two cases of hay fever. Before leaving he said that business was up to expectations and that growing stock was good. J. H. H.

Omaha, Neb.—Henry Gerber has secured a permit for the erection of a greenhouse at Twenty-ninth street and Sixth avenue, at an approximate cost of $2,000.

THERE is NO SCARCITY of PALMS at DREER'S

OUR SUPPLY of Palms, and particularly that of Kentias, is not at all affected by the war tie-up of Belgian stocks. We are carrying the usual large quantities and full line of sizes of the well known Dreer quality, but as the general supply of this class of stock is much smaller than usual, due to this blockade, there is certain to be a scarcity as the season advances. The demand during August has been heavier than we have ever experienced during that month, and we are positive that there will not be sufficient good stock to last throughout the season. We therefore recommend that you cover your requirements early. If you are not ready to accept immediate delivery, let us book your order, and we will set aside and reserve your stock, making delivery at any time between now and October 15.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

THE COAL MARKET.

A decided increase in the demand for fuel, especially for domestic coal, accompanied by a rise in prices—such is the latest report from the coal dealers. Indeed, a Chicago coal man states, perhaps too optimistically, that the activity in the market amounts to a veritable boom. "For the first time in about four years," he says, "the Chicago domestic coal market has been on a genuine boom. Some sales agencies said it looked like old times to have orders coming in by telegraph and telephone; to have the mines sold up for some time ahead of production, and to have users of coal urging delivery. That is the condition in which the Chicago market has been, especially on western coal, for the better part of last week. This is so despite the fact that prices on the average are nearly 15 cents a ton higher for September than they were for August delivery. The question of orders is not what is bothering the sales agencies, because those are coming of their own accord. The thing that is bothering them is the supply of cars to make deliveries," as a large part of the country's railroad equipment is needed at present for the transportation of farm crops. Students of the situation seem to be more confirmed than they were a week ago in the opinion that a serious shortage of cars is imminent.

With reference particularly to the florists' fuel, smokeless coal, the following report is given by the Chicago authority already quoted: "The producers of smokeless coal put out a circular, September 1, of $1.40 on mine-run, and are holding to it. The de-

Winter Will be Here Soon

IS YOUR HEATING PLANT READY?

Don't put off this important matter. Need a new Boiler? Well, that's an easy matter to decide, simply put in an order for a Kroeschell—there is no better boiler.

Read what others say who have used different kinds:

The Kroeschell is Better Than Cast Iron

In 1911 I purchased a No. 1 Kroeschell Boiler for my uptown greenhouses. At my other range we had a cast iron sectional boiler. In two years we cracked two sections. That experience was enough for me. This year I thought I would not take any more chances, so we have just installed another No. 5 Kroeschell Boiler. I believe if the Kroeschell Boilers were known to all, they would use no other.

Rome, N. Y., August 12, 1913. W. T. HUGHES.

You Don't Worry With a Kroeschell in Zero Weather

Have had the pleasure of firing almost every make of greenhouse boiler on the market, and can say that the Kroeschell is the best of them all. When the temperature is zero it is not necessary to worry about it when you have a Kroeschell, but when you have a cast iron boiler, the question is always on your mind, "I better not fire too heavy for fear of a crack."

RIVER BANK GREENHOUSES,
Geneva, Ill., July 31, 1913. Chas. McCauley.

A Heating Record at 52° Below Zero

Has the Kroeschell given entire satisfaction? Yes! Perfect. Our winter temperature ranges as low as 45° below zero. Last winter we had six weeks of steady cold. The maximum temperature at noon 12° below, the minimum temperature at 4 a. m. 52° below zero. This was a good test of the heating capacity of a Kroeschell. PUBLIC PARK BOARD, Winnipeg, Man.

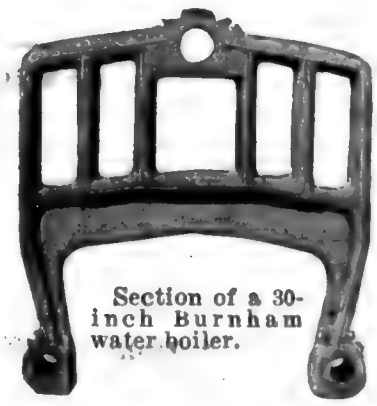
Burnham heated vegetable house of F. W. Cheney, at So. Manchester, Conn. That's Mr. Cheney by the partition.



When we say a Burnham grate measures 30 inches, it measures 30 inches. You can measure it yourself and get exactly the same measure. It is honest from start to finish.

From Set-up to Fire-up it Saves Money

HAVING reached the point when you now fully realize, that for ranges up to 30,000 feet there are certain economies; certain certainties about a cast iron boiler that are impossible to obtain in any wrought iron boiler yet made; then you are just in the right frame of mind to consider the Burnham Cast Iron Sectional Boiler.

That you will get in that frame of mind sooner or later, we haven't a doubt, because keener competition in your business requires closer economies, and the Burnham is an economizer.

To save every cent possible you will naturally first turn to your coal expense, watch your boilers closer and come to more logical conclusions.

Section of a 30-inch Burnham water boiler.

Steam section of same sized boiler. The space above the water line is the steam dome. Note how big the space is.

You will appreciate that when a greenhouse boiler is made expressly for greenhouse heating, it stands to reason it should be the best for heating a greenhouse.

The Burnham being the only Cast Iron Sectional Boiler made expressly for greenhouse work, you will finally take the question up with us, and give us a chance to "show you" why from set-up to fire-up it saves you money.

If you want to talk it over, say when and where and we'll be there.

If you have already made up your mind, but haven't yet made out your order, then do it and send it along. If in a hurry, wire at our expense. We can ship at once.

Lump and egg were easy for a few days, because the operators were increasing production in order to take care of the demand for slack. NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Asters continue to predominate in the local market, with gladioli a close second. Hydrangeas also are plentiful. Dahlias continue to arrive in small quantities, but it is thought that in about two weeks there will be a large supply. Cosmos, clematis, snapdragon and tritoma are seen. All of the stores have large quantities of ferns. While business is quiet in the stores, there has been some improvement during the last week and it is thought by many, now that Labor day has passed and the vacation period is nearing its end, there will be a noticeable gain in the amount of business done. There have been several good weddings in Newark during the week, and a number of funerals. The counter trade has shown some increase with a number of florists. Prices of all flowers are low.

Various Notes.

Joseph F. McDonough, 376 Belleville avenue, had a couple of weddings last week. He has had considerable funeral work recently.

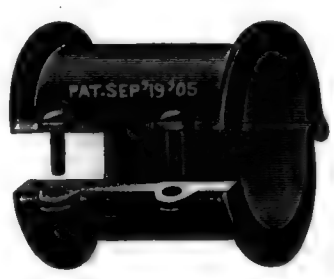
Winter's coming!

Won't be long now before you'll be turning on steam in earnest. Many are starting already.



And as soon as the STEAM hits those pipes—pipes that have lain idle all summer—rust holes, splits and joint leaks will put in their appearance throughout your heating system.

The Emergency Pipe Clamp was designed for just such trouble. Handy, easily applied and permanent, it will save you from tearing out pipe this fall.

Just slap a bit of gasket-rubber (we furnish it) over the leak, apply the clamp with an ordinary wrench—and forget it. It'll hold for good.

ports a decided improvement in business during the last two weeks of August. Mr. Harvey and his wife spent Labor day with their daughter near Chatham. Mr. Harvey will soon begin to paint and otherwise fix up his store for the coming season. He will also lay in a new stock of palms.

Ludolff & Kautzmann, 109 Springfield avenue, have had a most beautiful display in one of their windows, which was fixed up in a realistic manner to represent the entrance to a cave. All up the sides of the cave and over the entrance were ferns of different kinds. In the entrance was a small pool of water in which there were a number of goldfish. In the window were treetoads, chameleons, etc., which sought the cool places among the ferns or crawled up the sides. The effect, with the touch of real life furnished by the fish, treetoads and chameleons, was pretty, and a large number of people were interested in the display.

The Market.

The weather during the last two weeks has been quite cool and the visitors at the seashore are returning earlier this season than usual. Business shows quite an improvement over July and August.

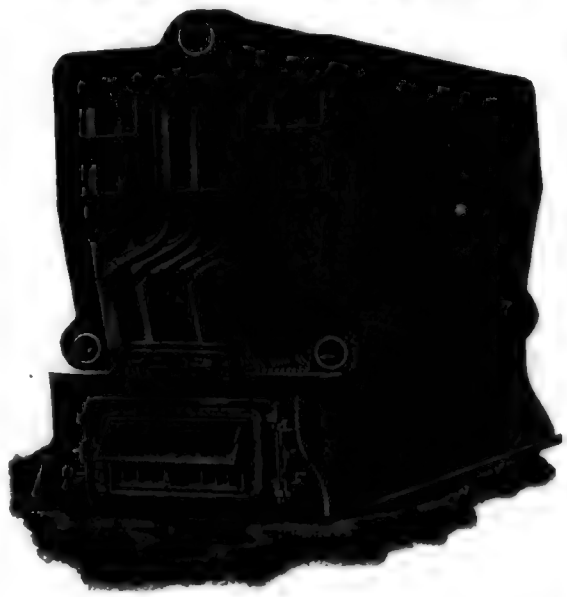
The cool weather has materially affected the supply of roses. The cuts are smaller now than they have been for many weeks. All varieties and grades clean up readily. White is scarce. The supply of carnations is limited. Some good Golden Glow mums are seen.

Various Notes.

W. R. Pierson is improving rapidly and his friends are looking forward to his home-coming soon.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., had a display of plants and cut flowers at Rochester last week. Robert Karlstrom and Harry Anderson represented the firm. A large exhibit is being made at Charter Oak fair this week. Alex. Cummings is acting as superintendent of the floral department, as usual, at the fair.

Joseph McManus is spending his vacation at Middlebeach, Madison.



Carl Pierson, brother of A. N. Pierson, is erecting a greenhouse 20x100 for forcing winter vegetables. Heretofore mushrooms have been his specialty.

The Heating Problem Solved

Judging strictly according to mechanical merits, it's the METROPOLITAN PATENTED BOILER you want.

Because of their proven scientifically perfect construction, Metropolitan Patented Boilers will heat a given amount of water quicker, with less fuel and less attention than any other boiler on the market.

The remarkable heating efficiency and quick steaming qualities of these boilers are due to their large and effective heating surface.

Just a few points of Metropolitan Patented Boiler merit:—

Smooth, perfect finished castings.
Push nipple connections.
Large fire box, providing ample combustion chamber, and permitting a sufficient charge of fuel to require attention only at long intervals.
Deep ash pit, making the removal of ashes a slight task.
Large flues, making the boiler easy to clean.
Grates that are made for hard usage and long service.
And above all, they are Fuel Saving, not Fuel Wasting.

We also make soft coal boilers which are smokeless, and save 50 per cent in coal.

Everyone has had Big Crops this year--but--Did you ever have a Big Crop in a Dry Year?

IF you have, you probably got high prices and found a steady market.

But the chance for a big crop in a dry season is mighty slim.

This has been a wet year. The markets are glutted with garden produce. Prices are low.

Next year may be dry. If it is, prices will be way up. But will you have anything to sell?

Yes!

That is—if you install the Skinner System of Irrigation this Fall.

The Market.

The advent of cooler weather brought an increase in business. The wholesale houses were scenes of bustle and hurry, which was a great contrast to the period of summer inactivity. Stock is of fair quality and consists mainly of asters, which are in good crop. The demand for white flowers of all varieties is so heavy that in some instances the orders can not be filled. White asters and roses are scarce, as are lilies, which have jumped up in price. Colored asters are in bountiful supply and are moving only fairly well. Dahlias are arriving more heavily and are pretty well bought up. Gladioli are about over; only a few poor ones are seen. Carnations are coming in slowly and are extremely short-stemmed. Roses have not improved much, and good ones are still assured of ready sale. Greens are overplentiful and are moving slowly.

Various Notes.

James Glass had the first Golden Glow chrysanthemums of the season September 3, at his stall in Lexington Market.

E. W. Heinbuck is putting up a house for callas at his place on Philadelphia road. He is cutting an excellent lot of dahlias and says they are moving well.

George Cook has resumed his attendance at the market, with a good variety of well grown ferns.

R. Vincent, Jr., has returned from the S. A. F. convention and is enthusiastic over the wonderful seed farms of California and the scenery on the way there.

The next club meeting will be held on Monday, September 13. W. F. E.

St. Joseph, Mo.—Hendra & Son have a seedling canna of the Crozy type of which they think well. The center of the petals is bright red, with yellow edge, the flowers being borne in good clusters. It is a seedling of 1914.

The Market.

Business prospects are brighter than they have been. The market has a better tone, but sales do not show any substantial increase. The shipping business is good.

Roses are in good supply, including excellent American Beauty, Ophelia, Russell, Radiance, Taft, White Killarney and Hoosier Beauty. The better grades are having a fair sale. Carnations come in regularly, and, as a whole, are of fair quality. The Easter lily supply is excellent and sufficient for present needs. The cut of rubrum is heavy. Asters continue to arrive in large quantities. Gladioli seem to have taken a new lease on life, for they are of a better quality than those of the last few weeks.

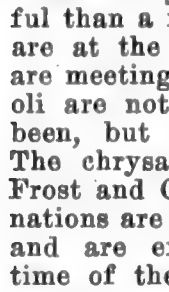
The Market.

There was a heavy call for funeral work last week. A few fall weddings kept the trade on the alert. Stock of all kinds is showing a decided improvement in quality and an increase in production. Roses are improving considerably, and are much more plentiful than a few weeks previous. Asters are at the height of their season and are meeting with popular favor. Gladioli are not so plentiful as they have been, but are still of good quality. The chrysanthemums are the October Frost and Golden Glow varieties. Carnations are bringing 50 cents per dozen, and are exceptionally good for this time of the season. Lilies have been a good standby for funeral work. Dahlias are showing up well. American Beauties are plentiful, but there is not much demand for the larger grades.

Various Notes.

Miss Marjory Bradley, of the Bradley Flower Shop, is taking her vacation at Mt. Vernon, O., as the guest of school friends.



Some fine asters are arriving on the local wholesale market from the farm of Thos. E. Covington, which is located north of the city.

The Flick Floral Co. reports an increase in the supply of October Frost and Golden Glow chrysanthemums, but the demand is not good. R. F.

NUTLEY, N. J.

W. L. Jones reports business is quiet at present as far as the selling end is concerned. He is busy, however, getting ready for autumn, repairing and painting his greenhouses, cultivating his plants, etc. He has some fine chrysanthemums and carnations under way.

A. Nirk, 109 Walnut street, is preparing his houses for the winter season. He has a fine lot of Boston ferns coming on for the coming season, and some fine chrysanthemums, two of his specialties. R. B. M.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

EUONYMUS RADICANS THE EVERGREEN CLIMBER

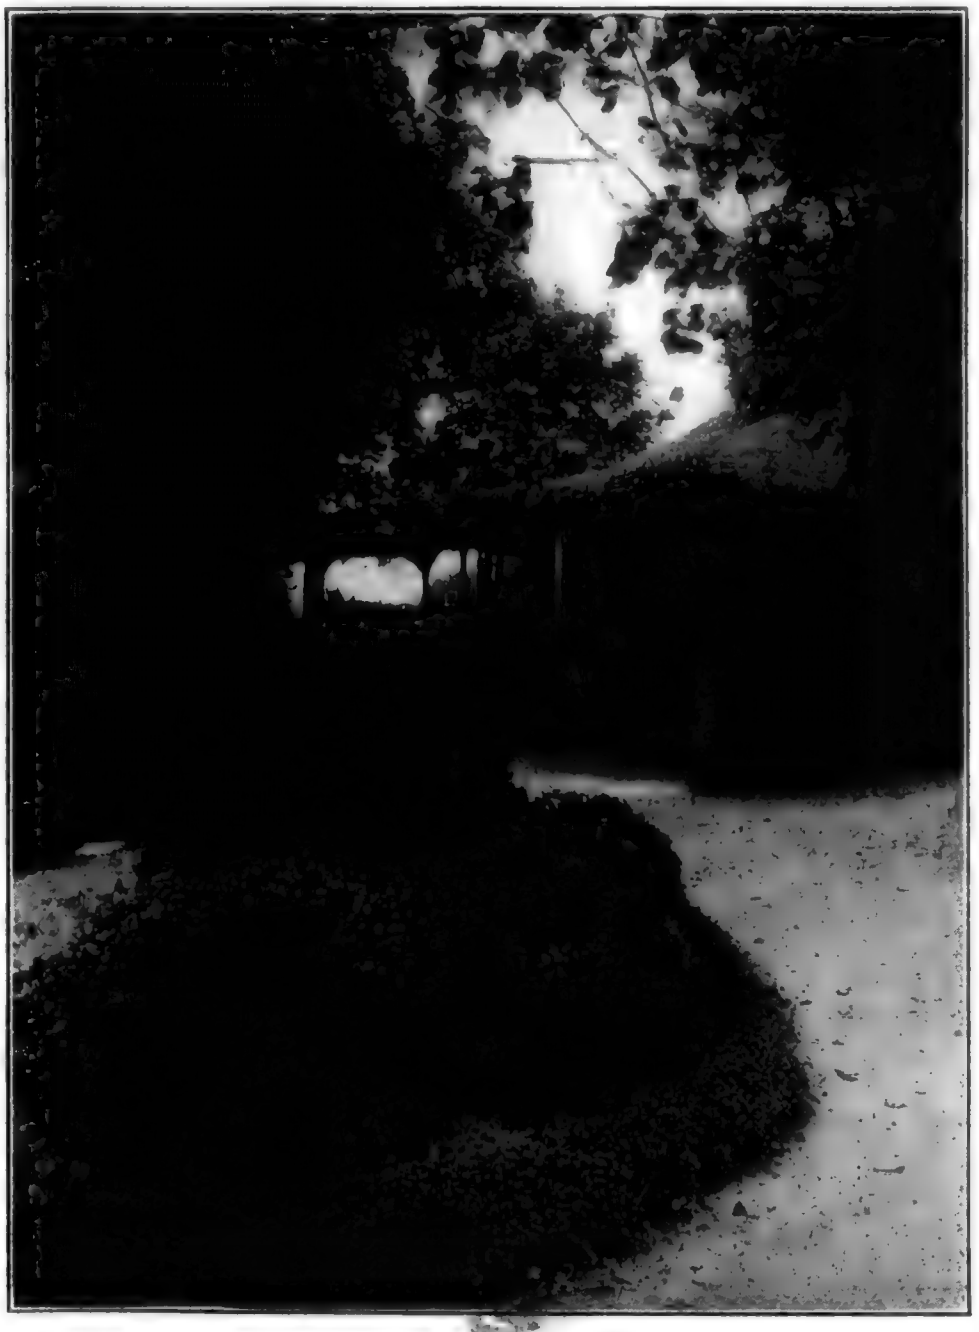
What is the best hardy evergreen climber? What is the best substitute for English ivy, in latitudes where the ivy is not hardy? These questions and others of similar import are repeatedly being asked. In reply, horticulturists generally agree in recommending Euonymus radicans for the purpose indicated.

READERS who have no interest in mere names are advised to skip this paragraph—and perhaps the next one. The first point to be decided is only a question of one letter in the spelling of a name; yet it makes some difference whether we say EVonymus or EUonymus. The old, familiar spelling, euonymus, has been abandoned by some leading botanists, including so high an authority as Bailey. But the form euonymus is here preferred, out of respect for the members of the trade, nearly all of whom so pronounce it, and out of respect for that worthy old Greek botanist, Theophrastus, who is said to have named the plant euonymus about three centuries before the Christian era. Moreover, isn't euonymus really more euphonious than evonymus? Euonymus it shall be, therefore, in this article—printer and proofreader permitting.

A True Root-Climber.

The word euonymus is usually supposed to signify "of good name" or "of good repute." The word radicans, of course, means "rooting," and has reference to the aërial roots by means of which the shrub climbs or creeps. Euonymus radicans also has several common names, such as the climbing euonymus, the creeping euonymus, the evergreen climber and the evergreen bittersweet.

We feel better acquainted with plants, as well as with people, when we know something about their family connections. The euonymus family — or genus, to be precise—is well known and highly esteemed, as biographers like to say, for it includes such favorites as E. atropurpurea, generally referred to as the burning bush or wahoo; E. Europæa, commonly called the European burning bush or spindle tree; E. Americana, or strawberry bush; E. obovata, or running strawberry bush, and E. alata, variously known as the Japanese burning bush, the winged burning bush, the cork-barked euonymus, etc.



It is perhaps unnecessary to say that these shrubs are called burning bushes on account of their brilliant fall coloring.

Unlike Any Other Euonymus.

All of these relatives of Euonymus radicans are deciduous shrubs. With the exception of the running strawberry bush, they are upright in growth, with none of the creeping or climbing proclivities of radicans. The running strawberry bush is suitable for shrubbery borders or for covering the ground under trees, but differs distinctly from E. radicans in being too low for general use as a climber.

E. radicans, also, is largely grown as a creeping or trailing shrub, in borders and similar locations, but it will climb if it has an opportunity, attaining a height of ten to twenty feet, or occasionally even a greater height if the soil is rich and other conditions are favorable. Its flowers are inconspicuous. It has small, shiny, dark green leaves and pink fruits. It clings tenaciously to wood, stone or concrete. Thus it makes an attractive covering for walls, rocks, tree trunks, etc.

It will live—just live, if nothing more—in almost any kind of soil. "Almost any kind of soil," therefore, is what is frequently prescribed for it; hence there is nothing surprising in the fact that it is sometimes considered a slow grower. Apparently, it makes fairly rapid growth in good soil. A reliable eastern florist tells of plants of E. radicans which covered a wall sixteen feet high in four years. He says that these plants, however, were not only in good soil, but were occasionally watered in dry weather and received a mulch of cow manure each spring.

Euonymus Radicans Is an Exceedingly Useful Plant.

Is It Hardy?

As to the hardiness of E. radicans, there might be danger of speaking too positively or definitely. Bailey says it is fairly hardy. One Boston grower, who generally speaks from experience, says it is sufficiently hardy to withstand a temperature of 20 degrees below zero without injury. But another grower in almost the same latitude, though some hundreds of miles farther west, says: "The climate of northern Ohio seems not particularly favorable to its development; it lives, but does not thrive; in the south it flourishes apace." It is necessary to consider, not only the latitude, but also the longitude and altitude and a multitude of local peculiarities of soil and eccentricities of climate. So each prospective grower of E. radicans must be governed by his own knowledge and by the testimony of local nurserymen or other well informed neighbors.

Rash statements as to its evergreen character might also lead to trouble. A trustworthy Illinois nurseryman says it is evergreen except in the extreme north. Just what he means by "extreme north," he might hesitate to tell; he probably did not feel justified in using a less elastic phrase.

Its Propagation.

E. radicans can be readily propagated by cuttings of half-ripened wood, either in the fall and winter or in early August. One of The Review's correspondents has recently expressed a strong preference for the summer cuttings, as they root much more quickly than the winter ones if kept in a close frame, shaded and freely syringed. If only small quantities are propagated, the correspondent states, flats are preferable to frames, because they can be moved about. A flat 12x24 inches and four inches deep, he says, will hold 200 to 250 cuttings and not one per cent will fail to root, provided the cuttings, when taken off, are plunged in fresh water and are not allowed to dry at any time. Use sandy loam in the flats, placing some coal ashes or other material underneath for drainage. These flats, if kept freely syringed and properly cared for, will be a mat of roots in eight weeks, when they can be stood outdoors until cold weather. Then they can be packed away in a coldframe, under a bed of dry leaves, for the winter. Or the little plants can be potted up if required for early spring sales.

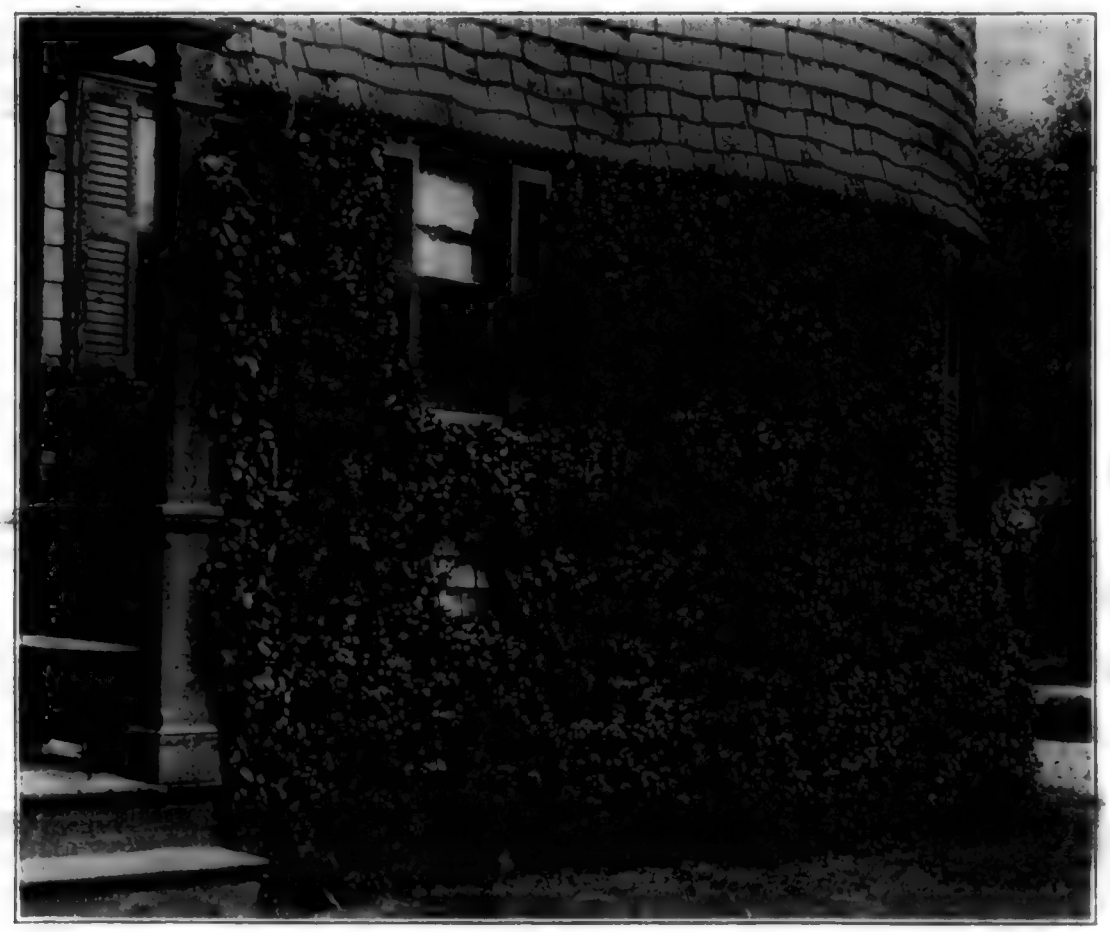
Varieties of Radicans.

Among the varieties or subvarieties of E. radicans, the form most favorably spoken of is E. vegeta, or E. radicans vegeta. Some authorities, including E. H. Wilson, of the Arnold Arboretum, even declare that vegeta is superior to the type. In a recent issue of the Garden Magazine, Mr. Wilson says: "The type has narrowly ovate, pointed to lance-shaped leaves; the variety vegeta has obovate to broadly oval leaves, rounded at the apex, dark green and glossy, especially in winter. This variety, which is a better garden plant than the type, was raised in the Arnold Arboretum from seeds received from Sapporo, Hokkaido, in 1876." No definite information seems to be available, however, as to how tall E. vegeta will grow. Hence growers who wish to be certain about the height, or about other qualities which require long testing, may still prefer E. radicans.

There are also several forms of radicans with variegated leaves, but it is presumed that in this case, as in most others, the green-leaved plants are more vigorous and reliable than the variegated sorts.

THE HARDY FLOWER GARDEN.

Blue-flowering Plants.



A pleasing change from the heavy, prevailing tone of yellow comes in the eryngiums, or sea hollies. Of these E. planum and E. amethystinum, with their round steel-blue heads of blooms, growing three to four feet in height, are now flowering. The echinops, or globe thistles, are of similar hue and are still attractive. Of these sphærocephalus, Ritro and Bannaticus are all well worth growing.

We have some other attractive blue flowers now, and among these are Plumbago Larpentæ, six inches high, with deep blue flowers; Salvia azurea grandiflora, pale blue; S. pratensis, intense dark blue; Lobelia syphilitica, three feet in height, light blue; Clematis Davidiana, the blue shrubby clematis, and C. integrifolia, of similar color, but dwarfer in habit. Caryopteris Mastacanthus is commonly classed as a perennial, although it is really a deciduous shrub. It makes a good show at this season. We have still further additions in the fine second crop of delphiniums; the present season seedlings of D. Chinensis, the Chinese larkspurs, make a notable display of their intense deep blue flowers.

Other Late-flowering Perennials.

Some other perennials now flowering are: Epilobium angustifolium, the willow herb; Conoclinium cœlestinum, the blue mist flower; Chelone Lyoni, deep red; Dicentra eximia formosa, the perpetual-flowering bleeding heart; the tall, showy hibiscus, or mallow, including Crimson Eye, white, red center; H. militaris, pink, and H. Moscheutos, rose. While these latter do well at the back of any border, they are especially good near water. Statice latifolia and S. incana, the sea lavenders, and Stokesia cyanea, the beautiful lavender blue cornflower aster, should be in every hardy border. The various forms of the Carpathian bellflower, or Campanula Carpatica, are still full of flower, and the tall and stately C. pyramidalis in sequestered spots is fine.

Geum coccineum Mrs. Bradshaw still produces its brilliant scarlet double flowers; so do the several heucheras, especially H. sanguinea. In purple flowers we have the Kansas gay feather, Liatris scariosa, and L. spicata, over four feet in height. The brilliant Lobelia cardinalis, or cardinal flower, prefers moist ground, but flowers well under drier conditions. The torch lilies, or tritomas, are now making a notable showing, especially T. Pfitzeri, Torchlight, Express, Leichtlinii and Lemon Queen. This by no means completes the list of early September perennials and we have the lilies and montbretias now in abundance to help in making the borders attractive.

Euonymus Radicans Climbing on a Shingled Wall.

INJURES NEXT YEAR'S CROP.

Will you kindly tell us whether cutting off the foliage of tulips and narcissi, grown outdoors in beds, is injurious to the next year's crop of blooms? We like them to bloom well and have long stems. Some say that pulling up the foliage with the flower does not hurt the bulb for the next year. Is this so? We have a 200-foot bed, three feet wide, in a conspicuous place on our grounds, in which we wish to set tulips and narcissi this fall. If it is injurious to pull or cut the foliage, can you tell us of some inexpensive annual which we could grow in this clayey loam from seed, for commercial purposes, and what time should this seed be sown in the latitude of western New York? E. H. J.—N. Y.

Removing the foliage with any bulbous flower will most assuredly cripple the flowering qualities for the next season. Anyone who tells you otherwise is talking contrary to all facts and reason. The more foliage left on bulbs of any kind, the better they will flower for you another season.

Why not dig up your tulips and narcissi after they have flowered, and heel them in thickly in a trench? Later, after the foliage has died away, take them up and store them in flats on a shelf in a cool, dry shed. If you do not wish to go to this trouble, it is best to wait until the foliage is ripening off, then plant such easily grown annuals as verbenas, petunias or scarlet salvias among them. These can be depended upon to cover the ground and flower well, but all annuals would do much better if the bulbs were removed, the ground manured and spaded over and then planted with such easily grown annuals as those named, or asters, if preferred. Vinca rosea is also a fine annual for the same purpose. Sow seed of vincas in February, of asters at the end of March, and petunias or verbenas in February, to insure good plants. Salvia seed could be sown as late as the middle of April.

BEGONIAS IN WINTER.

We have tuberous-rooted begonias in the yard and also in pots. What care shall we give them for winter? Will the bulbs be good for next year? If so, will they stand light frosts?

D. B.—Ind.

A light freezing would not harm the roots, but I would prefer to take them up before frost and store them in flats in a coldframe or on a shelf in a shed until all the foliage has ripened off. Then shake away the soil and store the bulbs in dry sand or cocoanut fiber refuse. Keep them in a temperature of 40 to 45 degrees at night and be sure no water reaches them. C. W.

HYDRANGEAS FOR EASTER.

I had some hydrangeas that did not bloom for last Easter. So, in order to provide more room, I put them out in coldframes, protecting them on cold days and at night. The night of June 11 I failed to cover them and we had a severe frost, which spoiled both blooms and plants for that season. Some time afterward I cut them back rather hard and plunged them outside, covering the pots. Since then they have made a wonderful growth and I should like to have them in bloom for next Easter. How shall I treat them? Should they be allowed to freeze before I house them, and what temperature should they have? J. P.—Ont.

Do not allow your plants to get more than a light freezing. Keep them outside as long as you can with safety. Then, if you have a frame of sufficient depth, place them in it. If the frame is not deep enough, dig out to give them the necessary head room. Gradually reduce the water supply as cold weather comes on, and move the plants to a cold greenhouse or to a dry, frostproof cellar, not too dark, where they can stay until the middle of January. Then place them in a temperature of 50 degrees at night. As growth advances, the temperature can be increased 10 degrees. They need lots of water and feeding until the flower heads show color. At that time gradually lower the temperature. C. W.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE—AND WHY

MRS. J. A. PHILIPPS.

THE Flower Lady of Fourteenth Street'' is the sobriquet of Mrs. J. A. Philipps among her trade friends and her customers, at the national capital. Such an appellation is in itself evidence of popularity, but Mrs. Philipps was furnished more appreciable evidence, in the shape of 30,000 votes, which will give her a trip to the Pacific coast. Shortly after the Lyric theater, at Washington, opened the contest last June Mrs. Philipps' name was entered. The friends that she had made in her dozen or so years in business, first with her husband and now at Fourteenth and Harvard streets, northwest, rallied to her support so strongly that she ran 11,000 votes ahead of her nearest competitor. The voting was done by means of coupons attached to tickets of admission, and so the 30,000 votes represent as many dimes paid the theater management by her friends.

ROSES

CONCERNING MILADY.

I should like to hear from a grower in regard to the cultivation of the Milady rose; also, how it ranks commercially. W. R. W.—W. Va.

Milady is extensively and successfully grown by a large number of commercial rose growers, but, like most of the red roses, it has its shortcomings as well as its good points. It is highly susceptible to thrips in summer, and for that reason needs close watching. It also is easily attacked by black-spot. However, Milady is an exceedingly free grower and producer, and will more than repay one for all the extra care it requires. Milady should have a night temperature of 56 to 58 degrees in winter. It should be kept 4 to 6 degrees warmer on cloudy days and 10 degrees warmer on clear days. It should have plenty of fresh air at all times. As Milady produces a large, full flower, it suffers quickly from warm and close temperatures on cloudy days. Considering all points, Milady is about as profitable as any other rose on the market today.

W. J. K.

STORING ROSE PLANTS.

We have from 15,000 to 20,000 rose plants, teas and hybrid teas, which we wish to carry through the winter for spring sales. Most of them are in pots that vary in size from 2-inch to 5-inch, but part of the stock is field-grown, not in pots. Our previous methods have not been successful, except with hybrid perpetuals. Heretofore we have stored them in cellars, stripping off the leaves, covering the roots with clean sand and not allowing much light. The wood on some of the smaller, more tender, plants turned black. We also lost hundreds in our packing sheds from black mold. Any suggestions you can offer on cold storage of teas and hybrid teas will be appreciated. P. W. C.—Utah.

To winter tea and hybrid tea roses successfully, the plants should have considerable light and should also be aired on every possible occasion. Darkness and dampness soon cause mold to spread and ruin a large part of the plants. A winter storage house, to be a success, should be provided with ample ventilation. Only during severe cold or heavy snows should the ventilators be closed. Your plants would have kept well if more light and air had been given them.

The field-grown hybrid perpetuals and hybrid teas should be lifted and packed in damp earth, not in sand. It is advisable to give some water, so as to moisten the roots, for if these are too dry, the plants will probably die. Sand is a poor material in which to pack roots of shrubs, trees or roses. Plants may appear fresh in it, but if exposed to sun and light will in many cases turn black. It is surprising that so many nurserymen persist in using sand.

The tea roses are more tender and less damp-proof than the hybrid perpetuals and hybrid teas and should be given a fairly light place, where they can get fresh air. Work some dry leaves among them. These leaves will absorb any moisture and you will find your plants will come out in better shape in the spring. Do not mind if your plants get a little frost; it is better than keeping them too close and stuffy. C. W.

ROSES FOR DESIGNS IN SOUTH.

We want to set out 400 or 500 rose bushes this fall, with the intention of using the blooms for cut flowers and designs. What pinks and whites would you suggest? What age should the bushes be to have flowers the first year? When should they be set out here? What shrubs should we set out in order to get cut flowers for designs?

H. P. F. & C.—N. C.

For outdoor blooming in North Carolina you can get nothing better than Cochet roses, pink and white. Obtain strong plants from 4-inch pots and set them out at once. If you can arrange to have these set out in beds with a sash roof over them in spring and summer, you will find them the most profitable roses you can grow. They will need much water, and you will have to fight thrips in the spring, using nicotine extract two or three times a week from the time the buds form. After the first crop you will have no further trouble until fall. Kaiserin is also fine for outdoors.

For flowering shrubs you can use snowballs, althæas, oleanders (if hardy in your section), Hydrangea arborescens and H. paniculata grandiflora. Other good plants for the purpose are snapdragons, feverfew, Vinca rosea and alba, peonies and dahlias. A few plants of Clematis paniculata grown on trellises or posts give a fine lot of flowers in August and September. They are suitable for designs. L.

HYDRANGEAS FOR FORCING.

Being inexperienced in the growing of hydrangeas, I am coming to you for advice. Last spring I took cuttings of Otaksa and Mme. E. Mouillere, and when the weather was suitable I planted them outdoors. They have grown nicely all summer and now are about eight inches high, with from two to nine good, healthy stalks. I should like to bloom these for Christmas and Easter. What care should be given to the plants now, to make them bud? How and when should they be potted and what care should they receive indoors? The other day I took a few plants from the field and potted them, and found that they were quite heavily rooted. E. C.—N. Y.

If you want hydrangeas for early forcing, you should dig up your plants now. They will lift with a large ball. Reduce this so they can be placed in pots of a suitable size. Pot firmly and water well. Keep them outdoors for some weeks, but do not expose them to more than light freezings. The French varieties, such as Mme. E. Mouillere, are much more tender than H.

Otaksa. Stand them in coldframes as a protection from frost, but keep the sashes removed except during frosts or heavy rains.

You cannot force hydrangeas satisfactorily for Christmas. A few of the French varieties sometimes throw a fall crop of flowers, but even if they flowered well they would not sell well in competition with the regular Christmas plants. For Easter all can be flowered. The French sorts need less forcing than H. Otaksa. Start the plants not later than the middle of January, in a temperature of 50 degrees at night. Advance this to 60 degrees as the flower heads peep; reduce it again as the heads show color. The plants need liberal treatment, an abundant water supply and weekly applications of liquid manure until the flower heads show color.

ROCHESTER SHOW CLOSES.

Second Week Successful.

The second week of the Rochester exposition and flower show came to a close September 11. Although the immense crowds did not keep up their record, a quite satisfactory attendance was noted. Ideal weather continued throughout the two weeks, some days with excessive heat. The exhibitors kept their stock looking well, although the replenishing of it throughout the twelve days was a large expense to them.

Dreer's artificial pool is undoubtedly the center of attraction. Daily shipments of water lilies with foliage and some large and handsome Victoria regia were made. The pool looked its best the last few days of the show.

The rockery around the lily pond was from the garden of George Cramer.

Fred Schlegel's Sons, Rochester, showed some good small baskets in the Rochester colors, lavender and yellow.

The Rochester city park department added a quantity of fancy caladiums to its exhibit.

John House, Rochester, showed a good specimen of Royle's touch-me-not, or Impatiens Roylei.

Vick's Asters.

The most striking part of James Vick's Sons' exhibit was the immense beds of asters.

Henry A. Dreer exhibited a fine collection of dahlias.

Salter Bros., Rochester, changed their exhibit and showed large baskets of buddleias trimmed with butterflies, large vases of phlox and centerpieces of roses and asters.

H. E. Wilson showed a large funeral design each day except one, when a large wedding bouquet of valley, Eucharis Amazonica and roses was displayed.

The table decorations were tastefully arranged during the week by George T. Boucher, of red roses; Jacob Thomann & Sons, of white gladioli and heleniums, and Fred Schlegel's Sons, of coral gladioli and ferns.

Visitors.

The following florists visited the show during the second week:

Mr. and Mrs. A. Kumpf, Buffalo, N. Y.
Wm. C. Gloeckner, Albany, N. Y.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

This is the latest of a series of manuals by the same author, for he has also published treatises on the peony, the phlox and others of his favorites. The new booklet is easily read, as it is written with the pleasant, infectious enthusiasm of a sincere lover of his subject. On the title-page he states that his aim is to show "how to raise new varieties, and how to enlarge a wide field of profit and enjoyment, in the growing of a plant that is peculiarly adapted to our semi-arid regions, comprising one-fourth of our vast domain, where other flowers cannot be made to grow." At the end is a 14-page list of varieties of the iris, as classified by Mrs. Dean, of Moneta, Cal.

Des Moines, Ia.—In the floral exhibits at the state fair, the Wilson Floral Co. captured first awards for its entries of designs, American Beauties, yellow and white roses. Mr. Wilson won the first award for wreaths.

PYLE TALKS ABOUT THE WEST.

[A synopsis of an address, illustrated by photographs, given by Robert Pyle, of West Grove, Pa., before the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, September 7, 1915.]

Mr. Pyle first outlined the relative importance of the two expositions on the Pacific coast this year, showing that of San Francisco as an international one, made up of exhibits from foreign countries as well as from different parts of America, whereas the exposition at San Diego is rather a state one, called the Panama-California Exposition, and made up mainly of exhibits from the different counties in California.

Many Sights in Short Time.

After detailing the warm welcome that had been accorded by the florists of Chicago, Council Bluffs, Omaha, and those of Denver, in charge of J. A. Valentine, he referred to conditions existing at this season of the year in different parts of California as it was possible to observe them in a trip which extended from San Diego, within ten miles of the Mexican border, to Vancouver, in British Columbia, and back over the Canadian Rockies, the entire trip requiring only twenty-five days, which of course did not permit long stays in any place, though it did give an excellent opportunity to see the roses being grown even at this season of the year in Portland, to observe the berry growing district of Oregon, to take note of the wonderful bean growing district of Ventura county, California, where land is selling at $2,000 an acre within a few miles of other land that cannot be sold at $200 an acre because of the favorable location of the former. Mr. Pyle made reference to the various firms whose establishments he was able to visit in and near some of the larger cities. For example, near Los Angeles he was impressed with the extensive operations of Howard & Smith and the Germain Seed & Plant Co., which has recently gone into the nursery business. In and near San Francisco he had the chance to see the excellent work being done by C. C. Morse & Co., as well as the coöperative operations of the Vallance Nursery. But the most impressive reminiscences of the trip, undoubtedly, were those reflected by what was observed at the expositions of San Diego and San Francisco, especially the latter.

The San Diego Exposition.

At San Diego it is most interesting to reflect that about four or five years ago the site of the exposition was hills, canyons and ravines, clothed with nothing but sagebrush, that for every tree planted the hole had to be blasted and that for everything now growing there had to be constant irrigation during the dry season, which is still going on. The extent of territory thus covered and now turned over to the park department of the city of San Diego is noteworthy. The exposition, which cost perhaps $2,000,000 to construct, will to a large extent remain. The planting at this exposition has been done with great taste, that along the Prado, or main avenue, and especially the Plaza Panama, proving especially noteworthy. The arrangement and setting were distinctly in good taste. The brilliant purple of the bougainvilleas, the perfect wealth of color given by the use of cannas throughout the shrubbery planting, the lovely arrangement of flowers in the patios, all on a scale that was comprehensive and yet delightful, resulted in an effect that allowed, or rather induced visitors to fall in love with it. The Botanical building at San Diego is the largest lath covered structure in existence and contains an excellent collection of tropical and semi-tropical plants. In front of it is a most delightful pool filled with water lilies. But again, as we leave the exposition, we are impressed doubly with the wonderful quantity, extent and success of the plantings over the hills and down into the canyons, plantings that include the conifers, palms, banana plants, acacias and eucalyptus; but the complete list is published in the official guide, made up by Paul G. Thiene, who has been superintendent of the planting and whose work has been well done.

At San Francisco.

With reference to the San Francisco exposition, Mr. Pyle paid a glowing tribute to the artistic effect brought out, not only by the general plan and by the wonderful architecture, but also by the harmony of color effects, the finishing touches of which had been given by a wonderful use of plants and flowers, and evidence of the skill displayed by John McLaren, superintendent of Golden Gate park, who with able assistants has been able to work out many surprising effects.

Mr. Pyle referred to the avenues of palms, to the fact that huge trees, twenty, thirty and forty feet high, had been moved bodily, for practically all the space four or five years ago was unplanted. He said that undoubtedly the most noteworthy piece of planting in connection with the exposition is the wall of ice plant, Mesembryanthemum spectabile, made by planting cuttings in flats, two feet wide by six feet long, and when fairly started these placed on edge, one over the other, and watered by a system of irrigation pipes which keeps them constantly moist from the top.

He referred to the wonderful color effect that had been produced by the alternate planting in the courts, the Court of Abundance, the Court of the Seasons, and the Court of the Flowers, such as the following: For example, starting with daffodils, all yellow, these were followed with yellow tulips, Bouton d'Or, and these in turn followed by the yellow violets, not less than 200,000 of each in a single one of these courts, which gives some idea of the scope and extent to which the planting has been carried. In another court the season began with something like 8,000 rhododendrons, followed by an equal number of hydrangeas in tubs; whereas in the parkway plantings alongside the lagoon, outside the Horticultural building, were similar quantities of Begonia Erfordii. Nothing, not even the pathways and the fire alarm signal boxes, was allowed in the color effect to clash one note from the general harmony of the entire scheme.

Mr. Pyle was much interested in the roses that were exhibited in the contest for the $1,000 prize for the best rose, to be named by the exposition authorities. The roses in this contest are being judged every week, points regularly recorded, the result not to be decided until the end of the exposition. A gold medal has been awarded to E. Gill Nursery Co. for roses. There are fine displays of conifers from the New England firms, of gladioli and dahlias. C. C. Morse & Co. showed the finest display of annuals and was complimented on the results obtained by the cordon system of growing sweet peas, still in full bloom.

Mr. Pyle paid warm praise to Carl Purdy for his work in caring for the exhibits; to John McLaren for what he has done, not only on the exposition, but for his monumental work in making out of a flat, uninteresting piece of land, the wonderful Golden Gate park, into which he has built lakes, waterfalls, streams and hillsides, all of which look as natural as if nature herself had planted them.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS FOR SOUTHERN FLORISTS

POTTED FERNS.

In the south, September is the best month in which to lift the ferns from the frames, to get them in shape for fall and winter sales. After the suckers have all been removed, the ferns should be either replanted in the frame for another month, boxed, or planted on a side table near the glass. Use good soil, with one-third old manure, for potting, and keep the plants shaded a little for a week or two, but give plenty of ventilation.

Nephrolepis Smithii, when above 4-inch size, should be placed in shallow pans, as it does not root deeply. Besides, it looks much better in a pan than in a pot. The plants should be stood on inverted pots, to keep the foliage from touching the benches and to insure a good circulation of air through them. Avoid crowding this variety and be careful to keep water from the foliage. It costs more to grow this variety, but it brings a better price than any of the others and is the readiest seller during the winter season, when in good shape. L.

FREESIAS AS POT PLANTS.

The first batch of freesias for pot plants, in the south, should be started as soon as possible. Five bulbs in a 4-inch pot or ten in a 6-inch azalea pot make a good show. They can remain out in a coldframe for a month yet. Keep the weeds down and water freely. It does not pay to try to force them for Christmas. They do better if allowed to come along at a temperature of 50 degrees or a little over. Plant a few every month, to have a succession. Where there is little danger of frost they do exceedingly well in a sash-covered coldframe. L.

FORCING BULBS IN SOUTH.

When should Dutch hyacinth, Roman hyacinth and Narcissus rugulosus bulbs be placed in a cellar to root, and on what date should they be brought in to force to have full blooms for Christmas? Can Roman hyacinths be successfully grown in flats and be transplanted to pots when in bloom? Can Dutch hyacinths be forced as early as Christmas, and are they profitable at that time? E. O. C.—Ala.

Dutch hyacinths cannot be forced for Christmas. Bring them into the house after New Year's, which is as early as they can be forced for profit. All bulbs intended for early forcing should be boxed as early as possible. A coldframe is better than a cellar in Alabama. Soak thoroughly after boxing, sprinkle a little sand over the boxes and cover the bulbs with three or four inches of some old, light soil. Roman hyacinths brought into the heat twenty-five to thirty days before Christmas will flower in time. I have never tried forcing Narcissus rugulosus for Christmas, but it forces easily a little later. I would suggest that you try Grand Soleil d'Or if you want a yellow narcissus for Christmas. It forces as do Roman hyacinths and Paper Whites. By all means box your Roman hyacinths and transfer them to pots or pans when in bloom. This is the only way to get an even-flowered pot, especially early in the season. L.

REAPING THE BENEFIT.

"In many instances we have reaped the benefit of illustrations and write-ups which have appeared in the columns of The Review from time to time." So say Kemble & Goodman, of Mason City, Ia. Perhaps, in turn, other readers of The Review may reap some benefit from the accompanying reproduction of a photograph of the exhibit at the North Iowa fair staged by Kemble & Goodman.

A rather elaborate garden, in which are a fountain, geranium beds, shrubs, birds, lawn and paths, serves as a setting for the wax young lady who has apparently been working therein but now is greeting the youth who appears at the gate with a box of flowers under his arm. The decorations were well done, and the exhibit attracted much attention. Perhaps part of the attention was directed to the assortment of puns in the sign, there being no less than three in that number of lines. At any rate, Kemble & Goodman regard the exhibit as having been good advertising.

SOWING SEEDS OF PERENNIALS.

Kindly let me know the proper time to sow seeds of the following list of perennials so as to have flowers for next summer: Anchusa Italica, hollyhocks, baptisias, coreopsis, Achillea The Pearl, delphiniums, physostegias, Lychnis Chalcedonica, hardy lupines, sweet williams, aquilegias, perennial poppies, liatris and hardy phloxes.

R. S. T.—Conn.

You are somewhat late in sowing seeds of the hardy plants named. You can, however, still sow all of them, but lose no time in doing so. Some varieties, naturally of quick germination, will make fair-sized plants before winter. Among these are hollyhocks, coreopsis, anchusas, lupines, sweet williams and perennial poppies. I presume that the poppies you have in mind are Papaver orientale. The aquilegias, phloxes, physostegias, etc., are slower growers and will only make small plants this fall. All varieties you name would have been much better if sown during the first half of July.

If you have coldframes at disposal, I would prefer to sow the seeds there. Screen the top soil, which should contain plenty of leaf-mold, and make an even surface. After the seeds are sown and watered, shade with lath shades or cheesecloth to prevent drying out. Use a watering can and not the hose on the seedlings while they are small, and protect them from drenching rains. The more robust kinds could go out into nursery rows, but the majority will be much better if you carry them over in frames, covering them with dry leaves when they are frozen, and placing sashes over them. Seed can also be sown outdoors if frames are not at disposal. Make a bed three feet wide and pulverize the soil well before sowing. C. W.

FILLING AN IDLE HOUR.

Even during the slack days of summer the employees at the store of the Idle Hour Nurseries, Macon, Ga., keep busy. Of course, there are more ways than one of keeping busy at that store. The accompanying illustration shows how the force daily filled an otherwise idle hour on the back porch of the establishment.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

FERTILIZER FOR MUMS.

We are anxious to grow some especially large chrysanthemums this year. Heretofore we have relied on good cow manure alone, used both as a mulch and in liquid form, and have always obtained good results, but we should like to produce something still better. Is there a better fertilizer for chrysanthemums? How about nitrate of soda? If this is better, how should it be applied, in what quantities and how often? T. T.—Ky.

Cow manure, either as a liquid or a mulch, is an excellent fertilizer for chrysanthemums or any other plant in the greenhouse. I do not know of anything better, but it can be assisted by the use of chemical fertilizers. We used nitrate of soda considerably, but found we were doing more harm than good, as this excellent fertilizer does not seem to work out so well on mums as on other stock. Nitrate of potash will give much better results, but the safest chemical, in my experience, to use in conjunction with other fertilizers for mums is sulphate of ammonia. Any of the foregoing fertilizers can be used in the proportion of one pound to fifty gallons of water, and when the plants are large and healthy it can be applied once a week as a change from the other fertilizer. Chas. H. Totty.

FEEDING CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

I have a fine standing of Mrs. Henry Robinson chrysanthemums, but the leaves are not large and thick. How should I treat them to secure large, thick, green leaves? G. K.—La.

In your section, Louisiana, where blooms are grown outdoors, I should judge that the reason the leaves of Mrs. Henry Robinson are not larger is that the cuttings from which the plants were made were small and thin. A good, healthy cutting, even though it be small, should make a good plant. If your plants are set too closely, the leaves will be small. Now is the proper time to feed if the plants are in shape to take the food. By this I mean, if the plants have made a reasonable growth and are well rooted in their quarters. It is useless to feed plants that are small and weak and sickly in their growth, and are growing in uncongenial surroundings. If the plants are healthy, even though small, they can assimilate their food, and should be given a liquid made from either cow or sheep manure, applied at every other watering. This liquid can be changed to an application of chemical fertilizer, such as sulphate of ammonia, in the proportion of a 4-inch pot to a kerosene barrel of water. It sometimes happens that the plants are green and healthy, but their upward growth is retarded. This is what is known as "stuck." In such a case, nitrate of soda, used in the same proportion as the sulphate of ammonia, is valuable, and as a rule will start the plants upward, though I have found it advisable not to use too much nitrate of soda. The difference between the large flowers of an expert and the medium or small flowers of the average grower is caused by the different methods of feeding. I am aware that some growers make their soil rich at planting time and expect this to carry the plants through the blooming season. I am also aware that growers who feed their plants after the bud is taken in September, all other things being equal, produce the best flowers. Chas. H. Totty.

STRING SUPPORTS FOR MUMS.

Please give me some advice on supporting my chrysanthemums. I have some Polly Rose plants which will bear two flowers and I intend to support them by the twine system. Should I tie two strings to each plant, or can both shoots be tied to one string? These plants are strong and healthy and about six to nine inches high. Are they too far advanced? Some of the taller plants have formed a bud like the one enclosed. Around the bud are several shoots. I have pinched all the shoots off but one, and also the bud. Is this correct? H. A. C.—Ala.

The usual method of stringing for supporting plants is to run up a string for each shoot, though it is by no means unusual to see two or more shoots tied on one string. I would not advise this in the case of Polly Rose, which is liable to become crooked in the stem after throwing the bud. Plants are by no means too far advanced when six or nine inches high. In fact, they should be that height to get the best results. The bud forming is a perfectly natural proceeding, and it was all right to remove it, though I would have left more than one shoot until they began growing nicely. By leaving two shoots, if one happens to run blind, there is still another shoot to rely on. Chas. H. Totty.

Terre Haute, Ind.—Heinl & Weber are adding 5,000 feet of glass at their range. They are also opening an office to handle local retail trade.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Ramblers for Early Forcing.

Pot-grown rambler roses are the best for early forcing. If these are not available, the next best are field-grown plants which are home-grown and can be lifted and potted now. If these roses have had the shoots tied up and were not allowed to ramble over the ground, they will be firmer and much better ripened. The ends of the shoots will still be soft and growing. Cut off the soft ends when potting. Pack the soil well about the roots and do not allow the roots to dry out any more than is absolutely necessary. These roses, potted now, will make a lot of roots in the pots before really cold weather sets in and will be far better for early forcing purposes than stock potted in late October or November. Such kinds as Tausendschon, Lady Gay and Hiawatha are good for early work; so, also, are the polyanthas or baby ramblers, such as Catherine Zeimet, Mrs. Cutbush and Orleans.

Planting Hardy Evergreens.

There have been few seasons as fine as the present for the moving of such evergreens as retinosporas, abies, thuyas, pinus, rhododendrons, kalmias and andromedas. Too much of the planting is left until spring, when nurseries are practically overwhelmed with orders. Much of this planting can be more successfully done in late summer, when duties are less manifold and urgent. Any of the shrubs or trees named and some others can be moved now, provided they do not remain out of the ground too long. Prepare liberal holes, firm the roots well and water abundantly. Spray occasionally if we get a spell of hot, dry weather, and there will be few, if any, losses.

Pachysandra Terminalis.

An evergreen that is of low growth and well adapted for borders, ground covers, etc., is Pachysandra terminalis. It does not grow quite so rapidly as euonymus, but, once established, soon covers the ground. It is easily propagated from cuttings, which, if taken now, can be rooted in coldframes in the same way as euonymus, or during the late fall and winter it can be easily rooted in flats in any ordinary greenhouse. In the spring the plants can be put out in nursery rows. Both euonymus and pachysandra are excellent plants for covering graves. They make a pleasant change from the omnipresent vinca or myrtle and smother out weeds much better than the last named plant.

Genistas.

Genistas which have been plunged overhead will have made considerable roots, both above and below the pots, and when lifted will usually need a shift into pots a size larger. The plants will wilt for a few days, but, if sprayed freely and protected from the direct sunlight, will soon stiffen up. Where formal specimens are wanted, the plants should be given another shearing. Many customers do not like these topiary-like plants, but prefer them grown more naturally. Better grow a few the latter way and see which your buyers prefer.

ST. PAUL, MINN.

The Market.

Conditions have not reached their normal state. Business is extremely quiet and stock of all kinds is coming into this market in abundance. Fashion week will take a great number of palms and also cut flowers and should be the real opening of the fall season.

State Fair Awards.

The state fair premium list was more complete this year than in the past, amounting to $1,305. The stock shown was of the finest and exhibitors displayed more interest by more entries then ever before.

To encourage florists' clubs, a special class was added and the St. Paul Florists' Club and the Minneapolis Florists' Club competed. The Minneapolis club was awarded first prize silver cup, on a pretty arrangement of waterwheel, fountain, stream and hills, all presenting a fine landscape effect, showing an assortment of plant stock and cut flowers. The St. Paul club showed fine plant and cut flower stock, also a carpet bedding effect around an electric fountain.

In the competitive classes Holm & Olson, Inc., was the largest exhibitor and prize winner, taking thirty-one first premiums, ten second and three third premiums on forty-four entries. The Merriam Park Floral Co. took three first premiums, eleven seconds and two thirds. The Minneapolis Floral Co. took four firsts, thirteen seconds and ten thirds, being the second largest exhibitor. Nagel's Greenhouses, Minneapolis, took five third and four fourth premiums. D. W. C. Ruff, of St. Paul, took first in all six classes for gladioli. F. F. Farrar, of St. Paul, took one first and two seconds on asters. Other exhibitors and prize winners included Riverside Greenhouses, of St. Paul, and Oscar Amundson, George Long, Mrs. L. H. Sherin and H. F. Baker, of Minneapolis.

W. H. Bofferding, of Minneapolis, was in charge of the department and the judging was most satisfactorily done by August Swanson.

State Florists' Association.

The annual meeting of the Minnesota State Florists' Association is held during the state fair and this year brought out an unusually large attendance. Officers for 1915-16 were elected as follows:

President — William Desmond, of Minneapolis.

Vice-president—Max Kaiser, of Minneapolis.

Secretary—Thomas Rodgers.

Treasurer—E. P. Holm, of St. Paul.

A. Miller, of Chicago, who was present, urged the formation of a party to attend the Chicago and Cleveland shows in November and it is thought a delegation of thirty-five will be obtained as representing the Twin Cities.

Various Notes.

The Ramaley Floral Exchange, for many years at the corner of Seventh and St. Peter streets, was compelled to vacate, to make room for a more modern building, which is to be erected on that site. The new home of Ramaley's is 9 West Ninth street and this should prove a fine location.

The St. Paul Florists' Club will hold its first autumn meeting at O. R. Eckhardt's store, September 21.

Visitors: Calvin Kinsman, of Austin, Minn.; L. Maths, en route to Fargo, N. D., from Chicago; T. McAllister, of Chicago; P. Claussen, of Albert Lea, Minn.; N. Clarine, of Faribault, Minn. C. R. F.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The hottest week of the year caused almost an utter collapse of the cut flower market Saturday, September 11. The temperature on many days of the week approached close to 100 degrees in the shade. The week end found boxes, cellars and store windows crowded with unsold and unsalable stock, especially asters, to which there seemed to be no limit.

Few of the aster shipments were sold, even at the unheard of concessions made. At 4 p. m. Saturday, September 11, I saw a wholesale florist offer everything in asters in his store, many hundreds of bunches, for $3, and the best offer a large buyer made him for the lot was 50 cents.

Roses showed the effect of the heat badly, and only selected stock brought even mentionable figures. No. 2 grades fell back to midsummer rates again. Some Beauties and a few of the novelties, when perfect, brought good figures, but there were few of them. The medium and low grades of all sold in thousand lots as low as $5 per thousand.

An increase in carnation shipments is noticeable, but quality is still an "unknown quantity." Prices remain at 50 cents to $1.50 per hundred.

Orchids are again abundant, and prices are falling. Few Cattleya gigas bring over 40 cents. An abundance of oncidiums helps to make the retail windows attractive. The orchid stock arriving is perfect.

Lilies are again in oversupply. The best were selling at $4 per hundred September 11. Valley is not moving, they say, and the price corresponds, the top not rising above $3 per hundred.

The gladiolus shipments continue larger than expected, but another week should see the last of them for this season. The heat and storms made havoc with them and asters. Dahlias of the commoner grade are already in surplus. Cosmos, tritomas, coreopsis, bouvardias, calendulas, hydrangeas and goldenrod complete the list of seasonable flowers.

Club Meeting.

The first meeting of the Florists' Club for the season was held September 13, President Bunyard in the chair. The attendance was close to 100. The guest of honor was Mrs. B. Hammond Tracy, of Wenham, Mass., who gave an interesting stereopticon lecture on the gladiolus, supplemented by a brief address on the same subject by Prof. John S. Adriance, of Williams College, Williamstown, Mass. The lecture by Mrs. Tracy was most practical and the lady graciously answered many questions from the club's critics and experts. Her exhibit of unnamed gladioli in many varieties, staged by Max Schling, received special mention.

A new pink mum grown by Frank Dinda, of Farmingdale, was staged by Guttman & Raynor. The committee awarded it eighty-two points. C. H. Totty exhibited the new pink rose, Gorgeous, awarded eighty-seven points. P. W. Popp showed seventy-five varieties of gladioli and fifteen varieties of giant single dahlias. Arthur Cowee sent some fine gladioli in twenty-four varieties. Knight & Struck Co. had a fine exhibit, staged by Maurice Fuld, and some of the finest unnamed gladioli, by T. A. Havemeyer. The club's thanks were awarded all the exhibits.

Chairman A. L. Miller made a satisfactory report for the flower show committee, including the securing of the Grand Central Palace, on similar terms to those of 1915. The work of the committee was approved and it was empowered to act, the chairman of the joint committees being F. R. Pierson, of Tarrytown, N. Y. Messrs. Totty, O'Mara, Weathered and Traendly took part in the interesting discussion.

A. J. Guttman read the report of the outing committee. A change of location and methods was suggested for the outing of 1916.

C. F. Heitzmann, George Hildenbrand and John Scheepers were elected to membership and A. F. Baldwin was nominated.

The secretary read an interesting letter from R. C. Kerr, of Houston, as to the coming convention of the S. A. F. and suggested a change of date to the last week of June or the first week of July. The suggestion will be considered at the October meeting.

Announcement was made by President Bunyard of the deaths of Samuel Thorne, Lawrence Kervan and Edwin Lonsdale and a committee was appointed to draw up suitable resolutions.

A letter was read from Secretary Lane, of the American Dahlia Society, now over 100 members, announcing the society's first show, September 24 to 26, and asking the coöperation of the club's members in making it a success.

Secretary Young reminded the club of the meeting of the New York Federation of Floral Clubs at Syracuse September 16 and also gave an interesting account of his stay in California.

Various Notes.

Oscar Schultz and family, of Newport, R. I., have enjoyed their vacation in New York city and on an automobile trip through New England.

A. Kakuda, of the Yokohama Nursery Co., has returned from the San Francisco exposition, where he had charge of the firm's extensive exhibit.

President Vincent, of the American Dahlia Society, was in the city Thursday, September 9, attending the special meeting of the new organization, at the Grand hotel. Much enthusiasm was manifested, and the indications for a great success were most encouraging. The society has already nearly 100 members. The show will open Friday, September 24, and continue through Sunday, September 26. Some of the leading retailers, including Max Schling, Geo. E. M. Stumpp, A. Kottmiller and Myer, will exhibit.

A. Kottmiller has built a new icebox and added pergola effects to his stores. He will have his new Studebaker automobile in commission September 16. Mr. Kottmiller has the flower department at the Vanderbilt hotel. Adolph Behr is in charge.

Joseph Barnitt, of Alex. McConnell's force, and Mrs. Barnitt have returned from a two months' trip to the coast. Drew Scott and wife are enjoying a two weeks' automobile trip in the Catskills. The nurseries at New Rochelle owned by Mr. McConnell are now in all their autumn glory. Many orders are booked for landscape work this fall. The former Miss Adelaide Peck, the secretary, and Richard Batten, Jr., are enjoying a month's honeymoon trip to California.

Frank L. Deery, of Boston, for many years with the Galvin stores there, is now manager for Thos. J. Galvin, Inc., in New York, and will make this city his permanent residence.

Roman J. Irwin reports his French bulb orders all filled. His Dutch bulbs have just been received.

Wadley & Smythe will have the decorations for the Pratt wedding October 6 at Glen Cove.

H. E. Froment thinks there will be an overstock of yellow roses this season, and that there will be fewer Killarneys than usual.

J. K. Vosberg, of the force of J. M. Thorburn & Co., has returned from a two weeks' holiday in the Catskills.

Arthur T. Boddington Co., Inc., is said to contemplate moving from West Fourteenth street to the seedsmen's section, between Cortlandt street and Chambers street.

The MacNiff Horticultural Co. had a big display of large decorative palms at its opening sale September 14.

Weeber & Don are displaying the St. Regis raspberry in full fruit in their windows.

H. A. Bunyard and family have been enjoying the summer at Patchogue, L. I.

Mr. and Mrs. Rigby, of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., have returned from their two weeks' holiday in New England.

The flower show in New York next spring seems to be assured, the last meeting of the joint committees proving most harmonious. F. R. Pierson was appointed chairman, F. R. Newbold, treasurer, and John Young, secretary. T. A. Havemeyer, F. H. Traendly and C. H. Totty are the committee on the place of exhibition, etc.

Samuel Woodrow continues busy with landscape contracts in northern Massachusetts and Long Island.

Eddie Anker, of Traendly & Schenck's selling force, is proud of the distinction his brother is achieving as one of the star pitchers of Connie Mack's Athletics at a salary of $3,000 a year.

Wm. H. Gunther, of Gunther Bros., is back from his summer vacation.

One of the attractive displays last week on West Twenty-Eighth street was the large delivery automobile just purchased by the Kervan Co.

The New York Florist Supply Co. will be in its new building before October 1.

The MacNiff Horticultural Co. has added an electric addressing machine to its many conveniences.

J. Austin Shaw.

The new orchid-shade seedling chrysanthemums of Frank Dinda, of Farmingdale, sell at $5 per dozen at Guttman & Raynor's. The firm is also receiving the new seedling carnation, Olive Whitman.

Charles A. Dards has sent a circular letter to the trade transmitting the information supplied by the Merchants' Association of New York with regard to the methods to be pursued by those who wish to import goods of German origin.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

Bellamy Bros., Syracuse, N. Y., have substituted concrete for wooden benches in one house. The center bench is 6½x154 feet; the two side benches are each 3½x154 feet. Harry Bellamy figures they saved more than $150 in first cost of material and labor. He will be glad to give details to any Review reader who is interested. He has no patent on the construction.

F. H. Ebeling, Syracuse, reports one of the best seasons in his long experience, both in seeds and sundries. Bulbs are secondary, owing to late calls for farm seeds.

P. R. Quinlan, Syracuse, is showing some first-rate asters. This section is peculiarly adapted to their culture both for blooms and for seeds.

W. C. Rowlands, Utica, N. Y., is quite optimistic at this time, his wife having successfully undergone a serious operation. Dr. Rowlands complains of having a surplus stock of gold on hand, something unusual these days, but in his case due to depression in the dental business. This is, however, picking up with the general improvement in trade conditions. He is growing sweet peas and carnations almost exclusively, chiefly Rosette, which seems to do better than Mrs. C. W. Ward in this soil.

Milton T. Jones, the seedsman of Utica, is whiling away a few weeks at Alexandria Bay, following an exceptionally good season. His manager, L. V. Vanderwood, is a successful raiser of and authority on prize poultry, which, as he says, fit in nicely, even if only as an advertisement.

Frank Baker has chrysanthemums, Wm. Mathews cattleyas and Wm. Pfeifer carnations, all quite promising, so that Utica may be tempted to exhibit at Cleveland. Dr. Rowlands is particularly interested, voicing the opinion of many that exhibitions, whether trade or otherwise, are the life of trade. This summer he has furnished flowers from his garden for the dining tables of the largest dry goods house in this city, free of charge, on the theory that the patrons will become so accustomed to their presence that the caterer will see the advisability of continuing their use when stock is scarce and must be purchased.

M.

BRAMPTON, ONT.

The Market.

August trade showed a decided improvement of business when compared with that of last year. September has opened most hopefully. The disagreeable and sultry weather continues. Although roses are coming into crop luxuriantly, great difficulty is experienced in carrying them a short distance, even when well iced and carefully boxed. Such weather has never been known here, and it is sincerely hoped that another week or two will bring a change for the better.

Violets are already arriving in small quantities and indications are for a good crop during the next few weeks.

Hoosier Beauty, Shawyer, Russell, Ophelia, Stanley and Brunner are some of the newer varieties of roses being grown here this year, and judging by the present demand, the change from the older varieties is thoroughly appreciated. In Ophelia and Shawyer the public has two greater favorites than have appeared on the Canadian market for a considerable time.

Various Notes.

Work around the greenhouses at the Dale Estate is more backward than usual at this time of the year, owing to the enlistment of many of the hands. No less than four growers left for the front during the last fortnight, two of them being men whose services have been much valued.

Many visited the Toronto exhibition last week, where the flower section was of great attraction. A fine orchid exhibit was shown by the Dale Estate, which secured a gold medal and first prize. The chief prize-winners in the various groups were:

Bride's bouquet—S. A. Frost, first; George Bonnett, second; Thomas Manton, third.
Presentation basket—George Bonnett, first; S. A. Frost, second; H. G. Dillemuth, third.
Centerpiece—H. G. Dillemuth, first; Thomas Manton, second; S. A. Frost, third.
Table decoration—S. A. Frost, first; H. G. Dillemuth, second; Thomas Manton, third.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Dale returned last week from their visit to the San Francisco exposition.

Among the visitors last week were O. L. Smith, of Smiths Falls; James Wilson, of Woodstock; T. C. Graham, Wingham; George Urban, Jr., Buffalo, N. Y.; C. M. Critchison, Berlin; E. J. Wortley, superintendent of the department of horticulture, Bermuda islands, and Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Burns, of Negritus, Peru.

W. G. P.

KNOXVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

The weather last week was good. It was more like summer than any other week during the season.

Trade has been exceedingly good for some time. There has been much funeral work. The first bulbs have been received, and the sales are better than usual so early in the season. Narcissus bulbs appear to be of better quality than usual. Fall weddings have begun, and, from the number of announcements made, they promise a good season for the florist. It is hoped that the fall season will make up for the poor spring season.

Stock is scarce, and on many occasions it takes scraping to fill orders. Dahlias are the main crop. Roses are fair, but the supply is limited. With the exception of a few stragglers, asters are gone. New mountain ferns and galax are beginning to come in, and they are fine because of the heavy rains of spring and summer.

Various Notes.

C. L. Baum, Floyd Baum and Will Ryno recently made a pleasant and profitable trip through the Carolinas, stopping at Asheville, N. C., where they reported seeing fine stock at the Brownhurst Greenhouses and the E. C. Dickinson place. They also stopped at Spartanburg, S. C., visiting Chas. A. Moss.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Crouch are spending the summer at Atlantic City.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Dailey and their two daughters have returned from a two months' trip through the west and to the Panama-Pacific exposition. They had a fine journey.

All of the florists who indorsed Prof. G. M. Bentley as state entomologist were much disappointed when he failed to get the appointment. Prof. Bentley has held this position for a number of years and is an unusually good man in this line of work. He has been a great help to the florists and ornamental nurserymen throughout the state.

The officers and committeemen of the Tennessee State Florists' Society will meet in the near future to discuss the meeting to be held in January, at Nashville. They will plan for a flower show and will discuss means of soliciting new members.

Sydney Bayersdorfer, of Philadelphia, was in Knoxville September 9.

R. E. M.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

A week of unseasonably warm weather brought large quantities of stock to the market, and as the demand was light, there was a small-sized glut. Asters, roses and dahlias formed the bulk of the supplies. The Jenkins funeral created a rush in the wholesale market and among a few of the retailers. Only the best stock was called for. Beauties, valley, cattleyas and lilies were mostly used, but as the majority of this line came from out-of-town, the local supply was unaffected by the increased demand. The Hebrew New Year trade, while light, helped to relieve the congestion. Dahlias are coming in heavily, but are not meeting with the sale of former years. Mums are becoming noticeable. Carnations still are rather poor.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club was held September 13. The night was hot and close, which brought out only a few members. President Hamilton occupied the chair. As the carnival parade was held that evening, the routine business of the meeting was transacted as quickly as possible. Richard Vincent, Jr., extended an invitation to the club to attend his firm's annual dahlia show, at White Marsh, the week of September 28. It was decided to name September 29 as Florists' Club day at the show. Mr. Vincent spoke on the show of the American Dahlia Society, to be held at New York, September 24 to 26, and invited all interested to exhibit and attend the show.

Various Notes.

Several florists will shortly add auto delivery to their services. John Cook will use an Overland and M. P. Johnston will put his second car of that make on the street. William J. Halliday will install a Ford with a specially built body, the Leo Niessen Co. will have a Ford and Pierce & Co. will shortly replace their machine with one of larger capacity.

R. A. Vincent lectured on dahlias before the Lancaster Florists' Club September 16.

Louis Strunz has installed a new sectional boiler and is rearranging his entire heating system.

While returning from the market in their auto truck, Mrs. Fred Michel fell underneath the machine, and one of the wheels passed over her arm and shoulder. She was removed to the hospital. For a time it was feared that it would be necessary to amputate her arm, but now the attending physicians think this can be avoided.

I. H. Moss is shipping some good Golden Glow mums to the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co.

H. J. Quick and Charles H. Cook are again attending their stalls in Lexington market.

W. F. E.

CLEVELAND.

Vegetable Growers Meet.

The annual meeting of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America, held at the Hollenden hotel September 7 to 9, brought to town a number of those who are florists as well as market gardeners and the points of trade interest around Cleveland had many visitors last week. The members of the association in a body visited the Rocky River gardening district.

The Gardening Contest.

The vacant lot and home gardening contest arranged by a local newspaper was concluded last week and attracted considerable attention from those in the trade. The products from the gardens entered in competition for prizes were exhibited in the new municipal bath house, under most favorable conditions. Competition was exceedingly close, as was evinced by the fact that the much coveted silver cup offered by A. C. Kendel, the seedsman, was being awarded to a daughter of Eve when, upon closer view, a flaw was discovered, "right in the core of the apple," to use Adam Graham's expression, and the award was made to a son of Fortunas. The mouth of the epicure fairly watered at the tempting fruits and vegetables and it was not surprising that right in the middle of the judging, at the suggestion of Herman Hart, the judges took lunch.

W. M.

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Business has improved since the last writing, but the increase is mostly in funeral work, which has been heavy. Stock is more plentiful.

Carnations are being received, and although the stems are rather short, the quality of the flowers is good. There is a large supply of them. Gladioli still are to be had in any quantity, and large numbers of them are disposed of daily. Mums are beginning to come. There are good yellow and white varieties to be seen, and it will not be long before we shall have them in large quantities. Lilies are scarce, but a good supply is expected in the near future. Valley is a trifle shy at present. Asters are not plentiful, but the carnations are taking their place. There is a demand for blooming plants, but little of that kind is to be had now.

Various Notes.

The awards of the flower show of the Ohio state fair were split among four commercial growers of Ohio. The Livingston Seed Co., of Columbus, heads the list with thirteen first awards and eleven second awards. The Indianola Florist, also of Columbus, was a close second with twelve firsts, eleven seconds and one third award. The exhibits of Gray & Son, Salem, O., were given one first award, three second awards and one third award. Hardesty & Co., of Cincinnati, won one first prize and one fourth prize. Joseph Coleman, of Lexington, O., could not enter his exhibits of cut flowers for the reason that he had not been notified of the change in the date of the cut flower exhibit. Although Mr. Coleman's flowers arrived a day late, the showing was passed upon by the judges, who considered his dahlias and gladioli superior to all others of the show. Mr. Coleman was given additional first prizes in both classes.

Sherman Stephens is much improved in health, and it is hoped that he will be able to leave the hospital before long.

J. M.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Florists are beginning to report slightly increased business. As most of the flower buyers have returned from their vacations and as the fall season is near, there should be a noticeable improvement in business within a short time. Collections are still slow, but there has been some improvement along this line within the last week or two.

The new stock of the growers is developing splendidly. A few are beginning to cut Golden Glow chrysanthemums, but not in sufficient quantity to send to market. The mum plants in practically all the greenhouses are of fine quality, and the same may be said of carnations. One grower has already begun to cut carnations in small lots, but the others will not have any to send to market for several weeks. Hardly any of the new crop are seen in the retail stores. Asters and gladioli still remain the staples, though the quality of the latter is beginning to deteriorate. The asters, however, are of good quality. Dahlias continue to come in, and within a week or two it is expected that they will be overabundant.

Various Notes.

William Weismantel has repaired and repainted his greenhouse in preparation for the work of the coming season. He has had several funeral orders.

McLaughlin & Murphy report that they have had a great deal of funeral work and a few wedding decorations during the summer months. Their store is being renovated.

May's Flower Shop, 265 South Orange avenue, has done fairly well during the summer months. Good business is expected when the fall season opens.

Kimmerle & Minder anticipate a large fall business. The new greenhouse which this firm is erecting will connect the store with the other greenhouses.

The J. J. Wilson Seed Co. has a fine exhibit of dahlia blooms in one of its windows. The display contains some of the best dahlia blooms ever seen in Newark.

The Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Society will hold its annual flower show in James assembly hall, October 28 and 29. There will be thirty-eight classes of chrysanthemums and thirty-one classes of carnations.

The sessions of the Essex County Florists' Club have been resumed. The first meeting was held at Kruger's auditorium. Plans for the coming season's work were discussed. R. B. M.

SAGINAW, MICH.

The Market.

Business last week was not of the rushing kind. Roses are more plentiful and the welcome carnations have made their appearance. The almost continuous rains for the last two weeks have ruined the most hardy outdoor flowers, to say nothing of the asters, which are done for. Chrysanthemums are not quite ready yet, although there are some expected next week. Rubrum and album lilies are abundant.

Various Notes.

A call on John Zimmerman, at Mt. Pleasant, Mich., was made by Carl L. Roethke, Fred Goetz, Michael Zorn and Henry Goetz, of Saginaw, and J. A. Bittner, of Alma. They were met at the station with a car and taken to the greenhouses, where the stock is in fine shape. Two houses are in carnations, one in roses, one in chrysanthemums and two in smilax, asparagus and pot plants. Mr. Zimmerman reports business as good. The visit to Mt. Pleasant was supposed to be for the monthly meeting of the Saginaw-Bay City Floricultural Society, but neither President Rudolph G. Boehringer nor Vice-President F. H. Stevens appeared on the scene, so no meeting was held.

The Wm. Roethke Floral Co. has all its ironwork up on the new houses, which are to be planted to carnations.

Grohman recently was favored with a large wedding decoration at Grayling, which required a quantity of palms and ferns to decorate both house and church, also the flowers for house and bridal party.

Charles Frueh & Sons have all their houses, which they moved from Hoyt avenue to the Genesee avenue range, planted to winter-blooming stock.

J. B. Goetz Sons are cutting some fine Mock roses, which are good sellers with them. New carnations are being cut in small quantities of good quality.

Boehringer Bros., at Bay City, have three Moninger steel-frame houses 22x 150 feet, of which two are planted to carnations and one to cool plants and forcing stock.

D. Shepherd, Bay City, has retired from the florists' business.

The recent visitors were: L. Holland, of M. Rice Co., Philadelphia; S. D. Greene, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia; A. W. Herre, representing the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago; Harry Balsley, Detroit. Gee.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

The Market.

Though the weather has been exceptionally warm for September, the outdoor flowers have held up well. There has been a glut of asters and gladioli. However, with the help of Flower day, September 12, asters were cleaned up well; the pink ones even became scarce.

Various Notes.

The engagement is announced of Fred Reynolds and Mrs. Mabelle T. Edson, of Chester, Vt. The wedding is to take place September 22.

Post & Gray report an excellent trade at their downtown counter. Their new Woods Mobilette delivery is attracting a great deal of attention and is of great assistance in making prompt deliveries. Edward Enos, in the employ of this firm, is spending two weeks' vacation in and about Providence.

Some of the best asters to be had in the city are grown by William Brown, at Cedar street.

S. E. Shaw has planted a large house to carnations. He is cutting some fine asters and gladioli.

Joseph V. Pierce is cutting some excellent roses from his new plants.

W. M. P.

WORCESTER, MASS.

The Market.

Retail sales are increasing in volume, after two dull business months, July and August. The home flower gardens are about exhausted, for the public is coming to the florists again. There have been many weddings of late, which have given work to some of the shops. Asters and dahlias have been of good quality, and most of the outdoor flowers are fine. Cold storage lilies have been fair.

Various Notes.

H. F. A. Lange has four orders for large wedding decorations this month. At the New England fair he received first prize for a group of potted plants and in the floral parade Mr. Lange's car won second prize. The car was decorated with red poppies, lilies and hydrangeas. Mr. Lange has received two bulb shipments from France and one from Japan.

The windows of Henry Randall have been made highly attractive by well planned displays. Mr. Randall had a car in the New England floral parade, decorated with gladioli, for which he was awarded a prize. H. L.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

The appearance of a few early chrysanthemums indicates the approach of the season of activity, but as yet there is no stimulation of business. Reports from all the trade indicate that they will be ready for the rush whenever it sets in. Gladioli are practically gone. Asters are on the wane, field-grown blooms being extremely poor. Prices still sag and it will be a fortnight to four weeks before there will be any material improvement.

Various Notes.

Nels G. Pierson, of Norwood, with his family, is taking a week's vacation at Quonochontaug, on the south coast of the state.

Daniel A. Clarke, of the Red Oak Nurseries, Fiskeville, entertained the members of the Rhode Island Field Naturalists' Club September 4, and escorted them over his 200 acres of stock.

Dahlia growers in the vicinity of the Elmwood district, of this city, have organized the Elmwood Dahlia Society, with rooms at 167 Huntington avenue.

Floyd Howe, for a number of years with Macnair, has resigned his position, to enter another line of business.

James Hay has completed his new greenhouses and office on Eldredge avenue, East Greenwich.

One of the early weddings will be that of Miss Tyree Banigan, stepdaughter of Timothy O'Connor, of this city, and Philip F. L'Engle, of Atlanta, Ga., October 6.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sword, of Lonsdale, are spending a two weeks' vacation in Montreal, Can.

The Providence Horticultural Co., E. M. Pope, proprietor, has opened a suite of rooms at 107 Westminster street.

Henry J. Doll has commenced the erection of a small greenhouse in the rear of 609 Douglas avenue.

Miss Florence Willard, of the Hope Greenhouses, has been confined to the house for the last three weeks by a complication of troubles resulting from an attack of the grip.

Edward O'Brien has returned to his work after a month's vacation.

F. Macrae & Sons are cutting some fine lilies, of which they have a large crop. They are shipping to George Cartwright, at the Boston Flower Exchange.

Joseph Koppelman broke ground last week for another large house at his range on Pawtucket avenue, East Providence. It will be 35x300, of Lord & Burnham construction. He has several thousand hardy looking carnation and chrysanthemum plants, all benched, from which early cuts are expected.

Cornelius Hartstra and John Marshall, of this city, were the judges at the annual dahlia exhibition of the Greystone Horticultural Society, September 4.

The September exhibition of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society will be held at the Narragansett hotel, September 16 and 17. W. H. M.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Last week the weather was decidedly hot, which caused a noticeable business slump. The supply of stock on the market is far in excess of actual needs. This is particularly true of roses. Asters are in heavy supply and as yet have shown few signs of a reduction in quantity. Gladioli are in good supply. Easter lilies are plentiful and rubrum can be had in any quantity. Dahlias and cosmos are arriving in large batches. Carnations are better than they have been.

Club Meeting.

The Cincinnati Florists' Society held its regular meeting at Hotel Gibson, September 13. President Max Rudolph was in the chair. J. A. Peterson gave an interesting talk on the S. A. F. convention at San Francisco and the Panama-Pacific fair. He was enthusiastic over both, and regretted that Cincinnati was not better represented at the convention. John Van Leeuwen, who was elected a member of the society at this meeting, made an address on coöperation of the florists in buying.

Various Notes.

Charles E. Critchell was the first florist on Third street to offer chrysanthemums this season.

J. T. Conger is on his second motor trip to Anderson, Ind.

J. A. Peterson has started on an extended business trip.

Visitors last week included George Lampert, of Xenia, O.; Joseph Hill, Fred Lemon and Earl Mann, all of Richmond, Ind., and H. J. Vander Horst, of St. Marys, O. C. H. H.

SHORT COURSES AT CORNELL.

For Commercial Florists.

In the short term at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., November 9, 1915, to February 12, 1916, the following courses are planned especially for persons who intend to engage in commercial floriculture. Course 2 is equally well suited for those interested in vegetable forcing under glass. In addition to these lectures, frequent talks by men engaged in practical work in flower growing have been arranged. An extended observation trip will be taken during the course, when all candidates for a certificate of proficiency will be required to visit the violet growing sections near Poughkeepsie, the wholesale and retail markets of New York city and the large growing establishments in that vicinity. The courses are:

Required Subjects.

Commercial Floriculture and Greenhouse Practice. Seven hours a week. Professor White and Mr. Thayer. A study of the methods of growing standard florists' crops, such as roses, carnations, violets, sweet peas, orchids and bedding plants. So far as possible, laboratory practice in growing these crops will be given. The course is designed to familiarize the student with the ordinary work of the greenhouse and the garden. Laboratory fee, $3.

Commercial Greenhouse and Conservatory Construction and Heating. Three hours a week. Mr. Thayer. This course considers details of the construction and heating of glass houses for growing plants and vegetables; choice of location; water, soil and light; glazing, and all the conditions found in well appointed modern ranges. The construction and care of hotbeds and coldframes are also studied. Laboratory work consists of drawings of construction details, the making of plans and specifications, preparation of estimates and any practical work in construction that may be available. Laboratory fee, $1.50.

Other required subjects are Fertility of the Land, Soils and Plant Breeding, Plant Diseases, Injurious Insects. Extension Work and Rural Improvement are elective subjects.

Further information regarding any of the courses mentioned may be obtained from Professor E. A. White, head of the department of floriculture, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.

Elyria, O.—James McLaughlin, formerly of the Elyria Flower Store, has gone into the florists' business for himself. He has opened his store, named the Floral Art Shop, at 367 Broad street.

Huntsville, Ala.—John Scott, who disappeared from his home September 4, has been traced to Swancott, where he crossed the Tennessee river. Mr. Scott is believed to be temporarily deranged. He had been ill several weeks and had been allowed out of his room only two or three days previous to his disappearance.

VEGETABLES AND FRUITS DEPARTMENT

VEGETABLE GROWERS MEET.

Officers Elected.

At the annual meeting of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America M. L. Ruetenik, of Cleveland, was reelected as president, S. W. Severance, of Louisville, was reëlected secretary and E. A. Dunbar, of Ashtabula, O., as treasurer.

H. W. Selby, of Philadelphia, was elected vice-president, succeeding Daniel R. Comley.

Eighth Annual Meeting.

The Vegetable Growers' Association of America was organized at Cleveland eight years ago and has held many successful meetings, but, all things considered, the one of 1915, held September 7 to 9 at the Hollenden hotel, Cleveland, was the best of the lot. If the attendance did not break records it was at least large and the exhibition was the best thus far; instead of consisting almost wholly of samples of articles for sale to vegetable growers, the display this year consisted largely of the prize-winning products of the members.

The program, which began with an address by Welfare Director Cooley, representing the mayor of Cleveland, and closed with a banquet at which W. G. Rose, president of the Cleveland Advertising Club, acted as toastmaster, was arranged to allow as much time as possible for the inspection of local greenhouses and gardens. A visit was paid to the Cleveland market at 5 a. m. September 9.

The most important matters before the association were the inconsistencies between state statutes defining legal weights and measures and the report of the committee on coöperative buying and selling. Resolutions were adopted urging uniformity in legal weights per bushel. The committee on coöperative buying was continued, with power to act.

Round table discussions on a number of trade topics were scheduled instead of formal essays. As to seed supply, Francis P. Stokes and F. W. Therkildson, of Philadelphia, were appealed to for assurances that shortages will not be acute.

CUCUMBERS UNDER GLASS.

I am building a small greenhouse in which to grow cucumbers next winter, and I am taking the liberty of asking your advice on the subject. Please tell me how to mix the soil, when to plant and where to get good seed.

W. J. S.—Cal.

Cucumbers require a warm, moist temperature for successful culture. A minimum of 60 to 65 degrees is necessary in winter. Cold drafts must be guarded against, or mildew will appear, while in too dry an atmosphere red spider will soon appear. They can be grown in either raised benches or solid beds. The majority of growers prefer the latter. The soil must be rich and should consist of three parts well decayed sod and one part decayed cow manure. If decayed sod and cow manure are not procurable, use good pasture loam of not too heavy a texture, with some sod in it, if possible, and well rotted horse manure.

The seeds can be started in small pots, one in a 3-inch pot. Later the seedlings can be planted out two to four inches apart in the rows. A trellis of wire and stout twine is necessary to train them on. Fruit can be picked in six to eight weeks from planting, according to the season. In fall and early winter it is more difficult to grow and fruit plants successfully than in late winter and spring. Artificial pollination of the flowers is necessary in winter. Many of the large cucumber specialists now use hives of bees, which fertilize the flowers. In order to prevent bacterial diseases, many growers now sterilize their soil each year before planting.

A first-class strain of Arlington White Spine cucumber is the most satisfactory for forcing purposes. Buy seed from one of the various seed growers and dealers advertising in The Review. The long English cucumbers of the Telegraph type are popular with many people, and if you chance to have any fancy customers they might prefer some of this type. White Spine and Telegraph succeed under the same treatment. C. W.

USINGER'S UTTERANCES.

C. Gunton, formerly of Oliver's Greenhouses, has purchased the Red Rock Rosery, at Bradford, Pa., E. B. Sage having retired from the florists' business.

Seth Ropper has taken over Oliver's Greenhouses, at Bradford, Pa. He was foreman of the Red Rock Rosery for eight years.

G. Lawrence Graham, of Bradford, reports a good business in cut flowers for this time of the year.

Dana R. Herron, of Olean, N. Y., is cutting some exceptionally fine asters.

Elmer Rawlings, of Allegany, N. Y., who grows geraniums for the wholesale trade, believes that his present business indicates that the florists are again to enjoy a successful year.

M. M. Dye, of Salamanca, N. Y., is adding a house to his range, which he expects to have finished this month.

F. N. Kidder, of N. A. Kidder & Son, North Warren, Pa., is the proud father of a baby boy.

A. H. Sharman, of Warren, Pa., is using street car advertising to good advantage. He finds the illustrated advertisements are a big factor in his rapidly increasing business.

The Baur Floral Co., of Erie, Pa., is making elaborate window displays of gladioli, which produce a ready sale for these beautiful flowers.

Chas. G. Offerle, of Erie, reports a large quantity of funeral work, with good counter trade, to help business along.

Trost & Steinfurth, of Erie, are busy repairing their greenhouses and making improvements.

The float which won first prize for Pittsburgh lodge No. 11 at the Elks' state convention, at Erie, during the week of August 23, was decorated by Miles R. Miller, of Erie. In it he used 10,000 purple and white asters. Three dozen doves were tied with ribbons to a teeter twelve feet long, which gave the effect of flying doves. W. T. U.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.
Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1915: President, Patrick Welch, Boston; vice-president, Daniel MacRorie, San Francisco; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo

Officers for 1916: President, Daniel MacRorie, San Francisco; vice-president, R. C. Kerr, Houston, Tex. Secretary and treasurer as before.

Thirty-second annual convention, Houston, Texas, August 15 to 18, 1916.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

THERE was a notable increase last spring in the call for salvias and bedding plant specialists will prepare much larger supplies for 1916.

THIS is fair time and more florists than ever before are taking advantage of the opportunity to show their wares to a lot of people who should be buyers.

THE latest thing with the glasshouse owners in England is insurance against Zeppelin bombs. Their government writes the policy, the same as other war risk insurance.

THE man who works up a large stock of good geranium plants this fall and has them in flower early next spring stands little chance of being stuck; the surplus always is of plants that were not ready in time.

THE eastern members who attended the S. A. F. convention have nearly all returned home, having devoted from three weeks to a month to the trip, and are enthusiastic about it. Another convention on the Pacific Coast probably would draw well, even with no expositions as a special attraction.

THE renaissance of summer has been general, during the preceding week, practically all over the United States. In many places the highest temperatures of the year to date have been registered since September 9. It was inevitable that cut flower production should be accelerated and demand reduced.

HONORABLE MENTION.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper. Among those who have this week enrolled themselves for more than one year in advance are:

THREE YEARS.

Mau, Otto F., Wheaton, Ill.

TWO YEARS.

Boyle, John J., Houston, Tex.
Edwards Floral Hall Co., Atlantic City, N. J.
Geselschap, A. F., Orange City, Ia.
Curwen, John, Berwyn, Pa.

The Review stops coming when the subscription runs out. The green notice with the last copy tells the story; no bills are run up; no duns are sent.

BUSINESS GAINING.

The weekly review published by R. G. Dun & Co. says:

"Business as a whole reveals more seasonable character and developments sustain rapid recovery in prominent branches. Payments through the banks exhibit a favorable comparison and the record of trading defaults is lowest for the year. The evidences of improvement are strengthened by increasing reëmployment of factory labor, by new high record outputs at the steel mills, by wider demand for crude and semi-finished supplies, and by the magnificent crop conditions shown by this week's government report.

TO OBTAIN GERMAN GOODS.

The State department at Washington is preparing to take active steps to obtain for American firms goods of German origin contracted for prior to March 1 with legal liability of payment. This is in consequence of a telegram received from Ambassador Page, at London, saying that it is now understood that the British government agrees to receive applications presented by the foreign trade advisers, acting informally on behalf of importers, through the British embassy at Washington.

The State department has explained for the benefit of firms who wish to secure such German goods the necessary formalities to be undertaken. Evidence must be submitted to the office of the foreign trade advisers, at the Department of State, Washington, that goods were ordered by an American firm or for its account before March 1, by a contract under the terms of which the purchaser was legally bound to pay for the goods. This should be accompanied by:

1. An affidavit giving the history and a clear statement of the circumstances of the case and substantiating the documentary evidence submitted.

2. Either the original contract or a certified copy showing the conditions stated above.

3. Copies of order sheets, original acceptances, pro forma invoices, and consular invoices, if available. There should also be indicated the marks, numbers, value, class of goods, and name and address of your shipping agent in Rotterdam, or other neutral European port.

This evidence will be submitted unofficially by the foreign trade advisers to the British embassy as soon as details of the arrangement are perfected.

NEXT WEEK'S WEATHER.

Weekly weather forecast, issued by the U. S. Weather Bureau, Washington, D. C., for the week beginning Wednesday, September 15, 1915:

For the Region of the Great Lakes—Local thunder showers will be followed by fair and cooler weather beginning September 16.

For the Upper Mississippi Valley and Plains States—The week will be one of generally fair and cool weather, with some probability of frosts the first half of the week in the middle and northern plains states and the extreme upper Mississippi valley.

For the Ohio Valley and Tennessee—Fair and warm weather will be followed by showers by September 16 and by generally fair and cool weather thereafter until the close of the week.

For the West Gulf States—Showers in the east portion at the beginning of the week will be followed by generally fair weather. In this district temperatures will average near or slightly below normal.

SECURED FINE TRADE.

It is a Pennsylvanian who makes this report, and it is of interest to advertisers and prospective advertisers to note that The Review has more subscribers in New York and Pennsylvania than in any other states—more even than in Illinois:

Drop the snapdragon ad; all sold by the ad in The Review. Continue the other. Have secured some fine trade through advertising in The Review.—Fairview Greenhouses, Milton, Pa., September 11, 1915.

The steady increase in the number of florists who rely on the Classified ads to sell such stock as they do not need for their retail trade is the best evidence of the effectiveness of these inexpensive ads.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Just when everyone was ready for the fall season to begin, it became necessary to put away the light overcoats, and the Palm Beach suits were again called into requisition. With September 12 the hottest day of the year, and the two days succeeding it close seconds, the market regeneration in process received a most decided check, and summer quiet prevailed. The anomalous change in the weather, however, was fraught with some interesting results.

The unusual heat, as a matter of course, brought an increased supply of roses to the market. The quality, though, has been affected, and many thousands of flowers are open when they reach the market. Russell in particular seems to be the chief sufferer, with the possible exception of Richmond. In spite of this, Russell is clearing better than anything else in the shape of a rose. Killarney, also, is moving better than would seem possible under the circumstances. The development of rose stock generally has been retarded by the cloudy weather of the last few weeks, and the sudden advent of extreme heat has quite naturally resulted in the popping open prematurely of large quantites of buds. Beauties, though affected by conditions, are moving fairly well.

Russell and Milady

TWO ROSES ALL FLOWER BUYERS WANT

OUR TRADE is different from the average if it does not call for Mrs. Russell, the leader among novelty roses, and Milady, the best red rose ever offered—all flower buyers like them. We have arranged for large and continuous supplies of these two roses this season. Now ready to supply good qualities in quantity.

OPHELIA - SUNBURST - WARD

You will find it will help build up your trade to carry these Roses steadily in stock and to get your supply regularly from us.

THE KILLARNEYS

PINK—BRILLIANT—WHITE

While we have good supplies of Killarney and White Killarney, we are specially strong on Killarney Brilliant. We want you to order Brilliant because we know you will like it. All lengths in good supply.

HEADQUARTERS FOR BRUNNER AND ELGAR

FANCY BEAUTIES

We shall handle more Beauties this season than any other house in the west, and that is the same as saying more than any other house in America. The number of plants from which our cut will come has not been reduced—it has been increased. It will be to your advantage to let us have your orders.

MUMS ARE READY

We are ready to supply Golden Glow, yellow, and Smith's Advance, white, good stock, in quantity.

EASTER LILIES

A large supply of Giganteums, the flower that makes the most show for the money when worked up in sprays.

ASTERS

This week we can furnish the best Asters of the season; strictly exhibition stock.

VALLEY

We can supply good Valley all the time; to avoid disappointment order here.

EVERYTHING IN GREENS

None of our customers has had any difficulty getting all the good Ferns that were needed—we always have them. Also headquarters for Plumosus Sprays, Sprengeri, Smilax, Galax, Adiantum, etc., etc.

The supply of carnations from under glass continues to increase daily and the quality is remarkably good considering the hot weather. In most cases the wholesalers find little occasion to place them in the iceboxes, as the buyers are generally anxious to pick them up. Asters continue plentiful, but little can be said of their quality, as the market is flooded with rain-soaked stock. First-class stock, however, can still be disposed of at a fair price.

The supply of chrysanthemums has been greatly augmented by the heat. The quality, however, is far from what it should be. There are too many spots and brown petals in evidence. The larger part of the receipts is made up of Golden Glow. White mums, though available, are not plentiful. Dahlias are few, but the demand is even weaker than the supply. While quite popular in the east, the dahlia has never been able to force itself into public favor in this market. Perhaps that may be attributed to the fact that it has the reputation of being a poor keeper. Gladioli may be found if they are wanted.

Valley continues scarce, though not so short as it was a week ago, it is still difficult for one wholesaler to buy it of another. Cattleyas, too, are on the short side of the market and enjoy a fair demand. Easter lilies, auratums and rubrums are in good supply and of excellent quality. They can be moved, but the price must be low.

Greens have experienced a complete regeneration. They are clearing better than for many weeks. Ferns have been scarce for a day or two.

Club Meeting.

Though no regular program was scheduled for the meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club, September 9, unexpected events afforded, not only entertainment and diversion, but information as well. The rooms usually subject to the uses of the club were undergoing redecorating, which resulted in an adjournment to the well known Berlin room. Right here the entertainment and distraction began. Owing to the rumble of the drums and the blare of the horns, it was with difficulty that President Keimel could get the meeting into business session. Perhaps it was the music that inclined everyone present to be facetious almost to the point of jocularity, but at any rate things moved so smoothly that financial reports, committee reports and general business were disposed of with the regularity of a roll call and caused as little excitement and but a trifle more comment.

The picnic committee delivered itself of a final report, and Michael Fink, chairman of the good of the club committee, was given a rising vote of thanks for his earnest endeavors in the past. Nicholas Miller, secretary of the flower show committee, said he would be pleased to receive suggestions from any one relative to the premium list, and reported on behalf of A. Henderson, chairman of the trade space committee, that the sale of space in the Coliseum is progressing with a fair degree of rapidity and urging those de-

Cut Flower Service for the Merchant Florist

The receiving of a tremendous volume of fresh flowers from so many sources, and the proper distribution of the flowers to a discriminating trade, brings to us many difficulties. In striving and succeeding in overcoming these difficulties, we believe our service has developed to a point of efficiency that you can appreciate. May we have an opportunity of showing you?

Part of the Randall service for the merchant Florist is the regular mailing of cut flower price bulletins to florists throughout the country.

There is room for your name on that list, and we'll be glad to receive it.

Address your request to "Advertising Dept." or attach it to any order you may send.

Roses

You'll enjoy being able to order any variety, length or quantity, and knowing you'll get them when you want them and at reasonable prices. Killarneys, Russells, Wards, Sunbursts, etc.

Beauties

The one blossom that always holds the admiration of the fickle flower buying public. All lengths and very fair prices on first-class stock.

Mums

The most indifferent passerby notices Mums—they start the dormant season into activity. Plenty of White, Smith's Advance and the favored Golden Glow.

Carnations

New crop coming in splendidly. All colors—looking fresh and "live."

Wild Smilax

siring space to act before the eleventh hour. A communication from Charles Loveridge, Peoria, Ill., was read by the secretary, thanking the club for the distinction conferred upon him by electing him an honorary member.

The club membership was increased by the election thereto of: Paul Weiss, Maywood, Ill.; Emil Ehrhardt and Gustave Stege, both of Park Ridge, Ill.; J. A. Young, Mooseheart, Ill., and Frank Schramm, Crystal Lake, Ill. Applications for membership were made by: Otto Amling, Ernst C. Amling and Herbert A. Amling, all of Maywood, Ill., and August A. Frega, Bellewood, Ill.

Guy W. French, secretary, urged on those present the necessity of having the amalgamation banquet before the Grand Floral Festival, next November. After some discussion, October 7 was agreed upon as the most appropriate time. Mr. French, still irrepressible and insistent, revealed the fact that he is a man of motives by suggesting that a pass be issued to all members of the club in good standing. This, he hinted, would assist him materially in rounding up delinquents and filling the coffers of the club. His questionings were lulled to rest by the assurance of Nicholas Miller, secretary of the show committee, that all members in good standing should receive a season ticket.

The club's guest of honor, William Tricker, Arlington, N. J., of water lily fame, talked interestingly of his labors for twenty-five years to evolve a water lily that will bloom in the winter. He referred in brief to his blue water lily of last winter. At last he has succeeded in producing everblooming lilies. These, if properly handled, will bloom every day. This variety has been named in honor of the President's late wife, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson. It is a free bloomer, carrying ten to twelve flowers in bud on one plant. In color it is a light lavender. Panama-Pacific, a plum-purple variety, will be introduced next winter.

President Keimel took occasion to discourse enthusiastically on the wonders of the California expositions and the Pacific coast country. He spoke, among other things, of the methods used by the Japanese and Chinese in growing asters and chrysanthemums, and of the curious wall of mesembryanthemum at the exposition. His talk was highly entertaining and much enjoyed.

C. W. Johnson, of Morgan Park, president of the Illinois State Florists' Association, made a few remarks on the success of the last meeting of the executive board, at Peoria, August 31, and urged on Chicago florists a realization that the state organization is as much to them as the local club, and that it is working diligently in their behalf.

Vaughan's Greenhouses, Western Springs, staged two vases of dahlias, white, pink and scarlet, and a vase of summer lilac or butterfly bush, that attracted much attention.

Dr. Brod in Trouble.

Florists who have dealt with Dr. John Brod will be interested in the following, taken from the Chicago Tribune for September 12:

"'Dr.' John Brod, necromancer and florist, who has been prosecuted by the state board of health several times for 'quackery,' has been missing since August 3, and his creditors are beginning to worry about their claims.

"While his son and daughters and some of the people residing in the vicinity of his home at 5143 Warwick avenue are inclined to believe he met with accident or robbers, others think he was driven to cover by his financial affairs and the divorce suit of his fourth wife, Mrs. Sarah J. Lynch Brod, who published newspaper notices to the effect that she would be responsible for no debts except those contracted by herself.

"His attorneys, a well known firm in the loop, refused to comment on his absence. The house has been taken possession of by Attorney August G. Urbanski on the strength of a quit-claim deed made to Mrs. Antonnia Pufundt.

"Mrs Mary E. V. Cunningham had been receiving treatment at Brod's office over his chemical company office at 1758 North avenue. She fell downstairs and incurred injuries for which the court awarded her $1,000. Brod induced Mrs. Pufundt to sign his appeal bond. Mrs. Cunningham died before the upper court affirmed judgment, and her administrator sued on the bond.

"Then Brod gave Mrs. Pufundt a quit-claim deed. Subsequently Mrs. Brod sued for divorce. Henry F. Brinkman, a grocer, who says Brod ran up a bill of $60 before his disappearance, offered Attorney Urbanski $5,000 spot cash for the house if clear title could be passed, but as there is already $5,300 wedged against the house,

NO MORE RUSH SUPPLY ORDERS.

"Bang," the old man's fist came down on the buyer's desk.

The buyer, who was just pushing the buzzer to call a telegraph messenger, looked up in alarm.

"I tell you, boy, this is all foolishness. It costs money to wire and phone orders in. Keep stocked up."

The buyer started to argue: "There has been an unexpected run on Wire Designs and"—

"Unexpected poppycock and fiddlesticks! You know we are going to need Wire Designs, Chiffons, Ferns, Galax, Magnolia Leaves and Boxwood all this winter. Why do you wait until you have to send a telegram?"

"Well, as a rule"—the buyer was interrupted again.

"As a rule—rot! I tell you, buy ahead. We have space enough to store a few months' supply of Wire Work, Chiffons and Magnolia Leaves. Send the order to Kennicott Bros. Co., now."

"Yes, sir," said the buyer. But buyers often put things off.

"And have them make a shipment of so many thousand Ferns each week, and send Boxwood and Galax at certain intervals. Cut out some of these telegraph charges—and get the rock bottom price at the same time. I would not ask you to buy up a large supply of anything that would spoil or go out of style. But if you order your stock from The House of Quality Plus, there will be no spoilage, as the quality will be the best. The contract prices that Kennicott's quote you on supplies are really remarkable. I don't mean that they are cheap, but wonderfully low, considering the quality of stuff they furnish," the old man stated with firmness. "Just let them quote prices, young fellow," he called back as he left the office; "if the Kennicott prices do not compare favorably with other Houses then—but they do."

The old man came back and stood by the buyer's desk and waited till a request for special prices on Wire Work, Chiffons, Ferns, Galax, Magnolia Leaves and Boxwood was carefully written and addressed to Kennicott Bros. Co., 163 No. Wabash Ave., Chicago.

Dr. Brod for years has made the florists' business his hobby. At one time he had a range of greenhouses at Niles Center. More recently his florists' establishment was at 5143 Warwick avenue, conducted as the Grayland Nurseries & Floral Co. Dr. Brod has claimed to be Chicago's original osteopath.

Various Notes.

In a season that many growers have had bad luck with their asters, George J. Ball, of Glen Ellyn, has attracted attention by having rather better success than usual. He grows a selection of the late branching type on which he has been at work for several years and Kyle & Foerster say it has regularly brought top market prices. Mr. Ball contemplates naming the selection and putting the seed on the market. He has only one color, white, but it has given him splendid, large, full-centered flowers both in the field and under glass. It blooms one to two weeks in advance of the so-called late varieties.

After several years in charge of the North Clark street store of the George Wittbold Co., Victor Young has resigned and gone east on a vacation trip. It is reported that on his return he will join the staff of Fred Ronsley, on Dearborn street.

Among the summer's additions to A. F. Keenan's equipment was an Overland delivery car, with attractive special body. He finds he drives it forty to fifty miles a day and his only expenditure so far has been about a penny a mile, for gasoline. He has been surprised to find how quickly the car has become indispensable. The new store at 1220 East Sixty-third street is attracting enough new trade to make the present volume of business the best the Keenan stores ever have had.

A new Moline-Knight touring car has been ordered by Ernst Amling, the Maywood grower.

Those who do not have greenhouses may form some idea of what the growers have been up against this rainy summer by the remark by the foreman for Wietor Bros., who said the heat wave of September 12 afforded the first chance he has had in weeks to get his houses dried out and under moisture control.

each accompanied by his family, they encountered a series of canals where they had a right to expect roads. Nothing daunted, they held a clear course, steering by the stars, according to August, who was in the lead. After several hours of clear sailing, Adolph sent out distress signals. He had struck a bar. August went to the relief and finally succeeded in towing him off. When at last they made the harbor of Morton Grove, mud bespattered, tired and hungry, it was early in the morning of September 11.

After enjoying a week's rest, Max Ringier is again at his post in the establishment of Kennicott Bros. Co. Ernst Frank, the bookkeeper, is taking the second installment of his vacation.

"On the old Sante Fe trail," was the word from O. P. Bassett to C. L. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn, September 12. Mr. Bassett and his wife left Albuquerque, N. M., in their automobile early in the morning of that date.

A killing frost nipped the tomato plants and potato vines in the vicinity of Tomahawk Lake, Wis., the night of September 1, according to Allie Zech, manager of the Zech & Mann wholesale house, who returned from his vacation there a few days ago. The firm's quarters in the Atlas building are being redecorated.

To safeguard against any future loss from mildew, George Reinberg has piped his plant throughout with a series of small pipes. On cool days, these are to be utilized to carry a small head of steam—just enough to ward off trouble.

With the return of summer, there is little doubt in the mind of A. E. Hunt, of Evanston, that he will have his new greenhouse completed in ample time for cold weather.

Though suffering with quite a severe cold, A. L. Vaughan gets to the store every day. He believes in fresh air and plenty of action as a treatment for physical ailments.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Business has been fairly good during the last week; in fact, for two or three days it was booming on account of an extra amount of funeral work. Counter trade has been better, and prospects all around are brighter. There continues to be a large proportion of outdoor stock on the market, which has moved easily. Prices at this time are quite low. The supply of American Beauties is not large, but the daily consignment of other varieties is quite large. The intense heat of the last two weeks has considerably hurt roses. Sweet peas are scarce. Carnations are coming slowly; there is no particular demand. Asters are fine and plentiful, and are sold at extremely low prices. There are large quantities of gladioli on the market. Tuberoses are arriving, but not in large quantities.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Pittsburgh has experienced the hottest spell of the summer, which had its effect on both business and stock. The wholesale houses are receiving great quantites of stock in an exceedingly poor state, especially asters. Gladioli are of good quality and show no signs of a reduction in quantity. There was a scarcity of valley and white roses the first part of last week, but the flowers are now coming in sufficient quantities to supply the demand. The short carnations received are too poor to sell easily. Beauties and other roses are fine. Excellent Oncidium splendidum is to be had.

The retail stores showed some business activity last week, possibly a slight increase in sales over the week previous, but none of them were rushed.

The growers have their roses and carnations ready for fall and winter. It has been noticed that the railroads and mills are stocking up with coal in larger quantities than usual. This is a hint for greenhouse men to do likewise, as a coal shortage is a possibility.

The aster growers might take a hint from a discussion I heard the other day. Some of the retailers were saying that their customers demand something better than the flowers they have in their own gardens, and that growers could make larger profits if they would grow better stock and bunch and pack the asters with enough care to reach the market in a good condition. Of course this would necessitate throwing away the majority of the flowers shipped to the commission man. If the growers would adopt this method, there would be no inferior stock packed in peach baskets or jammed into boxes to save express charges. Asters suffer greatly when improperly packed, as can be seen daily.

It seems that Sunday closing in Pittsburgh has not won favor, for all the houses are open Sunday morning. A good deal of stock is shipped into the city on Sundays, and in justice to the growers it seems necessary to receive and care for the stock.

Various Notes.

Fred Burki and P. S. Randolph went to Philadelphia last week to attend the H. F. Michell Co. field day.

Visitors last week were M. Coulter Kent, of Newark, O.; John Walker, of Youngstown, O.; J. Goudy, representing Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia; I. Rosnosky, of the H. F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, and Julius Dilloff, representing Schloss Bros., of New York.

The Pittsburgh Florists' and Gardeners' Club met September 8. The gladiolus was the subject under discussion. An exhibit from Bidwell & Fobes, of Kinsman, O., represented all the popular sorts. P. S. Randolph, who undertook to grow asters for the market, says this is his last year. He says that while you can buy seeds cheap, you have to sell the flowers cheaper and perhaps not sell them at all. John Jones, of Schenley park, had an exhibition of red helianthus, which showed up well. The attendance was good, considering the hot weather.

Clarke.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

The last ten days have seen a decided change for the better in the flower situation at Nashville. Cool weather has improved the quality of carnations and roses, and has had the far more important effect of causing an early return of many who spend their summers out of the city. As the city schools opened last week, and as many of the colleges and private institutions open their doors either this week or next, there probably will be no more stagnation of business this year. All the florists say that there has been a decided improvement in business conditions. The growers here have had no trouble from excessive rains, as have those in other parts of the country. Stock in general never was in a better condition.

They did not cut much of a figure in the market, but will before long. The oversupply of gladioli is past, and while there still is plenty of good stock, little of it is wasted. Roses are none too abundant. It was too cool last month for the summer varieties to produce heavy crops, and the winter-blooming varieties are just coming in. Carnations are more plentiful than they have been, but there still is a shortage. Home-grown asters are about gone.

With the approach of fall, the public parks and private gardens are presenting a better appearance than at any other time this season. This has not been a good season for summer bedding plants, but they bid fair to give us two months of good blooms, from now until killing frost.

Various Notes.

I was surprised at the large number of high-class blooms given by a bed of 100 Sunburst roses, set from 3-inch pots by the Hillcrest School Farm the middle of May. Judging by this bed, Sunburst may take rank with the best summer bedders.

Oscar Geny appears to be well on the way to permanent health. He is now able to spend a part of each day at the greenhouses. The company still is cutting a heavy supply of valley, having practically a monopoly of this flower at present.

The water wheel and alligators in the window of the Joy Floral Co. continue to attract attention.

I saw a specimen of Dragon canna that had made twenty-one strong shoots from a single 3-inch pot plant set in May. The Greenback canna, introduced by L. H. Read & Co., Deer Park, Ala., is the best foliage variety. The leaves are of the same shade of green as a banana leaf and are fully

The Market.

Loyal descendants of William Penn have grave doubts whether that astute gentleman acted wisely in his selection of a site for the City of Brotherly Love, for a hotter place would have been hard to find last week. Humorists suggest turning off the heat and you'll have to do so before business commences, for nobody cares a farthing or a mark for business in this weather.

However, you mildly urge, what good are reporters who can't report? So here goes:

There is about as much business as a week ago, but ever, ever so many more flowers, which makes too many, for don't you see, two evers make a too and that is why some are wasted? Asters are the worst sufferers. They come in fairly good shape now, but so far in excess of the demand that even at ridiculously low prices they do not all sell; it is unfortunate. There are lots of poor roses and not enough good ones. It is rather hard to have good roses, because that plant loves a temperate rather than a tropical climate. Valley and lilies have become more plentiful. White orchids have arrived with the cattleyas and oncidiums. Tuberoses afford variety to gladiolus lovers, while dahlias come in such unbounded variety that no need of change is felt by those who admire this great fall flower. Perhaps great is a misplaced word in the heat, so count it out until cooler nights, and, let us hope, days come, when the dahlia will be queen. The loneliness of Chrysanthemum Golden Glow has been relieved by the timely arrival of Smith's Advance. Nobody seems to take any interest in either of them, claiming that this is midsummer masquerading as fall.

Out on the Coast.

Bernard Eschner describes entertainingly his delightful trip to the coast, the north and the west. The Canadian Rockies were more beautiful than many foreign mountains of note. Lake Louise, Banff Field and other famous spots were fully enjoyed. Then came Seattle with its promise of future greatness and eleven days in Alaska, once known as Seward's Folly, but now a source of pride and profit to Uncle Sam. The totem poles fascinated Mr. Eschner. His skill on shipboard won a prize totem pole in miniature. With this as an introduction he studied, learned, admired and finally bought a totem pole, with its classic symbolic carvings in cedar that take days, months and years to perfect. This totem pole, some fifteen feet in height, is planned to stagger Mr. Eschner's neighbors at Elkins Park, Pa., where it will appear in due time. Back to Seattle, then to Portland, then to the City of Roses, then to Frisco.

At San Francisco a dreadful thing happened, which I grieve to relate. Albert O. Stein sent a basket of fruit and flowers to Mrs. Eschner, which was so beautiful that it shook Mr. Eschner's loyalty to his floral artist at home. It was a blue-handled basket filled with blue snapdragons, and a few American Beauties to set it off. Under the snapdragons there was fruit, lots of it, enough to last a week. There were cantaloupe cut zigzag, strawberries in one half, raspberries in the other, and, to top all, two fine bunches of seedless green grapes on the handle. Did you ever hear of such a thing? It sounds awfully nice.

After San Francisco came cities of note, Los Angeles, Pasadena, Catalina island, with its glass-bottom boats and the Hotel Del Monte with 125 acres of well kept grounds, Santa Barbara, the San Diego exposition, with a Mexican bull fight by way of sporting variety, Salt Lake City and the wonderful, wonderful Yellowstone park, with its never-to-be-forgotten sights.

The Michell Outing.

The report of the second annual outing of the Henry F. Michell Co., given to its horticultural friends, at Andalusia, September 8, appeared in The Review last week. The list of winners in the sporting events follows:

Three-legged race—P. W. Auman and George Williams, first; W. Pearl and A. Watton, second.

Fat men's race—W. Williamson, first; Clyde Boiston, second.

Thin men's race—L. S. Potteiger, first; Nelson Artz, second.

Wheelbarrow race—Edward Dornheim, first; L. S. Potteiger, second.

Potato race—Roy Lapier, first; D. Enhorn, second.

Ladies' race—Miss Leona Cooke, first; Miss Jean Burton, second.

Broad jump—J. B. Ward, first; George Drennen, second.

Hop, skip and jump—James Kenney, first; James Casey, second.

Pie-eating contest—W. H. Whittaker, first; J. Downing, second.

The starter of the events was F. Cowperthwaite. A. Eadon,. L. W. Jourdet and H. J. Lowell served as judges. W. H. Neville was referee and I. Rosnosky was official announcer.

Some Crotons and Some Ferns.

The word some has become so Americanized that it means a good deal more than Noah Webster intended. For instance, if a youth of today speaks of his opponent in a fistic fight as "some boy," you may know that that boy was huge with bulging muscles, and had an uncanny reach sure to give trouble. The use of the word some twice in this headline is in the vernacular, so that you will understand that the crotons and ferns were extremely fine.

Both are on view at the Robert Craig Co. place. Crotons that for beauty of coloring have never been equaled. It may be the cool nights and the hot days of last month, it may be culture, or it may be both—anyway, they are wonderfully fine. The ferns testify silently to the grandeur of good old Boston and its descendants. Scottii and Teddy Junior are the leaders, with John Wanamaker as the dark horse in the race.

Current Events.

A warm-hearted business man of this city has proposed that a fund be raised to provide a fitting tribute to the memory of Edwin Lonsdale. He says that Mr. Lonsdale's work for floriculture and for humanity merits recognition. To such an object, this member of our profession offers to contribute $50, as a small token of his regard for Mr. Lonsdale. He suggests that should the idea find favor with our florists, it might take the form of a suitably inscribed shaft or tablet, to be erected in Ivy Hill cemetery.

Various Notes.

Max H. Rothe has completed an extension to one of his large greenhouses at Mt. Airy.

Recent visitors include T. J. Noland, of Scranton, Pa.; Edgar W. Bayley, with S. J. Reuter & Son, Westerly, R. I.; William Morgenthau and C. T. Eldredge, Danville, Va.; Charles E. Schoenhut, of Buffalo, N. Y., and Robert Pyle, of West Grove, Pa.

John Burton owned and did not lease the greenhouses at Church and Chew streets, as stated some time ago. Mr. Burton operated the houses before moving to Wyndmoor. He sold the place to Thomas Meehan, who purchased it for his son, William E. Meehan.

Fred J. Michell and Fred Cowperthwaite have been selected as judges for the fall show of the Norwood Horticultural Society, to be held at Norwood, Pa., September 18.

The Germantown Horticultural Society reassembled in the library of Vernon park, September 13. I. P. Willits spoke on a trip to the Pacific coast.

Sydney H. Bayersdorfer has returned from the west and south, looking remarkably well.

Edward Reid, unfortunately, sprained his leg in the Andalusia sports.

Stuart H. Miller is handling the Joseph Heacock roses until the reopening of their store, which is scheduled for this week.

H. Bayersdorfer says that the Japs calmly assure him that they can copy but not originate. This quality, Mr. Bayersdorfer confidently asserts, is not confined to Japan.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., has a perfectly magnificent display of hardy phloxes at Locust farm.

William Lausperer, lately of the Joseph Heacock Co., Roelofs, Pa., is now manager of the Highland Rose Co., Morton, Pa.

Charles Eckley is transferring his greenhouses from Frankford, Philadelphia, to Pleasantville, N. J. Phil.

Orchids and gardenias continue scarce, and are obtainable only at an almost prohibitive price; the demand for them is light. There was a further slight shortening of the valley supply. Increasing quantities of dahlias are offered, with but few buyers. The intense heat affected these as well as asters; a majority of the latter are not up to standard. Early chrysanthemums are meeting with little favor.

Roses are good for this time of year. There is an occasional shortage of good white roses, but plenty of colored ones are to be had. Shipments of carnations are increasing, but the flowers continue small and the stems short.

Club Meeting.

The annual crab feast of the Florists' Club of Washington, tendered jointly by Edward S. Schmid and Fred H. Kramer and held in the conservatory at the rear of the latter's store, this year proved a greater success than ever before. It was attended by more than 200 people and the merriment continued until long after midnight.

It had been decided that there were to be no speeches during the evening, but several guests were called upon, Adolph Gude and Richard Vincent, Jr., responding. Fred H. Kramer created a sensation when he appeared as a German schoolmaster. A band of twenty-five pieces played, and several entertainers performed. Shortly before midnight the members of two theatrical companies, about fifty, appearing at the Casino and Gayety theaters, enlivened the rest of the time by songs, by fancy and clog dancing, and by acting parts from the pieces in which they regularly appear.

Among those present were President George H. Cooke, Vice-president R. L. Jenkins, Treasurer William F. Gude, Richard Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md.; Otto Bauer, George H. Shaffer, O. A. C. Oehmler, Adolph Gude, G. E. Anderson, Clarence L. Linz, J. Crosby McCarthy, Charles A. Stevens, J. J. Barry, Harry Louis, David E. Saunders, D. J. Grillbortzer, Samuel Simmons, Jake Richards, Fred H. Mrs. J. A. Philipps, "the flower lady of Fourteenth street," was declared the winner of the Lyric theater "popular lady contest," which terminated last week. Mrs. Philipps, with nearly 30,000 votes, ran 11,000 votes ahead of her nearest competitor.

The members of the Washington-Baltimore party of florists, which has just returned from the S. A. F. convention, in relating the many delightful experiences had in connection with the trip, speak particularly of the time spent in Kansas City, Mo., where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Rock at a banquet at the Muehlbach hotel, followed by a theater party, and on an automobile tour of the city.

David J. Grillbortzer, of Alexandria, Va., is cutting about 1,500 roses daily, including fine Hadley, Ophelia, Killarney Brilliant and White Killarney.

The Leo Niessen Co. is contemplating the erection of a building in which to conduct the business now carried on at 1214 H street, northwest. Since taking over the business of the Washington Florists' Exchange, the firm has grown rapidly and is fast finding itself cramped for space.

Henry Pfister, who has just returned from Switzerland, is reported to have commenced negotiations for a store in the vicinity of Connecticut and Rhode Island avenues, northwest.

Stanley Holland, formerly at 2406 Eighteenth street, is now in his fine new establishment at Eighteenth street and Columbia road, northwest.

Among the visitors of the week were James W. Heacock, of Wyncote, Pa.; L. A. Berckmans, of Augusta, Ga.; H. Riebe, of the Berryhill Nursery, Harrisburg, Pa., and Richard Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md.

New Nephrolepis Fern

JOHN WANAMAKER

In presenting this fern to the trade, we feel confident that it will make a place for itself.

A "sport" from Nephrolepis Scholzeli, with longer, narrower, gracefully drooping fronds. It is not so compact in growth as Scholzeli, and therefore does not decay in the center, and is a durable house fern. It is a rapid grower, making an abundance of fronds, and is quite distinct from any other Nephrolepis.

Strong plants from 2¼-inch pots, $3.00 per doz., $20.00 per 100, $150.00 per 1000.

The following ready for delivery October 1st: 4-inch pots, $50.00 per 100; 6-inch pots, $1.00 each; 8-inch pots, $2.00 each; specimens in tubs, $5.00 each.

ROBERT CRAIG CO. 4900 Market Street, PHILADELPHIA, PA.
Branch, Norwood, Pa.

good demand for them. A few dahlias are seen, but they are small in size and limited in quantity. Good Boston ferns are plentiful and reasonable in price.

Various Notes.

George Kumpf, of Peach street, visited the flower show at the Rochester exposition, September 9.

George Kramer did some artistic work on the aquatic garden of the Henry A. Dreer, Inc., exhibit at the Rochester exposition.

Edwin C. Armbrust will open a handsome flower shop at 279 East avenue, Rochester, September 20. The walls of the store are finished in a pale silver-gray and the woodwork is white. The refrigerator and accessories are also in white, and the card desk, display tables and wrapping counters are finished in dull oak. Mr. Armbrust is well known in Rochester, having been with J. B. Keller Sons for almost three years.

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

Florists' Review,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:-

During the SIX MONTHS from March 4 to September 4 I have received from other Florists, by mail, telegraph or cable, orders to the amount of $513.25 as a result of my advertisement in the Retailers' department of The Review. With the allowance to senders the record for SIX MONTHS is:

Value of orders received----------	$513.25
Less 20% allowed senders--------	102.60
Net value of orders for SIX MONTHS--	410.65

It should be noted that this showing covers the DULL SUMMER MONTHS, when any addition to a Florists's business is decidedly welcome.

Retail Florists not advertising in The Review should profit by this letter.

Respectfully,

The Market.

Our belated summer reached us the second week in September this year. September 9, with a maximum of 91 degrees, was the hottest dav of the summer. Only on one occasion previously had the temperature reached 90 degrees this year. As a result of the intense heat, cut flower trade, which had been showing a gradual improvement, suffered another serious setback. Roses were the worst sufferers and last week proved one of the most discouraging of the year with them. Prices sunk to an unquotable level, much stock being removed in the rubbish barrels. We are experiencing cooler weather now and the outlook is more encouraging. The heat sent in quite a lot of miserable, sleepy looking, short-stemmed carnations, which were hard to move. They are not wanted while a wealth of fine asters are to be had at low prices. The aster market has been on the down grade. A small number have made 75 cents to $1 per hundred.

The gladiolus wave recedes and prices are a little firmer. Lilies are in good supply, both speciosum and longiflorum. Valley is a little better in quality, but sells slowly. Some lots of indoor snapdragon are seen, but there is little call for them. There is a wide assortment of outdoor flowers, for which there is an uncertain demand. Gardenias are somewhat more plentiful; so are cattleyas. The best cattleyas can be bought for $6 per dozen, as a Club Field Day.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Club held its fourth field day of the year, September 11, with the Breck-Robinson Co., at its Lexington Nurseries. As on preceding outings held at Waverley, the Arnold Arboretum and Newport, R. I., ideal weather prevailed, the day being warm and the skies brilliant. A special coach, kindly provided by the Breck-Robinson Co., on the 1:51 from the North station, carried members and their friends to Munroe's station, located in the nursery, the journey through the noted market gardens of Arlington and historic Lexington being much enjoyed.

The nurseries have been established only three years, but already some ninety acres have been brought under cultivation, the active manager, Albert E. Robinson, being responsible, in large measure, for the great amount of work accomplished. Automobiles carried the ladies and such members as preferred that means of locomotion to Shanks' mare, but the majority of the seventy-five present walked around in a leisurely manner, inspecting the fine blocks of ornamental trees and shrubs and hardy herbaceous plants, all of which were in fine condition. The greenhouses were filled with bedding plants, ferns, cyclamens and quantities of small roses, mostly ramblers. A large concrete garage is in course of construction. The soil in the nursery is diversified and a suitable kind can be found for any special plants.

After inspecting the nurseries an adjournment was made to the commodious packing shed, where an excellent collation was served and much appreciated. President H. H. Bartsch made a few remarks, expressing pleasure at what had been seen and thanks for courtesies extended. Short addresses were also made by W. N. Craig, T. J. Grey, Kenneth Finlayson, W. J. Kennedy and A. P. Calder, Sr., following which

Boston Dahlia Show.

The annual dahlia and fruit exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, held September 11 and 12, was an excellent one. Dahlias were of splendid quality, thanks to the cool and moist summer. The great drawback to dahlia exhibitions is their stereotyped arrangement. Rows of glasses, each glass containing a single flower on a uniform level, are neither beautiful nor satisfying. More attention should be given to æsthetic arrangement and encouragement should be given to flowers on long stems, also made up in baskets and hampers. At present the dahlia is largely ignored by the retailers and it should be the effort of horticultural societies and special societies to place it on a higher plane than at present. The awards were:

Twenty-four show and fancy—J. K. Alexander, first; W. D. Hathaway, second.

Twelve show or fancy—W. H. Symonds, first.

Twenty-four cactus—W. D. Hathaway, first; J. K. Alexander, second.

Twelve cactus—Miss Fanny Foster, first, with splendid blooms of Sovereignty, Mrs. H. Randle, Dorothy Hawes, Mrs. Stevens, Golden Crown, F. W. Fellowes, Miss Stredwick, Crystal, John Riding, Melody, Extase and Pierrot; George H. Walker, second.

Twenty-four decorative—L. D. Litchfield, first; W. D. Hathaway, second.

Twelve decorative—G. H. Walker, first; M. C. Caswell, second.

Twelve peony-flowered—G. H. Walker, first; E. F. Dwyer, second.

Twenty-four vases pompons—J. K. Alexander, first; W. D. Hathaway, second.

Twelve vases pompons—F. P. Webber, first; E. F. Dwyer, second.

Single, twelve vases—J. K. Alexander, first; James Robertson, second.

Largest and best collection of named varieties—George H. Walker, first, with a splendid and representative collection of grand flowers; E. F. Dwyer, second.

The Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co. had an extensive display of dahlias and gladioli, well arranged. Non-competitive collections of dahlias came from J. K. Alexander, Mrs. L. A. Towle, G. H. Walker and F. W. Snow. Miscellaneous displays of cut flowers came from Henry Stewart, gardener to Miss Cornelia Warren; Mrs. N. P. Cutler, S. G. Kulkmann, Theodore L. Dean, Albert Geiger, Jr., and others. G. W. Page had a fine display of the newer hardy asters. James Wheeler, T. D. Hatfield and others showed buddleias.

The Boston Cut Flower Co. had a charming basket arranged with Dahlia Bertha von Suttner. Luther Parker and F. H. Snow received honorable mention for seedling dahlias. The Mount Desert Nurseries, Bar Harbor, Me., had a fine display of Buddleia magnifica and herbaceous plants arranged on large bamboo stands, which allowed each spike and flower to show its individuality. Particularly fine were Aconitum Fischeri, Rudbeckia nitida and Aster Amellus.

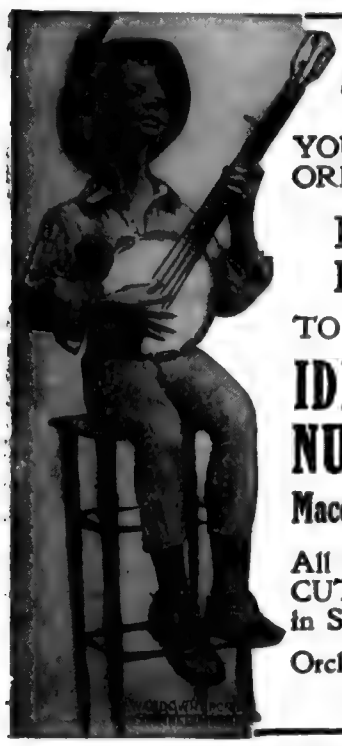
In the fruit department apples, peaches and plums were largely shown, and of splendid quality.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Wax arrived home September 9 from a vacation of five weeks spent at Old Orchard Beach and Grand Lake Stream, Me. Mr. Wax caught twenty-five salmon while at the latter resort. He sent two boxes to the store, which were duly appreciated. The fishing was good near the New Brunswick line, while the scenery was magnificent.

The annual meeting and dinner of the Boston Flower Exchange will be held at Young's hotel October 23. The directors report a most successful year.



McAlpine Bros. are getting, from their Exeter, N. H., greenhouses, some nice shipments of such roses as Hoosier Beauty, Black Beauty, Hadley, Ophelia, Taft, Sunburst, Ward and Killarney Queen. They also have a fine lot of Mlle. Cecile Brunner.

S. J. Goddard started sending in new crop carnations September 7, his daily shipments being of Alice, Matchless and Beacon. These are handled by George H. Noyes, who also receives Benora, Beacon, Mrs. Ward and a nice salmon sport from Winsor from W. D. Howard, of Milford.

At the annual exhibition of the Medford Horticultural Society, September 10, Duncan Finlayson and W. N. Craig judged the exhibits. George F. Stewart, gardener to Mrs. Samuel C.

Lawrence, had a beautiful group of foliage plants, in which crotons were a feature. George B. Gill showed a splendid lot of dahlias, and S. E. Spencer, of the Brooklands Gardens, a grand lot of gladioli. Mr. Spencer at present has 40,000 spikes of Mrs. Frank Pendleton in bloom, making a notable display.

The Boston Cut Flower Co. has had an unusually good run of funeral work of late. Baskets of dahlias and gladioli are being exhibited at a number of the leading fairs this fall.

All the local seed stores have received large shipments of Dutch bulbs, the quality being extra fine. Some of the French bulbs are not yet to hand, but they have come in better season than a year ago.

Remember the meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club September 21. There will be special displays of dahlias and gladioli, vacation experiences, a discussion on the proposal to change the date of the 1916 S. A. F. convention at Houston and lots of other business. A large attendance is expected.

Robert Montgomery has had no trouble in disposing of his carnations in spite of the existing glut. He is sending in extra good Killarney Brilliant, Ophelia, Russell, Hadley and Sunburst.

At Penn's more funeral orders were filled last week than in any previous week of the year. William Penn is expected home from his transcontinental trip September 22.

The Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co. keeps the windows attractive at this season with beautiful displays of dahlias and gladioli, which are grown to perfection at the nurseries.

The Horticultural Club held a meeting September 8. Patrick Welch spoke on his recent California trip.

has been instituted, will be without representation after the present year unless some change is made in the list of nominees.

The store of Wax Bros. is always busy. August this year proved away ahead of July and sales exceeded those of any previous August. The window displays are always effective.

W. J. Patterson, of Wollaston, is sending in a nice lot of dahlias, gladioli and annual larkspurs.

Among carnations coming from A. A. Pembroke is Lady Northcliffe, a beautiful, shrimp pink variety, sweetly scented. This variety he has planted more heavily this season. He is also sending in a fine lot of Pink Delight, Alice and Gorgeous.

The Budlong Rose Co. is cutting Francis Scott Key of good quality. Ophelia, Double White Killarney, Hadley and Russell also are fine.

The first new crop pansies of the season are coming in from W. E. Turner, of Woburn.

Some of the finest asters I have seen this season are those grown by John Barry, of Reading.

P. & W. O. Jahn, of East Bridgewater, through W. H. Carr, are disposing of a nice lot of new crop carnations. Their leaders are Benora, Beacon, Matchless, Enchantress Supreme, Pink Delight and Rosette.

W. B. Goodenow, of Stoughton, finished his season with sweet peas September 11. He is finishing housing double violets, which had made good plants.

J. Newman & Son have been kept quite busy through the summer with funeral orders.

H. R. Comley is depending largely on aquatic flowers in fine variety for a window display at this season.

The Houghton-Gorney Co. devotes one window to a display of dahlias this week. It would be vastly more inter-

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

Extremely hot weather prevailed last week, which did no good to florists in a business way. Stock arrived in poor shape. There were large consignments of roses and a demand for choice quality only. There was a scarcity of fancy stock, but an oversupply of other grades and prices suffered greatly. There were plenty of good medium-stemmed Beauties. Carnations, from young stock, are coming in. They have good flowers, but are short-stemmed. White and Enchantress have the best call. Asters still are in heavy supply. Large shipments of these from New York were noticed. Home-grown asters are somewhat scarce. A number of late gladioli and everblooming tuberoses are coming in. Clematis paniculata was in considerable demand last week. Easter lilies have been numerous. Valley is somewhat scarce. Good greens of all kinds are plentiful.

Club Meeting.

The St. Louis Florists' Club held its monthly meeting September 9, on the grounds of the H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co., Nursery, Mo. The weather was fine and the attendance large.

Automobiles were in waiting at the end of the car line to take the members to the nursery, where the guests were met by the four Weber brothers, Frank, Walter, William and George. The meeting was held in one of the big storage houses, which was nicely fitted up for the occasion. President Bourdet called the meeting to order. After disposing of the regular opening routine business, the trustees and other committees made final reports. Fred M. Frow and Thomas Carr filed applications for membership and Edward Guntly and A. S. Cerny were elected.

The president appointed Geo. Windler and W. J. Pilcher, both ex-presidents, as installing officers and they proceeded to install the newly elected officers. Vice-president Wells and Trustee Ohlweiler were detained on business and were the only officers missing. After the meeting adjourned, the Weber brothers escorted the members to a place where refreshments were served. The greenhouses were closely inspected by the rose and chrysanthemum growers, who found everything in first-class shape. It was a jolly crowd who gave the Weber boys three cheers for the hospitalities shown. Those who failed to come to this outdoor meeting missed a rare treat.

Various Notes.

Messrs. Schray, Windler, Brix and Pelletier experienced a busy day September 7, filling orders from brewery officials to be sent to a west end residence as birthday offerings. When Edward Guntly, of the Windler store, received a second order it aroused suspicion and he investigated, with the result that all the orders were found to be bogus, having come from a girl who was celebrating her birthday in a room filled with floral offerings to show her friends how popular she was. All plants and flowers were sent back to the florists and the lady arrested.

The park employees held their annual picnic September 11, at Linn's grove. The attendance was large and the afternoon was devoted to games, while at night the younger folks held the dance floor. Superintendent Strehle says it was a grand success.

The big, yellow Hupmobile racing car of Walter Young, of the C. Young & Sons Co., caught fire last week and the woodwork was badly burned. No more joy rides for the next ten days.

Joseph Zonz, formerly with the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., returned from Juneau, Alaska, September 10. He showed some fine gold nuggets taken from his mine. Mr. Zonz says that while he was away he kept posted on St. Louis affairs by looking through The Review at the store of Winter & Ponds.

nue. All members were present and a most pleasant afternoon was spent. Mrs. Emil Schray will entertain the members at the next meeting.

Julius Schaeffer, who has been employed in the floral department of Vandervoort's for six months, is now in the employ of Mullanphy, at Seventh and Locust. He took the position recently vacated by Wm. Gray.

A new store has been opened at 5504 Waterman avenue, under the name of Young Bros. Floral Co. William C. Young, Jr., and John Young, formerly with C. Young & Sons Co., compose the firm. The location was formerly the west end branch of the old firm.

Frank Weber, of the H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co., informs me that he will soon be off on an extended eastern trip in the interest of his company. They have a heavy fall business before them.

David Geddis, manager of Vandervoort's floral department, has a big force at work decorating the store for its fall opening. The decorations were elaborate and were admired by all.

Jules Bourdet, president of the Bourdet Floral Co., and of the St. Louis Florists' Club, has invited the members to hold the October meeting at his place. The invitation has been accepted.

E. W. Guy, well known florist of Belleville, Ill., came over September 13, to attend the funeral of his aunt, Mrs. William E. Guy, who died in Cooperstown, N. Y., where she had been spending the summer.

Starting Saturday, September 18, the wholesale florists will again keep open all day on Saturdays, but the trade will have to stock up for Sunday, as that day will continue a day of rest with the wholesalers throughout the year.

John S. Carter, of the Nicotine Mfg. Co.; C. C. Sanders, Alex. Siegel, Miss M. S. Newman and Mr. and Mrs. Fred C Weber returned from summer vacations last week.

Recent visitors were: Martin Reukauf, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, in company with Mrs. Reukauf, and Claude Wisely, of Murphysboro, Ill., who has finished building a new greenhouse and reports a splendid summer business. J. J. B.

In reporting the purchase of the 377-acre farm at Clayton, Mo., in its issue of September 2, The Review referred to Arthur W. Schisler as of the Schisler-Corneli Seed Co., when in fact Mr. Schisler's concern is the Schisler & Kaercher Seed Co. Up to about a year ago the name was the Schisler Grain Co. The Market.

Business prospects are brighter than they have been. The market has a better tone and it looks as if fall trade has started. Funeral work again constituted the biggest item in the week's sales. Counter trade has kept up splendidly all summer, but there was a noticeable increase last week. Floral decorations for several functions are being ordered, although the weather was warmer last week than at any other time this summer. The heat has been hard on the cut roses, particularly the Killarneys, as they open too quickly under heat. There were plenty of roses, except American Beauties, which were rather scarce during the end of the week. Other varieties were well represented by first-class stock. The supply of carnations is daily increasing and the quality of the flowers is good, but the stems still are short. Asters have improved in quality. A new supply of gladioli is in from the fields. Chrysanthemums are more in evidence, but there is no heavy demand for them. Lilies are plentiful.

Various Notes.

The G. M. Kellogg Cut Flower & Plant Co. experienced a fire last week. It was caused by a lighted cigar, which had rolled down into the basement from the sidewalk. Mr. Parker, president of the company, spent a lucky day at the lake near the greenhouses and caught twenty pounds of fish. Mr. Parker was injured some time ago by striking his head against a nail, receiving a deep scalp wound. Lightning struck one of the large smokestacks September 5. The stack will have to be rebuilt. This firm recently placed the decorations for the dedication of a church, which required over four truckloads of palms.

Jacob Tobler is busy repairing his greenhouse and building a new service shed.

W. J. Barnes has started the decorations at the Emery, Bird & Thayer dry goods store, using over ten dozen palms and ferns for the millinery department alone. Next week he will use a large number of plants for the anniversary celebration.

Biedermann & Son have been doing some renovating at their greenhouses, which are now in first-class order.

funeral work, which has been heavy throughout the summer. He still is cutting a nice lot of gladioli and coldst rage lilies. Mr. Brown has purchased forty-five acres in Johnson county, directly across the state line, near Seventy-fifth street. The firm had a large decorative order last week at Liberty, Mo., for a large wedding. Mr. Brown is growing fewer mums this fall than ever before. More space is being given to ferns.

T. J. Noll & Co. have received a fine line of supplies of all kinds. Mr. Noll has contracted for the entire carnation cut of John Stevens.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, John M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

LAST week's boat from Bermuda brought not even one case of Harrisii bulbs. The total arrivals this season to date are only 830 cases.

THE Griswold Seed Co., Lincoln, Neb., in a petition to the Interstate Commerce Commission, asks that the freight rate on sweet clover seed from Wheatland, Wyo., to Lincoln be reduced from 80 cents to 60 cents per hundred pounds.

THE later indications are that the August frosts did no great general harm to the bean crops, but this should not be taken as indicating absence of cause for concern—the bean crops were bad enough without anything more happening to them.

AN American consular officer in Chile states that a business man in his district is in a position to make shipments of large quantities of clover seed. Correspondence may be had in English through the Department of Commerce, Washington, D. C.

ARTHUR W. SCHISLER, of St. Louis, who recently was reported as having purchased a farm of 377 acres near Clayton, Mo., for trial grounds and seed growing, is of the Schisler & Kaercher Seed Co. Up to about a year ago the concern was the Schisler Grain Co.

FIRST prize for the best decorated automobile in the floral parade at the New England fair, at Worcester, Mass., September 7, was awarded to Walter D. Ross, head of the seed house of Ross Bros. Co., Worcester, and president of the Worcester Agricultural Society. His Cadillac was decorated to represent a battleship.

To interest the public in the maintenance of lawns, F. C. McNabb, manager of the Arizona Seed Co., Phoenix, Ariz., has inaugurated a lawn-growing contest, with liberal cash prizes for the winning contestants. The company has imported a carload of grass seed from Europe, which will be tested by some of those who aspire to the prizes.

A deal was consummated September 4 whereby Clarence Wedge, proprietor of the Wedge Nursery, at Albert Lea, Minn., becomes part owner of the Robert H. Black seed house, of the same place. Robert Black, who retains half interest in the business, states that his business had grown to a point where it required more capital and attention. Mr. Wedge has been in the seed business for many years and will continue to conduct the Wedge Nursery. The firm name of the new company is Black's Seeds.

THE seed trade has taken interest this week in watching the wireless reports from the Sant' Anna, the Fabre line steamer on fire in mid-Atlantic. This is the boat that has brought most of the French bulbs to America and on its last trip fetched 12,311 cases. The fire at sea, on the return voyage to Marseilles, was in the No. 2 hold, the same one in which fire damaged a large quantity of bulbs and immortelles as the boat lay at its dock in Hoboken one year ago. At last reports the Sant' Anna had reached seedlings can be grown at small cost. Allow 75 days to have them ready to bench. By growing your own plants you not only save much expense but have them at hand, undisturbed and growing, when needed. It very often happens that weather conditions are not right for shipping plants and much loss is incurred in this way. Growing your own plants solves all of these problems. A few packets of seed will give you your stock and some for neighbors.

We specialize in Snapdragon and are sticklers for quality. All of our seed is produced under glass, only one variety in each separate house, which eliminates any possible chance of mixing varieties by wind or insect. Pure seed means a liberal expenditure of brains and labor. Our personal time is given. Only a few strong shoots on each plant are permitted to flower. Each seed pod must be perfect in form and size and ripen uniformly from bottom of stem up. All others are thrown out. This is but an inkling of the various details that make for our pure seed. Do you wonder that our business grows and that we have repeat orders for the fifth time from hundreds of customers?

Grow your own plants and sow seed now to follow Mums. Pure, fresh seed as follows: Our original Silver Pink, $1.00 per pkt.; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. Nelrose, Buxton, Garnet, Yellow, White and mixed, 35c per pkt.; 3 for $1.00. All orders cash. Free cultural directions. Seedling plants of Nelrose and White ready now at $5.00 per 100.

Miss S. E. Boyden, Holden, Mass., today says: "Your Silver Pink is certainly all that you claim for it, and then some."

the Azores and the fire was out, but the next sailing from Marseilles will be delayed.

DURING the government's fiscal year ended June 30, 1915, a total of $9,700,000 worth of seeds were imported into the United States, as against $9,500,000 in 1914.

AN advertiser in the Pacific Coast Department of this paper is offering home-grown bulbs of Lilium longiflorum, the first commercial offer ever made, so far as records go, of American-grown Easter lily bulbs.

MOTT-LY GLEANINGS.

Manager L. H. Manley, of the Harvey Seed Co., Buffalo, reports that owing to the wet weather around Leroy and in Wyoming county the bean crop will be greatly reduced, many acres having been turned under and sown to wheat. Navy and kidney varieties are principally grown.

Jas. Vick's Sons, Rochester, N. Y., have the usual acreage devoted to asters, and hope to secure a heavy crop of seed.

At the Theilmann Seed Co., Erie, Pa., water filled the basement and covered the ground floor to a depth of four feet during the recent flood, which fell as quickly as it rose. Much damage was done, but the force immediately set to work and soon had things straightened out and looking brighter than ever.

Geo. L. Siegel had a similar experience. Traces of the flood are plainly seen.

F. G. Johnson & Co., Cleveland, O., have removed to 2133-35 East Ninth street, where they have a handsome new building. The store proper has a 30-foot frontage, with a depth of sixty-five feet, and an abundance of natural light. The pea crop on their farm at

By this time the fat man is well on his way, and I know I am built for speed when it comes to making a get-away from a circus like this. He is big and good natured enough to stand the blow; I have been trying to figure out, if it takes a steamer six days to cross the Atlantic, how long will it require an ant to walk around "Fattie's" chest measurement?

Now, don't worry whether it is skirt or trousers worn by the order taker, just so you get the goods right in quality and right in price; you can figure you are getting your money's worth, and every man wants his full dollar's worth every time he spends one hundred pennies. Business is business for man or woman alike, and if I cannot deliver the goods and please my customers, I might find myself looking up the matrimonial advertisements and try to donate myself, soul and heart, to some male earth being, to keep me from being a White Elephant on some one's charity list.

But I should worry, NOT as long as the florists live and buy, and I work and try; from starvation I hope to never die. Kindly omit flowers when I am dead but please pass over the orders while I live.

The last I heard of the fat man, he is in love with a young lady wearing rolled socks and a fur in August.

Harrisville, Mich., is reported to be fine in quality but small in quantity.

Wood & Co., East Cleveland, supplied many of the seeds to the winners in the garden contest, which is giving all concerned much local publicity.

A. C. Kendel, Cleveland, reports that the cucumber harvest of some of his growers in New York state is only a one-third crop. Yet should frost hold off for a while, the returns may increase to one-half. The selling season has been a good average one. M.

LILIES FROM HOLLAND.

The Associated Press, which boasts of its accuracy, is responsible for the following, which appeared in many newspapers last week:

"New York, September 10.—George Trossit, a steward, and William Leushelm, a coal passer, were killed while at work in the hold of the steamship Ryndam, of the Holland-American line, at her Hoboken pier yesterday. Gaseous fumes from lily bulbs, which formed a large part of the Ryndam's cargo, are said to have caused death. The men were discovered unconscious by other members of the crew. Frank Drews, a Hoboken fireman, volunteered to rescue them. Wearing a helmet, he entered the hold, but was pulled out unconscious after a few minutes. Ropes finally were placed around the other two, who were dead when taken out."

The Ryndam, of the Holland-America line, brought 10,336 cases of tulip and hyacinth bulbs and the consignee of the largest quantity states they arrived in good condition, in no way damaged.

MANY DUTCH BULBS ARRIVE.

The Holland-America steamer Ryndam, from Rotterdam, docked at New York September 6 with more than 10,000 cases of Dutch bulbs aboard. The number of cases in this shipment exceeds the combined total of all previous arrivals of this year. The bulbs were consigned as follows:

reau of crop estimates of the United States Department of Agriculture. The condition of the crop September 1 is estimated at 80.3 per cent of normal, which compares with 77.3 per cent a year ago and 79.7, the average of the last ten years on September 1. These figures forecast a moderately larger crop this year than last year.

The acreage this year as compared with last year, and the condition September 1 of this year and of last year, in percentage of normal in important states, are estimated respectively as follows: New York, 125, 88, 73; Pennsylvania, 95, 83, 84; Ohio, 108, 74, 78; Indiana, 130, 67, 74; Illinois, 125, 78, 70; Michigan, 106, 79, 84; Wisconsin, 95, 83, 88; Minnesota, 97, 84, 91; Iowa, 102, 87, 86; Missouri, 148, 79, 63; Kentucky, 140, 89, 55; Tennessee, 120, 88, 75; Idaho, 120, 94, 88; Oregon, 86, 84, 63.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Wayside Gardens, Mentor, O.—A condensed list of hardy plants and bulbs for fall planting. "The list of varieties," says the booklet, "is purposely limited in number to those that are the best and most satisfactory, and selection does not become a tedious undertaking."

The Storrs & Harrison Co., Painesville, O.—An 80-page fall catalogue, accurate in text and freely illustrated. Besides offering such distinctively autumn stock as bulbs, flower and vegetable seeds for fall sowing, greenhouse plants and hardy perennials, it gives large space to the regular nursery department, listing comprehensive assortments of ornamental trees and shrubs, vines, fruit trees, small fruits, nut trees and vegetable plants.

F. W. Kelsey Nursery Co., New York, N. Y.—A 12-page wholesale list of evergreen and deciduous trees, shrubs and vines. Besides the good-sized stock for permanent planting, smaller trees are offered "for nursery or forest planting and where immediate effects are not necessary."

Breithaupt Nursery Co., Kennewick, Wash.—A condensed catalogue of fruit trees, nut trees, small fruits, ornamental trees, shrubs, vines, roses, bulbs, perennials and other plants; eight pages and cover.

Wild Bros. Nursery Co., Sarcoxie, Mo.—"Bulletin No. 2," containing special offers of peony roots, German irises and miscellaneous perennials.

Thos. J. Grey Co., Boston, Mass.—An illustrated catalogue of bulbs for autumn planting, lilies for forcing, palms, ferns and other decorative plants, hardy perennials, roses, vines, shrubs, fruit-bearing and ornamental trees, small fruits, grass seeds, grains, fertilizers, insecticides, peat, leaf-mold, oilskin clothing, tools and requisites for garden and greenhouse; forty pages and cover. At the beginning is a list of bulbs most suitable for naturalizing.

Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa.—"New Floral Guide," an accurate, well illustrated catalogue of bulbs, plants, shrubs, roses, vines, flower seeds for fall planting, plant boxes, etc.; thirty-six pages, with colored pictures of peonies and tulips on the covers. An enclosed leaflet offers special bargains in many lines of stock.

Kalamazoo, Mich.—Two enterprising young sisters, with names peculiarly appropriate to the florists' business, have opened a flower shop at 104 West Main street, under the name Erb & Erb. Misses Grace and Irene Erb are the partners in the venture, which is the only women's flower store in Kalamazoo.

NOTICE

To all American Nurserymen and Seedsmen desiring to keep in touch with commercial horticulture in England and the continent of Europe: Your best means of doing this is to take in the

Horticultural Advertiser

Our circulation covers the whole trade in Great Britain and the cream of the European firms. Impartial reports of all novelties, etc. Paper free on receipt of 75 cents, covering cost of postage yearly. As the H. A. is a purely trade medium, applicants should, with the subscription, send a copy of their catalogue or other evidence that they belong to the nursery or seed trade.

Chrysanthemum

By Arthur Herrington

Formerly president Chrysanthemum Society of America.

The most complete and comprehensive work on the cultivation of the chrysanthemum that has yet been published in America. Its scope and character may be gleaned from the list of contents, which comprises chapters on composts; planting; benches, boxes or pots; general cultural details; crown and terminal buds; feeding, its object and application; care of the buds; exhibition and judging; specimen plants, plants in pots; raising from seed and hybridizing; sports; hardy chrysanthemums; chrysanthemums for south and west; insect pests and diseases; classification and selection of varieties for special purposes; history of the chrysanthemum, etc. The book will be welcomed for the lucid, comprehensive, as well as the practical character of its contents. Handsomely illustrated. 168 pages, 5x7 inches. Price 50c postpaid.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

MARKET PEA FOR CALIFORNIA.

What market pea is the most profitable to grow in California, where we have little frost? H. S.—Cal.

Yorkshire Hero is the best and most popular market pea for California. The haulm is short. The peas are of good quality and are freely produced. Yorkshire Hero thrives better in hot weather than the longer-stemmed marrowfat pea. It is a good seller in all markets, and bears over a longer season than most other varieties.

H. R. Richards.

PEONIES FOR CALIFORNIA.

Kindly advise us which is the best early pink peony, the best early white, the best late pink and the best late white for cut flowers for market in California. L. C.

Peonies generally do not do so well in southern California as farther north and east, but there are several growers who have given them special attention. The following varieties are as good as any I have seen: Early white, festiva maxima; late white, Couronne d'Or; early pink, edulis superba; late pink, Triomphe de l'Exposition de Lille. These are grown in small quantities for the Los Angeles market. H. R. Richards.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Business has been decidedly better the last week or ten days. The cry now is for more good stock. The warm spell of a week or two ago left the carnations in bad shape, many being burned and others infested with thrips. Roses are especially poor, and there is little else to take their place. Lilium rubrum helps out for some work, but there is a limit to the uses to which this variety can be put. The cooler weather we are having will harden the stock and throw more substance into the flowers.

Club Meeting.

The members and friends at the meeting of the Los Angeles Horticultural Society, held September 7, were disappointed because of the absence of Jacob Dieterich, who was to have spoken on the fair and the S. A. F. convention at San Francisco. Mr. Dieterich has a most humorous way of imparting his facts to an audience, and whenever he can be prevailed upon to speak there is always something worth listening to. But he also has a large amount of sympathy for human suffering, and a big heart, and in the exercise of this he was kept away from the meeting. James Taylor, J. D. Meriwether and James McGilvray stepped into the breach and gave a most interesting evening. The horticultural beauties of the exhibitions at San Diego and San Francisco were compared, not altogether to the advantage of the latter.

Vice-president Felgate showed some magnificent zinnias of his perfect strain. The flowers are of extra large size and fine form, besides being of the brightest and most perfect shades of color. A hearty vote of thanks was given him and Secretary Kruckeberg, who showed fine double petunias and the new canna, Firebird.

The committee on the smoker met after the meeting and decided to hold a smoker every three months.

A communication from the National Gardeners' Association asking the society's cooperation in welcoming horticulturists from the east and in giving them free access to the society, provided they leave their own society in good standing, was favorably acted upon.

Various Notes.

Walter Garbett, manager of Darling's Flower Shop, has returned from his vacation and reports a pleasant time spent with Mrs. Garbett and family at Catalina.

Harvey Lindley, who had charge of the flower store of the late firm of Smith & Dieterich, but latterly with G. W. Smith, has resigned his position and gone north to look after some land holdings. Mr. Lindley was formerly the manager of the cut flower department of Howard & Smith. His pleasant, yet businesslike, manners have won him many friends in the city, who, while sorry to lose him, wish him success in his new location.

R. Newcomb, representing the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, was in the city calling on the trade and visiting his folks in San Dimas. Probably much of Mr. Newcomb's success is due to his true western spirit as well as to his stick-to-it-iveness, which he possesses to a large degree. He left last week for San Diego.

The opening of the new department store of J. W. Robinson, at Seventh and Grand, was a great success and called for a large number of complimentary floral pieces. Horseshoes, urns and large wreaths were the favorite forms of design. The work was apparently well divided among the leading retailers.

"It's a long way to Montebello" from Crown Point, Ind., but Alois Frey has joined the procession that has been headed that way for the last few years. He will grow his new colored freesias on land leased from J. Dieterich. Mr. Frey has probably made a wise choice, for the land lies high and is of good texture, with just enough silt in it to suit these bulbs. As freesias have never been grown on the land, there will be no fear of mixing. Mr. and Mrs. Frey left last week for San Diego and on their return will commence planting.

H. W. Turner has a large number of the newer small polyantha roses in the new houses, and they are mighty interesting just now. The new boiler house is practically complete, and Mr. Turner is considering the erection of a brick stack instead of the steel ones usually built here.

There is always something pretty in the windows of Morris Goldenson's store. The present decoration of shell-pink roses and accompanying greenery is distinctly good. Manager J. Gordon reports business good, especially in funeral work, but says that really good stock is difficult to get.

A fine display of lotus in the window of Wright's Flower Shop was an attraction last week.

The flowering of Victoria regia, or another species a good deal like it, in the lily pond at Eastlake park, has

The Market.

The florists, or at least a good number of the larger shops, have had another big week, owing to the numerous special decorations for Labor day and in particular for the Native Sons' celebration of Admission day, September 9; while the Jewish New Year at the same time caused an extremely large demand for ferns and flowering plants, as well as special baskets and cut flowers in general.

Offerings of cut flowers are hardly so large as for some time and everything is quickly cleaned up. Supplies of the small summer stock are still quite large, but some lines are going off crop and all show signs of the lateness of the season. Gladioli also are getting scarce and will not last much longer. A few fair sweet peas are seen. Carnations are still rather scarce, as the new stock is not yet showing up well. Asters are going off crop and poor stock brings rather high prices. There are plenty of good dahlias, including a wide range of varieties. Amaryllises are fairly popular, but are peddled on the street at low prices. Lilies are less plentiful, though rubrums are in fair supply, and there are enough cold storage giganteums to meet requirements. Roses show little change, except that the small growers are bringing in less stock and everything, including short stock, cleans up quickly. Mums continue to improve and some are being shipped, though few go far east as yet. October Frost, Monrovia and Crocker are most plentiful, but there are a good many Rose Pink and pompons are doing well. Violets are still quite scarce, only a few small bunches being seen at the larger stores. Cyclamen plants are appearing more freely and are good. There is a good deal of fine cockscomb. Hydrangeas are less in evidence and offerings of primulas are moderate and nothing extra in quality, the best of the available stock having been cleaned up earlier in the week. Few orchids are appearing. Gardenias are fair and the cut is quickly disposed of.

Horticultural Society Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, on the evening of September 4, was the first time that the members have got together since the S. A. F. convention and was naturally of more than usual interest, bringing out quite a large attendance. Just as the meeting opened, Victor Podesta came in and, depositing the fine trophy won by him in the bowling tournament on the table used for floral exhibits, was greeted with prolonged applause. H. Plath, president of the society, made a short talk on affairs connected with the convention, expressing much gratification at the way everything turned out and making a satisfactory report as to the financing of the affair. At the close of his talk D. Raymond made a motion that Daniel MacRorie be fined for not attending the meeting, but withdrew the motion a moment later when the S. A. F. president-elect entered. He was given quite an ovation and, when the applause subsided, gave an extended report of the work of the committee in charge of convention arrangements.

Mr. Plath, for the exhibition committee, reported progress in preparation for the fall flower show next month and also announced a dahlia show to be held in the Palace of Horticulture September 18 and 19, under the auspices of the California State Floral Society and the Alameda County Floral Society, in which eleven prizes are offered for competition for professional growers.

The sensation of the evening was sprung when proposals for new members were called for, in response to which Daniel MacRorie proposed the names of Patrick Welch, Wm. F. Kasting, Charles Willis Ward, John Morley, Vincent J. Gorly and others of national prominence, numbering close to a dozen. This was the signal for another outburst of applause. Mr. MacRorie said that many of the visitors had asked for life membership, for which there was no provision in the constitution of the society, and a proposition was made to make the change in the constitution, a committee consisting of Mr. MacRorie, Frank Pelicano and Eric James being appointed to consider the matter. J. Noordink was elected to membership.

Frank Pelicano, reporting for the picnic committee, expressed the opinion that it was getting too late in the year to hold a successful picnic, this being concurred in by many of those present. It was recommended instead to have a florists' day at the exposition.

In discussing a lecture for the next meeting, it was suggested that efforts be made to get the stereopticon slides shown at the convention of park superintendents last month.

The exhibits were: A large vase of dahlias, Delice and Kaiser Wilhelm, by Frank Pelicano, 85 points (Mr. Pelicano said Delice is one of the best cut flowers in the market today, but refused to comment on the Kaiser); a large fern, Nephrolepis Piersoni elegantissima, shown by H. Plath and rated at 85 points; and Mr. Podesta's bowling trophy, rated at 105 points. Called upon to tell how he did it, he gave the credit to Mr. MacRorie as originator of the local bowling club. He was warmly congratulated and much pleasure was expressed that the trophy is to remain here.

Various Notes.

Friends of Wallace R. Pierson will be glad to hear of his complete recovery, as proved by a strenuous afternoon at the exposition and participation in a dinner in the evening of September 9, at which he was guest of honor to a large number of local florists, who accompanied him to the train on his departure for Los Angeles. He left the hospital September 2 and his activities since would give no indication of his recent serious illness. He expresses no regret at the loss of his vermiform appendix, but the fact that he leaves it here will no doubt give San Francisco a higher place in his affection than it has had in the past. Mr. Pierson will spend a week in the south before starting on his eastern trip.

E. J. Fancourt, of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, left a few days ago for Portland and Seattle on his homeward trip. It is understood that this is the first convention at which he sold out all the material brought for exhibition purposes.

John R. Fotheringham, representative of several eastern supply houses, has left for a business trip east.

The E. W. McLellan Co. is beginning to ship a good many chrysanthemums. For the Jewish holiday, the new Bush street store has been selling large quantities of ferns, principally elegantissima compacta, almost a whole truckload having been sold every morning for the last week.

E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., is again in San Francisco after a trip to Los Angeles.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. had one of the best Admission day floats September 9, which, with extra work for the Jewish holiday, kept them working all night. This was a float for the Native Sons and Native Daughters, being about twenty-six feet long, with a big bear flag on the sides. The main body of the float was made of yellow mums, with suitable admixture of greens; the lettering around the top, of coreopsis and African marigolds. The field of the flag was of white carnations, on a base of Minnie Burgle dahlias, the bear of scabiosas and the star of red carnations.

The Art Floral Co. had quite an elaborate decoration this week at the St. Francis hotel, for a dinner of the Horse Breeders' Association, at which tables were laid for about 100. The central feature was a large mass of tiger lilies, with many figures of running horses made up of marigolds.

Fred Grohe and Mrs. Margaret Butts, Santa Rosa florists, have been sending down a lot of stock for their county exhibit at the exposition.

A. E. Gude, of Washington, D. C., returned to San Francisco early this week, after visiting other parts of the state. H. S. G.

The Market.

Conditions last week were even better than those of the week before. All of the first-class stock was cleaned up daily and there was but little waste of poorer materials. The public schools were opened September 7 and brought back many families from their summer vacations. Jewish New Year's came September 9 and was celebrated extensively with flowers. The demand for funeral work has been good.

Good asters still come in, but their end is in sight. Carnations are more plentiful and the cut of roses is normal. Ferns are beginning to sell and the first cyclamens and obconicas are shown. The demand for orchids has exceeded the supply.

Floral Center at Fair.

The Clarke county fair was held at Vancouver, Wash., last week and in connection with it a floral center was established in the business district of the city, designed by Julius Dorsche, of the committee on exhibitions of the Portland Floral Society. The center occupied the street for one block and was enclosed by a neat picket fence. Alongside and partway across the ends were beds of potted plants, set in wet sand. About 4,000 plants were used. Geraniums, cockscombs, fuchsias, coleus, heliotropes and tuberous begonias were the principal varieties and they made a creditable showing, considering the time of year and the fact that none of the growers had expected such a call, as this is an innovation at county fairs.

In the middle of the street were booths for the exhibition of dahlias. The Willamette Dahlia Co., the Columbia Dahlia Co. and Gill Bros. each filled one booth. The rest were occupied by amateur displays.

The center was well lighted by strings of electric bulbs.

The florists hope that other counties will follow the example of Clarke county and use a floral display as one of the attractions at the annual fairs.

Various Notes.

The September meeting of the Portland Floral Society will be held at Masonic Temple at 8 o'clock, September 21. Some important matters will be discussed.

R. L. Scott, of the Woodmere Floral Co., reports a strong demand for ferns.

Mr. and Mrs. William Penn, of Boston, were visitors last week.

At the office of the Pilkington nursery there was trouble recently in explaining to a woman inquiring by telephone that the establishment was a tree factory and did not take care of small children.

G. Indermuhle has resigned as private gardener on the Hirsch estate and will devote all of his time to his nursery on the Slavin road. S. W. W.

PICEA PUNGENS.

One of the finest varieties of evergreen trees in the nurseryman's catalogue is the Colorado spruce, Picea pungens. Its striking appearance and its adaptability both commend it to the grower of ornamental evergreens. Pyramidal in form, it makes an upright, symmetrical growth. Its strong, sturdy appearance, its dense, pungent foliage and its clusters of cones all combine to make it an object of admiration anywhere. It seems to be hardy wherever evergreens grow. It withstands the cold, and resists the drought as well as any of the spruces. Wherever it is planted it makes a vigorous growth, on all kinds of soil.

The beautiful color of this spruce is one of its attractive points. This varies from a silvery white to a dark blue, almost purple. According to the different shades of color, the varieties argentea, cærulea and glauca are distinguished. One of the latter, Koster's blue spruce, is one of the best known. There is in addition a variety with green leaves, known as viridis, which, however, has not the popularity of the blue varieties.

Splendid specimens of this spruce are numerous. Probably some of the best are on the old Douglas grounds at Waukegan, Ill., where trees twenty-five and thirty feet high are in perfect condition, showing no weakness anywhere. A particularly fine specimen, grown in the east, is shown in the accompanying illustration.

TWO WAYS OF PACKING.

Bad packing of flowers is complained of by Consul General Thomas Sammons, at Shanghai, China, in a report to the State department. He quotes as follows from one of the best informed men in the far east as to bad packing:

"Last winter I placed two orders of the same value for rose plants, one with a nurseryman in Ohio and another in England. The American plants were simply tossed into a flimsy pasteboard box with a little loose moss. The box arrived all crushed and the roses were as dry and dead as the bones of an early Christian martyr. The English roots were tightly wrapped in moss, then in cotton and finally in a gunny bag. It took them longer to reach me, but all were alive."

PROPAGATION OF VIBURNUMS.

Kindly inform me how to propagate the snowball viburnum. A. D.—S. D.

There are two distinct varieties of the so-called snowball. One, Viburnum Opulus sterile, is a native species, often called the guelder rose; the other, V. tomentosum plicatum, is the Japanese snowball. The first named is hardier and transplants much more easily than the Japanese variety. The Japanese sort, however, is not troubled with attacks of aphis, as is V. Opulus. Both varieties can be readily propagated from pieces of half ripened wood, which should be taken from the beginning to the middle of July and inserted in a close frame in sandy soil. Cut the leaves back half their length. Keep the cuttings shaded, freely sprayed and closed early in the afternoon. If preferred, the cuttings can be placed in pans or flats. The latter method is preferable where small numbers are to be propagated. Cuttings put in now would not root satisfactorily, but shoots can be layered and taken off when well rooted. C. W.

FIELD-GROWN

Carnation Plants

IT is our pleasure to be able to offer to the trade, this season, the finest lot of field plants we have ever grown. The Pittsburgh district has enjoyed an exceptional summer. Cool days and nights, just enough rain, plenty of dew. Just that weather on which carnations delight and thrive. Our stock has no disease of any kind, no stem-rot, no dead foliage, no spider. All plants guaranteed first quality and size, in good healthy condition, true to name. We dig carefully, give liberal count and pack to ship anywhere. We are carnation specialists, our men know how.

Edward Jacobi states that his July and August business was quite good. He has a fine lot of carnations and mums.

Ralph Plebany has completed his new greenhouse and is planting it with sweet peas. He has two houses of carnations and four houses of mums. He has planted 6,000 Paper Whites and will have about 25,000 geranium cuttings.

Ernest Holmes, 1319 Springfield avenue, has some fine chrysanthemums. The Golden Glows are beginning to bloom. He also has some fancy asters, cyclamen and stevia.

Edward W. Fengar has from 35,000 to 40,000 carnation plants, 30,000 chrysanthemum plants, 50,000 geranium cuttings and a fine lot of perennials. Mr. Fengar spent August with his family near Newburgh, N. Y. Edwin Pearson, the greenhouse foreman, has returned from his vacation, which he spent near Bath, Me. A. Thurnberg, the assistant foreman, spent his vacation at Kennebunkport, Me.

George Deisler is again a candidate for Republican county committeeman. He held this position for a number of years until last year, when he retired. He has now decided to reënter the fight.

Charles Deisler, 1287 Springfield avenue, has a fine lot of mums and carnations. He is making alterations at his range.

John Pfeufer has installed a new boiler.

Charles Stormer has finished planting his carnations.

Charles Momm & Sons have purchased a 6-cylinder Studebaker automobile and expect to buy an automobile truck shortly. R. B. M.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

Business in general did not improve to any extent last week. There has been a large amount of funeral work, which has used some of the surplus stock, this being the mainstay of the trade. There is still an abundance of stock, and as sales are slow, the market is always in a position to take care of all orders that come in.

The new crop of roses is coming in and the stock is more plentiful than heretofore. The rose cut is sufficient to meet the demand and the quality of the flowers is exceptionally good. The new crop Russell roses have a brilliant color and are easily the best on the market. New carnations have made their appearance, but, of course, are not as yet arriving in any appreciable quantities. The stock looks fine and seems to indicate that the general run of carnations this year will be exceptionally fine.

Chrysanthemums are appearing in limited quantities and they are disposed of with no trouble, as the stock is in fine shape. Gladioli have shortened up to some extent, due to the heavy rains which visited this section of the country last week. The quality is deteriorating steadily, and the cut will probably cease entirely in about two weeks. Asters are reduced in quantity for the same reason, but they are still in large supply. Fine stock is to be had reasonably. Asters this year have been better than those of the last few years. There was a shortage of valley last week, and the demand for it was greater than it had been. Therefore, no trouble was experienced in moving the cut, which was cleaned up each morning. Lilies are in fair supply and the stock is in fine shape. They are not moving rapidly, however. The market during the last few weeks has seen some extra fancy dahlias, which found ready sale at all times.

Various Notes.

Nic Zweifel has returned from an extended western trip. He says that he had a fine time and that it will not be long before he goes again.

John Rindfleisch, of Beloit, Wis., has returned from a long trip through Wisconsin and northern Michigan.

Mrs. H. A. Levenhagen, of Manitowoc, Wis., was a visitor last week.

Walter Holton, of Holton & Hunkel Co., was ill for several days last week. The Holton & Hunkel Co. has had its store and office repainted and is busy with repairs and improvements at the greenhouses. H. J. S.

The Market.

Although business should be picking up now, the weather is so warm and outdoor stock is still in such fine condition that we cannot expect much improvement until we get a good frost. The market is overflowing with asters and gladioli. There are numerous amateurs in this vicinity who bring their products to the city, and it is not unusual to see a woman sitting in front of a grocery or other store with a lot of first-class asters, selling them at 25 cents per dozen.

Various Notes.

A staff of carpenters is engaged in remodeling the exterior and interior of Taepke's store. Upon Gus H. Taepke's death, recently, the heirs formed a stock company, known as the Gus H. Taepke Co. The date of incorporation was August 23. The capital stock is $15,000, divided into $100 shares. Walter Taepke holds ninety shares; Mrs. Kitty Taepke, Mr. Taepke's widow, has forty-five shares, and Laura Taepke, a daughter, who always looked after the retail business at the greenhouses, holds the remaining fifteen shares.

E. A. Fetters' handsome new stores, at Woodward and Pallister avenues, are nearing completion. There are three stores, with living apartments upstairs. The center store will be occupied by Mr. Fetters. The property has considerable depth and it is the intention to build several greenhouses in the rear.

F. J. Rosser is the possessor of a new "Paige six" touring car.

Ferdinand Kolbe recently purchased a handsome new touring car.

The Detroit Florists' Club has been virtually reorganized. Many of the members appeared to have lost interest in the club's affairs to such an extent that it was impossible even to collect their back dues, covering in some cases four or five years. Recently a paper was presented to every member, asking him to pay $4 in advance, as dues in the new organization until January 1, 1916. Those not wishing to become affiliated with the new club have been just naturally dropped, as the old organization is now practically extinct. A further change of plans has also been made. Meetings will hereafter be held the first and third Tuesdays of the month, instead of Monday as heretofore. The members will assemble for a 6 o'clock dinner, and later the meeting will be called. This will be followed by bowling. Several strong bowling teams were organized at the first meeting, September 14. H. S.

ORCHIDS, PALMS
and plants of every variety

THERE is NO SCARCITY of PALMS at DREER'S

COCOS WEDDELIANA.

OUR SUPPLY of Palms, and particularly that of Kentias, is not at all affected by the war tie-up of Belgian stocks. We are carrying the usual large quantities and full line of sizes of the well known Dreer quality, but as the general supply of this class of stock is much smaller than usual, due to this blockade, there is certain to be a scarcity as the season advances. The demand during August has been heavier than we have ever experienced during that month, and we are positive that there will not be sufficient good stock to last throughout the season. We therefore recommend that you cover your requirements early. If you are not ready to accept immediate delivery, let us book your order, and we will set aside and reserve your stock, making delivery at any time between now and October 15.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

USING 1-INCH RETURNS.

We are erecting a greenhouse 18x50, with 4-foot walls and with glass in the south end down to the eaves. The boiler room is at the north end. We expect to heat with hot water and wish to use 1-inch returns. How would you advise us to pipe the house, so as to heat it to 60 degrees when the outside temperature is 10 degrees below zero? Will it be satisfactory to use pipe which has been through a fire, but which seems to be in good condition?
C. F. B.—Wash.

While pipe which has been through a fire may be used if it does not leak and has not been bent, it would not be advisable to use 1-inch pipe for hot water unless the boiler is six or eight feet below the returns or a generator is installed. To heat a house 18x50 feet to 60 degrees, I would use two 2-inch flow pipes on the plates and one under the ridge, and would connect each of them with five 1-inch returns. I would prefer to use two 2-inch returns in the wall coils and three under the middle bench.

THE COAL MARKET.

The newly developed activity in the coal market, reported last week, is continuing this week without any abatement, but also without much increase. The mere fact, however, that last week's volume of trade is maintained, without any sign of sudden relapse, is regarded as an excellent reason for hopefulness and quiet confidence among the coal dealers. The recent rather sudden increase of orders was attributed largely to the period of cool weather, but the present steady persistence of the demand, regardless of the weather, seems to prove that the fall trade "has gained its stride."

The export trade, of course, is now fully recognized to be a prime factor in the situation, for it is said that "the exports of coal in August for the third successive month reached

WHICH SHALL IT BE?

CAST IRON BOILERS—FOOL ECONOMY (false ratings, fuel waste, danger of breakdowns by cracking of sections, dealers' commissions on sales)—OR KROESCHELL BOILERS—FUEL ECONOMY (honest and "true blue" boiler ratings, safety, quick heat, factory-to-user prices).

Kroeschell Replaces 4 Cast Iron Boilers

Previous to 1909, Mr. Schultz, of Menominee, Mich., heated his entire plant with cast iron boilers. It had been claimed that cast iron boilers are superior to the Kroeschell. Mr. Schultz is now heating 18,000 sq. ft. of glass with the Kroeschell which was installed in 1909, and they are required to fire same only twice a night. The following letter speaks for itself:

"We do not have the least trouble to maintain about 60 degrees in the coldest weather. Your Kroeschell Boiler is the best I ever had. Before I heard about your boiler I had four cast iron boilers, and I would not part with the Kroeschell for a hundred cast iron boilers now." (Signed) CHARLES SCHULTZ.
July 21, 1913, Menominee, Mich.

Kroeschell Replaces 2 Cast Iron Boilers

The Marysville Floral Co., of Marysville, O., installed a No. 4 Kroeschell Boiler in 1905. Previous to this time they used cast iron boilers. The following letter speaks for itself:

"Has the Kroeschell given entire satisfaction? Yes! We had two cast iron boilers, but yours proved by far the best. Your boiler has already outlasted the two cast iron boilers by five years, and all the expense that we have been put to was a smoke dome." (Signed) MARYSVILLE FLORAL CO.

Kroeschell Replaces Cast Iron Boilers

The range of C. Peterson & Son, at Escanaba, Mich., was formerly heated by cast iron boilers. Last season this firm installed their first Kroeschell, a No. 6, which is now heating 13,000 to 14,000 sq. ft. of glass. They state that they fire these boilers three to four times during the night in zero weather. Under date of June 28, 1913, they write as follows:

"The Kroeschell Boiler has given better satisfaction than any other boiler we have ever had. For years we have fired many different boilers, and really never could get one that we might say was entirely satisfactory—there was always something wrong—but now since we have tried the Kroeschell, we have solved our boiler proposition. We have a (— —) cast iron sectional boiler here, only used two years, and we wish we could get rid of it and put in another Kroeschell in its place." (Signed) C. PETERSON & SON.

(Economic Productivity)

The greatest amount of good for the least investment of money, time, labor or fuel can be gotten from the Wilks Self-feeding Hot Water Boiler.

Made entirely of steel and with no cast iron sections to crack and leak.

For the beginner or a small range of glass they are ideal.

NO NIGHT FIREMAN REQUIRED with the Wilks Self-feeding Boilers, as the magazine or coal chamber holds sufficient fuel to keep fire 10 to 12 hours without attention. Best made for a small greenhouse.

the attractive figure of one million tons. Indications so far in September are that this will be the record month of all time in the matter of coal exportations." Another important feature is the shortage of cars and other railroad equipment, which, according to the coal men, is no longer a theory, but a condition.

It seems, however, that there is no real scarcity yet in the florists' favorite fuel, smokeless coal, whatever trouble the near future may bring, for the market owes its present stability, it is said, largely to the mine owners' restriction of the output. "The operators," says a Chicago reporter, "have not shipped any free coal in here to speak of, most of the movement being on contract. No one would vouch for the situation if a different policy were adopted by the operators.'' The September prices at the mines, $1.40 for mine-run and $2.25 for lump and egg, are firmly maintained.

A BOILER AND CONNECTIONS.

I have an upright boiler, four feet in diameter, ten feet in height, and containing 118 2-inch flues. It is set in a pit deep enough so that six feet of the water in the boiler is below the return pipes and four feet of the water is above the returns. Two 3½-inch flows rise four feet above the boiler and run with but a slight fall to the end of the houses, which are 100 feet long. There are two 3½-inch return openings at the bottom of the boiler.

I shall connect the water tank with the boiler. The tank is thirty feet above the top of the boiler. That will provide a pressure, I think, of about sixteen pounds. Will that be sufficient to cause the water to circulate satisfactorily? I have been using steam, but wish to change to water if I can get a good circulation under these conditions. I have only about 6,000 square feet of glass or its equivalent. Where should the pipe from the tank be connected—at the bottom or the top of the boiler? T. L. S.—Mo.

While it would be preferable to use a horizontal boiler of the dimensions stated, good results may be obtained with the arrangement outlined. The expansion tank should be connected with the highest point in one of the flow pipes, and a branch pipe should lead to the other flow pipe. This would do away with the necessity for air valves in the flows; otherwise the connection could be made at any point. Since a serious explosion might result if the pipe to the tank happened to freeze, I would advise the use of a safety valve on the expansion pipe.

Last week

we called your attention to the wisdom of getting rid of pipe leaks by means of Emergency Pipe Clamps.

The Market.

With the vacation season about over, the florists are back at work and are looking forward to a busy fall and winter. Business last week was the best that we have had all summer. There was an unusually large lot of funeral work. There was a great demand for corsages, baskets, cut flowers and plants for the Jewish New Year's.

Asters are still plentiful. New carnations are improving, having better flowers and longer stems. Good gladioli are about done for; so are sweet peas. A few Golden Glow and Smith's Advance mums are arriving. Other offerings include lilies, snapdragons, cosmos, and Asparagus Sprengeri and plumosus. Roses also are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Baldwin the Florist had the decorations at the church for the Millar wedding.

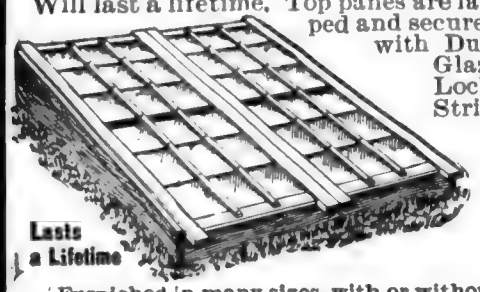
B. E. & J. T. Cokely received their first shipment of Dutch bulbs last week. J. T. Cokely has returned after a successful trip through New York state. Miss Gager, the bookkeeper, has returned from a two weeks' vacation.

Louis Schultheis has accepted a position as manager for the Maple City Greenhouses, at Honesdale, Pa. He has the best wishes of all the craft in his new field.

Anton Schultheis is making a number of repairs at his greenhouses. He is also installing a new boiler.

A. L. Besancon & Co. report an exceedingly busy week,

T. B. McClintock is cutting some fine new carnations and finds a ready market for them.



G. R. Clark reports a busy week with funeral work. He is cutting dahlias, asters, candytuft, snapdragons and gladioli at the gardens. F. J. M.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

Owing to the intense heat of last week, stock of all kinds has been on the wane. There have been great quantities of roses on the market, but the quality was only medium. Outdoor stock has increased during the warm days, when the thermometer registered 90 degrees and upward.

There was a big call for funeral work last week, and early fall weddings and social affairs have given a stimulus to the florists' business.

Chrysanthemums have met with a good demand for these affairs, as well as for the numerous mercantile openings held during the week. Gladioli are becoming scarce. Asters sell well and continue to bring good returns. Carnations are steadily improving. Cosmos and dahlias are exceedingly plentiful. Fine Easter lilies meet the demand for funeral work. Green goods are sufficiently plentiful.

Various Notes.

The New Haven Floral Co., located at New Haven, Ind., suffered a heavy loss from a tornado September 10. The entire range of six houses was damaged, and several new houses under construction were completely demolished. No one was injured. Herman Leitz, of the New Haven Floral Co., is believed to have insured the houses.

F. J. Knecht is cutting some fine Ward, Russell and Shawyer roses, which he is shipping to eastern wholesale markets. His chrysanthemum plants are in prime condition and promise a splendid cut this fall.

The Zur Muhlen flower store is displaying some good gladioli. They report business good for early September, with the demand chiefly for funeral work.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey are cutting a variety of seasonable flowers. The rose crop is good and promises well for the coming season. Their orchid houses contain many of the best commercial varieties, and S. Hudson anticipates a good cut for fall and winter.

The Doswell greenhouses are making a splendid appearance. The carnation plants are some of the best seen in this locality and are already yielding a good cut. Chrysanthemum plants of many varieties are doing well, and the rose stock is exceptional. R. F.

DAHLIA SOCIETY SHOW.

A tremendous amount of enthusiasm is being shown in every section of the country in the American Dahlia Society, which was formed in New York city last May by Richard Vincent, Jr., ex-president of the Society of American Florists, and other dahlia lovers. Over 100 have joined as charter members, and there is every prospect of this number being increased to 250 before the annual meeting.

The annual meeting will be held during the first show of the organization, September 24 to 26, at the Museum of Natural History, New York city. It is expected to be the largest dahlia show ever held in the United States. The expectations are that over $300 will be offered in prizes.

Copies of the preliminary schedule have been issued, and may be obtained by writing to either George V. Nash, secretary of the Horticultural Society of New York, Bronx park, or Joseph J. Lane, secretary of the American Dahlia Society, 11 West Thirty-second street, New York city.

To promote interest in this show, the executive board at its last meeting authorized the secretary to prepare 2,500 double post cards, to be sent out through the dahlia dealers in various parts of the country to the large buyers of dahlias. All joining before September 24 become charter members. The dues are $1 for initiation, $2 for active membership and $1 for associate membership.

As has been stated previously, President Vincent has offered to supply the dahlia blooms to any retailer who will enter into competition for the various prizes offered for dahlias in decorations. John Young, secretary of the Society of American Florists, will take charge of the exhibition. An attempt is being made to get together flowers from all the growers possible and to make an exhibition of one flower of each of as many varieties as possible.

ONE YEAR AGO WE PUT ON LONG PANTS

Fifty-two weeks ago today The Review laid aside the habiliments of youth and, in assuming a new fall dress, gave to the Trade for the first time a Magazine in appearance as good as its contents. That the Trade has appreciated the departure from the pamphlet style has been apparent to the most casual observer—it has been The Review's biggest year.

SWADDLING clothes frequently suffice for a publication much longer than they do a member of the genus homo. In fact, a large percentage of the publications of this country, brought forth, so their sponsors fondly hoped, to "fill a long felt want," in the course of time develop a striking similarity to Peter Pan, whom you will remember as a cute little fairy who never grew up.

It took The Review almost seventeen years to get its first suit with long pants—that was a year ago this week.

The Review had attained a robust growth in its youthful dress—the pamphlet style—and it really should have donned man's attire—the dress of grown up magazines—a year before it did, but you know how prone people are to let well enough alone, to cling to what has served them fairly well in spite of the fact that something much better has become available.

A Lucky Move.

But today its publishers count themselves fortunate that The Review was able to make the great improvement just at the moment it did—count themselves fortunate that they did not permit the unsettlement that existed a year ago to deter them from incurring the increased fixed expense that went with the improved style of printing and binding.

For The Review, for the last year at least, unquestionably has been in a class by itself.

In a year of business unsettlement, when practically all publications quite plainly have been losing both circulation and advertising, The Review has done the largest business in its history—has gained in circulation, in advertising and, above all, in the friendly regard of those for whom it is published.

Boosted by Its Patrons.

The greater part of the new subscriptions—and subscribers are the mainstay, the reliance, the backbone of the business—have come through the courtesy of readers who have recommended the paper to other florists, and especially to beginners in the business. In a number of cases subscribers even have gone farther than to recommend The Review—they have taken charge of the remittance of the new man, sending it in with word that it was a pleasure to thus render a double service.

But the bulk of Review subscriptions always have come singly, direct from the subscriber. The Review never has employed subscription canvassers—its effort has been for sufficient editorial strength to secure spontaneous subscriptions by mail, and to hold them. Advertisers long since have learned that a circulation among people who write for and pay for a paper because they want it to read is far better than a circulation obtained either by offering premiums or through canvassers. In the one case, many subscribers really buy the premium; they may never read the paper that comes with it. And in the other case—well, the canvasser usually pockets the greater part of the subscription fee and cares nothing beyond that; he would as soon as not sell a florists' paper to a blacksmith or to Mrs. Gotrocks—and you know what a smooth talker can do! No, thank you, The Review never has cared for either the premium-built or the canvasser-got kind of circulation.

Does this look as though each subscriber gets his Dollar's worth per year?

Last Year's Copies of The Review Make a Stack a Foot High.

Subscribers Stick.

That the circulation of The Review is today, after a year of business depression, larger than it ever was before is directly due to the fact that the trade likes the paper well enough so that ninety per cent of the subscriptions are renewed within three weeks of expiration. And it may be of interest to note that the paper now is considerably the largest strictly horticultural trades' periodical printed anywhere in the world—largest in size and number of pages; largest in circulation. While it has lost considerable of its European circulation in the last year, due to European readers being at

Gentlemen:-

Allow us to remark that we think you are wide awake and always on the alert, just as your weekly magazine proves. The Review has a certain magnetic quality that causes people in the trade to drop everything else as soon as The Review makes its appearance. Something will be wrong if ever it fails to arrive of a Saturday.

We are enclosing some advertisements which we shall be glad to have you print until we notify you to stop.

Yours very truly,

Zieger and Sons.

the moment unusually busy with other matters, the paper still penetrates to every corner of the globe in which there is an interest in the doings of the trade in America.

The policy of The Review never has been to charge "what the traffic will bear"—instead, it has been the aim to hold its rates as low as can consistently be done; to see how much, instead of how little, can be given for the money. The idea is, first, to bring the paper within the reach of all who care to read, and, second, to give such good value that everyone will want it.

What a Dollar Buys.

Just what a dollar has procured, spent for a year's subscription to The Review, not many, probably, have stopped to consider. The picture on the preceding page shows the fifty-two weekly issues printed since the up-to-date magazine binding was adopted, stacked one on top of another. Beside them stands a foot rule. You will recognize the light-colored copies as the periodical special numbers. When this pile of papers was put on the scales it was found to weigh thirty-six pounds and three ounces. A foot of papers weighing over thirty-six pounds for a dollar!

The 12,000 copies of each edition printed in the year just closed called for the use of 443,400 pounds of body stock and 28,080 pounds of cover stock, a total of 471,480 pounds of paper, or almost 236 tons. Had it been possible to have stacked these copies one on top of the other, it would have made a pile 12,000 feet high, as the illustration shows, or a little over two and a quarter miles.

It might be urged that mere bulk does not constitute value in a trade paper, but a florist could not develop a large business without giving good value—and no more could a publication.

In this connection there may be interest for some in the accompanying table comparing the circulation and rates of a dozen weekly trade papers picked because each is a leader in its field. Twelve are used because it is enough to make the points—the leading papers in fifty trades would show no more, and no less.

Cost to Readers.

Take the matter of subscription price: Of these dozen papers picked at random only one charges its readers as little as The Review. Several charge $4 or $5 a year, and the average for the lot is $3.77.

Editorially The Review might be stronger if its income were larger—and it might be still more expensively printed—but it is doubtful if it would thereby render a better service to the trade. With a low subscription price the paper is within the reach of all.

Volume of Advertising.

A paper that covers its field as thoroughly as does The Review would almost inevitably have a large advertising patronage. The only thing that could prevent would be prohibitive charges for space.

And Review rates are not prohibitive. They easily can be called reasonable. Indeed, after noting what the others of this dozen leaders charge, one might almost say Review rates are decidedly and definitely low.

But this is only another form of excellent service to the whole trade—to buyers as well as sellers.

A trade paper owes its first duty to its subscribers. Good service to its readers lies primarily in telling the trade news truthfully and fully—and how can the trade news be told fully without a full showing of ads? For the trade news is found in the ads quite as much as in the text.

A Word on Rates.

By charging a distinctly reasonable rate for the use of its space The Review makes it possible for all who wish to put their business news before the trade in attractive form.

The publisher's advantages in the lowest possible rate include: A big assortment of trade offers that in most cases are as interesting as editorial matter; a low cost for solicitation, the publisher's selling expense; a steady volume of business to keep the plant running at minimum expense.

Rates of Other Leaders.

Note the yearly rates per page for the dozen papers in the table on this page. Regardless of circulation, none of them charges so little as The Review. American Lumberman, with practically the same size circulation, charges more than three times as much as The Review. And Dry Goods Economist—well, look for yourself!

Review Ads.

Each of these papers carries a fine volume of advertising—but their space is not used, in proportion to the size of each field, anywhere near as generally as Review space is used.

In last week's issue The Review carried 1,637 separate advertisements, for each and every one of which its published, public card rates were charged without deviation. That's service.

It is service to buyer. It is service to seller. Not so good service as will be given in the future, perhaps, but good service as judged by all the accepted standards—also, good service as judged by comparison with the circulation and rates of other leading trade papers—any trade papers.

COVERING THE CONTINENT.

A telegraph wire across the continent—from the Massachusetts building at the San Francisco exposition to the City Club of Boston—and a florist at each end, is a situation just a few minutes anticipated by the illustration on this page. One end of the wire is shown, and at it is speaking Governor David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, seated at the table in the rear center and facing the front. Standing at the left, between the two windows, is the well known figure of Henry Penn, awaiting his turn to talk to Boston following the governor.

Mr. Penn was, therefore, the first florist to talk from San Francisco to Boston, and his brother, William Penn, who answered him, was the owner of the second florist's voice to cross the continent. The photograph was taken in the Massachusetts building at the San Francisco fair. William Penn answered from the City Club of Boston. The florists received this distinction through the courtesy of the Pilgrim Publicity Association, of Boston, of which Henry Penn is an active member.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

Preparations Rapidly Progressing.

Preparations for the fourth national flower show, to be held in Philadelphia March 25 to April 2, 1916, are in active progress. Space in the areas set apart for the trade exhibits is being freely reserved, and at present the bookings amount to over $4,000 in the aggregate. One exhibitor, who had booked for a liberal space, recently increased his booking to 1,200 square feet, equivalent to a $1,200 stand.

Chairman George Asmus, of the national flower show committee, will call a meeting of his committee shortly, at which the second preliminary schedule will be settled. The schedule will include the American Carnation Society's premiums and the carnation section. This section will, it is expected, have more than usual prominence, for the reason that the A. C. S. is to celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary, or silver jubilee, at this show.

The American Rose Society's and American Sweet Pea Society's premiums, with the sectional premiums, will also appear in the new schedule. Special prizes offered by H. A. Dreer, Inc., H. F. Michell Co., John Cook, Zandberger Bros., of Holland, and others will also be announced.

The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society has decided to abandon its customary spring show for 1916, and to throw its influence into the work of the national flower show. To this end it has appointed W. F. Therkildson, Robert Craig and David Rust a committee to act in conjunction with the national flower show committee.

J. Otto Thilow, chairman of the lecture committee, has the work of his committee well in hand, and the lectures will be an important feature of the show. The committee on special features and the other local committees are all making good progress, and have their plans well on the way to completion.

Much favorable comment by the trade has been passed upon the two plantings outside the exhibition hall, which have been quite conspicuous this summer and have helped considerably to attract attention to the forthcoming show. H. A. Dreer, Inc., and H. F. Michell Co., who provided these plantings, are to be commended for their interest and forethought.

Treasurer F. R. Newbold, of the Horticultural Society of New York, who is taking a most active and kindly interest in the show, has obtained promises of assistance from the members of several ladies' garden clubs and societies, and he reports that all seem ambitious to even outdo the efforts of the ladies whose excellent assistance was such an important feature of the success of the 1915 New York show.

That the show has the interest and attention of the trade in all its branches throughout the country is evident from the letters received at the secretary's office, and there is every prospect that the national exhibition of 1916 will eclipse all preceding flower shows. John Young, Sec'y.

TO KILL WORMS ON FERNS.

We note, under the head of "Worms on Ferns," in The Review for September 9, the inquiry of T. N. C., and we think that we may be able to give some information that will be useful to him and others that are troubled with the worms. We have been troubled with the same worms about this time every year. We call them army worms. They are green and dark brown in color, and work all through the day.

We have used mostly arsenate of lead, mixing it according to directions on jar and spraying with a fine spray. We go over our ferns about three times a week. We know this kills them, because we have found large ones dried up on the ferns.

Another remedy we have used is bran, Paris green and syrup mixed together. Enough Paris green should be mixed with the bran so that you can see a greenish tint. Mix a little water with the syrup; then add enough to the bran and Paris green to make the mixture soft and mealy. Put this among the ferns, and it will give the worms a stomach ache.

"YOUR MONEY BACK."

In the last two months we have had occasion to use the Classified columns of The Review freely, in offering our various plants for sale, especially Enchantress carnations, in which we specialize, in each and every case offering the purchasers their money back if the plants we sent were not satisfactory. We did not ask cash in advance, yet out of some forty purchasers but five did not send check with order. This proves most conclusively to us that when one sells in such good faith the purchaser is ready to buy in equally good faith, to the benefit of both parties.

In our ten years' existence we have received good, bad and indifferent stock, when first-class stock was ordered. Three years ago we adopted John Wanamaker's policy, "Your money back if dissatisfied," and recommend the system to florists generally, as we believe it is the one square way to do business.

HIPKISS HOLDS FORTH.

I should feel it a loss to miss one issue of The Review. It is a source of pleasure to scan its pages, where the best of us can find valuable information in regard to the care and diseases of plants needed for bedding and house purposes.

It is a pleasure to deal with the many who advertise in the paper. Nothing creates more confidence in a buyer than to see in every issue the old reliables, on whom you can depend in every purchase. Sometimes it is hard to get just what you need for the purpose intended. This necessitates making inquiries of others unknown to you. This is good experience, in my estimation, for it puts one on guard against the fakir. It has been my pleasure to deal with perhaps twenty-five different houses in the course of a season. This year we purchased 20,000 bedding plants from Review advertisers.

It is interesting to note at the bottom of so many of the advertisements, "Cash, please." Well now, that's business, and every purchaser, large and small, should be compelled in some way to be honorable with every business house carrying an advertisement in the paper.

I rather think the business houses are to blame in some cases. The rule should be, full amount forwarded with each order. Every season I have to buy in large orders, and it has always been my policy to forward payment by check on all orders. I am sorry that some of those who cry, "Cash, please," fail to give credit for the remittance on their books, and at later dates forward bills. That's where the check system talks at both ends. How some firms can make such mistakes after indorsing the check, I fail to see.

Again, there are others who will ship any old stuff, after receiving your order and check, when they have not the plants that were ordered by name. This makes one's work "look like 2 cents," especially if it is carpet bedding. I lose all confidence in a concern that does this.

The slogan in all transactions should be "Cash, and all bills paid." But the purchaser should get full value, proper credit and named plants that have been ordered by the advertisement, so that he will not be disappointed after laboring over some valuable bedding only to find at a later date that he has not received what he paid for.

A VISIT TO MR. BERWIND.

During the recent exhibition of the American Gladiolus Society at Newport, several of the members were afforded the opportunity to inspect the estate of Edward T. Berwind, through the courtesy of Bruce Butterton, the head gardener, who for over twenty-three years has performed his duties in a manner possible only to genius.

Many technical descriptions of this important estate have been published in architectural papers, and it is not the purpose of the writer to attempt to enlarge or improve upon them—simply to thank Mr. Butterton for his kindness. At the same time it is desired to record the feeling of those who gazed spellbound at the chaste beauty of the grounds that at every step unfolded new vistas, until the climax was reached at the sunken garden, where masses of reddish pink begonias grouped in central beds lent such magnificence to the scene as to render adequate description impossible.

Nature under Mr. Butterton's clever touch has not been bettered—simply assisted to do her best, as she always does when all obstacles are removed. Her varied charms are displayed to the observer only at the most opportune

EUONYMUS RADICANS VEGETA.

Referring to the leading article in The Review for September 16, Euonymus radicans vegeta is one of the best evergreen vines recently introduced. Taking it the year around it may be the best, as it is more effective in winter than any others and in summer it is equal to the best. The glossy green foliage is always in perfect condition, winter and summer; and in the dreary winter weather a wall covered with Euonymus radicans vegeta is made bright by the handsome red berries that are produced in prodigious masses, simply covering the plant. This new vine is a great addition to our horticultural treasures, but unfortunately it may not become common for several years, as the stock in the United States is small. A. E. Wohlert.

TO OBTAIN BELGIAN GOODS.

The Department of State has forwarded to The Review the text of a telegram from the American ambassador at London, giving the procedure by which American importers may obtain goods of Belgian origin from Holland. It amounts merely to filing with the foreign trade advisers, at Washington, a declaration from competent Belgian authorities that the goods desired are of Belgian origin and a guarantee from a British bank that payment for the goods has been deposited therein, or evidence that payment was remitted to Belgium before July 13, 1915. The full statement of the requirements of the British Foreign Office, as stated in the American ambassador's telegram, is as follows:

"One. A declaration or certificate from the competent Belgian local or municipal authority that the goods in question are of Belgian origin or manufacture; and

"Second. A written guarantee from a bank in this country [Great Britain] that the purchase money for the goods has been deposited with it, and will not be withdrawn, without the special authorization of his Majesty's Government, during the continuance of the occupation of Belgium by the enemy; or alternatively clear evidence that the purchase money was remitted to Belgium before July 31, 1915, such as an affidavit of the bank in a neutral country through which the money was remitted."

EASTERN EXHIBIT AT FRISCO.

One of the interesting scenes at the Panama-Pacific exposition at San Francisco is the view showing the exhibits of Forbes & Keith, of New Bedford, Mass., and B. Hammond Tracy, of Wenham, Mass. These exhibits are staged in the Eastern Gardens, before the Palace of Horticulture. The view on page 14 shows the scene as the observer looks toward the Palace of Horticulture.

NEW ENGLANDERS AT FRISCO.

The photograph reproduced herewith pictures the exhibits of four Massachusetts members of the trade, on the plaza before the Inside Inn, in the Panama-Pacific exposition grounds at San Francisco. The exhibits are those of the Cherry Hill Nurseries, T. C. Thurlow's Sons, proprietors, West Newbury, Mass.; F. J. Rea, Norwood, Mass.; the New England Nurseries, Bedford, Mass., and George H. Walner.

PURDY'S GARDEN AT THE FAIR.

The view on this page shows the garden exhibit of Carl Purdy at the San Francisco fair. Mr. Purdy, who is a grower at Ukiah, Cal., has placed his exhibit alongside one of California's famous redwood bungalows.

Youngstown, O.—In the night carnival held August 18 in celebration of the new street lighting system, the automobile of H. H. Cade, 11 South Phelps street, took first prize as the best decorated mercantile float. Mr. Cade's car was in competition with many firms who had spent heavily on artificial flowers, but the natural flowers used by Mr. Cade in decorating his float won the first award of the judges. About 1,000 America gladioli, 1,000 asters, 500 white hydrangeas and 100 rubrum lilies were used in adorning Mr. Cade's automobile.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Ericas.

Where ericas have been planted out—and planted-out stock always makes better growth than such as is pot-grown—it is now time to lift and pot the plants. It will be found that a large number of fine, fibrous roots were made, especially as we have had a moist summer since the end of June and the conditions have been favorable to the growth of hard-wooded plants. In order to get plants into pots of moderate size, it will be found necessary to pick away carefully the soil attached to the fine fibers, using a pointed stick for this purpose. Drain the pots well and firm the soil well; this, of course, applies to all hard-wooded plants.

Ericas can be kept outdoors for some weeks yet, but place them where they are somewhat sheltered and where they can be easily moved indoors if a cool wave comes along. E. melanthera is the variety most favored commercially, and it can be had in bloom from Thanksgiving until Easter, or even later. Place a batch in a house now, with a temperature of 50 degrees at night. Select the plants which have buds showing most prominently. These should prove useful for the Thanksgiving and Christmas trade.

Azaleas.

It looks as if at least some portion of the Belgian azalea shipments may arrive after all, but those who carried over stock and cared for it well through the summer, need not worry. The probabilities are that much of the stock which will arrive will be in the same condition as some which came last fall—minus both leaves and flower buds and of no value at all. Those who had the courage to carry over plants will have stock which is much more heavily budded than the imported plants and which should sell well. The azaleas should all be lifted and potted as soon as possible. Azaleas appear to be somewhat hardy subjects, but it does not take a severe freezing to destroy the flower buds at this season. We have had a cool summer and early frosts are not at all unlikely; it is better, therefore, to be on the safe side.

Stevias.

Both planted-out and pot-grown stevias should now be placed where protection can be readily given them on cool nights. Stevias are easily injured by frost and it does not pay to run any risk with them. Some spraying and shading will be necessary for field-grown stock until it becomes partly established. Keep the plants outdoors as long as safety will allow and be sure they are given a cold house when placed under glass.

Berried Solanums.

Some growers prefer pot-grown solanums. It is true they set fruit and ripen it earlier than outdoor-grown plants, but the plants never approximate the size of those grown in the field. It is time now to dig and pot the solanums. They should be heavily berried, and if carefully lifted and potted they will only wilt for a few days. Plants in 5-inch and 6-inch pots are the most salable. Never mind if the berries do not show color for some time yet, for in a cool greenhouse they will easily ripen for the holiday season and that is when they are wanted.

Callas.

Where callas have been repotted for some time and kept outdoors, it is now time to house them if an early crop of flowers is wanted. Callas can be grown in a temperature of 45 to 60 degrees at night. They prove the most profitable, however, if given a minimum of 55 degrees. Callas are gross feeders. When the pots are filled with live, active roots, give them weekly applications of cow manure water, in addition to top-dressings of fine bone once a fortnight. The Godfrey calla is away ahead of the old C. Æthiopica, being nearer a pure white and three times as floriferous. It commences to bloom when small, and when it is strong it produces just as large spathes as the old variety.

Ardisias.

Ardisias are among the most popular berried plants for Christmas. As they are of slow growth, they cannot be sold at a popular price, like solanums, but there is always a good demand for well berried plants. It is necessary, however, that the fruit be fully ripened. Each year growers send in batches of nicely fruited ardisias with the berries merely showing color. The berries on ardisia plants do not show color as speedily as those on Jerusalem cherries. Any growers, therefore, who possess plants with fruit which is still green, should place their stock in a warm, sunny house, spray the plants freely, elevate them if necessary and help the fruit to ripen in every possible way.

Propagating Bedding Plants.

Do not wait too long before getting in an ample supply of cuttings from such indispensable bedding plants as heliotropes, ageratums, coleus, alternantheras, acalyphas, fuchsias, geraniums, etc. Where a really compact type of lobelia is wanted for carpet beds or edging, it is best to lift and pot a number of plants, which, when cut back, will give a big crop of cuttings. It hardly pays to put cuttings of salvias in, or to lift old plants, as these plants are so easily grown from seeds. The only advantage in growing them from cuttings is that the plants will bloom when quite small and many customers will not buy plants without flowers.

THE GLADIOLUS

SOIL FOR GLADIOLI.

We have some 50,000 gladioli in several varieties. Among some of the kinds there seems to be a decrease the last two years in the size of the blooms and in the quantity and size of the bulbs. Every spring, since we took up the gladiolus three years ago, we have changed their growing location and kept the soil, which is sixty per cent clay, well cultivated and weeded. During the winter season the bulbs are stored in a dry cellar on shelves, two inches deep, at a temperature of 35 to 45 degrees. The size of the bulbs runs from one to one and three-fourths inches. Early Pink Beauty is the kind that has decreased from 6,000 to 4,700 in quantity since put in the ground this spring. The stems are as long as ever, but the blooms are smaller. All the varieties have fine, long spikes. What is the reason for the decrease in size of blooms and in quantity of bulbs? E. H. J.—N. Y.

A stiff clay loam such as you have is not the best for gladiolus culture. To improve conditions I would suggest using sand, road grit or fine coal ashes on your land before plowing; also to give the land a good dressing of leached wood ashes. If you will plow the land in the fall, previously applying a good dressing of decayed stable manure, and leave it rough over winter, the action of frost will put the soil in a better condition for gladioli. Light, sandy soils, or even those containing considerable gravel, are better for gladiolus culture than heavier soils, but you can gradually make your land more suitable by following suggestions made.

A change of soil is not really necessary with gladioli. It is a good plan, however, to seed some of your land down in the fall with winter rye as a cover crop, plowing this in early in the spring. The resultant humus will much improve your soil. In planting set the bulbs six inches deep. The heavy soil seems to be the real cause for the gladioli deteriorating somewhat.

DUTCH BULBS

HYACINTHS FOR CHRISTMAS.

From Holland-Grown Bulbs.

An increasing demand for Dutch hyacinths at Christmas, together with more or less unsatisfactory results obtained with French and German-grown bulbs, induced the Holland growers to experiment, with the result that, under cultural methods as explained by C. P. Moerlands, professor at the winter school of agriculture at Naaldwijk, Holland, they are now able to offer to the growers hyacinth bulbs from which Christmas blooms may be reasonably expected.

In his directions, Mr. Moerlands first explains the planting, harvesting, curing and storing of the bulbs, as these processes have a most important influence on the quality, earliness and appearance of the flowers. The culture which the French early bulbs undergo, and the climatic conditions under which they are grown, must be artificially applied. Barns and warehouses must be heated to the temperature prevailing in southern France during harvesting and curing time.

This entails much extra labor and expense, which naturally will make the initial cost of the treated or prepared bulbs slightly higher than those grown under the usual conditions. There is, however, little doubt that as soon as the forcer of the prepared Christmas-flowering hyacinth bulbs has been convinced of their superior fitness for the purpose, they will be welcomed by all.

How to Treat the Bulbs.

Upon receipt, the bulbs should be unpacked immediately and be kept as cool as possible, to allow them to breathe and sweat. Preferably, they should be laid out in a dry, cool, airy and sunny place.

The bulbs should be potted early. One bulb in a 3½-inch or 4-inch pot will bring the best results. Clean pots that have been used are preferable to new pots. If the latter must be used, see that they are watered thoroughly, as this will prevent injury to the tender roots. Through baking, the clay in the new pot has lost the power to resist the absorption of such biting substances as alkali through the roots. It is for this reason that watering of new pots is essential.

The soil used for the potting of the bulbs should be light and sandy, and the use of fresh manure must be avoided. It would be well to prepare in advance the ground in which the pots are to be plunged, as the digging in should not be delayed. This soil must also be quite light, to insure drainage. To prevent heaving, the cover should be of about the same thickness as when planting hyacinths in an outdoor bed.

The period following the digging in of the pots is highly important to the growth. Moisture and temperature play an important part in securing earliness of bloom. Drought is fatal and, if there are few rains, artificial watering may be necessary. Great care should be exercised to see that the soil in which the pots are plunged is thoroughly moistened, if too dry. The use of manure for covering is positively detrimental. Even old manure, when wet, will let its juices filter through and injure the tender roots.

The Scandinavian and Russian method of early preparation appears, from past results, to be the best. Under this method the pots are stacked in a cellar or barn in pyramid fashion. All empty spaces are filled with loose soil and a covering of six to eight inches of soil is placed on top and on tne sides. A temperature of not less than 45 degrees is maintained. The pots may in a similar manner be put in coldframes, filling the frames to the top with soil and covering this with boards. In this case the pots may be dug up early in November and placed in a dark, cool spot.

The Forcing Period.

The actual forcing should not begin until a healthy root-growth appears and the noses of the bulbs have reached a length of two or two and one-half inches. The bulbs should have reached this stage during the latter part of November, when they may be taken into warmer surroundings. Great care must be taken that the plants are not exposed to sudden changes in temperature. Therefore, if the pots were dug in somewhere outdoors, the transfer to the greenhouse or forcing frame should be made quickly and under protection of mild weather. It is a good idea to leave a layer of soil on the pot when the work is being executed, so that the noses are well protected.

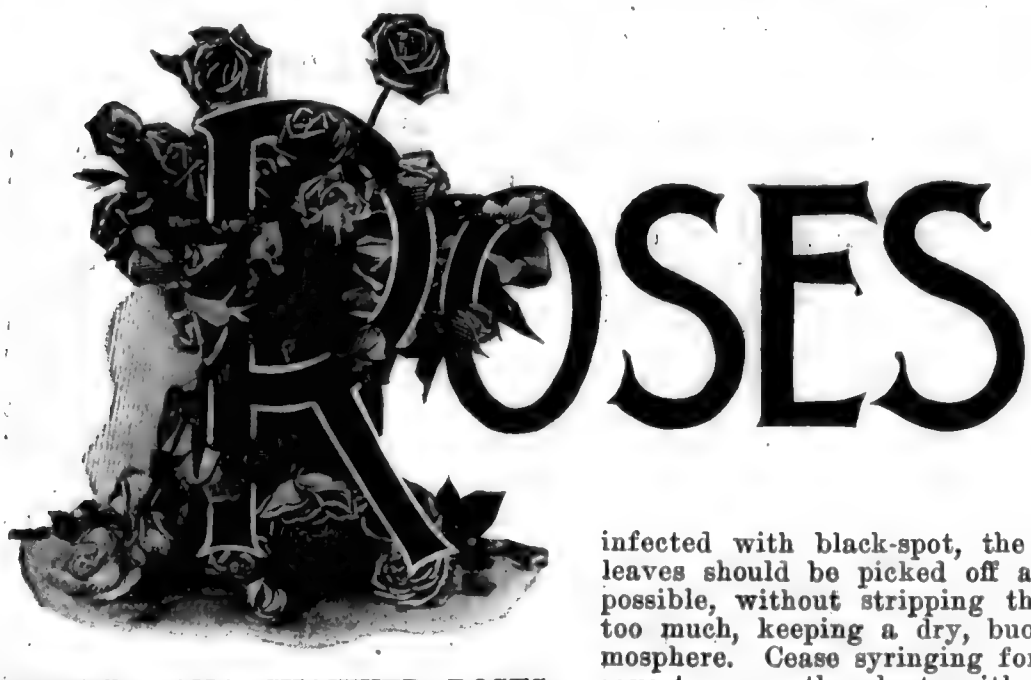
The difference in treatment between the Roman and the Dutch prepared hyacinths in the succeeding period lies in the forcing of the latter with bottom heat and of the former without bottom heat and under light. The Christmas-flowering Dutch hyacinths should be treated similarly to lily of the valley in forcing. They should be kept in a warm, moist temperature, without light. It is beneficial, therefore, to place the pots, upon transferring them from the outside to the greenhouse, on bottom heat, covering them with sand or with pots turned upside down. The bottom heat will cause the roots to absorb great quantities of moisture and the covering of the noses makes it easier for the grower to keep that moisture within. When the stem under the bells has reached a length of one and one-half to two inches, some of the sand may be removed, about to the rim of the pot, but they should still be kept in the dark, in a temperature of about 70 degrees. In ten or twelve days the bells will start to color, when they may be gradually brought into light. It should be understood, however, that sudden exposure to light would cause the bells to remain green. When in full bloom the plants should be removed to cooler quarters, where they will increase in size and improve in lasting qualities. Lechner Bros.

Carnations

ROOTS ROTTED IN BENCH.

I am forwarding you some carnation plants and soil. Please tell me why the carnations rotted as soon as they were planted. The soil is a compost of four parts sod and one part strawy manure, composted ten months and turned twice. We planted carnations in the same soil last season and lost none. The plants were healthy in the field this season. Please tell us what is the cause of the trouble. Is it in the soil or in the plants? If in the soil, what does the soil contain that is injurious? If in the plants, what is the remedy? The carnations did not grow at all. H. O. H. & S.—Tex.

On account of lack of data, it is impossible to tell you the cause of your carnation plants dying the way they are. I feel sure, however, that the fault is neither with the soil nor with the plants.



I potted one of our own carnation plants in the soil submitted, and although it has been potted only six days, the young roots are showing through the side of the soil. Considering that it is a rather dense soil, this is all that could be expected. The roots certainly have not rotted, as yours have done.

The trouble is not caused by stem-rot, because stem-rot attacks the stem above the surface of the soil, while in the case of both the plants submitted the rotting occurred at the roots or the base of the stem.

Is there anything wrong with your water? It might be that your water is not suitable for plants. If you applied too much water right after benching the plants, it might have caused the rotting. This is especially true with a soil that contains practically no fibrous matter, such as yours. Is it possible that you watered excessively at the roots instead of spraying overhead sufficiently.

RUSSELL AND SHAWYER ROSES.

Will you kindly publish an article on Russell and Shawyer roses? I am a Killarney grower, and this is the first year I have grown Russell and Shawyer. I am having considerable trouble with mildew and black-spot. How can I rid Russell of black-spot and Shawyer of mildew? What is the best method of feeding Russell and Shawyer? I have been using only manure water. Is thirty to fifty pounds of water pressure sufficient to keep plants free from red spider? I secure pump pressure from a 1½-horsepower gasoline engine, which is connected with a pressure valve set at about fifty pounds. This method does not seem to give the desired results. What do you advise?

R. E. A.—Neb.

The Russell rose is a great success with some growers and as great a failure with others. When one has had the pleasure, as I had last week, of walking through the houses at Waban, Mass., and seeing Russell in its glory, as grown by Alex. Montgomery, one is forced to conclude that Russell is a wonderful rose. Mr. Montgomery's method, as I deduced from conversing with him, is to keep the plants on the dry side and feed them liberally. Treating a rose as an aquatic may suit some varieties, but it is no way to treat Russell if you are going to keep black-spot away. Aside from the question of water, Russell does not seem to present any problems that would be considered serious by the up-to-date rose grower; if it does, I am not acquainted with them. R. E. A., in common with most of us, is suffering from a singular summer. The excessive moisture in July and August, combined with a high temperature and close, stuffy atmosphere, furnished ideal conditions for the rapid spread of black-spot, and this disease, in some sections, on both the indoor and outdoor roses, became epidemic. When the weather becomes cooler and drier, black-spot will not be so troublesome. When roses are badly infected with black-spot, the affected leaves should be picked off as far as possible, without stripping the plants too much, keeping a dry, buoyant atmosphere. Cease syringing for a time, save to spray the plants with a copper solution to kill the spores of the disease and prevent its spreading. The solution should be in the proportion of one to 100. On days when the beds must be watered, it should be completed before noon, so that the houses will have a chance to dry by nightfall. Dry lime dusted over the beds with bellows will help dry the moisture when the weather is damp. The lime will be found to be an excellent germicide. When the weather becomes cool enough to permit a line of steam through the houses, the spot will disappear, if atmospheric conditions are satisfactory.

The foregoing remarks apply with equal truth to the cultivation of Shawyer, though Shawyer does better at 56 to 58 degrees in the winter. I believe Russell is more at home in a temperature of 60 to 64 degrees at night.

Shawyer never showed any mildew with me, and I always put its presence down to the fact that many growers keep the house too hot and too wet, causing the plant to make too rapid a growth, and consequently become more susceptible to mildew or any other disease. Shawyer is a rapid grower anyway, and needs little of the forcing treatment. As a rule, Shawyer makes a growth long enough, without any pinching of the flowers, to grade up to extras.

The pressure on the valve set at fifty pounds does not by any means indicate that fifty pounds is always available. A strong pressure is necessary to get good results when syringing. If R. E. A. had 100 pounds of pressure on hand, he could easily cut it down if necessary by not turning the tap on full, but he cannot raise the pressure if the limit is low.

Some growers use a mulch of horse manure, with continuous heavy waterings, as food for Russell and Shawyer. Others use nothing but liquid cow manure, cooked before it is applied, and still others use a mulch of cow manure from time to time, and no liquid fertilizer. Feeding seems to be largely a question of local conditions and expense.

HOW TO STORE ROSE PLANTS.

I am growing a house of roses for summer blooms, but wish to lift the plants this fall and store them until March of next year. The varieties are Kaiserin, Taft and Lady Hillingdon, own-root, planted in May, 1914, in solid benches. I have a good, airy cellar, that averages 36 to 40 degrees during the winter months. Can I safely store the plants in the cellar until next March, after drying them off in October and tying them in bunches and covering with burlap?

R. J. P.—N. Y.

A dry, airy cellar should afford good storage for rose plants during the winter months. After holding off the water for a couple of weeks, lift the plants and heel them close together, pressing some moist soil between the roots to keep the air off. By this method the plants will keep during winter better and more safely than if tied in bundles. If the temperature is kept as close to freezing point as possible, the plants will stay dormant and make a good start when planted in the beds in the early spring. If the plants are pruned when lifted in the fall, they will require less space for storing.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS FOR SOUTHERN FLORISTS

CHRYSANTHEMUMS IN SOUTH.

Southern growers are busy with the chrysanthemum crop. The buds have been taken on all of them, except a few of the varieties wanted for late flowering. The side shoots appear in a remarkably short time, and they must be picked off. The plants must be gone over every few days and all the shoots cleanly removed. Keep the tops of the plants well sprayed on bright days unti color shows, to eliminate all risks of red spider, and continue the spraying with nicotine extract at least twice a week.

Some feeding is necessary to obtain good-sized blooms. The stimulants generally used are manure water, nitrate of soda and ammonium sulphate. The latter two are used in liquid form, a 4-inch pot being dissolved in fifty gallons of water. When using manure water, see that the manure is fresh and strong. A wheelbarrow full of manure will make 100 gallons of good strength. If any of the manure water is left over, you can use it in conjunction with either the soda or ammonia by diluting with clear water to the proper proportion.

I find that commercial guano is an excellent fertilizer for chrysanthemums, using four 4-inch pots to 100 gallons of weak manure water. The guano contains both phosphoric acid and potash, and is a more complete fertilizer. Use twice a week until color shows, alternating with manure water and one of the other fertilizers. On pink varieties, I should not advise the use of either soda or ammonia, but guano, and that in only about half strength.

Bone meal is safe for all varieties, in conjunction with liquid manure. To secure the best results from bone meal, dump a half or a whole sack into a barrel, cover with water and let stand for three or four weeks. By that time it will be dissolved enough to be readily available as plant food. Use about ten quarts of the solution to 100 gallons of medium strength manure water.

When the blooms show color, stop all feeding. Less clear water will also be needed. Keep a drier atmosphere in the house. Otherwise you may have trouble with damping of the flower petals. L.

CYCLAMEN IN THE SOUTH.

In the south, September is a good time to plant seeds of cyclamen. Use a compost of half soil and half leaf-mold, finely screened, and add a little sand if the soil is particularly stiff. Where only a few thousand cyclamen are sown, it is better to sow them in flats. The flats should be nearly filled with the compost, which should be pressed level with a brick, and well watered. An additional thin layer of pure leaf-mold, screened through a mosquito wire screen, makes a fine bed for the seed. Make shallow drills about one inch apart in the flats and sow the seeds in the drills, leaving a space of about one-half inch between each seed. Cover lightly with more finely-screened leaf-mold and water with a fine rose. A little sphagnum moss, rubbed through a ⅜-inch screen and spread evenly and thinly over the flats, will greatly help to keep an even moisture. The flats, covered with glass, should be placed on an overhead frame, near the glass at the end of a rose house. The soil must be kept moist at all times.

In buying seed, be assured that it is strictly fresh. Fresh seed will germinate in from two to four weeks, while seed that is old may take three months to germinate, and unevenly at that. When the seed shows no sign of germination at the end of four weeks, use water at a temperature of 85 to 90 degrees, which will hasten germination considerably. L.

NERINE FOR TEXAS.

Under separate cover we are mailing you some species of lily. We are desirous of knowing what it is and where it may be obtained. It does splendidly in this part of the country. Are there any other colors of this than red? T. N. C.—Tex.

The specimen is Nerine Fothergilli major, better known as the Guernsey lily. There are quite a number of other varieties of nerines. Many are pink in color, some white, others crimson. N. Fothergilli and N. Sarniensis are the best known varieties and possess somewhat more vigor than the other sorts. All should succeed well in Texas climate. It is well to say that bulbs of these nerines are rather high-priced, but are to be found listed in many catalogues. C. W.

CHARLES L. BAUM.

THE seventy-five centimeter gun down Knoxville way is Charles L. Baum, president, of course, of the Knoxville Florists' Club, still in its first year. Baum is a typical southerner who has become imbued with the northern spirit of push. His range of glass is the largest in east Tennessee, and his store one of the earliest to be equipped along thoroughly modern lines. But with all his business responsibilities he has plenty of time for travel, and almost always is among those present wherever florists gather. It was due to his initiative that Knoxville florists organized, and it was he who led a delegation to the Boston S. A. F. convention that gave Knoxville the credit of being better represented than any other city in America, four out of five of the florists there being present.

CLEVELAND ADOPTS FORD PLAN.

The Cleveland flower show, already the best advertised event of the trade of the present year, is making a new bid for popularity by offering to share its profits with the trade exhibitors. The executive committee recently announced that twenty-five per cent of the net profits of the show will be turned pro rata to the trade exhibitors.

This is the first flower show to emulate Henry Ford, and the decision was reached after the executive committee found that the present sale of space and the prospect for an unusually large attendance at the show more than guaranteed the sum necessary to put on the show. At the meeting the following were present: S. Prentiss Baldwin, chairman executive committee; Wm. G. Mather, president Ohio Horticultural Society; H. P. Knoble, general chairman all show committees, together with F. A. Friedley, Timothy Smith, Herbert Bate, F. C. W. Brown, C. E. Russell, H. P. Merrick and George Bate. That the general outlook for the show could not be better was demonstrated by the reports made by the chairmen of the various committees represented. It is expected that the space allowed for trade exhibitors will be oversold before the end of the present month.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY.

Examining Committees.

President Wm. Kleinheinz announces the committees to examine new chrysanthemums for the ensuing year as follows:

Boston: Wm. Nicholson, chairman; James Wheeler, Alex. Montgomery. Ship flowers to chairman, care W. J. Thurston, manager, Boston Flower Exchange, Winthrop Square and Otis street, Boston, Mass.

New York: Eugene Dailledouze, chairman; Wm. H. Duckham, A. Herrington. Ship flowers to New York Cut Flower Co., 55 Twenty-second street, care chairman.

Philadelphia: A. B. Cartledge, chairman; John Westcott, S. S. Pennock. Ship flowers to A. B. Cartledge, 1514 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

Cincinnati: R. Witterstaetter, chairman; James Allen, Henry Schwarz. Ship flowers to chairman, Jabez Elliott Flower Market, care janitor.

Chicago: N. J. Wietor, chairman; George Asmus, Wm. E. Tricker. Ship flowers to chairman, 162 North Wabash avenue, Chicago.

Shipments should be made to arrive by 2 p. m. on examination days to receive attention from the committee. They must be prepaid to destination, and an entry fee of $2 should be forwarded to the secretary not later than Tuesday of the week they are to be examined, or it may accompany the blooms.

Seedlings and sports are both eligible to be shown before these committees, provided the raiser has given them two years' trial to determine their true character. Special attention is called to the rule that sports to receive a certificate must pass at least three of the five committees.

The committees will be in session to examine such exhibits as may be submitted on each Saturday during October and November, the dates of which will be October 2, 9, 16, 23, 30 and November 6, 13, 20, 27.

Due to annexation and the changing of street names, the secretary's address now is 2134 West One Hundred Tenth street, Chicago, Ill.

Chas. W. Johnson, Sec'y.

ECHOES ON GODFREY CALLAS.

The article on Godfrey callas which appeared in The Review for September 2 was no doubt read with interest by florists all over the country. Believing it will be of further interest to The Review's readers, I am sending you a photograph [reproduced herewith] of a part of a bench of Godfrey callas. The part that appears in the illustration was planted with eighty plants, 4 and 5 years old. They had been started in 4-inch and 5-inch pots. The day after the photograph was taken, in the latter part of March, 1915, seventy-five blooms were cut from this section, and just a week from that day between 100 and 150 buds and blooms were visible, in addition to several dozen that had been cut in the meantime.

N. O. Caswell.

Referring to the article on the Godfrey calla, I have had the best of success with them, growing them mostly in 5-inch pots, one bulb in a pot. I cut as many as five and six blooms off one plant last winter. In the spring or early summer, I plunge my pots outside, and let them take care of themselves until August. Then I shake off the old soil, and repot the plants in fresh soil, taking off the small bulbs. I seldom lose any of them, and as soon as the plants are housed they begin to bloom. I feed them well with liquid manure once a week. There is nothing to equal the Godfrey calla for me.

Wm. F. Snyder.

NEW YORK FEDERATION MEETS.

Annual Meeting at Syracuse.

The annual meeting of the New York State Federation of Floral Clubs was held at the office of Commissioner Wilson at the state fair grounds, Syracuse, Thursday, September 16. There were present: President W. F Kasting, Vice-president Erl A. Bates, Secretary John Young, Treasurer W. A. Adams; F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown; C. H. Vick, Rochester; Prof. David Lumsden, Ithaca; Henry Youell, Syracuse; Lester S. Baker, Syracuse; W. H. Workman, Oswego; R. H. Bard, Syracuse; Dr. Mills, president of the Syracuse Rose Society; Mr. Moeller, Ithaca; Mr. Eastwood, Auburn; George Thorp, Syracuse; Prof. E. A. White, Ithaca; A. Bard, Syracuse; Mr. Fail, Ithaca; W. Bultmann, Syracuse; J. E. Morgan, Auburn; Fred Scharoun, Syracuse. President Kasting occupied the chair.

The report of the committee appointed to consider the question of whether a state society would be more beneficial than the federation was received and discussed. The committee was of the opinion that a state federation of organized interests would accomplish more than a society made up of individual interests, the delegates present sharing the opinion.

Name Changed.

Some discussion ensued as to the advisability of changing the name of the organization, so that it would include horticultural societies, and thus become better descriptive of the federation, and on motion of F. R. Pierson, seconded by Dr. Bates, it was resolved that the name be changed to read New York Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs.

The subject of the movement to obtain an appropriation of $60,000 from the state for the erection of greenhouses for the purpose of carrying on experimental work with flowers and vegetables came up for discussion. President Kasting reported the vetoing of the bill passed by both houses, and expressed his opinion that the only course was to have the bill introduced again. Messrs. Pierson, White, Vick, Thorp, Bates and others presented their views on the matter, and finally, on motion of Mr. Pierson, seconded by Mr. Thorp, it was resolved that a committee of three be appointed to meet with the trustees of Cornell University, and determine if possible upon the most adequate framing of a new bill. It was the consensus of opinion that the trustees of the university should add to their regular budget for state appropriations an amount sufficient to cover the cost of the proposed buildings. If this were not feasible, it was understood that a bill should be introduced as before. The president appointed Messrs. Pierson and Vick, with himself, as such committee.

New Fair Building.

The next subject for discussion was the necessity of a building at the state fair embodying means for taking proper care of exhibits of plants, flowers, fruits and vegetables, the quarters now in use not being suitable for the necessary preservation of exhibits during the fair period. Messrs. Pierson, Bates, Kasting, Thorp, White, Vick and others took prominent parts in the discussion, and many suggestions as to the best way to secure the required facilities were offered. It was generally agreed upon that if a suitable horticultural building were erected at the head of Empire court, the florists would see that a creditable planting of flower beds around it was carried out, stock to be donated, and the only cost to be defrayed being the labor of planting and taking care of the beds. On motion of Dr. Bates, seconded by Mr. Pierson, it was resolved that a committee of two be appointed to confer with the Western New York State Horticultural Society, the New York State Fruit Growers' Association and the New York State Vegetable Growers' Association, and solicit their coöperation in an effort to evolve ways and means for getting an appropriation for the erection of a suitable building. Dr. Bates and Mr. Kasting were chosen as such committee.

Officers Elected.

Election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: President,

Wm. F. Kasting, Buffalo; first vice-president, Dr. Erl A. Bates, Syracuse; second vice-president, Chas. H. Vick, Rochester; third vice-president, F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown; secretary, John Young, New York; treasurer, W. A. Adams, Buffalo. The chair appointed F. R. Pierson chairman of the legislative committee and George Thorp chairman of the state fair committee, and they were given power to name their own committees.

The report of the treasurer showed a substantial balance in the treasury. The meeting adjourned until next February, when there will be a meeting in Ithaca, during farmers' week.

John Young, Sec'y.

KOHANKIE'S FIELD OF PHLOX.

Painesville, O., is noted for its nursery and florists' stock. It is also noted for its Kohankies, who are in part responsible for its fame for the former. Among those so responsible is Julius Kohankie, whose phlox, such as is shown in the accompanying illustration, becomes yearly better known to members of the trade. Perhaps not the least interesting detail will be Mr. Kohankie's comment: "These are the phlox I sell each year through my classified ads in The Review."

ILLINOIS STATE FAIR.

About the Usual Flower Show.

Advancing the date of the Illinois state fair, annually held at Springfield, and reducing somewhat the appropriation for premiums did not appreciably affect either the size of the flower show or the interest taken in it. The show, as usual, occupies the center of the building and attracts so much attention that it is necessary to rope it off from the public.

The Plant Classes.

There was excellent competition in the plant classes, the Springfield florists securing their share of the awards only by defeating two good out-of-town growers. Only two classes failed to fill. These exhibits were staged September 20 and the awards were:

Collection of stove and greenhouse plants—Capitol Greenhouses, Springfield, first; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, Springfield, Ill., second; Geo. A. Kuhl, Pekin, third; Hembreiker & Cole, Springfield, Ill., fourth.

Twelve palms, single—Capitol Greenhouses, first; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, second; Geo. A. Kuhl, third.

Six palms, single, three varieties, two of each—Capitol Greenhouses, first; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, second; Geo. A. Kuhl, third.

Collection of fancy-leaved caladiums, fifteen plants—Geo. A. Kuhl, first; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, second.

One hanging basket fern, 14-inch—Gullett & Sons, first; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, second; Geo. A. Kuhl, third.

One hanging basket Sprengeri, 14-inch—Gullett & Sons, first; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, second.

Basket foliage plants for effect—Geo. A. Kuhl, first; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, second.

Two window boxes, five feet by eight inches, filled—Geo. A. Kuhl, first; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, second.

One fern dish, filled—Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, first; Gullett & Sons, second; Geo. A. Kuhl, third.

Twenty Easter lilies, one bulb to pot—Geo. A. Kuhl, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second.

The Roses.

The roses were staged September 21 and, except for certain obsolete varieties still carried on the schedule, the competition was unusually keen. The awards were:

Twenty-five American Beauty — Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, first; Capitol Greenhouses, second; Gullett & Sons, third.

Fifty Richmond—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; Capitol Greenhouses, second; A. C. Brown, Springfield, third.

Fifty Killarney—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; Capitol Greenhouses, second; Gullett & Sons, third.

Fifty White Killarney—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; Capitol Greenhouses, second; A. C. Brown, third.

Fifty new variety roses, last season's introduction—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; Capitol Greenhouses, second; A. T. Hey Floral Co., Maywood, Ill., third.

Fifty Kaiserin Augusta Victoria—Capitol Greenhouses, first; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., second.

Fifty My Maryland—Capitol Greenhouses, first; A. T. Hey Floral Co., second; Janssen Seed & Floral Co., third.

Six varieties, twenty-five blooms each—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; Gullett & Sons, second; Capitol Greenhouses, third.

Carnations.

More than ordinary interest centered in the presence of the new varieties of Bassett & Washburn and the Thompson Carnation Co., staged September 21. The awards were:

Fifty blooms, white—Thompson Carnation Co., first; Poehlmann Bros. Co., second; Bassett & Washburn, third.

Fifty blooms, flesh pink—Thompson Carnation Co., first; Bassett & Washburn, second; Poehlmann Bros. Co., third.

Fifty blooms, light pink—Thompson Carnation Co., first; A. T. Hey Floral Co., second; Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, third.

Fifty blooms, dark pink—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; Thompson Carnation Co., second.

Fifty blooms, Enchantress—Thompson Carnation Co., first; Poehlmann Bros. Co., second; Gullett & Sons, third.

Fifty blooms, scarlet—Bassett & Washburn, first, on Belle Washburn; Poehlmann Bros. Co., second; Thompson Carnation Co., third.

Fifty blooms, crimson—Thompson Carnation Co., first.

Fifty blooms, variegated—Gullett & Sons, first; A. C. Brown, second.

Fifty White Enchantress—Thompson Carnation Co., first; Poehlmann Bros. Co., second.

Four vases, fifty blooms each—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; Gullett & Sons, second; Thompson Carnation Co., third.

One hundred blooms, any color and variety—Thompson Carnation Co., first; Poehlmann Bros. Co., second.

Retailers' Work.

The display of designs and bouquets always is a feature of the Springfield show and competition this year was the keenest yet seen. The awards were:

Standing cross, four feet from bottom of base—Gullett & Sons, first; A. T. Hey Floral Co., second; A. C. Brown, Springfield, Ill., third.

Wreath of flowers on easel, 24-inch—Gullett & Sons, first; A. C. Brown, second; Geo. A. Kuhl, third.

Floral arrangement, set piece—Gullett & Sons, first; Hembreiker & Cole, second; A. C. Brown, third.

Dinner table arrangement—Geo. A. Kuhl, first; Charleston Greenhouses, Charleston, Ill., second; A. T. Hey Floral Co., third.

Basket of chrysanthemums—Hembreiker & Cole, first; Gullett & Sons, second; Geo. A. Kuhl, third.

Basket of cut flowers—Geo. A. Kuhl, first; Gullett & Sons, second; A. T. Hey Floral Co., third.

Bouquet of roses—A. T. Hey Floral Co., first; Gullett & Sons, second; Hembreiker & Cole, third.

Bouquet of various flowers—Geo. M. Brinkerhoff, first; Hembreiker & Cole, second; A. T. Hey Floral Co., third.

Flat bouquet or spray of roses—Hembreiker

& Cole, first; Gullett & Sons, second; A. C. Brown, third.

Flat bouquet or spray of carnations—Hembreiker & Cole, first; A. T. Hey Floral Co., second; A. C. Brown, third.

Corsage bouquet—Geo. A. Kuhl, first; Gullett & Sons, second; A. T. Hey Floral Co., third.

Miscellaneous Classes.

The only department that did not bring out strong competition was the classes for garden and miscellaneous flowers staged September 21; most of these failed to fill. The awards were:

Fifty chrysanthemums, two varieties—Gullett & Sons, first; Poehlmann Bros. Co., second.

Fifty chrysanthemums, any variety—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first; Thompson Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill., second.

The cut flower classes and a few of the design classes are to be repeated later in the week.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Another week of intense heat has passed, causing a demoralized market. One little shower in the last two weeks, humidity beyond endurance, and an average temperature of 90 degrees, with occasional rises to 100, indicate the abnormal and almost unendurable conditions. The heat has affected the quality of all varieties of flowers, roses perhaps suffering the most. The few good arrivals are quickly absorbed, and the rest are at the mercy of the buyers.

The heat affected American Beauties seriously. Only a few of them are worth over $10 per hundred. Tremendous shipments of the new rose stock are coming in, but size of bud and strength of stem are sadly lacking. A few of the novelties, such as Scott, Key, Ophelia and Hadley, are popular already. The common varieties sell by the box or thousand at prices it is better not to mention.

One or two specialties in carnations may sell above $1 per hundred, but only a few.

Aster receipts seem to be decreasing, but prices do not advance. Only the best of them are salable. Gladioli also are making their last appearance for the season. A few of the novelties are still to be had, some bringing $2 per hundred. Dahlias of every size and color already fill the wholesalers' cellars and shelves. Their popularity grows slowly. Only the larger flowers are asked for. The waste is enormous.

Orchids are down again, to almost midsummer prices. There is a great abundance of them, including Cattleya labiata and oncidiums. Valley sold at from 50 cents to $2.50. Lilies are low again, some good flowers being down to $2.50 per hundred; $4 was considered high even for the best. The windows are bright with tritomas, cosmos, bouvardias and Hydrangea grandiflora, and, last but not least, now comes the chrysanthemum.

Various Notes.

The exhibition of the American Dahlia Society takes place this week at the Museum of Natural History, commencing Thursday, September 23, at 2 p. m., and ending Sunday, September 26, at 5 p. m.

Secretary Young says the schedule and other committees of the New York flower show will meet at once. The schedule will be sent out shortly.

Woodrow & Marketos have the contract for the decorations for the Werborg-Fish wedding at East Hampton, L. I. Both church and house will be decorated with wild smilax, lilies and Clematis paniculata, and the tables with orchids, gardenias and Adiantum Farleyense. The bouquets will be of orange blossoms and lavender orchids.

John Wood, of Providence, and Mrs. Wood spent last week in New York.

Notwithstanding the intense heat, the attendance at the plant auctions last week was large, and the first cold snap will see crowded houses. Siebrecht & Son, Myer and Israel Eisenberg were among the heaviest buyers of the large palms offered by the MacNiff Horticultural Co.

Ernest Prince, formerly with Weeber & Don, is now one of the force of Burnett Bros.

Philip Kessler, at the meeting of the Florists' Club last week, had the misfortune to cut his hand badly, and was obliged to have the attention of a surgeon.

The first tuberoses of the year were seen Saturday, September 18, at William Kessler's.

Chas. Totty, of Madison, N. J., is sending to the New York market some fine stock of his new pink rose, Gorgeous.

F. H. Traendly and family have returned from their summer home in Connecticut.

George J. Polykranas, former manager for the United Cut Flower Co., has opened a wholesale store at 104 West Twenty-eighth street. Mr. Polykranas's son will have charge of the office. Mr. Polykranas says that during the year he was manager for the United Cut Flower Co., 185 growers shipped to him.

The Lord & Burnham Co. is building five houses, totaling 50,000 square feet of glass, for A. L. Miller, at Jamaica.

W. G. Badgley, of Badgley, Riedel & Meyer, has been nominated for mayor of Summit, with no opposition candidate.

Inasmuch as the real estate and orchid business of Carrillo & Co., at Mamaroneck, are in her name, Mrs. Maria A. de Carrillo was allowed no alimony by the court pending the separation suit she has brought against Luis F. de Carrillo. Her husband was formerly of the firm of Carrillo & Baldwin, at Mamaroneck.

J. Austin Shaw.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

The Market.

There is more doing than there has been in the last few weeks. Business is waking up all around. There are a few good short-stemmed carnations to be had. With the fall openings in the large department stores, all the decorative plants in the city have been in use.

Various Notes.

Edward Enos has returned from his two weeks' vacation in and about Providence.

John Webb has left his position with S. E. Shaw and gone to work again at his old trade, glass cutting.

The annual dahlia show of the New Bedford Horticultural Society was held September 21 and 22 and was the best show of its kind ever held by the local organization. The society held its regular meeting September 13, President Roy presiding. Mr. Roy, who has just returned from the Pacific coast, gave an interesting talk on his travels.

A recent visit to the greenhouses of the Kingston Gardeners, at Kingston, Mass., found some of the best mums to be seen anywhere in that section of the state. Other stock was in first-class condition. W. M. P.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

Harry Breitmeyer, Frank Danzer and I were discussing some of the problems of the trade in the handsome Breitmeyer store, Detroit, when Harry Balsley, of red flower pot fame, drove up in what looked like a Pierce-Arrow car, driven by his charming lady. Mr. Balsley brought a spike of bloom from the park for identification. As we three could not agree, one recognizing it as buddleia, another as veronica, and the third as something else, Dreer's garden book was referred to, and that settled the matter. President Danzer expects to instill new vigor into the Detroit Florists' Club by adding social features. It is a good idea and will succeed.

The Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, Detroit, is receiving excellent cuts of roses. A late addition is Fred Breitmeyer, of Mt. Clemens, who has substituted roses for carnations.

J. E. Bissinger, Lansing, Mich., reports a steady growth in his business. His place is a model in every respect. Speaking of inability to attend the S. A. F. convention, Mr. Bissinger strongly advocated a state organization similar to those of Illinois and Indiana.

W. P. Craig, of Philadelphia, was booking orders in Buffalo last week, and reported good business. The demand for plants is increasing.

The Storrs & Harrison Co., Painesville, O., had an eye to effect when planting the fine stretch bordering the railroad. Passing recently on the fast mail, I observed practically everyone in the car fairly drinking in the glorious picture made in cannas, following a long stretch of foliage of evergreen and deciduous trees; the sudden change can be imagined.

Manuel Oppenheim, store manager for Dana R. Herron, Olean, N. Y., was in Rochester during exposition week. George B. Hart offered him a bouquet of his finest asters, but Manuel would not give it away; so it is presumed the wedding will not take place just yet.

Leo E. Wagner, Sandusky, O., is surprised that business has kept up so well, considering the quantity of outdoor stock. It has been a remarkable season for every kind of annual, biennial and perennial.

Mrs. E. Suder, Toledo, O., views with regret the passing of the annual conventions of the S. A. F. from the eastern centers, being unable to make the long train rides. One almost wonders at this when one sees her around her extensive plant, as nimble as ever, with every prospect of a long continuance.

W. M.

North Wales, Pa.—More than 85,000 roses are being grown this year at the Florex Gardens, under the management of Henry C. Geiger. The rose house, which is 172x750 feet, contains several miles of benches.

OBITUARY

Joseph E. Wing.

Joseph E. Wing, of Mechanicsburg, O., lecturer and writer on agricultural topics and head of the J. E. Wing Seed Co., died September 10 at the Sawyer sanitarium, at Marion, O.

The cause of his death was given as pellagra, a disease of the tropical countries, and thought to have been contracted by Mr. Wing during the four years he spent in South America. Mr. Wing was the special agent of the agricultural investigation sent to South America by ex-President Taft.

Mr. Wing was familiarly known as the "alfalfa king," having specialized in that seed for many years. His brothers, Willis and Charles B. Wing, were associated with him in the seed business.

Mr. Wing was 54 years of age. He is survived by his wife and three sons, Andrew, David and William, all of Mechanicsburg.

Charles F. Hoffmeister.

Charles F. Hoffmeister, after a three months' illness, passed away Friday evening, September 17, in his fifty-sixth year, and was buried Monday, September 20, at Spring Grove cemetery.

Mr. Hoffmeister was in charge of the greenhouses of the Hoffmeister Floral Co. for a number of years. Recently he conducted his own establishment at Ft. Thomas, Ky., and specialized in growing sweet peas. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Augusta Hoffmeister, a daughter, Miss Marie A. Hoffmeister, and two sons, Otto H. and Chas. H. Hoffmeister, as well as his mother, a brother and four sisters.

C. H. H.

John W. Massey.

John W. Massey, for twenty-six years head gardener at Fairmount cemetery, Denver, Colo., died September 9, of pneumonia, at St. Luke's hospital. Mr. Massey, who was 69 years of age, was taken sick September 6 at his residence, 732 West Third avenue, where he lived with his daughter, Mrs. Barnett. He is survived by his daughter and a son, Harry, who lives in California.

Peter Eastman.

Peter Eastman, vice-president of the Greenville Floral Co., Greenville, Mich., died at his home September 14. His death was caused by apoplexy.

He was born in Canada in 1854 and went to Greenville at the age of 16. There he became interested in the lumber business, in which he was engaged for many years. He had been connected with the florists' business for the last eleven years.

He leaves his wife, a son and a daughter, besides many other relatives and friends. His funeral was held September 16.

USINGER'S UTTERANCES.

Henry Krueger, of Meadville, Pa., is having an exceptional run of funeral work.

C. M. Betts, of Meadville, Pa., is planning many improvements for his store this fall, business promising well.

William Baird, of Greenville, Pa., is putting new benches in all his houses.

John Murchie, of Sharon, Pa., will soon be ready to move his stock into his new houses, which are fast nearing completion.

Fisher & McGrath, of New Castle, Pa., are having plenty of business, having a lot of design work and a good cut flower trade.

Fred Butz, of Butz Bros., New Castle, Pa., is touring the southern states in his machine.

J. J. Beck, of New Castle, is cutting some fine asters of the later varieties.

S. P. Smith, of Mercer, Pa., had his usual job of judging the flowers exhibited at the Mercer county fair last week.

James Clelland, of Grove City, Pa., has unusually fine carnation plants on his benches this season.

The Anton Krut Floral Co., at Ellwood City, Pa., has had quite a busy season with funeral work.

William Leith, of Butler, Pa., is voicing the sentiments of most florists—that business is on the increase.

W. T. U.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Business is fairly good, but the supply is still too large for the present wants of the buyers. Shipping business is good.

Roses continue to be in heavy supply, and include excellent offerings in all seasonable varieties. Carnations are of much better quality than they were for a while, and generally meet with an active market. Some fine dahlias may be had. Easter lilies and rubrum lilies are plentiful and excellent. A fair quantity of gladioli are coming into the wholesale houses. Aster receipts are heavy. Other offerings include cosmos and valley. The supply of greens is large.

Various Notes.

Local retailers having fall opening decorations during the current fortnight are the E. G. Hill Co., Max Rudolph and Julius Baer.

C. E. Critchell has been receiving some fine rubrum lilies from the Hoffmeister Floral Co.

Visitors were Mrs. Lampert, Xenia, O.; Walter Gray, Hamilton, O.; J. T. Herdegen, Aurora, Ind.; Fred Rupp, Lawrenceburg, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Bechmann, Middletown, O., and I. Bayersdorfer, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia.

C. H. H.

Auburndale, Fla.—W. H. Schulz, Jr., has put a shed of one acre to Asparagus plumosus nanus. He intends to increase his growing facilities next winter.

Tyrone, Pa.—One of the largest greenhouses in this section is being erected by Engleman Bros. The house will be 35x260 feet and of the most up-to-date construction.

Waterloo, N. Y.—Another woman to enter the greenhouse business is Miss Mildred Tobey, who is growing asters and other cut flowers for the New York and Philadelphia markets.

Sharon, Pa.—The greenhouses of John Murchie, on South Irvine avenue, have been moved to the opposite side of the avenue, near the Murchie residence. There are six greenhouses, each 20x120, and a lean-to 12x120.

Reno, Nev.—A florists' business was recently launched in Reno by Charles H. Stoddard, Lytton Stoddard and A. B. Updike, under the firm name of the Stoddard Floral Co. A flower shop, in charge of Henry Hefty, formerly with the Art Floral Co., of San Francisco, has been opened in the Masonic Temple. The company will maintain greenhouses on Riverside drive.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Adolph Keiper, 318 Wabasha avenue, was the only successful candidate in a class of four who took the examination for the position of head gardener of Como park. This was the second examination held, no one having passed the first one. Mr. Keiper will have charge of the large greenhouse completed last fall, under the direction of Superintendent Nussbaumer.

Lincoln, Neb.—After eighteen years' experience with C. H. Frey, Oscar H. Enslow has started a business of his own, to be known as the Enslow Floral Co. The formal opening of his store was attended by a great showing of all kinds of cut flowers and a reception for the visitors.

Grand Rapids, Wis.—Paul Beasa, who does business as Paul, the Florist, has returned from an automobile trip through this and an adjoining county. He found corn, cucumbers and several other crops ruined by frost. Mr. Beasa is engaged in putting in concrete benches and in building living rooms over the office. He was formerly at Merrill, Wis.

Hanover, Pa.—The cyclone that did damage of about $500,000 in this town August 21 came at a most inopportune time for F. E. Cremer. He had finished carnation planting the day of the storm, and the loss of plants from broken glass amounted to about forty per cent. A tin roof, carried six squares by the wind, was dropped on the glass. Mr. Cremer's total loss was about $1,000.

Evanston, Wyo.—Louis B. Westholder was married August 4 to Miss Frances Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Martin. Mr. Westholder came to Evanston from Albany, Minn., two and one-half years ago, and opened a flower shop. Since then his business has grown by leaps and bounds, and in addition to the original shop, he now has stores at Rock Springs and Laramie, and seven branch agencies along the Union Pacific route through Wyoming.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1915: President, Patrick Welch, Boston; vice president, Daniel MacRorie, San Francisco; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo

Officers for 1916: President, Daniel MacRorie, San Francisco; vice-president, R. C. Kerr, Houston, Tex. Secretary and treasurer as before.

Thirty-second annual convention, Houston, Texas, August 15 to 18, 1916.

IT requires extremely little practice to be able to ring certain bull's-eyes.

THIS has been a bad season for Chrysanthemum Golden Glow, large numbers of flowers having been ruined by the damp weather followed by excessive heat.

IN spite of gloomy prognostications, it appears that the season has been an excellent one for carnation plants in the field. The country seems to be full of surplus plants.

IT looks as though the British plan for passing Belgian plants may not be as practical as it sounds. The opposition to paying money into British banks before a permit is issued seems general, including the Germans, the Belgians and the Americans, although it is certain some stock will be moved under the arrangement.

THE premium list has been issued for the twentieth annual flower show of the Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Society, to be held at Madison, N. J., October 28 and 29. The committee consists of W. H. Duckham, C. H. Totty, R. M. Schultz and Arthur Herrington. For copies of the schedule write to Edward Reagan, Morristown, N. J.

JUST to show what the cool climate of Petoskey, Mich., does for asters, Frank Winans, proprietor of the West Side Greenhouses, sent The Review a box of flowers that for size of bloom and brilliance of colors would be hard to beat. There were, however, evidences that Mr. Winans, like many other aster growers, has had to contend with excessive rains this season.

HONORABLE MENTION.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper. Among those who have this week enrolled themselves for more than one year in advance are:

THREE YEARS.

Scheel, F. F., Shermerville, Ill.

TWO YEARS.

Fleischer, G., Pueblo, Colo.
Loudenslager, B., Columbus, O.
Bode, H. A., Park Ridge, Ill.
Kester Bros., Massillon, O.

The Review stops coming when the subscription runs out. The green notice with the last copy tells the story; no bills are run up; no duns are sent.

GOOD SEASON SURE.

In the middle west the arrival of the second half of September has seen an excellent revival of business and a spirit of optimism prevails, in marked contrast to the feeling that dominated the trade a year ago. Business with nearly all florists in the middle west is today much better than it was a year ago and the general idea is that it will be first-rate this winter and break records when the big spring season comes around again. Big crops and war orders for the factories are, of course, the two factors on which the business revival is predicated, but even in the south and southwest the same sanguine view of the future is taken; the busy factories are making work for the people in the cities and the bountiful crops are making prosperity for those in the country. A fairly good season seems assured and it may turn out an exceptionally good one.

"MANY THANKS."

The thorough satisfaction the trade is receiving through the use of classified ads in The Review is shown by the frequence with which "Many thanks" is appended to instructions. Like this:

Many thanks for good results; 2,000 plants sold from this ad.—M. L. Vogel, Dayton, O., September 16, 1915.

Mr. Vogel refers to an advertisement of three lines, which appeared twice. Snapdragons were offered at $2.50 per hundred, so that he received orders aggregating $50 from an advertisement that cost him 60 cents.

Can you beat it?

PETUNIA BLUEJACKET.

The Review has received sample blooms of John F. Rupp's new dark blue petunia, Bluejacket, of which Mr. Rupp says:

"This petunia we find to be the finest bedding variety to date. It is a good, strong grower and profuse bloomer; flowers of a pleasing dark blue and during the day the color varies from dark blue to a rich velvety violet, apparently caused by atmospheric changes. Our planting of this petunia made a beautiful showing and was much commented on by the many visitors to Ruparka this season."

FIRST PEONY BULLETIN.

Prof. A. P. Saunders, Clinton, N. Y., has just issued the first bulletin of the American Peony Society, in accordance with the publicity program mapped out at the Boston meeting last June. It contains several articles by well known peony growers, discussing the peony from various points of view, reports of the last two annual meetings and a list of members. It is expected that this initial bulletin will be followed by others at frequent intervals and the series should do much to spread knowledge of what the society is doing.

NEXT WEEK'S WEATHER.

Weekly weather forecast, issued by the U. S. Weather Bureau, Washington, D. C., for the week beginning Wednesday, September 22, 1915:

For the Region of the Great Lakes—Fair and cool weather the first half of the week, with probability of heavy frosts. The latter half of the week will be warmer and unsettled, with probably occasional showers.

For the Upper Mississippi Valley and Plains States—Fair weather and moderate temperature the first half of the week, although frosts are probable in the upper Mississippi valley. The weather will become warmer and unsettled by the middle of the week, with scattered showers. The latter part of the week will be generally fair.

For the Ohio Valley and Tennessee—Fair and cool weather the first half of the week, with probability of frosts in exposed places in the Ohio valley. The latter half of the week will be warmer and cloudy, with a probability of local showers.

For the West Gulf States—Generally fair weather and moderate temperature throughout the week.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

With the return of cool weather, the Chicago market is again beginning to assume an appearance of activity. But even the few days of summer heat with which we were visited last week left their brand on the stock, which, with exceptions, is of quite inferior quality.

The drop in temperature was followed by a decided decrease in the supply of roses, with the result that they have been clearing in a highly satisfactory manner. A comparison would quite likely reveal the fact that roses have recovered from the effects of the heat wave with a far greater degree of rapidity than any other stock. Russell is looking especially good for a flower that has been plunged from one extreme of temperature into another. Beauties are still relatively scarce and are clearing, though at moderate prices.

The supply of carnations is steadily increasing, but the quality of much of the stock has been injured by the heat. As a consequence, there is a quantity of short-stemmed soft flowers on the market of a decidedly inferior grade. Even so, there is a great deal of excellent stock available, and this is cleared almost on receipt. The demand for first-class asters continues strong, and the supply is not large, the later sorts having suffered fully as much as the early varieties by reason of the continued rains. The greater part of the asters received this year have been unqualifiedly poor. Locally, the season is practically over. Gladioli, though abundant, have ceased to be a feature of the market.

FINE WHITE MUMS

We offer a large lot of Smith's Advance

YOU will find your customers eager for some really good White Chrysanthemums, and you can order our Smith's Advance, now ready in quantity, with the assurance that they will come up to your expectations in every way.

FANCY ROSES

If you are looking for the best grade of Roses and a place where you can get them in quantity, give us a call. We specially recommend Sunburst, Killarney Brilliant, Mrs. Ward, Milady and White Killarney. A big cut on this week. And of course we have Mrs. Russell.

HEADQUARTERS FOR BRUNNER AND ELGAR

Golden Glow chrysanthemums are arriving in an ever increasing stream. Smith's Advance is not so plentiful. There is much to be desired in the matter of quality in the early yellow; it has spotted badly and some growers have lost large lots by its damping off. Until there is a marked improvement in quality it is quite doubtful if the demand for them will assume satisfactory proportions. There are few dahlias on the market, but even the few are more than enough to satisfy the demand. The common charge against the dahlia is that it bruises too easily. Valley, though by no means plentiful, is almost striking a balance between supply and demand. Easter lilies are moving fairly well. Rubrums in good supply and excellent quality are on the market, but they do not meet with the demand they should. Cattleyas continue scarce and have advanced in price.

Ferns are on the short side of the market, owing to the difficulties attendant on gathering them occasioned by the extremely wet weather. Smilax is in fair demand. A new crop of boxwood is on the market. The quality is good, but, so far, the demand is light.

Bassett & Washburn Get New Home.

The firm of Bassett & Washburn, wholesalers and growers, one of the oldest houses on the Chicago market, has leased the store and basement at 178 North Wabash avenue, for a term of five and a half years, and will take possession October 1. The location is a most advantageous one, being on the street floor and on the entrance hall of the new Le Moyne building, which already accommodates two other wholesale houses, the E. C. Amling Co. and the A. L. Randall Co. The equipment of the new store will be up-to-date in every detail. The main floor will be devoted to the city sales department and office, the basement being used for the shipping trade. The space occupied will be 4,500 square feet. Bassett & Washburn have been in their present location sixteen years.

Retailers' Coöperative Buying.

Enthusiasm marked an informal meeting, September 20, of the members and stockholders of the Retail Florists Co., the coöperative organization within the Chicago Retail Florists' Association. The company was formed to effect mutual savings by the coöperative purchase of supplies. Recently the directors were fortunate to secure the services of Payne Jennings, as the secretary-treasurer. Mr. Jennings is president of the advertising firm in Chicago bearing his name. He is well known among the florists of the country as a floral advertising expert. By bringing to bear the experience of years in cooperative work in his own field, upon the problem before him, with a speed that agreeably surprised his new constituents, Mr. Jennings was able to lay before his hearers plans and data that at once elicited their hearty support. Fruitful opportunities for advantageous buying were brought to light by several members and liberally taken advantage of. The principles of cooperative effort are taking on increasing popularity everywhere and the results achieved by the Chicago organization, under Mr. Jennings' direction, will be watched with great interest by the entire trade.

Chicagoans Meet on the Road.

Albert F. Amling, the well known Maywood grower, who, with his family, has been on a tour of the Pacific coast in his car, writes to The Review from Socorro, N. M., in part as follows:

"During our fifteen weeks' travel by automobile across the continent, covering a little over 8,000 miles and touching thus far thirteen states, the first party met, also out in an automobile, whom we knew was Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Bassett, of Chicago and Pasadena, who were encountered about 160 miles west of Albuquerque this morning. They stopped us on the road, inquiring about road conditions on the old Sante Fe trail west. After reaching Sante Fe we intend to leave this trail and go across Texas and Oklahoma to Kansas City. Roads are good around here, and good time can be made. The only trouble is that the towns where hotel accommodations can be had, are 100 miles or so apart, with nothing in between, not even for meals, so the autoists are obliged to carry lunch with them."

The Prosperity Exposition.

A feature of the trades exhibit at the Prosperity Exposition on the north side, which opened September 20, is the florists' displays. The plant department of the Poehlmann Bros. Co. has a most complete exhibit, including every variety in its stock, of ferns, crotons, pandanus, kentias, begonias, araucarias, etc. The exhibit is tastefully arranged and has attracted no end of comment. Not only the visiting florists, but the people generally, betray a keen interest in the varieties.

If the general public is not well informed as to the newer varieties of roses and carnations, it will not be the fault of Peter Reinberg, who has a really creditable display of his specialties, roses and carnations, staged by Felix Reichling and his assistants.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Ralph Hayden have announced the marriage of their daughter, Frances Janette, and Howard Gerald Knowlton, September 15, and the many friends in the trade acquired by Mr. Knowlton since he became associated with the A. L. Randall Co. are offering congratulations. Mr. and Mrs. Knowlton will be at home after October 1, at 1529 East Sixty-eighth street.

The White truck of C. A. Samuelson is on the street, resplendent in a new coat of gold green. It never looked better.

The daily sales of the E. C. Amling Co. are reported as running thirty to thirty-five per cent ahead of a year ago and both Mr. Amling and Mr. Michelsen say conditions in the trade look to them to be as good as they were "before the war."

Hoosier Beauty is a splendid rose, according to John Mangel, who also likes Hadley. He says the public takes to both varieties, but that Milady has its principal sale in work, being excellent for wreaths.

Believing that nothing improves one's outlook on business like a look into it, Paul Klingsporn, manager of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, devoted September 17 to an automobile tour of the near-by growers.

The wreck on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad at Western Springs, the night of September 20, caused no little inconvenience to Bassett & Washburn, who experienced great difficulty in getting their supply of cut flowers from Greggs Station and Hinsdale the day following. A. C. Benson, superintendent of the greenhouses, went to Springfield September 20 to look after the firm's exhibit at the state fair.

Believing that what he characterizes as the distinctive type roses are going to raise the standard, not only of quality but of prices as well, in the rose market of the future, John Risch, of Weiland & Risch, says they are devoting no small amount of space in their Evanston greenhouses to the culture of the Mrs. Moorfield Storey rose.

A telegraphic order for orchids from a New York retailer was reported by John Poehlmann September 20, the first within his recollection, as the east heretofore has had more cattleyas than has Chicago. Mr. Poehlmann says the recent scarcity has been due to weather conditions, which he expects to throw

HOW TO MAKE STICKERS.

"What's wrong?" repeated the old man, "do you want to know 'what is wrong?'"

"Yes, sir, if any one could explain to me why we can't get the right kind of buyers to stick, I'd be mightily obliged. Sometimes it seems that the neighborhood is going down, then I hear of the rents that are being paid hereabouts. Well, anyway you can't get money for flowers any more."

"Boy, the trade has been spoiled by competition. When I started there was no chance to compete. There might be two or more Florists to a town but they were so separated that they could not interfere if they chose, and would have no reason to choose.

"Now," went on the old man, "there are ten Florists in this town; with telephones, street cars and autos, they might as well be all in the same block. Yes, we have to compete now, I grant you, but it's bad business to slash prices."

"We can't make people pay us more money than they have to pay at other stores," said the manager.

"Right, to a degree, but there is a minimum, below which it is unwise to cut. If a competitor cuts his prices to that point where he can no longer give good stock and at the same time make a profit, then forget him. He won't last long anyway.

"This House should sell stock of quality only," said the old man. "You may have to keep your prices above some of your competitors, but you will find that your customers will stick, and you will get the better class too." The manager was silent.

The old man turned to the buyer. "You're the man that has things in his own hands," he said; "you can make the one time man a sticker if you buy right. Get Kennicott's Quality Cuts, they appeal to the buyer of taste, who usually is the one with the pocketbook.

"Compete!" bellowed the boss, heated to the question, "of course, compete. Compete by giving service and courteous treatment, as much as you can of each; don't let any one beat you at that. But keep your prices high enough so that you can sell the right kind of stock. You can always be sure of getting the right kind of stock if you order from Kennicott's.

"The House of Quality Plus always has an assortment of Quality Cut flowers that no other house on the market is able to better. Anything on the Chicago market can be bought right from Kennicott Bros. Co., 163 North Wabash Ave., Chicago. Buy right and your one time customers will stick."

all crops of orchids late this season. The call for cattleyas in the last two months has not been so heavy as usual, but it has nevertheless exceeded the supply.

A novel advertising method has been adopted by the Warren Park Floral Co., to introduce its greenhouses at 1401 South Austin boulevard and retail store at 5937 West Twelfth street. Sheet music is being distributed, on the front of which there is a picture of the greenhouses, three of them 27x250. John Grant, western manager for the New Haven Clock Co., is the head of the company, but William Scott, for several years a grower for Bassett & Washburn, is the active manager.

There is nothing like having an objective and working toward it. Appreciating the immense value of a large and well established shipping trade, the John Kruchten Co. has been conducting a systematic campaign to secure it. According to C. L. Sherer, secretary, the campaign has thus far been rich in results.

A heavy run of funeral work is reported by Arthur Weatherwax, proprietor of the Drexel Flower Shop, 428 East Forty-seventh street. Mr. Weatherwax has been favored with good business since his opening, September 4.

After a severe illness and a sojourn in the hospital, James Murphy, 4248 West Madison street, is convalescing in a satisfactory manner.

The finishing touch to the remodeling, rebuilding and rearranging that has been in process for the last month in the establishment of the Kennicott Bros. Co. is in the form of a large brass sign at the entrance.

The state fair flower show called John Poehlmann, Jr., and Fred Longren, of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., to Springfield, September 20.

Heavy funeral work during the last two weeks has occupied all the attention of Thomas J. Johnson, 3458 State street.

The county fair of the South Shore Country Club is keeping Christian Clemenson, 7801 South Shore avenue, more than busy this week.

office of George Reinberg September 20.

The pleasant quarters of Archie Spencer have been temporarily resigned to the ministering care of the man with the brush.

Eight thousand miles were covered by George Asmus and wife on their recent trip to the S. A. F. convention. Mr. Asmus plans an early trip to Philadelphia on National Flower Show matters.

A complete rearrangement of fixtures seems to be the order of the day in the salesrooms of Joseph Ziska & Sons.

Stock is in splendid condition for the fall business, according to Fred Hoerber, of Hoerber Bros., who inspected the greenhouses of the company in Des Plaines, September 19.

The fair at Holland, Mich., last week was attended by David D. P. Roy. Mr. Roy says the horticultural building for the occasion was the donation of G. F. Getz, president of the Globe Coal Co., who is growing stock on his Lakewood farm for exhibition in the Chicago Grand Floral Festival, next November.

After enjoying a pleasant trip to New York city and other points of interest in the east, David Hammer, 2014 West Diversey boulevard, has settled down to hard work in anticipation of a heavy fall trade.

Visitors.

One of those visiting friends and renewing old acquaintances on the market last week was Frank Sherwood, son of Charles Sherwood, Waterloo, Ia.

Among the visitors on the market this week was Ernest Bather, of Lyons, Ia.

S. W. Pike, of St. Charles, Ill., was in town September 20. He never fails to call on Erne & Klingel when he visits Chicago.

Peripatetic Walter Mott, whose home town now is Schenectady and his business address Beacon, N. Y., was in town last week in the interest of Benj. Hammond.

The Chicago trade was visited this week by Martin Reukauf, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, who is returning from a trip to the Pacific coast.

George Valker, of Minot, N. D., was here last week, buying stock.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

The quality of the cut stock coming to this market is beginning to show the effects of the extremely warm weather of the last week or two. Fashion show week and the opening of the store of the Lindner Co. created a brisk demand for decorative stock and fancy cut flowers.

Club Meeting.

The annual election of officers of the Cleveland Florists' Club resulted in the following: President, Herbert Bate; first vice-president, Al. Lingren; second vice-president, Claude Tyler; secretary, Frank A. Friedley; treasurer, Geo. W. Smith. It was one of the largest attended meetings this year. Several private gardeners were elected to membership. Among them are Robert Weeks, Felix Celmer, V. J. Lawton, Wm. Fisher, H. G. King, J. Curnow, Henry Kolthoff, Peter Celmer, Walter Dale and H. B. Rapley. It makes a welcome addition to our membership, which now numbers nearly 150.

Flower Show Notes.

One of the most attractive prizes of the entire list for the flower show was received last week from J. W. Corrigan, of Wickliffe, O. It is a silver cup, valued at $500, to be competed for by private growers of Ohio only. The cup will be awarded to the best six varieties, six blooms each, of chrysanthemums. The cup must be won three times at a Cleveland flower show to become the permanent property of the winner.

A bowling tournament will be held during flower show week. A committee, with Charles Graham as chairman, was appointed at the Florists' Club's last meeting. At least eight cities are expected to be represented by 5-men teams. Liberal prizes will be offered to both teams and individuals.

Cleveland will enter a team in the tournament, and a preliminary tournament will be held to see who will bowl on the final team. A series of nine games will be rolled. All members of the Florists' Club are eligible. The five men averaging the highest scores in the nine games will make up the team to represent Cleveland. As there are at least a dozen good bowlers in the club and all are anxious to get on the team, a spirited contest is looked for.

Various Notes.

Frank Ritzenthaler, of Knoble Bros., is on the sick list.

George W. Smith, of the Cleveland Florists' Exchange, has returned from the west. He, with Mrs. Smith, stopped at Colorado on the return trip from the convention.

The new store of the Jones-Russell Co. is nearing completion. This company, together with MacDiarmid, the candy man, will open a new store in the Hippodrome building.

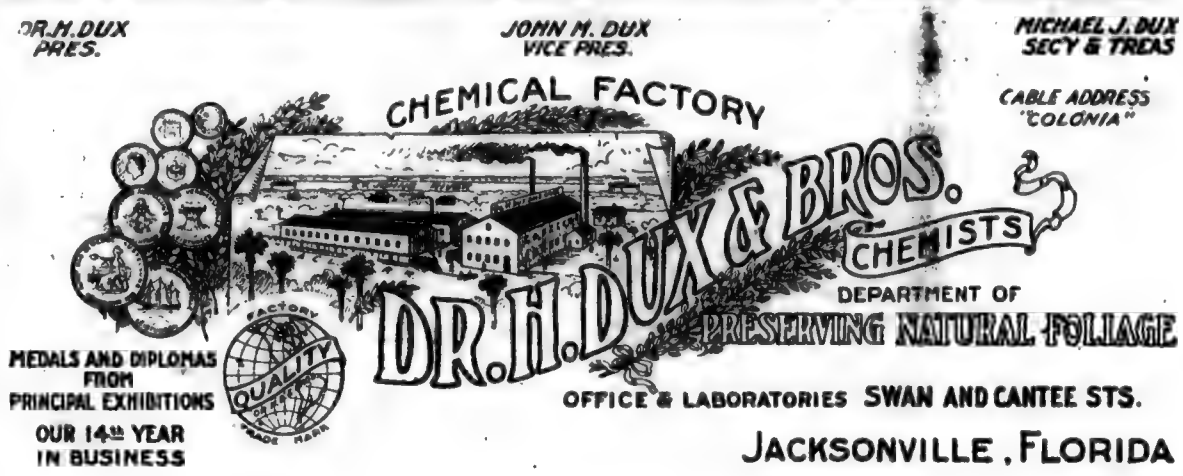
The final premium list of the flower show is now being mailed. Copies may be had by applying to Herbert Bate, Room 356, Leader building. This list is complete and carries many new and special classes not included in the preliminary list.

Frank R. Wettman, of the Cleveland Cut Flower Co., went to Duluth via freight steamer. F. A. F.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

The hot weather last week had a depressing influence on business. Growers complained that many flowers were spoiled by the sudden change in the weather. The heat made it hard to keep a good supply of flowers in the stores, and compelled buyers to be more careful.



Last week carnations were much more in evidence. The blooms coming into the market, however, are generally of a poor quality and sell at from 50 to 60 cents per dozen. While some excellent dahlias arrived last week, the dahlia market this year, as a whole, has been poor. The quality of dahlias has not averaged high, and the prices have been low. Asters are still holding their own, and large quantities are being disposed of, but the prices are low. Many gladioli are seen, but not in the numbers they have been. The quality is deteriorating. Some good Easter lilies are coming into the market, and valley is keeping up well. Roses are fair in quality for this time of the year, and are arriving in sufficient quantities to supply the trade. Chrysanthemums are beginning to appear on the market. There have been a few Golden Glows for several weeks, but now other varieties are beginning to appear. They are not plentiful, however, and are not of good quality.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred P. Wolfinger have returned from their visit to the Panama-Pacific exposition, at San Francisco. Mr. Wolfinger says business is good, there being much funeral and wedding work. The summer business, taken as a whole, exceeds that of last summer.

Mr. and Mrs. John Crossley have returned from their vacation, which they spent at Atlantic Highlands, on the New Jersey coast. Business is reported quiet, outside of funeral work, of which there has been much.

Charles Witheridge states that business is quiet. He has had some funeral orders.

The Profit From Withered Flowers

The withered flower problem has always been a loss to you—hasn't it? You never heard of it from a profit stand point before.

The profit that is possible from withered flowers is to sell the flowers before they spoil and are thrown out. This is easily done through their proper preservation in a

McCray Florist's Refrigerator

Here the flowers are preserved at an even temperature and are kept fresh and cool. No other refrigerating system is so efficient as the McCray. It stops the loss from spoilage so common with inadequate refrigeration.

In addition the McCray, with its beautiful plate glass doors and sides permits an inviting and attractive display of the flowers. The compartments are of different sizes to accommodate the various lengths of stems.

The outside woodwork may be had in any finish to match your store's interior. The linings may be secured in either plate mirror or white enamel and are very attractive.

Make up your mind right now to increase your business and decide upon a McCray Refrigerator to help you do it. Every enterprising Florist needs a McCray. Write and learn why.

Philips Bros. were busy last week, having much funeral work and several wedding decorations. They have several weddings booked ahead.

Henry A. Strobell had a good week of business. Besides funeral pieces, he made a large decorative horseshoe for the opening of the Goerke Co. store, and another for a theatrical event.

The J. J. Wilson Seed Co. has received two large consignments of Dutch bulbs and is filling orders previously booked. Much interest was shown in the firm's dahlia exhibit, and a large number of orders for roots was received for spring delivery.

The sixth annual dahlia show of the Short Hills Garden Club will be held September 29 and 30. Exhibits of flowers will be made by all the members.

Peter Penek reports business quiet, but thinks there will be a material improvement in business conditions within two or three weeks. R. B. M.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

Last week was not much different from the week previous and there was little change in market conditions. The weather was quite bad, as there was an overabundance of rain. The fall season has not as yet made itself felt and the summer depression, which was late in arriving, shows the same reluctance in departing. The demand for stock is light and funeral work constitutes the bulk of business. Carnations are coming in more plentifully each day and the stock is moving easily at fairly good prices. It can be seen that asters are a poor substitute for carnations, for the sale of asters begins to fall off as soon as carnations make their appearance.

Roses are in fairly good shape and are increasing in quantity. They are being cleaned up daily, but prices are not any too good. Gladioli are gradually getting scarcer and they will not last much longer. The quality is poor and they are not moving rapidly. Valley is scarce and is being sold as soon as it comes into the market. Lilies are moving slowly and are in abundant supply. Taken as a whole, the week shows up poorly, but if we should get a frost it would help conditions wonderfully.

Wisconsin State Fair.

As usual, there was a good horticultural exhibit at the state fair, September 13 to 17. The display of plants was exceptionally fine and the only drawback was that there was not sufficient

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

There is a slight improvement from the depressing conditions of one week ago. The aster crop has suffered from the heat and rain and overabundance past remedying. Now asters are on the wane. Those that are coming into town sell a little better, when good, but most of them are of the last-end-of-the-crop variety and not desirable in these critical days. Gladioli, too, are fast disappearing. This leaves a great field for the dahlia. With the cooler weather this grand fall flower is coming into form. Every variety and shade of color is offered in quantity, but the demand comes slowly.

Roses are quite plentiful. Many of them show the effect of the heat, but some are wonderfully good for the season. There are quite a few novelties and rather more of those that were novelties last season. Carnations are getting better and the flowers are excellent, but most of the stems still are rather short. Valley is plentiful. So are orchids. The arrival of Cattleya labiata is coincident with a fall in price. Oncidiums, dendrobiums and Vanda cærulea complete the list. Yellow, and a few white, chrysanthemums continue to arrive. Asparagus, adiantum and smilax abound. Wild smilax has come.

are two partners, J. Duetscher and C. Glazer. Mr. Duetscher has been for nine years with Thomas Young, at Bound Brook and in New York. Recently he has been selling Mr. Young's gardenias and orchids in this city. Mr. Glazer has been connected with several wholesale and retail stores in New York during the last five years. Both young men are preparing to push their business with energy. They have leased the entire building they occupy, consisting of three floors and basement, and will fit it up with icebox, telephones and all modern accessories for handling flowers in good shape.

so that visitors will be able to reach the nursery easily. Invitations have been mailed to the trade and the public.

There is a special feature of unusual interest in regard to this show. Last season boxes of flowers were given away to all visitors. This courtesy was abused, so this season a different plan has been adopted. The house of Dreer will give its dahlias and other flowers without reserve, but it will give them only to a committee, of which Mrs. James Starr, Jr., is chairman, representing the Martha Washington Memorial at Valley Forge, which has appointed seventy patronesses and seventy aids to sell the flowers. There will be marquees where visitors may rest after seeing the fields of bloom, where they may make their selections of flowers and be refreshed with tea. Every arrangement is complete and good weather will insure a large attendance.

The Michell Show.

Fine vegetables, dahlias and perennials were shown in the exhibition that opened in the store of the Henry F. Michell Co., 518 Market street, September 21. Some of the stock was unusually well grown, the cabbage, eggplant and corn especially so. There were August-sown peas and new peppers and all the vegetables were arranged in a way that was most inviting. The dahlias were well staged, excellent in variety and showed good culture. They were supported by some excellent perennials, buddleias, phlox and many other interesting things. The show attracted many visitors.

Various Notes.

Robert A. Craig has brought his family home from the shore and is putting every effort into getting his stock into the pink of condition.

August Doemling, of Lansdowne, is sending Francis Scott Key and other rose specialties to Stuart H. Miller.

The arrival of new crop fancy ferns is reported by A. L. Fortunes.

William J. Baker expects to attend the G. A. R. encampment at Washington, D. C., next week.

L. K. Peacock, of Williamstown Junction, N. J., will talk about dahlias before the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, Tuesday evening, October 5. Mr. Peacock is a master of the art of dahlia growing and has the happy faculty of being able to describe his work most entertainingly.

Miss Violet Rose, who has an international reputation as a florist, now is manager of J. J. Habermehl's Sons' Orchid Flower Shop.

Carl A. Corts reopened the city salesroom of the Joseph Heacock Co., September 20, with a fine assortment of roses and with orchids.

There were several dahlia shows in town this week. Among them were those of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, at Horticultural hall, September 21, and of the Henry F. Michell Co., in its store, September 21 to 24.

Thomas Holland is in charge of H. H. Battles' Art Vase Shop.

Martin Reukauf has returned from a long and successful business trip to the Pacific coast and through the middle west.

S. H. Gowns has leased the greenhouses of Aaron D. Egolof, at Lansdowne, Pa.

Arthur Zirkman has returned from a most successful trip to the Pacific coast.

August Albert is reported to have returned to his place on Woodland avenue, West Philadelphia.

Robert Q. Shoch is back from central Pennsylvania in fine spirits. Mr. Shoch believes in encouraging, not discouraging, those whom he meets.

Among the fine dahlias seen at the store of Berger Bros. are Geisha Girl, Bertha von Suttner, McCullough, Jack Rose, Delice, Princess Juliana, Caesar and Sylvia.

Albert Saxton, formerly with Charles F. Krueger, has leased the store of Watson & Taylor, on Frankford avenue.

H. Bayersdorfer smilingly comments on the large number of southern orders brought in by Sydney H. Bayersdorfer.

William J. Young, Jr., makes daily trips in his car from his farm at Lenfield to his store in Germantown, with large boxes of fine dahlias. Delice and Sylvia are in specially good form with him.

B. Eschner visited Ocean Point, a coast resort near Los Angeles, and there distinguished himself in a contest for a prize, winning it at first attempt, to the astonishment of a friend, who had tried no less than thirty-nine times without success. The prize was a large papier-mache doll in brief attire. Mr. Eschner at once clothed it properly.

George E. Campbell has acquired health and pleasure from his new car, bringing sunshine to his friends in distant spots by dropping in on them occasionally.

Clarence W. Moore reports activity in French bulbs. Romans, Paper Whites, Lilium candidum and French trumpets all feel the influence of a quickened demand.

The Leo Niessen Co. has issued an attractive dahlia circular, showing leading varieties and suggesting ways to make dahlias profitable to retailers.

J. Otto Thilow, secretary of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., has a new car. Phil.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

Business was good last week. All cut flowers were cleaned up as fast as they arrived at the wholesale houses. Even pot plants and fancy baskets had a good run, and decorations have started up almost at full pace, although funeral work is the leader. The rose supply was the same as it was last week, but the demand was heavier. Carnations are of better quality, with an increasing supply. Asters are falling off fast; the heavy rains have ruined them. Gladioli will last about one week longer. Dahlias are fine and plentiful, but there is only a light call for them.

Various Notes.

August Luther, Jr., has a baby boy, which arrived August 31. He reports business good for the whole summer. He was much surprised at the number of pot plants he sold.

J. B. Masson reports business the best he has ever had. His greenhouses are all in good condition. He grows mostly carnations, roses and mums. He has a bench of Kaiserin roses that are exceptionally fine.

The Alpha Floral Co. states that the heavy rains throughout the country have been a heavy detriment to his shipping business in the last two weeks, as in places high water has stopped railroad traffic to points for which he has had shipments.

National Florist

NONE of us can do much alone. The big things in any business are accomplished by getting others to do the things we can't do.

The still bigger things are accomplished by organizing business; so still bigger things can be done.

That is exactly what the National Florist movement is.

It's an organizing of the florists of the country to broaden business. It's an organized, systematized movement to increase the use of flowers.

It is a movement to develop that tremendous opportunity—flowers by mail.

It will help every florist whether he is a member or not; but it will help the members most.

Are you, or are you not, going to be among the first to get aboard? Are you going to be the National Florist in your town, or is your competitor?

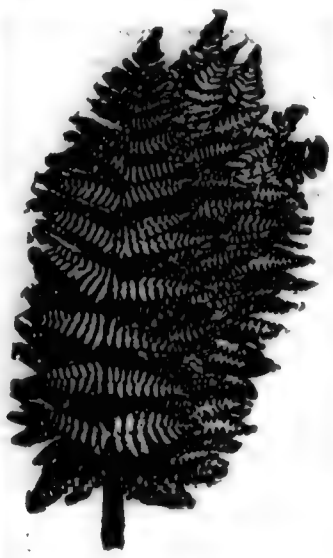
looking after some Christmas supplies and also for heavier shipments of cut flowers. As the demand is becoming heavier, he is in need of larger consignments.

Adolph Mohr has his begonias for Christmas in good shape. His poinsettias are coming along well. He will begin to cut mums in a few days.

J. Austin has his greenhouses glazed and everything in good shape for winter with the exception of the begonias that were injured by the hail. It will take some time to get them in shape again.



Samuel Murray had a pretty window display last week of pink and yellow dahlias.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. also had a pretty window, of wild flowers arranged in baskets and vases.

Arthur Schwerin, of the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia., had a fine display of his goods at the Baltimore hotel last week.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

A number of weddings last week caused a slight business activity, and the fall exhibition of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society brought about a larger demand for cut flowers. It is expected that the fall season will open briskly about October 1, as a number of society weddings are announced for the early fall. Chrysanthemums are arriving in large quantities.

Horticultural Society Exhibition.

The annual fall exhibition of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society was held at the Narragansett hotel, September 16 and 17. While the show was not up to its usual standard in number of entries, the quality of the exhibits was satisfactory. Dahlias, asters and gladioli were the principal features of the flower show.

The display of gladioli was far superior to anything ever seen in this city. A large exhibit was entered by Carmichael Bros., of Shannock, and A. P. Lensen. The dahlias constituted the larger part of the exhibition. The asters fell behind, the exceedingly hot weather causing them to droop. The judges were William Gray, of Newport, and Henry C. Neubrand, of Cromwell, Conn.

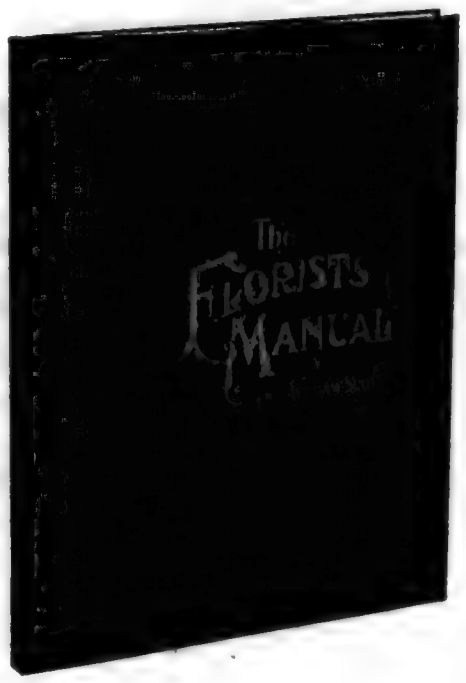
Various Notes.

The flower exhibition at the Kingston fair was the best ever held. This was due largely to the magnificent showing of gladioli by Carmichael Bros., of Shannock, which was said to excel any showing made during the forty-one years the fair has been held. Another factor contributing to the success of this department was the exhibition of dahlias, by George L. Stillman, of Westerly.

Among the larger exhibitors at the Greystone Horticultural Society were J. Lewis Childs, Inc., Flowerfield, N. Y.; Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, and D. Blackmar.

The Carmichael place at Shannock, midway between Narragansett Pier and Watch Hill, has been visited by hundreds of automobilists. There are more than 25,000 spikes of gladioli in bud and in bloom.

William Forbes has completed the erection of a greenhouse at his range on Meadow street, Pawtucket.



The Norwood Floral Co., at Norwood, has completed the construction of a small house.

S. H. Moore, of New Haven, Conn., was a recent visitor to this city and vicinity.

Charles Sword has accepted a position as gardener of the estate of George H. Fuller, at Pawtucket.

Howard Pepper, of the Melrose Rose Gardens, and his wife were recent guests at Buttonwoods, on Narragansett bay.

Miss Byron, of the Arcade, has returned from a ten days' trip, visiting

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists — those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

Florists' Review,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:-

During the SIX MONTHS from March 4 to September 4 I have received from other Florists, by mail, telegraph or cable, orders to the amount of $513.25 as a result of my advertisement in the Retailers' department of The Review. With the allowance to senders the record for SIX MONTHS is:

Value of orders received----------	$513.25
Less 20% allowed senders--------	102.60
Net value of orders for SIX MONTHS--	410.65

It should be noted that this showing covers the DULL SUMMER MONTHS, when any addition to a Florists's business is decidedly welcome.

Retail Florists not advertising in The Review should profit by this letter.

Respectfully,

F. H. Weber

The Market.

Although the intense heat of last week greatly affected the flowers, business has been good. Cooler and cloudy weather came as a big boon to the florists. The stock has been large and consignments heavy and, needless to say, it has not cleared well. Roses, unless sold immediately on arrival, opened up wide and were practically useless. They are plentiful in all grades and colors. Asters are plentiful in all colors, but there are thousands more than business calls for. Carnations are becoming plentiful and at present are quite small, but fragrant. There are few sweet peas seen. Lilies of the valley are plentiful, but they are not in first-class shape. Easter lilies are good, but there appears to be no special call for them. There are a few callas on the market. Gladioli are overabundant. Golden Glow chrysanthemums are arriving fast and sell easily. General stock includes larkspur, marigolds, cornflowers, rubrums, dahlias, coreopsis, daisies, zinnias and poppies, all of which sell well. There are plenty of greens on the market.

Various Notes.

Arthur W. Elder has returned from a successful business trip through the eastern part of Pennsylvania and New York states. Harry E. Bates has returned from Cleveland, where he attended the vegetable growers' convention.

Jacob Thomann & Sons report good business and an extra heavy amount of funeral work.

Charles H. Vick, Edward Ogston and Horace J. Head visited the New York state fair, at Syracuse, N. Y., September 13 to 18.

Visitors to the trade last week included W. A. Smith, of Wm. J. Boas & Co., Philadelphia; Charles Beck, of Sandlake, N. Y.; W. A. Stearns, of the Sefton Mfg. Co., Chicago, and a representative of the Manhattan Ribbon Co., New York.

Tuesday, September 21, Herbert B. Stringer, secretary of the Rochester Florists' Association, was married at Toronto.

An artificial lake surrounded by rocks, ferns, etc., was seen in the display window of J. B. Keller Sons last week. Several aquatic plants and beautiful cut blooms of water lilies were used. A mammoth vase of Golden Glows served as a background.

New electric lights have been placed in the window of the Rochester Floral Co. They are a vast improvement.

The Lord & Burnham Co. reports contracts closed with the following: Frederick Henkes, of Henkes & Henkes, Watervliet, N. Y., one large greenhouse; William Murdock, of Titusville, Pa., a curved truss house, 30x100, and one house for Mrs. Hoxieclark, Belvidere, N. Y.

Charles Gow, of the Wilson store, has returned from his two weeks' vacation, spent at Toronto.

The New Flower Shop, of which L. Goranson is manager, has had good business and a fair amount of funeral work.

The Aster Flower Store is displaying some good mums and gladioli. The display also shows some wedding bouquets made of artificial valley and roses.

Extensive alterations are being made at the H. E. Wilson store, at 88 East Main street. In place of the two small windows, a large one is being installed, with the store entrance at the side. New lighting fixtures in conjunction with latticework are to be installed.

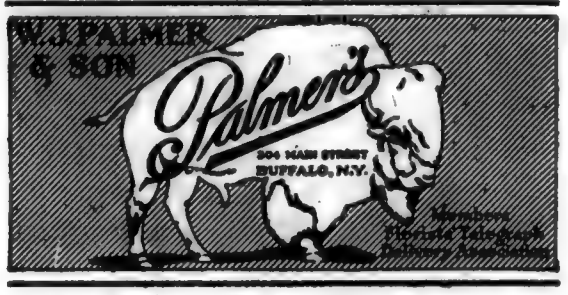
BALTIMORE.

The Market.

The excessively warm spell which started two weeks ago was with us last week, and its effects could be seen on all sides. Business, which was starting briskly, dropped with a thud. The quality of the stock coming in is conspicuous by its absence. Roses, which were starting off well, have deteriorated to practically midsummer size. The buds are short, considerably bleached and off color, and they open almost while one watches. Carnations are meeting with about the same experience as the roses. Asters have almost disappeared. Dahlias, while coming in heavily, are unsatisfactory and wilt and fall to pieces before they can be unpacked. Only a few mums are coming in and are being sold. There has been little business and plenty of stock, but a scarcity of really good stock in any quantity. Prices have dropped accordingly.



Various Notes.

The ninth annual dahlia show of the R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co. will be held at the farm, at White Marsh, Md., from September 28 to October 2. September 29 will be known as Florists' day, when members of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club will attend the exhibition. Many out-of-town members of the trade will be there on that day. A special train will leave on the B. & O. railroad from Camden station, at 12:30 p. m. each day of the show. Trains will leave Cowenton at 5:50 p. m. for the return trip. This is in addition to the regular passenger service. The trains wll stop at Mt. Royal and Gay street stations. Busses will meet all trains at the destination to convey passengers to the show.

The Market.

Nothing like the utter demoralization which overwhelmed the cut flower business during the week ending September 18 has been experienced for a long time. The severe heat wave, with maximum shade temperatures of 94 and 95 degrees for several successive days, simply put the lid down on trade and such flowers as were sold made absurdly low prices, large quantities finding a speedy exit via the rubbish barrels. While all flowers suffered, roses and carnations were hit the hardest. Roses could hardly be moved at any price. One grower felt lucky at cleaning up a day's receipts at an average of 25 cents per hundred, for prices ran as low as $1 per thousand, and even at that figure many could not be moved. The heat brought in great numbers of carnations, which were sold with difficulty at low prices. The intense heat seriously scorched asters, gladioli, dahlias and other outdoor flowers and the week will long remain one of unpleasant memory.

With a return to cooler weather, conditions have improved. There is still, however, an oversupply of roses and carnations. Red carnations are particularly hard to move. Chrysanthemum Golden Glow was in many cases ruined by the heat, and flowers arriving are not particularly good. Asters are on the wane, but are still ample for all needs. Gladioli grow small in numbers and the quality is inferior. Valley, which had a hard time a week ago, moves better. Orchids are not selling at all well. Yellow oncidiums can hardly be sold at all. There is a considerable assortment of annuals and perennials, sales of which are uncertain.

Various Notes.

Thomas Roland shipped some nice pink ericas to his salesman at the wholesale flower market September 21, the first of the season. He will soon have a fine lot of Erica melanthera in flower. He has a fine house of crotons, six houses of cyclamens and several houses of begonias, chiefly Glory of Cincinnati. One house is devoted to Otaheite oranges. A nice lot of Chrysanthemum Golden Glow is being cut at present.

R. E. Wadsworth & Co., of Westboro, is starting to ship carnations. He has several novelties, including Good Cheer, Akehurst, Pink Sensation, which is already giving some fine flowers, and Alice. Chrysanthemums and mignonette are two other important crops with this firm.

At the Wakefield and Reading fair, held September 15 to 18, S. E. Spencer, of Woburn, had a fine display of gladioli. Among the exhibits of Mrs. L. M. Towle I was particularly taken with two tubs of the old Scarborough lily, or Vallota purpurea, carrying over thirty spikes each. D. Finlayson, W. N. Craig and E. B. Wilder judged the cut flowers and grange exhibits. For the best grange display $630 was offered, and the displays were splendid.

largest importers of azaleas, does not expect to receive any plants this season. He says he lost about $5,000 on them last season and will not pay several thousand dollars into any European bank for stock now, preferring to sell other plants, of which he has a fine assortment.

The annual vegetable and fruit show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society will be held October 2 and 3.

W. H. Ward, of Montvale, is sending in fine Benora carnations; also, Alice, Beacon, Rosette, Pink Delight, White Wonder and Matchless. Asparagus Sprengeri and plumosus are each well grown also.

Among our visitors last week was David Smith, of Thomas Smith & Sons, Stranraer, Scotland. Mr. Smith made his present trip via Montreal and it proved a quick and unexciting passage. He is nearing the three score and ten mark, but is wonderfully active. He finds a good market here for hardy roses.

Chester Paine, of Paine Bros., Randolph, was looking happy and passing cigars to his fellow salesmen at the Flower Exchange September 11. It is a boy this time. Mr. Paine has received the greater part of his Dutch bulbs and many are in the soil, but some of the French bulbs have not yet arrived.

Boston will long remember the week ending September 18. The heat wave accompanied by excessive humidity caused many deaths locally and paralyzed the cut flower trade. The lack of heat in July and August is usually followed by a hot September and we may still anticipate some more hot days before the month ends. It still further hurt business to have the Jewish fast day, Yom Kippur, fall September 17 and 18. This closed some of the leading flower stores, which can usually be depended upon to sell a lot of stock.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

The market last week was crowded with stock, and retailers bought sparingly. The hot weather had a bad effect on trade throughout the city. Stock from outside points arrived in poor condition. The wholesalers are complaining of the poor demand and the low prices. An abundance of roses in all varieties came in last week, the best sellers being Russell, Hadley and Ophelia. The Killarneys and Richmond, unless extra fancy, had little demand. Beauties, too, ran low in demand and price. The supply of carnations far exceeds the demand. Fancy varieties in these are scarce. Beacon and Enchantress are the best carnations being received. White and yellow mums are ignored by buyers, as it is too early for them. There still are plenty of asters and dahlias coming in daily. Gladioli and tuberoses are about over for this year. Cosmos is expected to come in heavily this week. Lilies and valley have the usual good call.

Various Notes.

Paddy Patton, Walter Young, Fred H. Weber, James Arata, W. S. Wells and William Ossick are attending the Illinois state fair, at Springfield, this week.

Arthur Schwerin, secretary of the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia., and Frank Farney, representing the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, were here last week and displayed samples at the Jefferson hotel.

did good work in laying out 177 acres of land as a golf course for the Sunset Hill Golf Club. Experts say it is the most picturesque and most scientifically laid golf course in America.

John Steidle, of Olivette; Werner Bros., of Clayton, and W. J. Pilcher, of Kirkwood, are cutting excellent roses in all the leading varieties for this market.

The Retail Florists' Association held a well attended meeting September 20, at the Mission Inn garden. All officers were present and much important business was transacted.

The St. Louis Seed Co. and the Schisler-Corneli Seed Co. are keeping their forces busy preparing for a good fall season in seeds and bulbs.

Alexander Johnson, the Wellston florist, says that although he has not added any new glass to his 20,000 feet of glass, he has everything in readiness for the fall and winter season. His retail store is an attractive place.

Ernest Strehle, superintendent of the park department; John Moritz, head of the greenhouses, and Julius Koenig, head of the sidewalk and park trees, have accomplished much this year, according to the visiting park superintendents, who said that the parks and trees of St. Louis easily compared with the best in the country.

Albert Steinberger, landscape gardener, at 3434 Gravois avenue, was badly injured last week when a street car struck the automobile in which he was riding. He was taken to St. Anthony's hospital, where he is at present in a serious condition.

A. Jablonsky and John Steidle, of Olivette, are picking excellent carnation blooms, which are consigned to H. G. Berning.

The wife of Chas. Schoelting, a nurseryman at 4930 Columbia avenue, died while celebrating Mr. Schoelting's sixty-sixth birthday, September 14.

E. T. Barnes, of the Coöperate Show Gardens, gave an hour's talk on the culture and care of dahlias and gladioli, September 15 and 16, at the floral department of the Grand Leader store. The attendance on both days was large, the fair sex being in majority.

A picnic was held by several wholesale and retail florists and their families Sunday, September 12. The trip to the grounds, in St. Louis county, was made in automobiles. All had a pleasant time until evening, when John Bentzen was saved from drowning by Frank Windler, while they were bathing. Mr. Bentzen had gone down for the second time when Mr. Windler made a leap for him and saved him.

The Lord & Burnham Co. has fifteen men working overtime to finish the $75,000 conservatory for the Missouri Botanical Garden, which, according to the contract, must be completed October 1. W. W. Ohlweiler says that the chrysanthemum show to be held in the new conservatory in November will be the finest ever held at the garden. Other flower shows will be held during the winter months.

The officers of the St. Louis Florists' Club spent a pleasant evening at the home of President Jules Bourdet, September 16. This meeting was called in order to draw plans for the coming meetings of the club. Some valuable suggestions were made as to how to make the meetings interesting. It was decided to hold a meeting of the officers prior to the monthly meeting of the club. J. J. B.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Despite the intense heat last week, business showed a slight improvement. There was a better movement of flowers of all kinds, although not half of the stock that is received finds a sale. Roses showed the effects of the terrific heat, and of these the retailers bought only in sufficient quantities to meet immediate needs. Valley moved more freely. Carnations are improving in quality, but dahlias are not up to standard. There are still some gladioli to be had. Asters are practically out of this market. Tritomas and tuberoses are to be had, but are not in demand. The call for Easter lilies is slackening; the supply is not as large as it was some time ago. They continue to bring $6 and $8 per hundred. Some exceptionally fine Golden Glow chrysanthemums are being offered. Northern-grown American Beauty roses are being received in fine shape.

Various Notes.

fate. These two, with Clifton J. Smith, a brother of Mrs. Beatrice Moss, who is employed at the Kramer store, on F street, were swimming in the eastern branch, near the Anacostia bridge, when Burrows was seized with cramps and went down. Padgett started to his rescue, and Burrows held him in a grip which nearly proved fatal. Smith broke the hold and conveyed Padgett to the wall. He then endeavored to save Burrows, diving six times in an effort to locate his body. The darkness prevented a rescue, and the body was found an hour later some distance from the scene of the accident.

Among the visitors last week were Paul F. Butz, of New Castle, Pa.; I. Rosnosky, of Philadelphia, and Henry Bomhoft, of Lincoln, Ill.

Richard Vincent, Jr., and Thomas A. Vincent, of White Marsh, Md., and Prof. Bert W. Anspon, of College Park, Md., motored to Washington last week. After being joined by George H. Cooke, the party left for a day's tour of the surrounding country, visiting many of the Maryland ranges.

A number of the downtown florists are planning to decorate their establishments next week during the fiftieth annual encampment of the G. A. R. The Retail Merchants' Association offers three silver cups to be presented to the firms having the best window displays. The week has also been designated fall styles week, and it is expected that the city will be filled with people from the nearby cities and towns. William F. Gude is chairman of the citizens' committee, which is making all arrangements. George H. Cooke, president of the Florists' Club; Fred H. Kramer and others of the trade are members of the various committees working under the central committee.

The store of Leapley & Meyer, on G street, northwest, has been redecorated and repainted. The exterior has been done in brown, while several shades of green have been used on the interior.

DETROIT.

The Market.

Business has been quite brisk, considering the fact that we are still having, or more correctly, just having, our summer weather. There has been considerable funeral work, much replenishing of fern dishes, and many fern and palm sales, as is usual in fall.

Carnations are getting better as the season advances, while the quality of asters has fallen. Some really fine blooms were available several weeks

Send us your retail orders. We have the best facilities in the city ago, but now only small, inferior flowers are to be had. Dahlias this year have been inferior in quality to those of previous years. They have been weak in the neck and do not keep. This, no doubt, is due to the heavy rains we have had all season.

Various Notes.

Thos. Browne's new 600-foot house, at Greenfield, is practically completed, all but the heating system being finished. The house is planted to carnations.

Henry Rahaley, of the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, is contemplating a trip to New York in the near future.

A quite successful meeting of the Detroit Florists' Club was held Tuesday evening, September 14, and many members showed their ability as bowlers after the meeting. H. S.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, John M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE death of J. E. Wing, of Mechanicsburg, O., is reported in this week's obituary column.

THROUGH the St. Louis port of entry the St. Louis Seed Co. recently received 104 cases of Dutch bulbs and 135 cases of French bulbs.

THERE were three cases of bulbs on the boat from Bermuda that reached New York September 16. The arrivals to date are only 833 cases.

ISAAC S. HENDRICKSON estimates the acreage of gladioli in the United States at from 400 to 500, with the bulb crop running 14,000,000 to 15,000,000.

E. S. THOMPSON states that the Central Seed & Bulb Co., Benton Harbor, Mich., has removed to 78 and 80 West Main street, where the retail business will be continued and the wholesale department afforded opportunity for development.

THE country is full of giganteum lily bulbs of the 1914 crop in cold storage and the holders are in a quandary as to how best to meet the situation caused by the considerable surplus over what is needed to take care of standing orders.

ROBERT H. BLACK, of Albert Lea, Minn., believes that exhibitions at state fairs are a profitable form of publicity. He had a successful exhibit at the Great North Iowa fair, at Mason City, Ia., and was represented at Des Moines, Ia., by a large display of gladioli. He also participated in the recent Minneapolis fair.

THE U. S. Weather Bureau in coöperation with the Bureau of Crop Estimates has sent out a warning that "owing to the general backward state of this year's corn crop in many of the northern but important growing sections of the belt, there is danger of injury to the crop by killing frost, the occurrence of which may be expected at any time. It is therefore important that every effort possible be made to secure good seed for next year's crop. Where any last year's corn is left it should be gone over and the best ears saved. Moreover, as corn matures unevenly, it is possible to secure seed from the early ears before the rest of the crop is matured."

HAVE YOU A SURPLUS?

Bids have been called for to be opened by the General Supply Committee of the Department of Agriculture at Washington for furnishing seed to the government during the eight months of the current fiscal year, from November 1, 1915, to June 30, 1916. The bids will be opened October 6.

"MITTING JUNIOR IS JAILED."

Under the above quoted heading the Santa Cruz, Cal., News of September 13 printed further news of the Mitting family and the lately defunct Santa Cruz Bulb & Plant Co., particulars of which were printed in The Review of September 2. Both Alfred Mitting and his son, Ernest Deroo Mitting, left Santa Cruz after attachment proceedings were instituted. Local bulb growers turned over their calla and freesia bulbs to the Mittings to be sold, but are said to have received practically nothing in payment.

The Santa Cruz News of September 13 said:

"E. Deroo Mitting, late proprietor of the much-embarrassed Santa Cruz Bulb & Plant Co., is in jail, charged with the embezzlement of $128 entrusted to his care by W. T. Huff.

"Mitting was caught in San Francisco by Constable Frank Dille yesterday afternoon and brought to Santa Cruz at noon today. The charge against young Mitting is a felony and a verdict of guilty in such a case means a term in state's prison.

"Mr. Huff, who raises bulbs near Del Mar, alleges that Mitting, as agent in the sale of his (Huff's) bulbs, refused to pay up after he had sold the bulbs."

FRENCH SEEDSMEN IMPRISONED.

An account of the arrest of certain French seed growers is given in the London Daily Chronicle, as follows:

"A certain section of the business community of Saint Remy, in Provence, has distinguished itself in unenviable fashion by trading with the enemy. Nine citizens are under arrest, including the vice-president of the Arles Chamber of Commerce, and another prominent tradesman who was born a German and only became naturalized shortly before the war. In ordinary times the Provencal Saint Remy is Germany's chief center in France for the purchase of market garden seeds. The town exported annually forty-one tons to Germany and four to Switzerland. The local trade was in the hands of fifteen wholesale merchants who, in spite of the war, appear to have bought up the whole of this year's production as usual. Police investigations now show that forty-five tons went to Switzerland. Papers seized prove that the vendors were actually in communication with their regular German customers, who had arranged to have agents in Switzerland to take delivery of the merchandise. The Saint Remy merchants say they believed they were within the law in sending goods to a neutral country, and that it was not their business to worry as to the eventual destination."

The Horticultural Advertiser (British) states that "the following seedsmen have been incarcerated: Blain fils aine, Servan Roustan, Roumanille

No, I haven't met the fat sociable man yet. My world just now is too serious a world to think of anything but my life's aim, SUCCESS. Yes, I want to go forward, and we must be willing to work hard to reach our goals. I don't want to be a drifter on life's waves.

We must do something worth while, to pay the debt we owe the World. The World owes us a living ONLY after we have given full value in advance to the World.

I hear many opinions expressed of me. Sometimes I think over the remarks, and at times I do not. A few of the opinions are: My, she's a smart Girl, she's a hustler, she's a wonder, she can't be beat, and different expressions; but in all simplicity and honesty, I am willing to say I am not, and, even if I have an unusual mentality, I am humble enough to say I am working for a living, even though it is building up and operating a good-sized business; it is work and some play.

I know how and where to secure the best grade of Merchandise I deal in and I can usually sell where the goods are wanted, and transact a fair deal, but I am not smart enough to concoct a "tricky deal."

But as long as I can deliver both quality and price right, I won't worry about stacking the cards in crooked deals. And I don't look good to the fat man, so far.

seedlings can be grown at small cost. Allow 75 days to have them ready to bench. By growing your own plants you not only save much expense but have them at hand, undisturbed and growing, when needed. It very often happens that weather conditions are not right for shipping plants and much loss is incurred in this way. Growing your own plants solves all of these problems. A few packets of seed will give you your stock and some for neighbors.

We specialize in Snapdragon and are sticklers for quality. All of our seed is produced under glass, only one variety in each separate house, which eliminates any possible chance of mixing varieties by wind or insect. Pure seed means a liberal expenditure of brains and labor. Our personal time is given. Only a few strong shoots on each plant are permitted to flower. Each seed pod must be perfect in form and size and ripen uniformly from bottom of stem up. All others are thrown out. This is but an inkling of the various details that make for our pure seed. Do you wonder that our business grows and that we have repeat orders for the fifth time from hundreds of customers?

Grow your own plants and sow seed now to follow Mums. Pure, fresh seed as follows: Our original Silver Pink, $1.00 per pkt.; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. Nelrose, Buxton, Garnet, Yellow, White and mixed, 35c per pkt.; 3 for $1.00. All orders cash. Free cultural directions. Seedling plants of Nelrose and White ready now at $5.00 per 100.

Miss S. E. Boyden, Holden, Mass., today says: "Your Silver Pink is certainly all that you claim for it, and then some."

GRISWOLD CO. ASKS REFUND.

In a complaint to the Interstate Commerce Commission against the Colorado & Southern and the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroads, the Griswold Seed Co., of Lincoln, Neb., attacks the rates on sweet clover seed from Wheatland, Wyo., to Lincoln. On recent shipments the seed company was charged at the rate of 80 cents per hundred pounds, charges amounting in all to $302. The complaint says this rate is unreasonable, and that a fair rate would be 60 cents. A refund of $75 is asked. The company points out that sweet clover is a member of the alfalfa family, and contends that the rate on alfalfa seed should apply to sweet clover shipments. It is declared that the Class A rate of 80 cents is unjust and unreasonable, and that a reasonable rate would be 60 cents, minimum weight of 30,000 pounds, which is the combination of the local rate based on Cheyenne. MOTT-LY GLEANINGS.

E. J. Sheep, of S. M. Isbell & Co., Jackson, Mich., predicts a shortage of beans and vine seeds. These promised a fifty per cent yield previous to the recent heavy rains, which started anthracnose in the beans. Samples show it badly. Melons and cucumbers will be scarce. The radish yield is the best ever harvested. Two special types, a Scarlet Globe and a Scarlet White Tip, have been developed from Vilmorin's strain, and show much improvement and distinctiveness.

According to a recent communication from the J. H. Allan Seed Co., Sheboygan, Wis., the bean crop on a 1,600-acre farm will not exceed a fifty per cent basis.

W. T. Phillips & Co., Toledo, O., report a full crop of clover and timothy of high grade. A grand old patriarch in market gardening happened in their store during my visit. He owned up to 75 years, and was a splendid type of pioneer, full of reminiscences of the days when he first bought seed of Mr. Phillips and when Toledo was a trading port.

The Jones Seed Co., Grand Rapids, Mich., states that fall sowing is fully four weeks later than usual, owing to the hot spell. Reports from the bean fields state that Pencil Pod Wax is the least affected with rust, and a fair average is anticipated. The company recommends sudan grass as a profitable forage plant. A field sowed June 1 was first cut August 17, and again September 15, yielding in each case strong, succulent growths four feet tall.

Currie Bros. Co., Milwaukee, Wis., considers this the wettest and latest season in the firm's experience, requiring patience and optimism. Bulbs are in, and catalogues ready. The company does not believe in distributing them before a good frost, which scarcely ever fails to stimulate business.

Chrysanthemum

By Arthur Herrington

Formerly president Chrysanthemum Society of America.

The most complete and comprehensive work on the cultivation of the chrysanthemum that has yet been published in America. Its scope and character may be gleaned from the list of contents, which comprises chapters on composts, planting; benches, boxes or pots; general cultural details; crown and terminal buds; feeding, its object and application; care of the buds; exhibition and judging; specimen plants, plants in pots; raising from seed and hybridizing; sports; hardy chrysanthemums; chrysanthemums for south and west; insect pests and diseases; classification and selection of varieties for special purposes; history of the chrysanthemum, etc. The book will be welcomed for the lucid, comprehensive, as well as the practical character of its contents. Handsomely illustrated. 168 pages, 5x7 inches. Price 50c postpaid.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

THE Post-office department has issued a revised list of 171 places in California where inspection of plants and plant products is maintained and postmasters at other points are required to forward to the nearest of these places any parcels containing articles subject to the terminal inspection required by the state, as provided for in Section 278¼ of the Postal Laws and Regulations.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Last week was a good one for the green goods men. The annual fashion show always uses a large quantity of green stock, and this year was no exception. Possibly never before has the scarcity of good flowering plants been so marked. Everyone likely to have them is tired of answering telephone inquiries for flowering plants. Naturally, the growers are blamed. But retailers and customers seem to forget that in many cases growers have prepared stocks of flowering plants only to have them left on hand, and, in consequence, have fallen back on the safer foliage plants, palms and ferns. Some day a plant-growing establishment will be started here, and the demand will be created automatically.

Cut roses still are poor in texture, and are off color in most cases. Good stock sells on sight, but there is little of it anywhere. Carnations are improving in substance and color. The stems, in most cases, are short and stiff, and the flowers hold up fairly well. Chrysanthemums are coming in from the north and a few from local growers. Those coming from the growers are somewhat better than the out-of-town mums. Monrovia still holds its own as an early yellow. Dahlias are at their best and are plentiful, as are most of the hardy plants. Orchids are of medium quality and find a fair demand. The demand for valley is limited.

Various Notes.

O. C. Saakes left last week for a combined business and pleasure trip to San Francisco.

Wright's Flower Shop reports a big funeral business.

The California Cut Flower & Evergreen Co. has grown about 50,000 chrysanthemums this season. The chrysanthemums are arriving in fine shape, being far superior to the stock shipped in from the north.

A story is being told about F. Borden, of the Redondo Floral Co., going to Hemet to have his corns cured, but nobody believes it. Messrs. Borden and Knopf are back from their vacations and are looking and feeling fine.

Fred Sperry, manager of the Los Angeles Floral Co., was laid up for a few days, owing to an injury to his foot while bathing. Mr. Sperry thinks that he struck some kind of poisonous weed in the ocean. He has had a painful time. The Los Angeles Floral Co. will shortly move to more commodious quarters on Los Angeles street.

M. L. Germain, president of the Germain Seed & Plant Co., and Mrs. Germain, have returned from a 2,500-mile trip taken in their Studebaker. Mr. and Mrs. Germain were away for five weeks, visiting many beautiful places in the north, and report a most enjoyable time.

Walter Garbett, manager of Darling's Flower Shop, is reported to be on the sick list.

A. Hunt, manager of the flower department at the Hamburger store, and his father are building large greenhouses at their nursery, at Ramona.

H. R. Richards.

Tassano Bros. have finished their new glass houses in Glendale and are now getting ready to set out 10,000 plants of maidenhair fern. They expect to grow some fine stock. The chrysanthemums are all in bloom and they report some excellent flowers. Business is good.

SANTA BARBARA, CAL.

The funerals of several prominent people here have helped out business, which has otherwise been somewhat dull. The local supply of cut flowers is not great. All classes of pot stock are short.

Mrs. Whipple, widow of J. Whipple, is continuing the business of her late husband. J. Gleave, formerly manager here, has resigned his position, and is looking for a location to commence business for himself.

The beautiful Cowles estate is beginning to take shape under the skillful handling of Wm. Donald. A great point made by this clever landscape gardener is that to obtain good results small, healthy stock should be planted rather than large overgrown plants. The progress made in so short a time is wonderful. While Mr. Donald now sports an automobile, he still retains his love for the horse, as was indicated by his winning a silver cup at the recent Ventura show. His niece, Miss Burnett, captured several blue ribbons with her pony.

Albert Beverley, of the Mission Oak Nursery, has his place in fine condition, and notes a revival in business. He is trying out a large number of the newer roses.

H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Although the crowd of visitors in town has become smaller and the decorations fewer, business activity is keeping up to the high average of the summer. The trade is disposing of an enormous amount of stock. Flowers, especially the small summer stock, are less plentiful, as we are getting into the between-seasons period. The daily offerings are taken up quickly. Scabiosas are having a long season, being still fairly plentiful. A large number of marguerites and Shasta daisies are offered. Other small stock is playing out. Asters are going off crop, supplies being light and, for the most part, poor. There are still a few good gladioli. Dahlias are about at their best, but not overplentiful. Offerings of carnations do not increase much, but as many dealers are not buying, the shortage causes no great inconvenience. Lilies are scarce; no tigrinums are seen, and rubrums and albums are about gone. Amaryllis keeps up, supplies this season being unusually heavy. Chrysanthemums are taking a prominent position in the market. They are not at their best, but some are good and have a satisfactory sale locally.

A large number of mums are being shipped to nearby points, and there is a much heavier movement in sight. White varieties are scarce, but will be back in a few days. Violets are still scarce and in demand at good prices. The quality of violets is not good, the weather being dry and hot. General offerings of roses are rather poor, though some first-class stock is appearing. Some nice Hoosier Beauty are coming in, sharing popularity with Hadley, Russell, Killarney Brilliant and Ophelia. All the roses clean up well. The first Irish Elegance in several months came in last week. There have been practically no orchids for some time, and an increasing cut of gardenias finds an excellent market in consequence. There is still a large movement of potted plants and ferns. Cyclamen offerings are still quite moderate; cockscomb is in good supply. A large number of begonias and primulas are sold.

Various Notes.

The E. W. McLellan Co. has had carpenters at work installing two large iceboxes at the new Bush street establishment, in preparation for the chrysanthemum and violet season. The iceboxes are being put up in sections, so they can be easily moved. This company is trying out Hoosier Beauty, which seems to be doing well.

Chas. F. Shellgrain, of the house of J. B. Boland, reported a busy week. He has had a good share of decorative work in connection with the recent convention of bankers.

Misses Rothschild & Cohen, florists at the Hotel Bellevue, are closing their second year in business. They report a marked increase in business for the summer, and are now filling orders for some nice decorative work.

Many of the local growers entered the dahlia show held September 18 at the Palace of Horticulture. The exhibits comprised the largest variety of dahlias ever shown here.

Podesta & Baldocchi attracted attention last week with a basket of magnificent tuberous begonias, in yellow and orange shades. They are making a specialty of enormous green-tinted hydrangea blooms, which are a decided novelty and sell quickly.

F. Schlotzhauer, of the Francis Floral Co., is showing a large assortment of baskets in which cherries are used as a decorative motif. Old rose, cream and violet, old ivory, etc., are the colors. Mr. Schlotzhauer is shipping many teasels, dyed in pastel colors.

Arthur Cann, who for the last five years has conducted a flower and seed shop at 51 South Second street, San Jose, has opened a new store at the corner of South First and San Antonio streets, one of the best business locations in San Jose. He has twice as much space as before and a large concrete basement. The store has been fitted up artistically, and a balcony has been built to accommodate the office and a large display of baskets. Mr. Cann has been in business at San Jose for nineteen years.

every few days to look after his two stands in the Emporium department store. The nursery department is exceedingly busy, especially in bulbs, which are being prominently advertised. Mr. Navlet has issued his first fall catalogue, getting it out early for the bulb trade. He expects to issue three catalogues next year. Mr. Navlet was at Santa Cruz a few days ago to make bulb purchases and reported that the growers there appear to be in good shape for fall business. He said that the daffodil and other bulbs offered by C. Eaden Lilley are exceptionally fine.

According to reports from Eureka, the new greenhouse of the Cottage Gardens Nursery Co. will be the largest in the state. Work was started on the foundations the first of the month. An office building, boiler and tool house, and a large slat house and packing shed have been completed. Everything is being equipped along the most modern lines. Several new houses are also to be added to the experiment garden, where a large amount of stock is being assembled for planting in the Eureka high school grounds.

The cannas in the garden south of the Palace of Horticulture were slow in getting a start, and for a time it looked as if they would be a complete failure. Now, however, the various exhibits are coming into excellent bloom. H. S. G.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business is reported as being unusually spotted, but as averaging better than in the corresponding period of last year. A marked increase in the number of September weddings is noted. Carnations are coming in more freely and their quality has improved. October Frost and Smith's Advance chrysanthemums have appeared on the list of white mums. A heavy cut of Ophelia, White Killarney, Killarney and Chateney roses is being marketed. The rains which usually fall about September 1 did not arrive this year, and the season for asters and other outdoor flowers has been prolonged. Orchids are still scarce. The demand for ferns has increased.

Seedsmen report a good demand for lawn grass seed and seeds of perennials and winter vegetables, although the lack of rain prevents buyers from working the ground in many localities.

The Multnomah Exhibits.

The floral display at the Multnomah county fair, held at Gresham two weeks ago, proved to be a great attraction. Prizes totaling $150 were offered by the managers, for displays of permanent beds and for table entries. In the main hall, one table was filled with an exhibit of dahlias from Gill Bros. Seed Co., showing about 350 varieties. Another table contained blooms of roses and perennials from the Mountain View Floral Co., and two tables had home-grown flowers and potted plants from amateurs. Nearly all the agricultural exhibits were decorated with vases of cut flowers. A pyramidal stand filled with foliage plants, furnished by the Rahn & Herbert Co., formed the centerpiece of the hall.

One of the permanent beds consisted of Pride of Portland cannas, with a border of coleus, and other beds had gladioli and asters, all of which were entered by the Routledge Seed & Floral Co. A bed with King Humbert cannas, marigolds, coleus and alternantheras, and another bed of rentstemons were exhibits of the Mountain View Floral Co. There was a bed of zinnias from the Swiss Floral Co.; one with salvias from Clarke Bros.; one with Hill geraniums and Iobelias, and one with King Humbert cannas and white geraniums, from the Rahn & Herbert Co.; two beds with Hall Caine geraniums from Geo. Goos, and one bed of marigolds, poppies and other annuals from Gill Bros.

The management placed border beds of geraniums along the walks, and dahlias along the main driveway. The permanent beds were arranged for by a committee from the Portland Floral Society, of which J. G. Bacher was chairman.

Various Notes.

William Hennings, who has been with Hendee Bros., has taken a position as foreman of the greenhouses of the Woodmere Floral Co.

Mrs. A. C. F. Burkhardt, who has attempted to continue the florists' business founded by the late A. C. F. Burkhardt, in addition to the care of her family of children, finds the double duty too great a tax on her strength and is negotiating with parties to lease the range. Paul Gosch, formerly with Clarke Bros., is in charge of the greenhouses.

The Routledge Seed & Floral Co. has received the first shipment of Dutch bulbs.

Visitors last week were E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind.; Robert Simpson, of Clifton, N. J., and John W. Hawser, of New York.

M. A. Schuster, proprietor of the Woodlawn Greenhouses, has recovered from the injuries received in an automobile accident Labor day. He is able to look after his business.

A. Rahn, of Rahn & Herbert Co., says his firm is preparing large quantities of stock for fall and winter trade.

Harry Bamford, bookkeeper at the store of Martin & Forbes Co., is spending his vacation at Foleysprings.

W. J. Williams, formerly with Clarke Bros., has joined the force of the Thorsted Floral Co., of Oakland, Cal.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Vice-president, John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; Secretary, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

Forty-first annual meeting, Milwaukee, Wis., June 22 to 24, 1916.

J. H. BARNETT, Jr., recently appointed forester at Gary, Ind., states that park commission there is in the market for considerable quantities of nursery stock.

PRICE-LISTS of Russian tree seeds coming to hand indicate that trade channels are open. Most of them recommend that shipment be made via parcel post, eleven pounds costing $1.60 by this method and getting through with least delay.

IN a recent report to the State department, Julean H. Arnold, commercial attaché to the United States embassy at Peking, China, suggests that American seedsmen and nurserymen furnish his office with catalogues, as inquiries are often received for American seed and nursery catalogues. The climate of Peking is dry and cold in winter and damp and hot in summer, with a temperature ranging between zero and 100 degrees.

SEEDLINGS GROWN IN AMERICA.

[From a paper on "Seedlings and Stock Grown in America," read by M. J. Crow, of Gilroy, Cal., before the convention of the Pacific Coast Nurserymen's Association at San Francisco, August 12 to 14.]

For twenty years or more the Kaw valley, in Kansas, and certain sections of Iowa and Nebraska have produced probably ninety per cent of the apple seedlings used in the United States. Of late years Oregon and Washington have taken up seedling growing, and are producing a beautiful grade of apple, pear and cherry stocks, and without doubt Myrobalan, quince stocks, Manetti and other rose stocks, etc., can be grown equally well.

Then why do we annually send to Europe so many thousands of our hard-earned dollars for what can so well be produced at home? There are several reasons for this: First, habit and convenience; the representatives of European firms call on us, offering stock which we know from experience produces satisfactory results, and we dislike experimenting with the foundation stone of our crops; second, there are not as yet enough stocks grown in the United States, with the exception of apple, to supply us all; third, under normal conditions there is money to be saved by buying the foreign product, though for the last few years domestic stock, so far as obtainable, has been as low or lower in price than the foreign. This may be accounted for by the fact that in France there is the strongest kind of an organization of the principal growers; this organization holds its meetings at stated intervals and fixes the price at the highest figure deemed procurable, with the result that our stocks have cost us considerably more in recent years than the law of supply and demand warranted, and in consequence French growers have become rich largely at the expense of the American nurseryman.

Kansas Difficulties.

To the casual observer it likely seems strange that so few growers have taken to seedling production in view of the immense number we annually require. In the past hundreds have tried it, particularly in the Kansas section, and where one made money fifty lost, many their last dollar. Viewing the apple seedling situation under conditions prevailing in the Kaw valley, the business is one of extreme hazard and discouragement. There it is a game for the capitalist—the small grower has little or no chance for financial success. There suitable land is expensive, either to buy or lease; seed must be imported, the usual price ranging from $14 to $25 per bushel, and only too often it is poor in germinating qualities; the process of freezing and sprouting the seed requires experience and the greatest care; sowing, weeding, cultivating, pulling and grading call for an immense amount of hand labor, which we all know runs into money; then there is the expense of equipment—grading houses, frost-proof cellars, teams, tools and other necessary paraphernalia, to all of which must be added the selling and shipping costs. For eleven years, being in close touch with the Kansas seedling supply, I carefully noted the numerous disasters, and I well remember the crop being practically wiped out, one year by floods, another by drought, another by excessive and continuous rains just at the time the seedlings were coming through, and another year hail effectively relieved the grower of all anxiety as to the marketing of his crop.

Opportunities on the Coast.

Now, all this does not look encouraging to the man wanting to grow seedlings. Is it any wonder that so few of us have the sporting proclivities necessary to enter such a game? But we must remember that these facts apply to a country differing as greatly from the states along the Pacific coast as Mr. Bryan's opinions differ from those of Ex-president Roosevelt. On the coast, at least under irrigation, locations can be secured where none of these disasters are to be feared. The states of Washington and Oregon are now growing as fine apple, pear and cherry seedlings as one could ask for; apricot, peach and almond we have grown in California in full supply for years and a number of California nurserymen are now growing Myrobalan sufficient for their own planting. Even with certain bulbs, growers at Santa Cruz, Cal., are winning out against the supposedly invincible Hollander. So it is clearly not a question of "Can we?" but one of "Will it pay?"

Granted that our soil and climate are all that can be desired, there are other factors which must be given serious consideration: We shall have to import pear, apple and the most of our cherry and Myrobalan seed for some years to come or until trees can be planted and brought to bearing age, which certainly should be done; we should grow the seed as well as the seedling. It is likely that, with the end of the present war, European conditions will quickly assume the normal; with their well trained labor, perfect equipment and long experience, coupled with cheap ocean freights, French growers can make delivery at our ports at a low figure and still have a balance on the right side of the ledger. And it is safe to assume that if they see their American market threatened, they will do their utmost to throttle competition by cutting prices to the minimum. Can we make the required investment, buy the seed, pay prevailing wages for labor while training it for the work, absorb the higher freights to points east of the Mississippi and still meet these cut prices? I believe we can. If the Kansas grower can live under the various vicissitudes incidental to his climate, and practically supply the American market for apple seedlings, as he does today, why cannot we, under our more favorable conditions, do at least as well?

The time seems ripe for some of us to take up this work extensively and make a specialty of it, each growing the particular class of stock his locality will best produce. Then it is up to the rest of us to give these growers not only our orders, but our support in every way possible.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

Pittsburgh has just come through the hottest week of the summer and it certainly did not have a good effect on business. Stock from a distance was cooked in the boxes; even asters and gladioli in some instances were worthless. The retail stores were just beginning to perk up and trade generally was improving, but the few hot days set us back to midsummer conditions. Roses were blown before they could be delivered and asters as a rule did not look good to the buyers. The wholesale men did the best they could, which was not good. Dahlias were worthless when they arrived and only the garbage man did a flourishing business.

Various Notes.

Ray T. Page, auditor for the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., who has been in poor health, has gone to Atlantic City to recuperate. He probably will have an extended vacation.

The landscape department of the A. W. Smith Co. was nearly wrecked last week. Ralph W. Pinner and Mr. Bracken were at Coraopolis Heights to look over a property they are making plans for, and on their return their car was upset and both men were taken to the hospital. They are getting along nicely and will be out in a few days.

William Loew has returned from the S. A. F. convention, delighted with his trip.

New Nephrolepis Fern
JOHN WANAMAKER

In presenting this fern to the trade, we feel confident that it will make a place for itself.

A "sport" from Nephrolepis Scholzeli, with longer, narrower, gracefully drooping fronds. It is not so compact in growth as Scholzeli, and therefore does not decay in the center, and is a durable house fern. It is a rapid grower, making an abundance of fronds, and is quite distinct from any other Nephrolepis.

Strong plants from 2¼-inch pots, $3.00 per doz., $20.00 per 100, $150.00 per 1000.

The following ready for delivery October 1st: 4-inch pots, $50.00 per 100; 6-inch pots, $1.00 each; 8-inch pots, $2.00 each; specimens in tubs, $5.00 each.

CHICAGO FLORAL FESTIVAL.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Chicago Grand Floral Festival, held at the offices of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, September 16, much routine business was transacted, A. Henderson, W. N. Rudd, W. J. Keimel, N. P. Miller, George Asmus and M. Barker being in attendance. Considerable space was reported sold in the trade exhibits' department, the exhibitors including a number of the prominent retailers. Arrangements were made to materially extend the private gardeners' section of the premium list, so as to conform to the wishes of exhibitors. A number of additional committees were suggested, which will be announced as soon as completed.

The preliminary premium list is ready and copies may be had on application to N. P. Miller, 179 North Wabash avenue, Chicago. The exhibition will be held at the Coliseum, November 9 to 14, and the liberal prizes include the following:

Class 15A—Best display chrysanthemum cut flowers, one or more varieties, arranged for effect, to contain not less than 150 large blooms; foliage, smaller chrysanthemum flowers, plants and other accessories permitted, first, $200; second, $150; third, $100.

Class 76A—Best display cut roses, one or more varieties, arranged for effect, to contain not less than 500 flowers, foliage and other accessories, first, $125; second, $90; third, $60.

Class 31—Best group of chrysanthemum plants arranged for effect, to occupy not less than 150 square feet, first, $100; second, $80; third, $60.

Class 33—Best display orchids, not less than twenty-five plants, first, $100; second, $50.

Class 46—Best group of palms and decorative plants to occupy not less than 150 square feet of space, first, $100; second, $75; third, $50.

SEDALIA, MO.

The Market.

The market is steady. The demand about equals the cut. The quality of the stock is good. The carnation cut is getting larger as cool nights draw near.

Various Notes.

Everybody is getting ready for the great Missouri state fair. From a florist's standpoint, it will be greater than ever before. Among the exhibitors from this place will be the Archias Floral Co., the Archias Seed Co. and the State Fair Floral Co. The fair will open September 25.

The Sedalia Democrat of September 19 contained an illustrated write-up of the Archias Floral Co. and the Archias Seed Store. The greenhouses, at Fourth and Park avenue, are under the supervision of President L. H. Archias, assisted by John H. Halverson, foreman. Vice-president L. A. Kipping is in charge at the seed store, at 106-108 East Main street. J. H. H.

HYDRANGEAS

Our Hydrangeas are all grown in the open ground during the summer, where they make a very luxurious growth, producing heavy heads. They are potted up in August and will be thoroughly rootbound in October. They are extra heavy this season and will not only produce flowers from the shoots but also from the dormant buds at the base. They cannot be better and will satisfy the most critical.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

The Market.

Birmingham has experienced a better summer in the flower trade than any of the last three years. Box trade has been excellent for the last four weeks, and we have had a large number of good funeral orders. All of the local growers have their carnations benched and well started. The rose stock for the coming winter is excellent. Pot plants for Christmas are coming along nicely.

Various Notes.

Hugh Seales has plans for erecting one or two houses late this fall.

The Parker estate has begun the erection of another large house for carnations. They have added extensively to the range during the last year and have had wonderful success under the management of J. B. Patterson, who has had charge of the estate since the death of the former owner.

T. G. Owens & Sons are again open for business at their home at Nineteenth street and Second avenue.

The Kelly Floral Co., of Ensley, recently acquired possession of the Luther flower store and has made large improvements. W. J. Z.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.

The Market.

The beginning of September business was unusually good, but last week it was quite slow, but for some funeral work. The weather was extremely hot and the stores found it difficult to get good stock. Dahlias seem to suffer from the heat and arrive in poor condition. Chrysanthemums do not find much sale, but the first carnations move quite well.

Various Notes.

The Egg Harbor Flower Shop had some good funeral orders for a man quite prominent in the city.

A large order for decorations and a great number of gifts in celebration of a golden wedding kept the Edwards Floral Hall Co. force busy Sunday, September 12.

The Chelsea Flower Shop closed last week.

H. C. Heilemann, manager for the Edwards Floral Co., leaves this week to join the selling force of William B. Lake, Philadelphia. H. C. H.

The Market.

The weather last week was perhaps a little warmer than desired, but as we have not had much summer this year, the warm spell was a good thing. Everything has made a remarkably good growth the last fortnight, and flowers are becoming more plentiful. Gladioli are in good supply again, and some good dahlias are rapidly coming in. A good rain would help the dahlias, however.

And here I wish to say a word for the new dahlia, Golden Gate. It is coming into bloom freely, and I must say that it is in a class by itself. It certainly will sell wherever there is a demand for cut flowers. A friend wired a Golden Gate to a chrysanthemum stem and passed it off for a large yellow mum. It is a marvel as a keeper.

Carnations are beginning to show good quality, and there will soon be more than can be used. The first mums have put in their appearance, but there is little demand for them. Roses were in good supply last week.

Business still is hanging fire, though it is better than a few weeks ago. It looks as if it would take a good frost to tone things up.

Barring a few Paper White narcissus bulbs, none of the fall bulbs have been received here as yet. Part of them are reported to be between here and New York.

Various Notes.

The business men are promoting a chrysanthemum show in connection with the manufacturers' made-in-Nashville exhibition. The growers feel that it is too late to make the undertaking a success. Why not get the ball rolling and hold a good show a year from this fall?

I saw an Antigonon leptopus vine in bloom at the Hillcrest School Farm last week. If this vine proves hardy enough to stand the winters here, I predict a heavy demand for it, as it is certainly the brightest vine I have yet seen.

The Joy Floral Co. has one of the best fields of dahlias I have ever seen. This company displayed Paper White bulbs last week.

Geny Bros. have a window featuring early chrysanthemums. Oscar Geny seems to have fully recovered his health, for he is attending to business.

McIntyre Bros. have a pretty miniature lake in their window, which is planted with the usual water plants. It is hard work to make such a display, but it pays. F. B.

THERE is NO SCARCITY of PALMS at DREER'S

COCOS WEDDELIANA.

OUR SUPPLY of Palms, and particularly that of Kentias, is not at all affected by the war tie-up of Belgian stocks. We are carrying the usual large quantities and full line of sizes of the well known Dreer quality, but as the general supply of this class of stock is much smaller than usual, due to this blockade, there is certain to be a scarcity as the season advances. The demand during August has been heavier than we have ever experienced during that month, and we are positive that there will not be sufficient good stock to last throughout the season. We therefore recommend that you cover your requirements early. If you are not ready to accept immediate delivery, let us book your order, and we will set aside and reserve your stock, making delivery at any time between now and October 15.

The Market.

Last week was unusually hot for September, but business was good, owing to a large number of funerals. Flowers, especially roses, went to pieces quickly. The new-crop carnations are gaining in quantity and are good, but the stems are short. Outdoor asters are about gone.

Various Notes.

Karl Zeidler is thinking of starting a wholesale house in the near future. This summer he has put in another 70-horse-power boiler and built a 75-foot brick stack. The boilers are connected and can be used together if necessary. Either one will heat his plant, but he believes in having one in reserve.

Julius Niednagel & Sons have opened a fine store in the Waverly building. It is a fine location. The store was opened September 11, but they plan to have a grand opening when the chrysanthemums are in.

The Wm. Blackman Floral Co. has put in a new McCray refrigerator. It holds 1,200 pounds of ice. Last week everything in the store was newly painted.

J. C. Elspermann is not well, and is not able to attend to his work in the greenhouse as he would like to. The boys are getting along nicely with the growing end.

Mrs. Austin Wallace has had good cuts of Killarney roses, asters and smilax. She is having the boiler overhauled for the winter.

Henry Seymour's mums and carnations are in good condition. He has a fine lot of ferns of different sizes.

Everything at Miss Nellie Goodge's place is in good shape. Her mums are in excellent condition and setting buds nicely.

Royston & Fenton are doing the repair work needed, and will soon have things in shape for the winter. They have a nice lot of Sprengeri, coleus and sultanas. Their Ivory roses have been producing heavily, but are off crop just now.

Otto J. Limberger, 318 Lincoln avenue, is representing the Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co., of Chicago. E. L. F.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

GAS HEATER FOR SMALL HOUSE.

Will you tell me the best and most practical way of heating a small house, 14x30 feet and eight feet high, running east and west? The south wall is brick; the north side is half brick and half glass. The house has a full exposure to the wind, being on top of a hill. Do you think it would be possible to heat this with a couple of gas stoves, where gas sells at 25 cents? If a coil should be used, kindly suggest the best method of erecting it, or indicate any other method which might be better. F. M. R.—Md.

I am not able to determine the amount of exposed glass, but think it to be about 450 square feet, while the exposed brickwork would be the equivalent of perhaps 100 feet more of glass. To heat such a house with hot water will require about 175 square feet of radiation, which would be furnished by running a coil of four 1½-inch pipes around the walls of the house.

The heater should be located outside the greenhouse, especially if gas or coal is used. I do not know of any gas hot water heaters being used for greenhouses, but do not see why it would not be possible to construct one, if those used for heating kitchen tanks are not large enough for the purpose. A gas stove in the greenhouse would injure the plants.

HEATING THREE HOUSES.

I am building three greenhouses. Two of them are 30x80 feet; the third, to the north of the others, is 20x50 feet, and a shed 20x30 completes the span. These houses run east and west, and are of wood construction. In the south wall is thirty-six inches of glass. A concrete wall one foot above the ground runs entirely around the houses. The gables are of glass to within four feet of the ground. The ridge in the two larger houses is fourteen feet from the ground and in the smaller house twelve feet. The sides are five feet to the eaves. Each house is separated from the others by a wall, of which thirty-six inches is glass and the remainder boards and concrete. The north exposure will be entirely boarded up.

I intend to use a sectional hot water boiler, the firebox of which is 28 x 50 inches. I shall use the two larger houses for carnations, chrysanthemums and lettuce, and the smaller house for

TO THE MAN WHO NEEDS A BOILER

The customers' interest first—is the basis of the Kroeschell standard, and this principle makes the Kroeschell policy the most liberal of all in the greenhouse boiler business. The great variety of boilers that we make places us in a commanding position. We make every type of boiler that is used, from the smallest house heater to the largest water tube steam boiler (600 horse power). For the above reason we can furnish the most efficient boiler unit in every case.

It is the Kroeschell principle to supply only that type of boiler which is best suited to the conditions, and under no circumstances do we take any other stand.

The Kroeschell

is making the most wonderful greenhouse heating record in the world. Florists who have used other makes are constantly giving the Kroeschell the highest praise.

10,788,000 sq. ft. of glass was equipped with the Kroeschell Boiler during the past five years.

The Kroeschell

has replaced hundreds of cast iron boilers. In every case higher temperatures are secured with the Kroeschell with the same piping and with less fuel.

The Kroeschell is sold direct from factory to users. This eliminates the unnecessary middleman's profit.

Every boiler made at our works is of the highest standard. Material—governed by Kroeschell specifications—the best that money and brains can produce. Workmanship—the kind that is an inspiration to all other boiler makers. Boiler efficiency—determined by actual tests under working conditions. Boiler ratings—honest and true blue—guaranteed actual working capacities.

Probably you have wondered why the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler is not sold by any of the greenhouse construction companies. In justice to all concerned we feel it is our duty to state that the Kroeschell Boiler is never sold by anyone but—The KROESCHELL BROS. CO.—We have no agents, and as our prices are based on sales direct from factory to user, we do not quote anyone dealing in boilers special resale prices. Our stand in this matter has brought out a lot of competition; nevertheless, the great efficiency of the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler cannot be disputed, and in spite of the keen competition the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler is heating more glass than any other make—"DO NOT GET CHEATED OUT OF THE KROESCHELL BUT PLACE YOUR ORDER DIRECT AT ONCE."

Kroeschell Boiler—Half the Coal and Half the Work

Your No. 13 Boiler is carrying 25,000 sq. ft. of glass, and I can keep it at 60 degrees in the coldest weather without any trouble. I have three cast iron boilers also, heating a range of 25,000 sq. ft. of glass, but the No. 13 Kroeschell Boiler only takes half the coal and half the work to get the same results.

The Kroeschell is doing the same work as good and as saving as ever. Me for Kroeschell Boilers.

(Signed) JOHN G. FRISZ.

Kroeschell Best of All

Our No. 6 Kroeschell Boiler is heating 15,000 sq. ft. of glass, and it would take care of more. We carry a temperature from 70 to 85 degrees, and have had no trouble in regard to this. The Kroeschell has given entire satisfaction.

Have had to contend with nearly every other make of boiler on the market, and in my estimation the Kroeschell surpasses, without exception, any type or make.

(Signed) OTTO PETERSON.

Get the Kroeschell First

Several years ago Mr. Ponting corresponded with us in regard to the Kroeschell Hot Water Boiler, but was persuaded to install two sectional cast-iron boilers which were claimed to be superior to the Kroeschell

In the meantime we placed a number of Kroeschell Boilers in the immediate vicinity of Mr. Ponting, and he could not help but notice their great efficiency, and last year, while at the convention, he placed his order for his first Kroeschell. The following letter speaks for itself:

"We like the Kroeschell Boiler very much. It gives entire satisfaction, and it is so easy to fire. I will trade you the two cast iron sectional boilers for another like the Kroeschell I have."

July 16, 1913, Cleveland, Ohio. (Signed) FRED PONTING.

Kroeschell Replaces Cast Iron

In 1912 our cast iron sectional boiler cracked in one section and we ordered a No. 8½ Kroeschell Boiler by telegraph. This boiler is heating 10,200 sq. ft. of glass, besides the office and potting shed, and you will note this is 1200 ft. more than its rating. We have no trouble to maintain proper temperatures at any time and the boiler has given perfect satisfaction.

With the Kroeschell we have added one more house, but have not used any more coal than with the cast iron boiler and 3000 ft. less to heat. One cast iron break-down was enough for us, for we have found it pays to get the best—the Kroeschell.

(Signed) MICHLER BROS. CO.
July 17, 1913, Lexington, Ky.

Kroeschell Replaces 3 Cast Iron Boilers

The No. 6 Kroeschell which we purchased some years ago is heating 18,000 sq. ft. of glass and we should judge that it would take care of 5000 or 6000 ft. more easily.

Our houses require a temperature of 50 to 52 degrees at night, and we certainly do not have the least trouble to keep temperatures in the coldest weather. We do not have to fire our boiler as often as our brother florists who are using different makes. The Kroeschell has replaced three cast iron sectional boilers, and it certainly has given entire satisfaction.

It only takes a few words to express the good quality of your boilers and they are as follows: "Of all firms handling boilers and advertising them truthfully, the party buying a boiler would have to get the Kroeschell, as you are certainly advertising nothing but facts."

(Signed) ALEXANDER A. LAUB.

Some Won'ts and Wills

A mule that won't kick and will work, has the two important things you and I would demand in a mule, if we were buying one.

For the same reasons, when you buy a boiler, it's quite as important to know what it won't do as what it will do.

Here are the Burnham Won'ts and Wills.

Burnham Won'ts

—Won't have any dead "spots" in the fire. The draft is even over entire grate surface.

—Won't let the gases collect in the center or pass at once to back of combustion chamber, making some of the sections hotter than others. Each is equally hot.

—Won't let the gases reach smoke pipe without three times traveling the length of the boiler.

—Won't let any gases escape, unharnessed.

—Won't vary in water line.

—Won't prime.

—Won't let operating rod bolts on grate burn off—can't—hasn't any bolts.

—Won't let volumes of gases escape when cleaning flues—there's a door to each flue—how can it?

—Won't poke along when you want a "quick-as-a-wink fire."

—Won't have to change grates when you want to change fuel.

—Won't have to buy new long tie bolts when you add sections; when you add to your house. Tie bolts furnished with each section.

Burnham Wills

—Will draw all gases up the side flues, making distribution of heat even, resulting in each section being equally efficient.

—Will burn ten hours without attention, and keep satisfactory heat up.

—Will hold a slumber fire twenty-four hours.

—Will wake up, and heat up, in a surprisingly short time.

—Will burn all kinds of coal with perfect success.

—Will circulate the water rapidly, because it takes so much heat from the fire and quickly puts it into the water.

—Will shake half again as easy as other boilers, because grates shake half at a time.

—Will economically carry only half a fire, because you can bank back half and run front half.

—Will smash clinkers that would wedge other grates. Burnham grates act like big nut crackers and break up the clinkers.

—Will do exactly what we say it will do, if properly put in and rightly run.

—We guarantee it.

Burnhams are made in over 80 sizes, and will economically heat ranges of glass up to 30,000 square feet.

ferns, pot plants, etc. The climate is mild here. The temperature rarely goes below 15 degrees above zero. I should like to maintain a temperature of 55 degrees in the coldest weather in the larger houses, and 65 to 70 degrees in the smaller house. Will you please tell me how to pipe these houses? If the size of the boiler is unsatisfactory, I can either enlarge or reduce it. The flows and returns on this boiler may be either 2½-inch or 2-inch. How low should the boiler pit be?

W. H. D.—Ore.

Without some knowledge of the way the boiler is constructed, it is not possible to estimate its rating, but I should consider a boiler having a firebox 28 x 50 inches amply large for heating the houses described and able to heat them economically.

I should run a 4-inch flow pipe to the south house, and with it supply three 2½-inch flow pipes. One should be upon each plate, and the other under the ridge. Connect each flow pipe at the west end of the house with return coils of 2-inch pipe. Three pipes will be required in the middle and south coils, and two for the coil on the north wall.

In the middle house only two flows will be required, and each of these should supply a coil containing four 2-inch returns. For this house the main flow and return pipes need not be larger than 3½-inch.

To heat the small house to 65 degrees, run a 2-inch flow on each wall plate, and connect each flow with a coil containing four 2-inch returns. If 70 degrees is needed, use 2½-inch pipes for the flows and five returns in each coil.

If the boiler has no openings larger than 2½-inch, it will be necessary to run flow and return pipes of that size from the boiler to each house. I should prefer not to use flows and main returns smaller than 2½-inch for an open tank system; if the openings are only 2-inch, I should still use 2½-inch pipes and reduce them at the heater. If 2-inch flows and returns are put in, a mercury generator should be used. If possible, the top of the heater should be below the level of the returns.

PARTLY FOR PROPAGATING.

We are building an additional greenhouse, 12x126, which eventually is to be used only as a propagating house, but will at first be used for general purposes, such as propagating and growing pot plants, etc. There will be a 3-foot bench along the south wall, and a 5-foot bench with a walk on each side of it. We intend to use the 3-foot bench for propagating only. Will you please give us instructions about the piping of the house?

J. G. W. & S.—Ill.

The temperature desired for the house is not stated, but for most plants 60 degrees will answer and this may be secured by running a 2½-inch flow on the plate over the 3-foot bench and another about three feet under the ridge, with three 2-inch returns under each of the benches. In order to secure bottom heat for the propagating bed, the sides should be partly boarded up. Later, when both beds are required for this purpose, and especially if more heat is desired, one flow and two or three returns may be placed on the other wall.

The Heating Problem Solved
Judging strictly according to mechanical merits, it's the METROPOLITAN PATENTED BOILER you want.

Because of their proven scientifically perfect construction, Metropolitan Patented Boilers will heat a given amount of water quicker, with less fuel and less attention than any other boiler on the market.

The remarkable heating efficiency and quick steaming qualities of these boilers are due to their large and effective heating surface.

Just a few points of Metropolitan Patented Boiler merit:—

Smooth, perfect finished castings.
Push nipple connections.
Large fire box, providing ample combustion chamber, and permitting a sufficient charge of fuel to require attention only at long intervals.
Deep ash pit, making the removal of ashes a slight task.
Large flues, making the boiler easy to clean.
Grates that are made for hard usage and long service.
And above all, they are Fuel Saving, not Fuel Wasting.

We also make soft coal boilers which are smokeless, and save 50 per cent in coal.

The Market.

Last week was the hottest we have had this summer and the extreme heat played havoc with the cut flower business. Business would have been at a standstill were it not for funeral work. A prominent funeral called for a great many flowers in elaborate arrangement. Fall weddings were not numerous last week, and social activities were practically at a standstill.

The hot weather has affected the roses more noticeably than any other flower. Killarney and Richmond are showing poor keeping qualities. Carnations have been forced in large quantities, but they are short-stemmed, Enchantress being the best variety. There are a few White Enchantress carnations offered. Easter lilies and rubrum lilies met with a good call for funeral work. Chrysanthemums are becoming numerous, but outside of funeral work, they have little demand.

Various Notes.

The Flick Floral Co. had a large amount of funeral work last week.

The Bradley Flower Shop furnished bouquets for a large wedding. The bride's bouquet was a shower of White Killarney roses and swainsonas, while the bridesmaids' bouquets were of mammoth pink asters. The matron of honor carried Shawyer roses.

The Market.

Trade conditions have been only fair this month. This locality has had a steady rain about every other day for the last two months, which has not stimulated business much.

Stock has been plentiful and has not been cleaned up. Dahlias have been more than enough for the demand, and their keeping qualities have been poor, owing to the extremely wet weather. Some first-class asters have been on the market. Roses have been of good quality. Gladioli are still available. Carnations are improving. Mums are not in much demand.

Various Notes.

George Wiegand has been on a two weeks' vacation in Arkansas.

C. B. Knickman, with McHutchison & Co., and Julius Dilloff, with Schloss Bros., both of New York, were callers last week.

H. W. Rieman is back from his trip to the coast. Mr. Rieman enjoyed his trip immensely, but is glad to get back again. John Hartje, who left with Mr. Rieman, is still on the coast.

C. R. Greene, who has moved his residence to Forty-eighth and Central avenue, is much pleased with the change.

Homer Wiegand has invested in a new Pathfinder 6-cylinder touring car and has been working it overtime during the last two weeks.

Peter Weiland has been shipping some first-class asters to this market.

The Smith & Young Co. is cutting some first-class Killarneys.

Clarence Thomas, with the E. G. Hill Co., reports a number of decorations booked for the coming month.

There is a movement on foot to close the retail stores at 6 p. m. and Sunday afternoons. There is no reason why florists should keep their stores open nights, Sundays and holidays for the sake of a few buyers who could soon be taught to do their buying during regular business hours. H. L. W.

Club Meeting.

The Lancaster County Florists' Club met in the Chamber of Commerce rooms Thursday evening, September 16. R. Vincent, Jr., and son, of White Marsh, Md., were present. The former gave a delightful talk about some of the florists' establishments he visited while on his trip to the Pacific coast this summer. Mr. Vincent's son read a paper on dahlias, which was one of the best to which we have ever had the pleasure of listening. They brought with them a fine collection of dahlias, possibly 100 varieties, the cream of their immense planting of fifty acres.

Edward Beck and Chas. H. Tucker were elected to membership. Rudolph Nagel showed vases of Smith's Advance chrysanthemums, of exceptional merit, and his yellow sport from that variety, which was fine. David F. Rose, an amateur, showed a vase of dahlias, which reflected much credit on his cultural skill.

September 28 to October 1, in connection with the Lancaster county agricultural fair, the Lancaster County Florists' Club will conduct a dahlia show. Cups and prizes will be awarded to both amateurs and florists. We invite anyone who grows dahlias to join us and help make it a success. Kindly communicate with Albert M. Herr, chairman of the dahlia show committee.

October 14, at the regular club meeting, we expect to have the pleasure of an address by Robert Pyle, of West Grove, on his trip to the exposition and the S. A. F. convention.

The Market.

Business has been increasing nicely during the last week. The fall openings in the department and millinery stores called for many palms, ferns, baskets of cut flowers and floral horseshoes. October promises to be a big wedding month. Some of the florists have booked large orders.

There is not much call for early chrysanthemums and they are sold at low prices. The weather has reduced the supply of outdoor flowers. Good asters are about done for. We are receiving some fine roses. Russell and Hoosier Beauty prove the best sellers. Easter lilies are plentiful. There is not much demand for them.

Various Notes.

E. L. Day, of Stroudsburg, was a caller last week. He reports business fair.

John W. Beagle reports a busy week. He had the decoration for the opening of the Cleland-Simpson Co. He is cutting some fine carnations.

J. P. Brown decorated the house for the Millar wedding. The color scheme was lavender, brown and yellow. The rooms were decorated with palms, ferns and baskets of brown and yellow dahlias. The tables had centerpieces of Ward roses. The hall was decorated with lavender asters.

Baldwin reports a busy week with funeral work. Miss G. Jenkins, the saleslady at Baldwin's, is cutting some of the finest cactus dahlias that I have seen this season. She is growing them at her home.

B. E. & J. T. Cokely are going to enter the wholesale commission business about October 15 in connection with their florists' supply and seed business.

A trip to Morel Bros.' greenhouses found everything in good shape, especially their field-grown carnations, which are nice and bushy. Their chrysanthemums look promising.

Muir & Co. report business fair. Mrs. M. Muir has returned from a two weeks' vacation spent at Buffalo and Philadelphia.

A card from T. J. Nolan, of the King Construction Co., who is traveling through New York state, reports business quite good.

Schultheis last week had a pretty window display of Golden Glow mums and assorted dahlias. F. J. M.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

YOUTHFUL DAHLIA SOCIETY HOLDS SHOW

Four-months-old organization holds first national exhibition of the dahlia ever staged in America and attracts thousands of New York flower lovers. Flower given a big boost in popular esteem by the demonstration of its possibilities in the hands of skilled retailers. Annual meeting held

THAT most precocious of all our trade organizations, the American Dahlia Society, made its bow to the public somewhat handicapped by the weather, but nevertheless set a record by giving a big national show within less than four months of the date of forming the association. None of the other special flower societies ever got into action so quickly and those that come along in the future, as others doubtless will, must go some to beat the celerity with which this prodigy got into action.

From an initial meeting of less than a dozen organizers, in May, to a membership of nearly 250 in September, is no small accomplishment and reflects great credit on President Vincent and Secretary Lane, both of whom have been efficient and tireless workers in its behalf.

OFFICERS FOR 1915-16.

President,
R. Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md.

Secretary,
Joseph J. Lane, 11 W. 23d St. .....New York, N. Y.

Treasurer,
F. R. Austin...Tuckerton, N. J.

Vice-presidents,
West—W. W. Wilmore..... .....Denver, Colo.
South—Prof. Norton..... .....College Park, Md.
North—Geo. L. Stillman.... .....Westerly, R. I.
East—E. Stanley Brown.... .....East Moriches, L. I.

Big Show, Big Crowd.

As the date for the show approached, the management experienced the anxieties that come to all those identified with exhibitions of outdoor flowers—weather conditions were bad. High heat, heavy rains and early frosts all threatened the stock intended for the show, destroying a part of it, but in the end it turned out that there were plenty of fine flowers for a big exhibition.

The show was held at the American Museum of Natural History, in New York, September 24 to 26, and was favored with perfect weather during two of the three days. The attendance exceeded all expectations. The number of visitors on the opening day was more than double that of any first day flower show records at the museum—and on Sunday the crowd was enormous. In the large rotunda the display of artistic creations by the retail florists was a charming introduction to one of the prettiest exhibitions ever staged in New York. The dahlia was supreme, no other flower being used in the frames, baskets, bouquets and table decorations. Max Schling, G. E. M. Stumpp, Kottmiller and Young & Nugent were the astute retailers who grasped the opportunity for legitimate publicity and their handiwork was charming and perfect, demonstrating again that the retailers' work interests the visitors far more than do the formal vases of the growers.

The Principal Exhibitors.

Among the largest exhibitors were R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., White Marsh, Md. This concern not only used over 10,000 dahlias for its own display, but supplied free the flowers used by the retailers, a most generous act, which was greatly appreciated.

George L. Stillman's immense assortment, from Westerly, R. I., was greatly admired. Among the gardeners James Duthie and P. W. Popp shone brilliantly. W. A. Manda's display was magnificent and occupied an entire section of the floor space. W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, had a beautifully arranged bank, in charge of George W. Kerr, which was a center of attraction. Other large exhibitors were the Peacock Dahlia Farms, Berlin, N. J.; William A. Finger, of the Long Island Dahlia Gardens, Hicksville, N. Y.; John Scheepers & Co., New York; N. H. Gottam & Son, Wappingers Falls, N. Y.; John Lewis Childs, Inc., Floral Park, N. Y.; Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co., Boston; Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia; Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J., and a number of private gardeners and amateurs, for seventy-five per cent of the membership is amateur. Over 400 varieties of dahlias were staged.

The Awards.

There were sixty-five classes on the schedule and nearly all of them filled except those for certain special types and novelties. The awards were:

The Dinner.

The dinner given by the society to its judges was attended by President Vincent, R. A. Vincent, John Vincent, George W. Fraser, I. S. Hendrickson, F. R. Austin, J. B. Foulk, P. W. Popp, Joseph J. Lane, James Duthie, James Clark, Prof. Hall, Prof. Langley, Prof. Norton and representatives of the trade press.

Prof. Norton, Prof. Hall and Messrs. Vincent and Lane made brief addresses to a full house.

Max Schling was down for a lecture, September 25, on the artistic value of the dahlia in decorations, with practical illustrations.

A rain that blew up in the afternoon of the closing day, Sunday, no doubt cut down the attendance, but there were 15,000 visitors that day, and for the three days over 50,000 attended. No admission fee was charged.

AMERICAN DAHLIA SOCIETY.

First Annual Meeting.

The first annual meeting of the American Dahlia Society, organized May 10, 1915, was held at the American Museum of Natural History September 24. All the officers were present and a goodly number of the members of the society. President Vincent read his address and announced that invitations for the dahlia show of 1916 had been received from the Rochester Florists' Club and from the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society. He also predicted an invitation from the American Institute of New York. Mr. Vincent recommended that the show be held in Rochester, following with another exhibition the next week in Philadelphia and the third week in New York. He said the American Dahlia Society is "one of the flourishing children of the S. A. F., with a great future before it."

Secretary Joseph J. Lane announced the remarkable and rapid increase in membership and predicted that before the 1916 meeting the membership will total 500; seventy-five per cent of the present membership consists of amateurs.

F. R. Austin, Tuckerton, N. J., presented the treasurer's report, which was in every way satisfactory. Addresses were made by George L. Stillman, of Westerly, R. I., and Prof. F. H. Hall, of Geneva, N. Y. A bulletin containing a full report of the society's meeting was ordered printed and distributed immediately.

Officers and Committees.

Officers and committees were elected as follows:

President—R. Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md., reëlected.

Secretary—Joseph J. Lane, New York city, reëlected.

Treasurer—F. R. Austin, Tuckerton, N. J., reëlected.

Vice-presidents—For the west, W. W. Wilmore, Denver, reëlected; for the south, Prof. Norton, College Park, Md.; for the north, George L. Stillman, Westerly, R. I., reëlected; for the east, E. Stanley Brown, East Moriches, N. Y., reëlected.

Executive committee—George W. Kerr, Doylestown, Pa., reëlected; James Duthie, Oyster Bay, N. Y., reëlected; I. S. Hendrickson, Floral Park, N. Y., reëlected; P. W. Popp, Greenwich, Conn.; J. H. Dick, New York.

Nomenclature committee—Prof. F. H. Hall, Geneva, N. Y., reëlected; James Kirby, Huntington, N. Y., reëlected; L. P. Peacock, Berlin, N. J., reëlected; Leonard Barron, Garden City, L. I., reelected; Prof. George Fraser.

Prof. Hall spoke of the great work before the nomenclature committee. He said he has listed in alphabetical order over 4,500 names of dahlias, all grown in America.

The society's greetings were ordered sent to W. W. Wilmore, of Denver.

The choice of the city for the 1916 exhibition was left to the discretion of the executive committee.

PRESIDENT VINCENT'S ADDRESS.

[The remarks with which R. Vincent, Jr., opened the first annual meeting of the American Dahlia Society, at New York, September 24, 1915.]

We meet today for the first time before the public and have put forth our first efforts to give them an idea of the immensity of the dahlia-loving public and of the growing love of this beautiful flower that can be grown and flowered by the humble cottager as well as by the prince or king.

Surely a man having a garden of beautiful, well-grown dahlias, no matter how humble his position in life, feels rich and happy in being the owner of so much that makes the garden and home beautiful.

Of course, as with everything else, there are apt to be failures in dahlias as in other varieties of flowers. Even the large growers have their ups and downs to contend with, but taking one year with another, the dahlia cannot be beaten for producing a good crop of blooms. Sometimes, from slight circumstances, the amount of bloom, size, etc., is materially reduced and, again, the insect pests which gather, not generally on the dahlia but on other things planted near them, when short of other food will attack the dahlia. To avoid these ills, we would advise that separate plantings be made at intervals of two to three weeks, the late planting often doing the best, as it has the cooler weather and longer nights, and makes a more sturdy and insect-resisting growth and generally produces the best and finest flowers. Those early planted often get woody, but cutting the flowers with long stems, or cutting the plants back, if done early in the season, will renew the growth and produce nearly as good flowers as the later planted ones.

The main thing is, do not be afraid to use the knife on them. This is often required in thinning out, some varieties growing too thickly to produce fine flowers. Again, if extra large flowers are wanted, this is obtained by what is termed disbudding; that is, as soon as the buds can be seen, pick out all the buds but the main one. Thus the entire strength goes into the one flower. This can only be done in the large-flowering type. The smaller-flowered varieties do not justify this amount of trouble.

One point where many people fail and complain is in the wintering over of their roots. The varieties that form large clumps with big tubers are not so hard to keep, for they will keep where potatoes keep well, but some of the finer varieties do not make much more than a mass of fine rootlets, which are hard to keep. In this case they want bedding in dry sand, earth or some material that will keep them from drying up.

My own experience with the dahlia goes back a goodly number of years, when as a boy my father had a dozen or so of double ones in the garden. I was so struck with them that I thought nothing could equal them and I offered my father a sixpence that I had saved up for something else to allow me to call one dahlia plant mine. My next experience was in Maryland during the Civil war. As a young man I had charge of the dahlia patch on the place my father was managing and I had the privilege of putting a lot of them on exhibition at one of the horticultural shows held in the Maryland Institute in Baltimore. This, apparently the first exhibition of dahlias given in Baltimore, attracted much attention, many hardly believing they were flowers.

If I remember rightly, this collection was purchased from the late Peter Henderson and I believe that if the American history of the dahlia could be traced out, he was the first to introduce the dahlia in variety and quantity to this country.

My sincere hope is that this American Dahlia Society may continue its good work so nobly begun, so that at every home, no matter how humble, and wherever there is a garden spot, dahlias may be planted and the country beautified.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Stoneham, Mass.—John L. White, proprietor of a florists' business on Wright street court and other flower shops at Wakefield and Pittsfield, Mass., has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy. His liabilities are scheduled at $2,795 and his assets at $2,512.

Denver, Colo.—Upon application of George W. Gero and Charles E. Carlson, creditors, the Elitch-Long Gardens Co. has been placed in the hands of a receiver. District Judge Allen appointed George L. Roberts receiver. Gero and Carlson, in their petition, set out that the company had been running behind in expenses for some time, and that the interests of the creditors require that a receiver assume charge of the company's affairs and conserve its assets to the creditors. The concern operates an amusement park and a florists' business.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., has offered forty-six special premiums in twenty-three classes for the National Flower Show to be held in Philadelphia March 25 to April 2, 1916, and Henry F. Michell Co. has offered 100 special cash prizes, medals and cups, in fifty classes. In sending The Review typewritten lists of these seventy-three classes and 146 premiums, Publicity Director W. F. Therkildson writes:

"These lists, you understand, are in addition to the regular premium list and there will no doubt be several others to supplement this before the general premium list is made up. W. Atlee Burpee & Co. expect to issue a list on sweet peas, but this has not yet been arranged.

"We had a meeting in my office September 23, of the press and publicity committee. You will note that this committee is made up with a representative from each of the Philadelphia papers. By this means we expect to get some extraordinary publicity.

"Poster stamps were agreed upon for the use of the several local firms in their correspondence prior to the flower show, as well as the design for the premium list cover. It was also decided that a design should be worked up for posters, window cards and the program cover, the same design to be used on all three, with the idea of getting accumulative value of keeping one design constantly before the public. There have been no further developments in the flower show situation at this time."

ARKANSAS SHOW BENEFIT.

A fall flower show, which will be the first held in Fort Smith, Ark., in eight seasons, has been arranged under the auspices of the board of lady managers of the Sparks Memorial hospital, as a benefit show for the institution. George Rye, one of Fort Smith's leading florists, is the manager and has been busy enlisting the support of a hundred or more growers in the vicinity. He declares the exhibition is a fine opportunity for showing stock in quarters where new trade may be developed. The dates of the show will be November 5 and 6.

DUTCH BULBS

HOW TO MAKE THEM PAY.

Treatment of Dutch Bulbs.

Any doubts which may have existed about an adequate supply of Dutch bulbs coming to hand in good season have already been dissipated. Arrivals are more numerous than usual and have come in good season. In addition, the quality is unusually good, thanks, in great measure, to diminished purchases made by Great Britain, Russia, Germany and other European belligerents. Whether we will continue to get as fine bulbs at the close of the present great conflict remains to be seen, but it is true that up to last year America did not receive the highest grades of bulbs produced, the European countries taking them. Those who have handled bulbs on the two continents know this to be the case.

It hardly need be said that Dutch bulbs as soon as received should be unpacked and laid out in flats or on shelves in a cool, dry shed until they can be placed in the soil. If they are left packed in paper bags, or in bulk in cases, there is great danger of sweating and heating, particularly in the case of some narcissi, such as Horsfieldii, ornatus and Victoria. A further fact, which needs constant reiteration, is that the longer bulbs are left out of the soil after having been received, the less satisfactory the returns from them will be. It is possible to plant tulips, narcissi and hyacinths as late as December and flower them, but there will be no comparison between the flowers produced on these and those on the early planted ones.

The question is asked each season, "Do bulbs pay?" They paid extremely well last season, when conditions were discouraging in the cut flower trade. Several large wholesale growers told me that last season's bulb flower trade was the best they ever had, the season being well prolonged, owing to an absence of early heat waves, and prices compared favorably with those of preceding years. Country florists who use their entire cuts at home cannot well get along without bulbs as a spring or late winter flower. They appeal to many buyers more than other greenhouse flowers, and the grower who plants the right varieties, times them with accuracy, and grows them intelligently has rarely any great trouble in disposing of his stock. A good cold cellar in which to hold back stock, either in flower or partly grown, is a valuable asset to all bulb growers.

Dutch Bulb Culture.

It is hardly true that bulbs will grow in any old soil. They may grow in it, but they give vastly better results in more carefully prepared compost. Three parts well decayed fibrous loam, one part dried cow manure passed through a ¾-inch screen, and sufficient sharp sand to give porosity, makes a good soil for bulbs. If cow manure is lacking, it is possible to use spent hotbed manure and mushroom manure. If these are employed, two parts of loam can be used to one part of the manure. If the loam is naturally heavy and retentive, use more sand. Some growers add leaf-mold to lighten the compost, but I do not advise its use unless the soil is naturally heavy.

As a general rule, flats four inches deep answer well for any bulbs, a convenient size being 12x24 inches. Flats of this size will hold fifty to 100 narcissi, according to their size; sixty to 100 tulips; fifty to seventy-five small-sized hyacinths; seventy-five Spanish iris, or sixty to 100 gladioli of the nanus type. It is an advantage to have the iris flats an inch deeper than those used for the other bulbs.

Where should bulbs be placed after planting? Some prefer to place them directly in a cellar or pit, others stand them outdoors, and still others put them in coldframes, on which sashes can be placed when cold weather sets in. All these have advantages and disadvantages. I think cellar storage entails the least labor and gives the most satisfactory results.

It is a common error to give the bulbs a soaking of water in the cellar and then to leave them alone until growth is well started. This is wrong, and is accountable for most of the blind bulbs and deformed flowers seen. Bulbs must be kept damp at the roots, or else returns will be poor. This is especially true in fall, when we have much hot, dry weather. Bulbs have a general tendency when growing to heave the soil in the pans or flats. A good way to prevent this is to soak the plants well, and then cover with sand one or two inches deep. The sand holds the soil down, and prevents surface drying.

If the bulbs are kept in the open air, coal ashes can be placed over the sand as cold weather advances, and later, straw, leaves or pine needles may be used as a covering to exclude the frost.

What Narcissi to Grow.

While the majority of growers need no advice as to what varieties to grow, there are many new florists each year, and the numerous bulb queries received at The Review office annually show that a list of varieties will be appreciated by not a few. The most popular Dutch bulb for cutting is the narcissus. For a succession of blooms the following large trumpet varieties should be grown: Trumpet major, Single Von Sion (Spurius), Double Von Sion, Silver Spur, Golden Spur and Victoria. The last three named are all good for pan culture. For such a late Easter as that of 1916, Victoria and Double Von Sion will be the best to grow. Other large trumpets of commercial value are Emperor, Empress and Mrs. Walter T. Ware. Of the short trumpets, Sir Watkin, the giant Welsh daffodil; Leedsii Mrs. Langtry and poeticus ornatus are inexpensive and quite useful.

Of the polyanthus narcissi, everyone knows and grows the Paper Whites, but Double Roman, double yellow, and Grand Monarque, white with a primrose cup, are two splendid, sweet-scented and easily grown varieties.

Best Tulips.

Tulips are not sold as cut flowers to the same extent as narcissi, but they have a heavy sale in pans. For early forcing, La Reine and White Hawk are fine whites. Yellow Prince forces easily. Goldfinch and Ophir d'Or come along later. Thomas Moore is of an orange color and is sweet-scented. It is good for cutting, but not good for pans. Cottage Maid is the least expensive of the pinks, but Flamingo and Queen of the Netherlands are gradually displacing it. Vermilion Brilliant is a good scarlet forcer, while a good many people like the big, showy Keizerskroon, scarlet bordered, clear yellow. The double tulips are splendid for pan culture, especially Murillo, which is probably the most valuable florists' tulip of today. It will be the tulip par excellence to grow for next Easter. Other good double tulips for cutting are Brimstone Beauty, a sulphur yellow Murillo; Crown of Gold, or Couronne d'Or, and Imperator Rubrorum, scarlet.

The Darwin tulips have not, until the last two seasons, been given any attention for forcing, but some varieties force well and make splendid subjects in pans. As they are naturally late bloomers, they are worthy of being more largely planted for so late an Easter as will come next year. Good varieties to grow are: Pride of Haarlem, rosy carmine; Gretchen, sometimes called Margaret, flesh pink; Glow, vermilion scarlet; La Candeur, or White Queen, nearly pure white; Clara Butt, clear pink. The Darwin varieties are all stronger and taller growers than the early tulips.

Hyacinths for Cutting.

Hyacinths are not used to a great extent for cutting. The miniature bulbs are the best for this purpose, and seem to be growing in popularity. Good commercial sorts are Gertrude, pink; King of the Blues, dark blue; La Grandesse, pure white. If large spikes are desired, grow first-sized bulbs singly in 5-inch pots, or three in 6-inch deep pans. The varieties already named, with Queen of the Blues, light blue; L'Innocence, pure white, and Moreno, blush, will make a nice assortment. Hyacinth bulbs should be barely covered. On the other hand, tulips and narcissi can be covered a little deeper. Use care in watering hyacinths in the early stages of growth, or else the spikes will be rotted out wholly or in part.

AN UNUSUAL PICTURE.

The advent of the steel frame greenhouse has caused changes in the methods of greenhouse erection that have resulted in some novel sights, one of which, recently caught by the camera, is reproduced on this page. It shows the new house of Davis & Steiner, Ottawa, Ill. The structure is 76x900, one of the largest in the country, and is being put up by Winandy Bros., from plans and with material by the Garland Mfg. Co., of Des Plaines, Ill. In the erection of the structure the posts were first set, six feet six inches to the eave plates. Then the purlin supports were set—the house is twenty-seven feet high at the ridge and there are only two lines of pipe supports. The tee-iron rafters connecting the purlin with the eave went up as the pipe supports were put in place. When both outside sections were up the house presented a most unusual appearance. The long opening in the center was closed by a force of men working with a derrick, as shown in the illustration. The house covers 68,400 square feet of space and will be used for cucumbers.

Toronto, Ont.—John H. Dunlop has removed from 96 Yonge street, where he has been located many years, to a new store at 8 and 10 West Adelaide street, where the equipment is such that it classes as one of the finest retail establishments in America, every detail having been carefully planned by Manager George M. Geraghty.

STEM-ROT.

Unusually Prevalent This Year.

Numerous reports, coming from all directions, indicate that there is an unusual amount of stem-rot throughout the country. The cause of it, no doubt, is the excessive rainfall through the entire summer season. Some growers report heavy losses in the field, especially where the ground lay low and the water did not drain off readily. In fields which showed traces of stem-rot the previous season, there would also be an increase of the disease during such a season as this. Others report large losses in the houses after benching the plants. These are simply cases of having transferred the trouble to the house before it broke out in the field. In fact, it was hastened somewhat by the closer atmosphere in the house. There is no disease more demoralizing, perhaps, than the common wet stem-rot. Once it gets a fair start in a bench, under conditions that are favorable to its development, it soon destroys enough plants to make the bench unprofitable. We always expect to lose a few plants each year by this disease, and this loss does not give us any particular concern. One can readily distinguish between this mild form of the disease and the sort that is likely to get beyond the grower's control. In the one case you will notice that a single plant is lost here and there, showing that the fungus has done its damage and is gone, being either destroyed or taken out with the dead plant. In the other case whole patches of plants are gone, and then the grower is justified in being alarmed and should resort to heroic treatment.

Preventive Measures in the House.

Just as soon after benching as the soil gets into workable condition, we break up the crust that has formed on top during the period of frequent syringing. This lets the air into the soil and has a tendency to retard the development of the stem-rot fungus. Then, just as the plants are fairly established in the new soil, we give them a sprinkling of slaked lime, which is raked into the soil before watering. Lime is one of the best destroyers of fungus and it is to destroy any traces of this disease that we use it at this time. A little later, perhaps a month after benching, we give a thorough spraying with Bordeaux mixture, also for the purpose of warding off not only stem-rot, but other fungous diseases, such as leaf-spot and fairy ring. This is repeated after a month, if not needed sooner.

There is usually most danger of stem-rot between the time of planting and whatever date cool weather sets in. If there is none of the disease then, the chances are in favor of there not being any at all. For that reason, the precautionary methods already described are followed each year, regardless of whether there was stem-rot in the field or not. There is really little more that could be done, even should a case of stem-rot get started, except to take out some of the soil where the dead plant stood.

The Use of Lime and Sulphur.

In applying the Bordeaux mixture, we advise the grower to poke the nozzle right into the crown of the plant. To ward off stem-rot, the material must be applied to the stems, as that is where the attack is made. It can be applied once each week, if deemed necessary. As soon as firing is started—and it might pay to start a little sooner on account of the benefits to be derived—a little sulphur, dropped here and there on one of the heating pipes, will help to purify the atmosphere and to make it unhealthy for all kinds of fungous growth. The fumes will be given off longer if you make a thick paint of one-half sulphur and one-half lime, mixed with water, and paint this on one of the heating pipes. We have also found Grape Dust valuable for dusting over the plants. If it is blown overhead through a bellows, it will take the excessive moisture out of the house.

Do not get the idea that to run the soil dry will help to keep the house dry and will prove beneficial. The fact is that when you withhold the water from the plant, you weaken it and it will fall an easier prey to the disease than before. Give the soil enough water to keep the plants in a good growing condition, as a vigorous plant will stand a better chance to fight off the disease than one that is famished. Plenty of fresh air is also essential, but avoid chilly drafts. When firing on mild nights, have the ventilators open an inch or two. A. F. J. Baur.

BUDS ROTTING IN CENTER.

We shall greatly appreciate your advice regarding our carnations. We have found several Enchantress blooms that have commenced to rot in the center. We do not think this is caused by too much water, as we only water about twice a week. C. D.—Mich.

The enclosed bud was badly rotted when it arrived here. The rotting might be due to the carnation mite, which causes the petals to adhere together. Moisture then collects and rots the bloom. Begin spraying regularly with any of the nicotine preparations and you will soon get the trouble under control. Be sure to burn these rotted buds as fast as they appear.

MORE ABOUT WORMS ON FERNS.

In our further attempts to eradicate the worms on our ferns concerning which we submitted a query to you, published on page 14 of the September 9 issue of The Review, we have given the Nico-Fume paper a thorough test, and believe the worms can be cleaned out by using eighteen to twenty papers to a 20x100-foot house and continuing every other night for a period of sixty to eighty days. We have had some success from fumigating one night a week and have kept it up for some fifteen weeks, but still have some worms, though nothing like the number we had a year ago.

Enclosed you will find a little data on the fern caterpillar given us by the Texas Department of Agriculture, to whom we sent some of the larvæ. You will note what Mr. Millender says about hellebore. Consequently we are afraid to try it, as we have a splendid lot of ferns, and are hand-picking every fern on the place, as we have been more or less all summer. There seems to be an unusual number of worms right at this time, the same time they hit us so hard last year, although we have been finding them all summer.

We trust some one will hit upon a way to exterminate this pest, for it is surely a hard one to handle.

Texas Nursery Co.

H. C. Millender, of the Texas Department of Agriculture, writes:

"The larvæ sent in were fed on ferns here in the laboratory and have been hatched. We find that this is the Florida fern caterpillar (Eriopus floridensis), which is reported in U. S. D. A. Bureau of Entomolgy bulletin No. 125, written by F. H. Crittenden. It has been reported from Mexico, Guatemala, Costa Rica, the Bahamas, Jamaica, Cuba, Haiti, Santa Lucia, St. Vincent, Venezuela, British Guiana, Brazil, Trinidad and Santo Domingo. It is reported in the following of the United States: Illinois, Ohio, Florida and the District of Columbia. It was introduced into Florida first, hence the name.

"Possibly you can find some of the moths, which are small, about one and one-eighth inches by one-half inch, beneath the benches in the daytime. These fly at night only. It was reported in the U. S. D. A. yearbook for 1908, on page 578.

"Various methods have been tried to exterminate or control this insect.

Hellebore, poisoned bait, carbon bisulphide and other methods have proved unsuccessful, as the spray would have to be strong to affect the caterpillar and would scald the ferns. The best remedy offered is the laborious hand-picking. Shaking the ferns and mashing the caterpillars seems to be the best remedy. Fumigation with hydrocyanic acid gas is advised, but no experimenting has been done with this, and I would advise you to 'look a little out' if you decide to try this. This gas is destructive to tender foliage unless used correctly.''

A HOUSE OF BIRD'S-NEST FERNS.

The Bird's-nest fern came into popularity as a commercial plant in this country some years ago. Large stocks of it were raised and it was eagerly welcomed as a house fern by those with discriminating taste. Its color, form and habit of growth were unusual. Plantsmen felt that the Bird's-nest fern was destined to enjoy extensive popularity. Then came the disease that, starting at the midrib of the leaves, gradually spread over the entire fern until it succumbed. So widespread was the disease that great stocks of the fern were ruined. Little by little the Bird's-nest fern lost favor, so serious was this disease. Nobody wanted to fool with a sick fern; it seemed better to try something else.

Today, however, it seems certain that the disease has been conquered. Skillful, common-sense methods of growing, systematically followed, have borne fruit. The illustration shows the Bird's-nest fern house of William K. Harris, of Philadelphia, where there is no disease, there has never been any disease and, the growers confidently predict, there never will be any disease! This statement sounds pretty sweeping, but when a man has spent his life in the careful and intelligent cultivation of plants, when he has been successful and when he knows pretty nearly what conditions cause this disease and avoids them, his word has weight. William K. Harris earnestly affirms, ''We have no disease.'' Mark P. Mills goes further, with an emphatic gesture of his powerful right arm, ''We have never had any disease.'' John W. Prince corroborates with earnestness what both speakers have said.

It is a pretty house to see, that house of Asplenium Nidus-avis, or, as some of the experts assert, Asplenium Australasicum. But whether the fern be a native of India or of Australia, it is a credit to its mother country, with its erect habit, wavy leaves perfect to the base and lovely olive green color. No trace of blemish here. Take those plants in 6-inch pots, for instance, seedlings of little more than a year ago; they are now perfect specimens, whose symmetry and finish would grace the most perfectly appointed home.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS FOR SOUTHERN FLORISTS

PLANTS FOR SPRING TRADE.

It will soon be time, in the south, to house stock plants of geraniums, coleus, verbenas, scarlet sage, etc. Cuttings of geraniums taken now, potted in 2¼-inch pots and placed in a coldframe in the full sun, will root nicely before frost. If the cuttings are a little hard, so much the better. Water thoroughly at first and thereafter keep a little dry until rooted. The geranium cuttings will need sash protection in case of rain; otherwise many will damp off. Cuttings of coleus, verbenas and heliotropes will root now in sand. Enough of these can be made and planted out on a bench to give cuttings for spring trade. The scarlet sage can be lifted from the field, cut back and planted in a bench, where it will give many cuttings in a short time. Cuttings of scarlet sage seem to give better satisfaction than seedlings. Cannas, dahlias and gladioli, in many sections of the south, are left in the ground all winter, but in the northern sections it is best to lift and store them. While the frost would hardly injure them, the rains cause a big loss by rotting many of them.

L.

SOUTHERN CARNATION FIELDS.

Now that carnations in the south are all housed, growers should begin to prepare the field to receive the young plants next spring. If there are any poor spots in the field, give them a coating of stable manure; then plow up the whole field and sow it down with a cover crop of some kind, such as rye, wheat or clover, which can be plowed under in the spring. These crops prevent leaching during the winter's rains and add considerable to the soil fertility.

L.

DUTCH BULBS IN THE SOUTH.

As Easter is late next year, it will be a hard problem to keep any of the Dutch bulbs for that occasion in any section of the south. In those sections where there is a chance to hold them for Easter, I would advise keeping the hyacinths, tulips and Narcissus Emperor and Empress until well into December b fore boxing or potting, thus retarding them as much as possible. The bulbs intended for winter blooming may be boxed off, as usual, in October, and covered in coldframes, which are preferable to cellars. The bulbs must be extra well rooted before being brought into a forcing temperature. In the south the middle of January is soon enough to bring in the first tulips and hyacinths, while Golden Spur and Campernelle narcissi may be brought in two or three weeks earlier.

There are many sections of the south where narcissi are grown in quantity in private gardens, and in those sections it behooves the grower to have his narcissi in flower and disposed of before the outdoor ones bloom. Along the gulf coast, hyacinths and tulips are much of a gamble. In favorable, cool seasons they will do well, particularly hyacinths, but should the season happen to be a little warm, they are a total loss. It is not often that this occurs, yet the menace is serious enough to prevent speculation.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

Preparations for the Cleveland flower show are progressing and it seems as though there is likely to be considerable of an exhibition there. The interest in the rose exhibit is developing. Two more special prizes have been offered, one from Storrs & Harrison of $25, and another of $10 for the prettiest vase of cut roses, the decision to be made by a vote of lady visitors.

There will also be a meeting of the American Rose Society held at that time in the Coliseum. An executive committee meeting will be held in New York city October 11.

WILL PUBLISH DIRECTORY.

Albert Pochelon, 153 Bates street, Detroit, who is secretary of the F. T. D., is preparing to print a Directory of Retail Florists, but has not yet decided on the scope of the work. In a circular to members Secretary Pochelon says:

"Here is a chance for all members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery to show how much interest they have in their association. What you and I need in our stores very much is a correct list of the best retailers around the country, even if they are not members or do not intend to become members at the present time, but we want the names of retailers where we have no representatives and do not wish to send our orders to a nurseryman, private gardener or a party who has not been in business for five or ten years.

"This directory will only be good and valuable to all our members if you coöperate with me and send me the addresses of the best retail flower shops within a radius of 100 to 200 miles from your store, or any part of the country.

"I have at the present time a list of nearly 2,000 retailers aside from our membership. All these are doing business today, as far as I know, but before having this directory printed I want to get your list of names, so I may check them up with mine or add the ones my list lacks. Please return your list as soon as possible; do not lay it aside, but make it out at once. A busy season is before us and we all want to share in it."

OYSTER BAY, N. Y.

The regular monthly meeting of the Oyster Day Horticultural Society was held in Fireman's hall September 22. President Joseph Robinson presided. Geo. Alcock was elected to active and George Hastings to associate membership.

The exhibition tables were well filled with fruit, flowers and vegetables. Messrs. Gale, Duckham and Ford turned in the following report, which was read and accepted: Society's prize, six tomatoes, Charles Milburn; society's prize, twelve dahlias, James Duthie; society's prize, six apples, James Duthie; dahlias, honorable mention, John Sorosick; dahlias, Joseph Robinson, honorable mention; two vases antirrhinum, Charles Milburn, thanks of society; vase of marigold, Charles Milburn, honorable mention; eighteen varieties roses, David Hothersall, cultural certificate; vase of gladioli, Alfred Walker, honorable mention; celery, A. Yanuchi, honorable mention.

Prizes were received from I. Hicks & Son, Frost & Bartlett Co., and Vaughan's Seed Store.

Exhibits for the next meeting will be three chrysanthemums in one variety, two cauliflower, three celery.

The dahlia show to be held October 5 and 6 bids fair to be the best in the history of the society. Schedules for the dahlia and chrysanthemum shows to be held November 2 are now ready.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

A decided change was noted in the market last week. Asters are practically gone, gladioli and dahlias are past their prime and lilies are scarce, so the balance of the cut stock to be had has taken a brace. Carnations are not plentiful as yet. Good stock, though short in stem, brings $2 per hundred. Roses are off crop, but the quality is good for this season. A few yellow and white mums are to be had and these clean up on sight.

Bowling at the Show.

The secretaries of the florists' clubs at Chicago, Detroit, Buffalo, New York, Rochester, Denver, Albany, Cincinnati, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Columbus, Houston, Toronto, Indianapolis, St. Louis, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Louisville and Toledo, have been sent a letter by C. J. Graham, chairman of the local bowling committee, stating that "during the week of our big flower show we intend to hold a national bowling tournament. As the S. A. F. tournament this year was not well attended by the florists from the eastern and central states, we believe our tournament will be more than welcomed by the bowlers of the trade. We extend a cordial invitation to your city to enter one five-man team, as well as singles, in this tournament. Liberal prizes will be offered."

The first leg of the Florists' Club's eliminative tournament was rolled Monday evening, September 20, at Polster's alleys. The results follow:

Player.	1st	2d	3d	T'l.
Adgate	207	211	148	566
Strejcek	185	173	172	530
Lingman	190	208	118	516
Graham	145	172	173	490
Friedley	154	172	145	471
H. Bate	150	158	155	463
Rowland	130	140	125	395
G. Bate	110	134	149	393
Calhoun	144	106	142	392
Bachofen	107	127	157	391
C. Schmitt	112	140	125	377
Berthold	102	129	110	341
T. Smith	112	116	107	335
Hughes	..	124	75	199

Adgate rolled his entire nine games by permission of the committee, resulting as follows: 207, 211, 148, 156, 177, 211, 190, 157, 200, making a grand total of 1,657, or 184 average.

The final three games will be bowled October 11, at Erie alleys, when the five high men for nine games will constitute the team that will represent Cleveland in the flower show tournament.

Various Notes.

M. A. Vinson, of the flower show committee, has gone east in the interest of the show.

Frank Ritzenthaler, who has been dangerously ill for ten days, shows slight improvement.

L. F. Darnell, for twenty-seven years with the J. M. Gasser Co., retires October 1. With Mrs. Darnell he will go on a trip to the east and south for the winter. He has no definite plans for the future. Our prediction is that he will not be able to stand many months of idleness.

Charles Schmitt met with a serious accident while traveling through the country on his motorcycle. He was struck by a heavy wagon and is laid up in a hospital at Geneva, O.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Business has shown a slight betterment during the week and the appearance of the chrysanthemums promises to encourage and stimulate the improved conditions and a steady increase in volume is expected. Asters are on the wane, most of the growers having made their final cuts of field-grown stock. Gladioli are also taking their last call for the season and will soon be but a memory. Roses are coming in better quantity and quality and prices have stiffened slightly. The advance cuts of carnations are making their appearance and promise good crops.

Various Notes.

The Lapham Floral Co. has been chartered under the laws of Rhode Island and will engage in the florists' business at Pawtucket, according to articles of association. It is capitalized at $100,000 and the incorporators are Charles Lapham, of Pawtucket, and Albert Lessier and A. Fornier, of Central Falls.

Henry C. Neubrand, formerly of this city but now with A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., was a recent visitor.

Abram Littman has returned from a few days' visit with his brother at Atlantic City.

Richard Higgins is remodeling his range of greenhouses on Academy avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Sword, of Valley Falls, have been enjoying a visit in Montreal and vicinity.

Lawrence Hay is erecting a new greenhouse in addition to his range at Rumford, East Providence.

E. M. Pope is opening a new retail store at 107 Westminster street.

William Cohen, formerly with Smith the Florist, and later with Hoffman Bros., of Pawtucket, is now with Miss O'Connor, on Thayer street.

W. H. Tarbox, of East Greenwich, will make his thirteenth annual exhibition of dahlias at the Danbury, Conn., fair next week.

Matthew J. Van Leeuwen, of the Continental Nurseries, Franklin, was awarded a silver vase for the best exhibit of evergreens, palms and flowering plants at Wrentham.

Frederick A. Geisler, of Bristol, observed his seventy-ninth birthday recently, at his home on Mt. Hope avenue.

J. J. Kelley has completed the rebuilding of his greenhouses at Valley Forge.

S. S. Kresge, 191 Westminster street, will open a retail flower department October 1.

Thomas Knight, of the Knight & Struck Co., New York, was a business visitor last week.

Word has been received here of the death in Oregon of Eugene O'Hara, a former resident of Webster. He was fatally wounded by the accidental discharge of a gun. Mr. O'Hara owned the Reibe greenhouses, on School street, Webster. W. H. M.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

Holm & Olson, of St. Paul, Minn., have had some fine blooms of Geisha dahlias on sale, measuring fully nine inches across and of exquisite color. They were in good demand. The landscape department has exceeded its most sanguine expectations and bids fair to become the largest branch of the business, owing to the large territory covered.

C. G. Anderson, of the Minneapolis Floral Co., Minneapolis, is keeping up the excellent reputation he made at Morton Grove, Ill., and looks for good business the coming winter.

Rice Bros., the supply house of Minneapolis, are busy, although many lines are later than usual in moving.

The La Crosse Floral Co., of La Crosse, Wis., finds some call for early chrysanthemums, the recent bad weather having put many outdoor flowers out of the running.

Holton & Hunkel, Milwaukee, Wis., find the sale of Hoosier Beauty steadily increasing. The good qualities of this rose are becoming better known. New cuts of other roses are arriving in fine condition and sales are improving.

The C. C. Pollworth Co., Milwaukee, has no complaints to make regarding business. Both consignments and outgoing shipments are increasing.

The Currie Bros. Co., Milwaukee, is making a good display of bulbs and cut flowers, following a good season in the seed department.

Gimbel Bros., Milwaukee, have given more space to the cut flower department, which is in charge of A. H. MacDonald, who styles himself a "flower-craftsman."

Van Bochove & Bro., Kalamazoo, Mich., are making improvements at their store by installing mirrors the entire length of one side, giving the impression that the store is much wider. John Van Bochove has returned from his duck hunt, minus the ducks. He will return later for bigger game, moose.

Alfred Hannah & Sons, Grand Rapids, Mich., are cutting the new crops of roses and carnations. The demand for them is good.

Henry Smith, of Grand Rapids, has disposed of considerable stock through his advertisements and has a full line grown especially for the store.

DAYTON, O.

The Market.

Business last week took on a little spurt on account of the fall opening of the general merchandise stores. A big demand was felt for decorative plants such as palms, bays and boxwood, Boston ferns, etc. Not many cut flowers were used for the occasion.

Local florists report that trade is normal. All look forward to a good fall and winter business. Indications point that way, with the addition of two more florists' stores.

Various Notes.

The new stores are in the downtown district. One will be a branch which the Dayton Floral Co. will open in the million dollar Miami hotel. The other store, located on South Main street, was opened a few days ago by the Advance Floral Co., of 47 Arcade Market. The interior is harmoniously decorated, the walls being covered with birch bark, and the ceiling with white lattice and artificial vines. E. E. Schaefer will manage the store, with Miss Alice Heckman as assistant. The new enterprise has the best wishes for success from brother florists.

The old central market house has been overhauled, painted, and new concrete floors put in. The formal opening took place one week ago. The building was decorated with palms, bays and smilax. The decorating was done by the Dayton Floral Co. This building is used by several florists.

A few mums are to be seen, but the quality is generally poor. The Advance Floral Co. has some extra fine blooms of Pacific Supreme.

Carnations are improving, but roses are not up to standard yet. Easter lilies seem to be shortening up also.

Mrs. Sarah L. Steinberger, after an illness of three months, is dead at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ella Downey, of Dayton. Mrs. Steinberger was the mother of William Phebus. Mrs. Phebus has a greenhouse northwest of Dayton, growing a general line of cut flowers for the market.

Henry Ehrhardt, of Sidney, O., was a visitor in Dayton last week.

G. W. B.

MAPLEWOOD, N. J.

The first annual dahlia show of the Maplewood Dahlia Society was a marked success. The prizes in most of the twenty-eight classes were donated by trade firms and local tradespeople. The judges of the exhibits were William Reid, gardener for A. M. Colgate; John Garvin, gardener for Douglass Robinson, and Dietrich Kinscrabt. Among the winners were John Le Count, Frank Taylor, George Stevenson, Walter Lawrence, P. V. Braun, A. W. Pohlman, W. E. Selph, C. W. Groo, E. B. Phelps and J. H. Ayers.

Montrose, Pa.—Burton A. Ely has launched out into the greenhouse business. He will grow both vegetables and flowers.

Norwich, Conn.—T. H. Peabody is building a greenhouse, 30x75, near Maplewood cemetery, with an office in front. S. Hartridge will have charge.

Rockville, Conn.—Edward Lagan, lately employed by Brown, Thomson & Co., of Hartford, has opened a flower store of his own in the Robertson block.

Providence, R. I.—Leo Engel and Mrs. Engel recently returned from a fine fishing trip in Maine. Mr. Engel has charge of the flower store of the Shepard Co., where he looks forward to a good season's business.

Williamsport, Pa.—W. J. Graham has started in business for himself and expects to grow vegetables and bedding plants. He has a King greenhouse, 20x100, under construction, and will make additions next year if the business prospers.

Lowell, Mass.—Morse & Beals were awarded the contract for furnishing the 8,000 tulip bulbs to be planted in the municipal parks this fall. Their bid was $86.40. Whittet & Co. bid $93.80, and Harvey B. Greene $102.

Salem, Mass.—J. W. Philbrick left recently on a transcontinental trip, making stop-overs at Chicago, Denver and other large cities en route. He intends to stay a while at the Panama-Pacific exposition, after which he will visit Seattle and the Canadian Rockies.

Wakefield, Mass.—Charles C. Ball, who recently collected $1,800 from the town for damage done his stock by gas escaping from the mains, has notified the selectmen that gas is escaping again, and that his trouble and losses of last winter are likely to reoccur if repairs are not made immediately.

Newark, N. J.—R. P. Plebany is erecting a greenhouse at Irvington, at a cost of $2,250.

Pawtucket, R. I.—A. L. Warner sells Asparagus plumosus as fast as he can grow it. He devotes all his space and time to plumosus, but of late has been experimenting with Lutzi, which he believes will be a big seller.

Wakefield, Mass.—Edward Winkler recently completed another greenhouse and is putting in a new boiler. He has planted the greater part of his place with his new carnation, Morning Glow, having 20,000 plants of it on his benches.

Worcester, Mass.—Roger Newton Perry's Ford runabout was awarded first prize in its class in the battle of flowers at the New England fair, September 7. In its decoration Mr. Perry used hydrangeas and late-branching asters combined with heleniums. The hood was covered with hemlock and asters.

Hartford, Conn.—A contract for 1,400 potted geraniums has been awarded to E. S. Drake, of Fairfield avenue, by the Griffin A. Stedman camp, Sons of Veterans. Mr. Drake will furnish the plants next Memorial day, when they will be used in decorating the graves of the war veterans. Hereafter, plants will be used for this purpose instead of cut flowers.

Holyoke, Mass.—The third annual flower show of the Holyoke and Northampton Florists' and Gardeners' Club will be held in Windsor hall, on Dwight street, November 3 and 4, 1915. The committee in charge comprises D. J. Gallivan, Edward Hennessy, G. H. Sinclair, James Whiting, Wm. Downer, Geo. Rackliffe and Geo. Strugnell. In the prize-list, which has just been issued, plants and cut chrysanthemums, roses and carnations make up the greater part of the classes.

READING, PA.

The Market.

Increasing business is the report of the local florists. The summer has proved to be one of the best in funeral work, one firm stating that this particular item was as large as at any time during the winter season. Many orders for decorations were executed by a large number of local firms last week, for the combined openings of the department stores. Every firm received a share of the orders, many of them being compelled to purchase large blocks of palms to meet the demand.

Cut flowers were plentiful, with the exception of asters, which were ruined by the excessive heat of the week. This was much regretted, as the blooms were the best ever seen in this locality. Flowers four to six inches in size were nothing unusual. Carnations have made their appearance and are of good quality, the pinks predominating. Dahlias are more plentiful and sell well.

Various Notes.

Business at the two shops of John Giles is reported as being satisfactory. Many orders for handsome decorations were filled last week. Irvin Giles is spending his vacation at Niagara Falls.

Layton Butts, of Wyomissing, is cutting roses in large numbers. Sunburst is the most popular.

Lee Arnold, of Wyomissing, has started carnation cutting and is supplying the market with high-grade blooms.

Visitors last week were T. J. Nolan, of the King Construction Co., North Tonawanda, N. Y., and E. M. Reed, representing the Keller Pottery Co., Norristown, Pa. H. C. H.

NEWPORT, R. I.

A greenhouse, 24x84 feet, costing $4,500, is being erected on the estate of Eleanor Elkin Widener, on Coggeshall avenue.

William H. Maher, of Coggeshall avenue, who has been seriously ill for some time, is reported to be about the same.

Andrew K. McMahon, treasurer of the Newport Horticultural Society, was a member of the Rhode Island delegation of Grand Army men to attend the big reunion in Washington, D. C.

Cornelius Lyne, a gardener, was instantly killed September 23, at the railroad crossing at Long Wharf, by being struck by a train.

Carl Oberheitman, with Wadley & Smythe, accompanied by his wife, left September 25 for a trip through the Berkshires and White mountains, before resuming his work in New York.

Although the storm and the cold snap were detrimental, the annual dahlia show held September 23 and 24 under the auspices of the Newport Horticultural Society and the Newport Garden Association, on the latter's grounds, was a success. There were thirty classes and competition was keen in all of them. The judges for the society's classes were Bruce Butterton, Henry Redmond and Andrew Dorward.

At the regular meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society, with President William McKay presiding, the offer of a silver cup from the John Scheepers Co., of New York, to be awarded at the society's midsummer show next year for a display of bulbous plants, was accepted with thanks. Andrew Dorward had on exhibition a large vase of Solidago Golden Wings, for which the society's certificate of merit was awarded. W. H. M.

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Trade is improving slowly, with indications that it will soon be about normal. Up to the present time it has been considerably below last year. Stock is becoming more plentiful daily. Carnations are better and the quantity is about equal to the demand. The stems are of fair length and the quality good as a rule. Red is the only color that does not meet the demand.

Roses are of fine quality and are keeping about even with the demand. Richmond, Ophelia, Sunburst, Killarney and White Killarney are favorites. Beauties are scarce and demand is rather light for them.

Asters are nearly gone and those left are of inferior grade. Mums are showing up nicely and about the only kinds on the market at present are Smith's Advance and Golden Glow. By the end of this week we are promised some Chrysolora of good quality. It will not be long until we have plenty of several varieties. The public is calling for them now.

Valley is scarce and the demand quite heavy at times. The outdoor flowers are almost gone and the public will have to depend on indoor stock from now on.

The demand for ferns has been increasing and several of the stores are having special sales on them. There is little in the way of blooming plants at present, with the demand increasing daily for potted stock in bloom.

Various Notes.

The Munk Floral Co. is cutting its first mums and reports that business is looking up some.

The Livingston Seed Co. has been handling some fine carnations for this time of year.

The Block-Crane Co. is doing business again, after being closed during the dull season.

Charles A. Roth reports business fair at the greenhouses and says they get a good many orders over the telephone from old customers.

Reports from Sherman F. Stephens indicate that he is gaining right along now.

Underwood Bros. have been busy lately with funeral work.

T. J. Ludwig is still handling quite a quantity of gladioli to good advantage.

The Fifth Avenue Floral Co. is cutting some good roses and carnations and has been cutting Smith's Advance mums for the last week or two. This firm is installing a smoke consumer at its Fifth avenue plant, which not only will make things cleaner about the neighborhood, but is expected to effect a saving in fuel. J. M.

In its first appearance in competition at the Ohio state fair, this year, Hardesty & Co., of this city, won five premiums, one on everything entered. The firm considers the record the more noteworthy because it competed against concerns much older and with greater experience in competition at the state fair.

SCRANTON, PA.

The Market.

This city and vicinity were visited September 22 by the first frost of the season, which did considerable damage to outdoor crops. The rural districts suffered most, tomatoes, corn, grapes, etc., being frostbitten. Business dropped off considerably during the week. There was a little funeral work and a few small weddings, which kept some of the florists busy. We are receiving fine dahlias. Carnations are arriving in large quantities, but they are not much in demand. Good valley is scarce.

Club Meeting.

The season's first meeting of the Scranton Florists' Club was held at the Schultheis store September 24. President T. B. McClintock presided. There was a good attendance and much business was transacted. It was decided to hold a spring flower show in 1916. A committee was appointed to look into coöperative advertising in the daily newspapers. The next meeting will be held October 15, at the A. L. Besancon & Co. store. All members are requested to attend, as arrangements will be made for the fall and winter season. Officers will be nominated for the ensuing year. F. J. Moran was elected to membership.

Various Notes.

Miss Anna Griffiths had the decorations for the Stein wedding last week. The bride carried a shower bouquet of white roses, orchids and valley. The maid of honor carried Sunburst roses and the bridesmaid had Shawyer roses.

Arthur Evans, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., was a business caller last week. He reports good business for last month. Ira G. Marvin also was a visitor last week.

On a visit to the T. B. McClintock greenhouses I saw the finest chrysanthemums in the city. Mr. McClintock is cutting a large quantity of carnations daily. His outdoor coleus were nipped by the frost of last week.

Baldwin reports a number of large wedding decorations booked for October. The store had an attractive window display of mums last week.

G. R. Clark received his first shipment of Dutch bulbs last week, but his French bulbs have not yet arrived. Miss Loftus has returned from a summer spent at Moosic lake.

J. T. Cokely has returned from a successful trip through the east.

D. W. Evans expects to cut his first chrysanthemums this week. He is harvesting some nice carnations.

F. W. Mackey reports a heavy call for Boston and Whitmani ferns. He has a good crop of cactus dahlias.

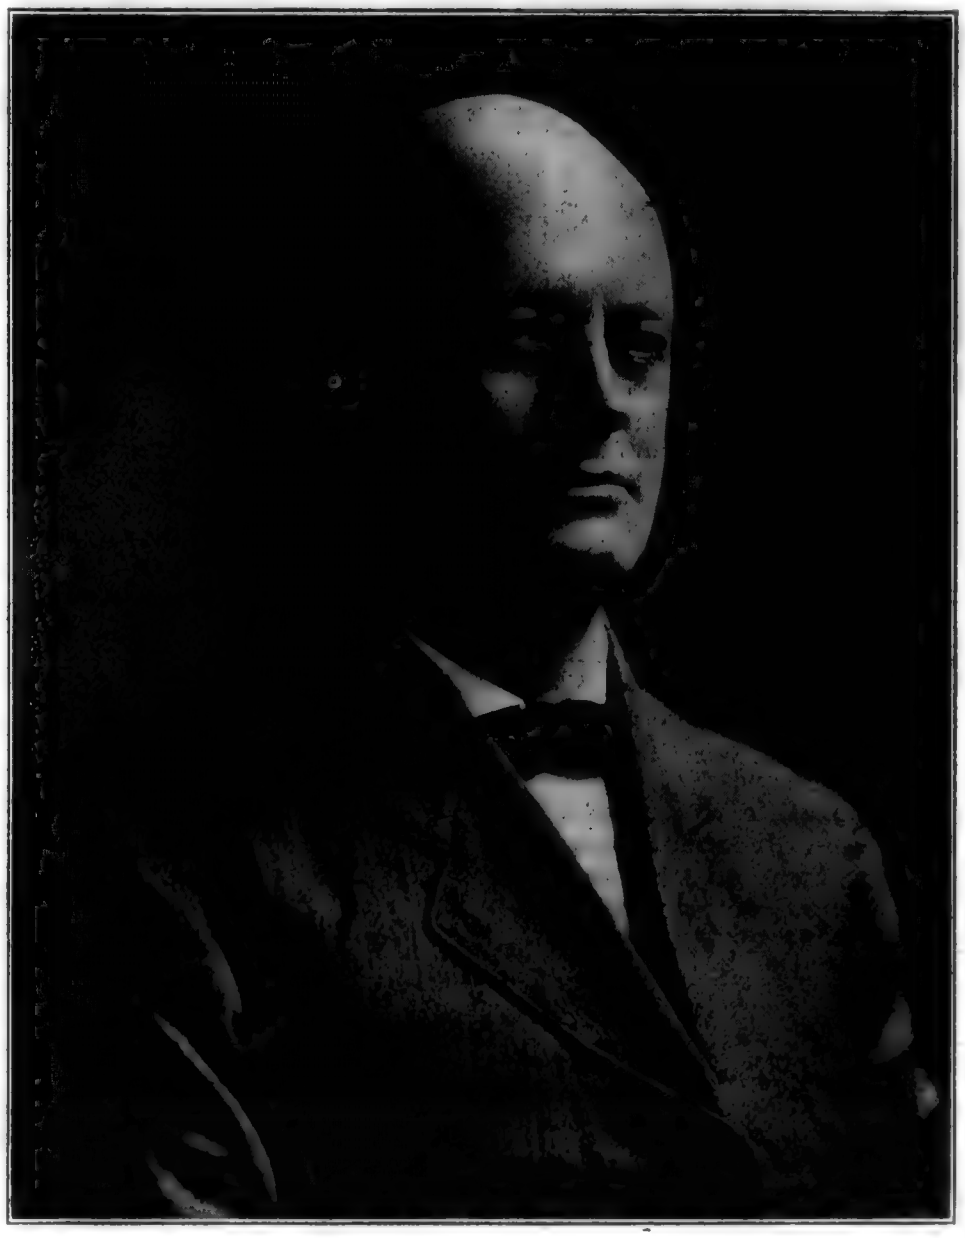
Mrs. A. F. Conwell, of Lincoln avenue, reports a fair week of funeral orders. She is erecting a good-sized greenhouse. F. J. M.

New Haven, Ind.—By a freak of fortune a tornado September 10 flattened out two new houses of the New Haven Floral Co. without doing any damage to the older houses. By tall hustling the two houses have been rebuilt with the same material, so that labor is the only loss, and are now half planted. This addition gives the concern 50,000 feet of glass in roses, carnations and mums. H. J. C. Leitz is manager.

OBITUARY

William Murphy.

William Murphy, who has always given a hand in promoting the success of events arranged by Cincinnati florists, is dead at his home on Pine Hill, in that city. Death came September 27, after an illness of one year.



The Fourth of July, fifty-eight years ago, was the day of Mr. Murphy's birth. At that time his parents were living on a farm near Quincy, Ill. The family removed to Cincinnati in 1866. The boy worked in his father's vegetable gardens until, as a young man, he got a start growing bedding plants and cut flowers for the market. While still in his twenties he opened a greenhouse. He made a specialty of carnations and was a grower for fifteen years before establishing the wholesale commission business which he has owned since.

Mr. Murphy took a prominent part in all florists' activities and at different times has filled offices in the Cincinnati Florists' Society and other organizations. He was secretary of the Cincinnati society for several years. He was a charter member of the S. A. F., and at the time of its silver anniversary meeting in Cincinnati he was superintendent of the trade's display. He belonged to the American Carnation Society also. In his spare time and vacations Mr. Murphy devoted himself to what he called his hobby—life in the open. He was known as a skilled woodsman and, like most men who love the out-of-doors, he was big hearted, generous, and his friends were legion.

Mrs. Murphy, four daughters, and his son, W. Ray Murphy, survive him. His son will conduct the business at 329 Main street in the future.

Gustave A. Navlet.

Gustave A. Navlet, of Eureka, Cal., brother of Charles C. Navlet, well known nurseryman of San Jose, Cal., died at his home September 16, after an illness of several months. The deceased was a native of France and only in his forty-second year. For a number of years he conducted a florists' business at Sacramento, Cal., and seven years ago moved to Eureka, in Humboldt county, where he opened a flower shop. Mr. Navlet's death was unexpected and caused a severe shock to his many friends. Burial was made September 19. H. S. G.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

There was a general scarcity of stock of all kinds last week, due to the sudden change in the temperature, which produced frost in the low places. Prices advanced to quite an extent. Asters are gone and dahlias are not good. The heat of the previous week caused the buds to mature so quickly that there are only about ten per cent of the dahlias that usually are to be had at this season of the year. There is still a marked scarcity of white roses and the prices are running from $2 to $6 per hundred. It is difficult to get any quantities in the higher grades, as the stock is not up to par. The scarcity is more pronounced by reason of an increased amount of funeral work which has prevailed during the last ten days. The pink roses are of better quality and are moving quite well. American Beauty roses are being received in excellent shape and are wholesaling at from $1 to $3 per dozen, with sales good. Cattleya labiata is more plentiful and is selling at from $6 to $7 per dozen. Spray orchids are offered, but with few takers. Carnations do not yet figure in the market, although some of those being received are of more than fair quality. There is plenty of valley to be had and the sale of this is better than it has been by reason of the many wedding orders now being filled. Chrysanthemums are not yet up to standard.

Various Notes.

The Leo Niessen Co., 1214 H street, northwest, is putting its new automobile delivery car into operation this week. The car is dark blue in color, with the name and address of the firm and the words "Wholesale Florists" in gold letters. Mr. Schnell is well pleased with the machine, as it will enable him to make quicker deliveries.

The Dunbar Floral Co., of Alexandria, Va., is sending to the Leo Niessen Co. some fine Hadley and Killarney roses. This firm has also a house of exceptionally good American Beauty roses, from which it is cutting.

David G. Grillbortzer, of Alexandria, Va., is marketing some good young stock Ophelia roses.

Several of the downtown florists decorated their windows for entrance into the Retail Merchants' Association window trimming contest. The prizes were three handsome loving cups. Among the windows viewed by the committee of judges were those of the Gude Bros. Co. and Z. D. Blackistone. All of the florists made a showing of flags and bunting during the week in honor of the G. A. R., which held its encampment from September 27 to October 2.

Among the visitors in Washington last week were Admiral Aaron Ward, Samuel S. Pennock, of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, president of the American Rose Society, and Robert Pyle, who came here September 24 for the purpose of making an inspection of the rose garden at Arlington Farm. They were met by William F. Gude, national representative of the S. A. F. All expressed their pleasure at the start that has been made, but regretted the fact that the garden is not yet fully planted. It was agreed that a general appeal should be made at an early date to all of the rosarians of the country to furnish roses for the planting of at least half of the garden. C. L. L.

Mrs. J. A. Philipps, the "flower lady of Fourteenth street," is enjoying the Pacific coast trip she won in the recent Lyric theater contest. During her absence, Mr. Philipps will have charge of the store, at Fourteenth and Harvard streets, northwest.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

IT is the concern that is pushing ahead that is the target for the shafts of its business rivals. You never note anyone bothering himself about the competitor who is on the down grade.

PROOF sheets of the final premium list for the Cleveland fall show have reached The Review. Intending exhibitors can procure copies of the list by addressing the executive office of the show, 356 Leader building, Cleveland.

WHILE carnation plants in the field seem to have reveled in the moist weather, and there are large quantities of surplus stock, the loss after housing is unusually heavy this year. Stem-rot is rife and seems to be on the increase.

THE LONG PANTS.

I have read with interest the account of The Review's first year in long pants. That the pants were well creased is plainly evident by the straight lines pursued, and that they still carry the creases is proven by the continued improvement of The Review. Your position, ensconced as you are, up and above the hurly-burly, can be likened to that of Old King Sol. Even as Old Sol draws water from the mighty oceans by his rays, so you gather your information from all parts of this busy sphere, analyze and clarify it, and present it in a most acceptable form to your host of interested readers.

Walter Mott.

HONORABLE MENTION.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper. Among those who have this week enrolled themselves for more than one year in advance are:

FIVE YEARS.

Blanys, John, Bridgeport, Conn.

THREE YEARS.

Bira Mar Nursery, Long Beach, Cal.

TWO YEARS.

Boehler, Oscar, West Hoboken, N. J.
Ecke, George, Lawrence, Kan.

The Review stops coming when the subscription runs out. The green notice with the last copy tells the story; no bills are run up; no duns are sent.

THOSE BELGIAN PLANTS.

Possibly no subject at present holds more interest for the trade than does the question of the prompt arrival of the autumn imports from Belgium via Holland, especially the azaleas. In this connection McHutchison & Co., New York, made the following announcement September 23:

"With regard to fall shipments of azaleas and other plants from Belgium, we have been in constant cable communication with our connections in Belgium, Holland and London, but the arrangements have been made and upset so often that we feared to make any definite statement. Now we can say definitely that fall shipments will come. We review briefly the changes as follows:

1. From June to August the shipments were included with the British Order in Council goods, and shipments were embargoed by the British authorities and could not leave.
2. During August, all arrangements were made with the British authorities; the embargo was lifted; permits were given to individual Belgian shippers on the understanding that payments for the shipments be made in England before the shipments left Belgium.
3. Early in September, when shipments were ready to leave, the German authorities, learning that proceeds would not go directly into Belgium, prevented shipments from leaving Belgium.
4. Now arrangements have been made with both the German and British authorities, and shipments are leaving Belgium.

"The above refers exclusively to our own shipments; we cannot speak for all Belgian shippers, or all American consignees. Within a few days we expect to be able to advise you what Belgian shipments have already left Rotterdam."

MORE TERMINAL INSPECTION.

The state of Arizona, following the lead of California, has provided for the terminal inspection of plants entering the state via the mails and the Post-office Department has issued an order putting the regulations into effect, in which it is stated that "all postmasters are, therefore, informed that packages containing plants or plant products addressed to places in the state of Arizona may be accepted for mailing only when plainly marked so that the contents may be readily ascertained by an inspection of the outside thereof. The law makes the failure so to mark such packages an offense punishable by a fine of not more than $100.

"The plants and plant products subject to terminal inspection in the state of Arizona are described as follows:

"'All florists' stock, trees, shrubs, vines, cuttings, grafts, scions, buds, fruit pits and other seeds of fruit and ornamental trees or shrubs, and other plants and plant products for propagation, except vegetable and flower seeds.'"

The postmaster at the point of address notifies the addressee, who supplies postage for sending the parcel to and from the nearest of the seven inspection offices. Failing to receive the postage, the postmaster returns the parcel to the sender.

NEXT WEEK'S WEATHER.

Weekly weather forecast, issued by the U. S. Weather Bureau, Washington, D. C., for the week beginning Wednesday, September 29, 1915:

For the Region of the Great Lakes—The week will be one of generally fair and cool weather, except that rains are probable Friday or Saturday and in the extreme northwestern portion at the beginning of the week.

For the Upper Mississippi Valley and Plains States—Generally fair and cool weather will prevail through the greater part of the week, except that local rains are probable at the beginning of the week in the extreme upper Mississippi valley.

For the Ohio Valley and Tennessee—Overcast weather the first half of the week, with rains Thursday and Friday; the latter half of the week will be generally fair.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Market conditions during the last week have been unusually satisfactory. Practically everything has been on the short side, with prices stiffening appreciably. Quality, too, has played a part in the change for the better, as it is much improved. The cold weather has given a good tone to the stock, and there has not been enough dark weather to affect the color. The shipping trade is decidedly active and the local trade, though far from that, is showing increasing signs of life.

Beauties are scarce and the demand for them is correspondingly keen. Those on the market are of excellent quality and show good color. Prices are up and stock is clearing in a satisfactory manner.

The supply of roses continues short, but the quality steadily improves as the receipts fall off. Russell, always in the greatest demand, is so scarce that some difficulty is experienced in filling orders. Ophelia is perhaps next in demand, with a slightly larger supply. Milady, also, is far from plentiful and meets with a steady call. Killarneys are of particularly good color. White Killarney, though not enjoying as strong a demand as the others, is still good property. Sunburst sells well.

Carnations are decidedly scarce and, the time of the year and the weather conditions considered, they are of good quality. September 25 and 26 it was difficult for one wholesale house to get good carnations from another, so pronounced was the shortage. The receipts of gladioli have fallen off sharply. Accordingly, local prices on good stock have gone up. Many houses report the demand still good, though the quality of the stock is negative. The supply of asters is diminishing every day. are being received and a marked improvement in the flowers is noticeable. Dahlias are few, but this fact fails to add to their popularity. The cold and the recent heavy rains have about finished the outdoor stock.

Easter lilies are meeting with a better demand than usual. The quality is good and the supply is by no means plentiful. Rubrums are moving fairly well, but the supply, though not large, is yet sufficient for the demand. The demand for valley is still evenly met by the supply.

So far, this has been a poor season for chrysanthemums. The excessively rainy weather has had a bad effect on the quality, and the demand has been weak. The supply has decreased during the last week; the earliest batches of Golden Glow, Smith's Advance and October Frost are about cut off and the second batches are not yet quite ready. Eastern cattleyas have relieved the scarcity of orchids and forced a fall in prices.

Greens are moving nicely, with an increasingly strong demand for plumosus sprays.

The November Show.

The publicity committee announces that recent appointments include a committee of ways, means and audit, with Peter Reinberg as chairman. The other members of this committee, so far appointed, are C. L. Washburn, Philip Schupp, George Reinberg, N. J. Wietor, F. Hoerber, A. L. Randall, E. C. Amling, Ed. Meuret, J. H. Kidwell and Emil Buettner. August Poehlmann has been elected treasurer.

The committee on lectures has W. J. Keimel for chairman and it is proposed to arrange for an elaborate series, covering subjects of public interest, with stereopticon views, this having been one of the taking features at previous Coliseum shows.

H. B. Kennicott, as chairman of the press committee, is at work with his assistants preparing material for an elaborate publicity campaign in the daily newspapers.

Guy W. French, chairman of the Florists' Club's special premiums committee, reports highly satisfactory results from his first day's canvass.

Arrangements are under way for an elaborate display of vegetables, in which various nearby horticultural organizations, such as those of Lake Geneva, Lake Forest, Winnetka, etc., will be the contestants.

A. I. Simmons has been appointed chairman of committee on music.

August Koch has been appointed chief of the information bureau.

Various Notes.

As a result of the confusion attendant on the congested condition of traffic at Randolph street and Wabash avenue, Robert Huehnchen, father of Ida Mayer, proprietor of the Humboldt Florist, 2509 West North avenue, was struck by an automobile and his head quite severely bruised. An ambulance was called at once, but Mr. Huehnchen declined to enter it, so he was conveyed to his home in a taxi. He is suffering much discomfort, but it is believed he has sustained no serious injury.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Ashley have announced the marriage of their daughter, Dorothy Margaret, to Walter Martin Rupp, son of N. J. Rupp, of the John C. Moninger Co., and himself secretary of that corporation. The ceremony took place September 22. Mr. and Mrs. Rupp will be at home after November 1 at 3453 Janssen avenue.

After enjoying a most pleasant vacation in northern Wisconsin, William Homberg returned to the city and formally opened, September 23, an establishment of his own at 183 North Wabash avenue, in the same building with Miller & Musser and George Fisher.

Not only the Belgian azaleas but the German valley pips are expected to reach Morton Grove as usual this year, says John Poehlmann, quoting his brother, August. General business conditions are reported as much better than a year ago.

The amalgamation banquet of the Chicago Florists' Club and the Cook County Florists' Association will be given at the La Salle hotel, October 7, at 8 o'clock. All members of the club in good standing will be expected to attend.

September 27, Victor Young assumed the duties of his new position with Fred Ronsley, 106 South Dearborn street.

The wholesale house of Bassett & Washburn is engaged in removing from its old quarters at 133 North Wabash avenue to its new home at 178 North Wabash avenue. A space 20x20 feet in the front of the store is being partitioned off for the office. New fixtures and a new safe are being installed and the work of fitting up the refrigerator and cooling rooms in the basement is moving rapidly. No detail of an up-to-the-minute establishment has been omitted.

After being operated upon a few days ago for some internal disorder, George Perdikas, 407 South Wabash avenue, is doing as well as can be expected.

The Chrysanthemum Society of America announced last week that it had again appointed N. J. Wietor chairman of its Chicago committee to pass on seedlings. The other members of the local committee are George Asmus and William Tricker. The committee will meet each Saturday during October and November.

After a tour lasting almost four months, Albert Amling, Mrs. Amling and their sons, Paul and Walter, are again at their home at Maywood. They started out June 3 in their automobile and made a trip to the cities of the Pacific northwest, thence down the coast to San Diego and home over the southern route.

There promises to be a fine lot of special prizes for the fall flower show. W. J. Keimel and Guy French, president and secretary of the Florists' Club, have taken it upon themselves to interview the trade. Among others, the A. L. Randall Co. gave them a pair of tall vases worth $50 and the E. C. Amling Co. contributed a pair of silver cups.

The early chrysanthemums have turned out a profitable crop for Peter Reinberg this season. The early batch of Golden Glow was cut out last week and Smith's Advance now is in good request.

With a carbuncle back of his left knee, Frank Ayers gets about the market with difficulty.

The first sweet peas of the season were picked at H. Wehrman's place in Maywood September 28. He expects to make daily shipments from now till summer comes again.

C. J. Strombach was in the market September 27, purchasing flowers for the funeral of his son-in-law, H. W. Harris, who died at Wilmette September 25, aged 47. The funeral was held September 28, interment being at Rosehill. Mr. Strombach, though now 73 years of age, still is actively engaged in gardening, having worked up a prosperous landscape business at Wilmette since his retirement after many years of service at Lincoln park.

Dutch bulbs are occupying the undivided attention of the staff at Winterson's Seed Store this week. Demand is reported good.

no reason to complain of the returns this season.

The decorations for the style show at the Auditorium last week were handled by George Weiland, of Evanston, secretary of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association.

The executive committee of the fall flower show has appointed H. B. Kennicott chairman of the press committee. He has selected to assist him: R. R. Brenton, vice-chairman; James Morton, E. Olinger and H. Nichols. An active campaign will be waged under the direction of Mr. Brenton.

P. W. Peterson, superintendent of the Thompson Carnation Co., states that it is planned to run an excursion car to Joliet during the November flower show to give the visitors a chance to see the largest exclusive carnation establishment in the country and especially a chance to see Aviator growing.

A unique thing was done last week when the Fleischman Floral Co. invested in about 200 lines of costly space in The Tribune to tell the public that the Japanese garden in its east window has been sold for shipment in a few days to Italy. Look quick!

September 23, a party consisting of Allie Zech and Mathias Mann, of Zech & Mann, and Ralph Bather, of Clinton, Ia., motored to Maywood and visited the ranges of Albert F. Amling and William Amling. They report a pleasant and highly interesting day.

Sixty-six hundred miles in a Saxon Six is the alliterative record of H. B. Kennicott and Robert Brenton, of Kennicott Bros. Co., who have been motoring ninety days.

In spite of adverse weather conditions, Fred Schramm, of Park Ridge, a member of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, has at length finished benching his carnations.

By way of a reminder, N. P. Miller, secretary of the executive committee of the fall flower show, wishes to announce that each member, in good standing, of the Chicago Florists' Club, will receive for himself and one a season pass to the Chicago Grand Floral Festival, to be held next November.

There are alarming reports of stemrot among the carnations, the disease appearing to be more prevalent than ever before. Certain growers who benched what they considered unusually fine plants now find themselves with a large part of their stock dead or diseased and are up against a tough problem.

The recent advertising campaign conducted in The Review by the Geo. Wittbold Co., offering sales coöperation to florists, has met with signal success. The plan was originated by Payne Jennings & Co. It will be enlarged upon in the future.

Within the week a number of local growers have received Dutch bulbs that came over on the last trip of the Ryndam, the boat that lost a couple of its crew when they entered the hold at Hoboken. The story was that the men were overcome by the fumes of the "lily" bulbs. However that may be, the Chicago growers find some of the stock badly heated.

Visitors.

Hugo Schroeter, Detroit correspondent for The Review, was in town last week, on his annual buying trip, the two Schroeter stores, those of father and son, now being operated in close relationship. Mr. Schroeter comes to town at about this date each year, looking principally for good short and medium Beauties. This time, to use his expression, he "ran his legs off" without getting all he wanted and used a considerable number of Russell and Milady instead.

J. A. Evans, Richmond, Ind., was a caller September 23. He left home June 23 and has made the swing around the Pacific coast. Mr. Evans went west via the southern route and is keen for Houston as the next S. A. The Market.

With the arrival of true fall weather—warm days and cool nights—business has shown a marked improvement.

A WIRE FROM HEADQUARTERS.

"You not only spoil one floral piece when you use a poor Wire Design, but that one poor piece may make a buyer stop trading at our store," said the old man. The conversation, at this point, was interrupted by the entrance of two well dressed women. "No, Mrs. Jones," said the younger to her friend, "I won't buy from Blank, The Florist, again. Did you happen to go to the Stones' funeral?"

"Yes, I was there."

"Well, did you see that large standing Wreath of Pink Roses, placed in the corner of the room behind the casket?"

"Yes, why?"

"Our club paid $45.00 for that Wreath. Well, Mr. Blank selected some beautiful pink Roses, with which all of us were very much pleased. I don't know how many were used, but Mr. Blank assured us that they were of the best quality, and they looked it. When the Wreath arrived at the Stones' home it was sagging down on one side, simply awful. It was practically impossible to stand it up.

"It doesn't make any difference what quality of flowers are used, if the piece won't stand up the whole effect is spoiled. I came here, because I am disgusted with the work Mr. Blank turns out."

After the two women had placed their order and left, the old man continued his conversation with the store manager.

"Did you hear that? It proves my point. I tell you, you can't afford to use a poor grade of Wire Work, too much depends upon it.

"If you place an order for the season's requirements with Kennicott Bros., you can get rock bottom prices and, at the same time, be assured of a high standard of quality."

Do you appreciate the soundness of the old man's judgment? If you do, the opportunity is open to you. Special contract prices will be quoted upon application. Address Kennicott Bros. Co., 163 N. Wabash Av., Chicago.

There is a good demand for flowers for home use, which, combined with funeral orders, keeps the market well cleaned up.

The chrysanthemums have arrived and they are of fine quality. Carnations are improving daily and long-stemmed ones are obtainable. Asters are about gone. Easter lilies are received in quantity and a few callas can be had.

The State Fair Exhibits.

Fair week, September 20 to 25, was the finest week of the entire summer. It rained a trifle Monday and Tuesday, but not enough to dampen the ardor of anyone. The remainder of the week was ideal and the attendance at the West Michigan state fair was larger than that of any of the previous fairs. The local florists did more than their share to make the exhibits attractive to the visitors. Horticultural hall, the building in which the flower exhibit was staged, was the most attractive place on the grounds.

The florists exhibiting were Henry Smith, Eli Cross, the Crabb & Hunter Floral Co. and Arthur F. Crabb, all of Grand Rapids. The last named entered only for floral designs and fancy baskets. The awards were as follows:

white roses, with a shower of ivy branches tied with ribbon and valley. The base of the stand was made of Easter lilies and gladioli. The Crabb & Hunter Floral Co. had a 6-foot wreath on a stand made of Shawyer and Russell roses. The wreath was made of white carnations with five clusters of valley, rubrum lilies and pink orchids. Arthur F. Crabb exhibited a 5-foot open heart, tastefully arranged with Russell and Sweetheart roses, and the base was made of white mums and Easter lilies. A large horseshoe of roses and valley was exhibited by Eli Cross.

Various Notes.

Henry Smith is showing some extra fine early yellow mums and a pansy that resembles a violet in every respect. He has recovered his auto, which was stolen last week by one of his former employees.

James Schols is busy raising the roof of several of his houses. When the work is finished, Mr. Schols will start planting his violets.

Levi Bruinslot is the proud father of a baby boy.

Eli Cross is cutting splendid roses of the newer kinds and keeps his display window filled with them. Each variety is properly labeled. A. F. C.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

The week was good in all lines of business and the florists had their share of the good things. The state fair attracted crowds to the city, and besides there was a gathering of men from all over the country to lay plans for the new Jackson highway. Retail business was better than it would have been otherwise, for many of the city's leading people were entertaining the visitors.

Inquiries among business men who are leaders in their several lines lead to the general impression that business is back to about where it was before the war. At least this is so in most lines, and there is a general feeling that the winter will see things even better. One florist, after carefully looking the matter up, said that the last two months were about the same as corresponding months before the war opened. Another reported that the last three months have been a little better than normal.

Flowers are coming in freely and the demand is strengthening decidedly. Another week will see chrysanthemums in good quantities, and from the looks of the growers' houses, the quality will be of the best. Dahlias are more than plentiful, but they are selling well. Roses are improving in quality with the cold days lately and carnations have hardened up wonderfully.

Most of the bulbs are in stock now and the counter trade is opening up fairly well, especially in the last few days. The quality seems to be unusually good. Perhaps this is because dealers in this country can get a better grade of bulb while the war prevents other countries demanding them.

Various Notes.

J. F. Corbitt reports that while there has been nothing unusual at his place this week, business has been good. He says he has never before had things in as good condition as at present.

A. N. Kinsman, of A. N. Kinsman & Son, owners of the Austin Greenhouses, at Austin, Minn., was in the city last week. He says that business is booming with him. He will spend the winter in Florida, Cuba, and the Canal Zone. He is motoring to Florida.

T. H. Joy says that their bulbs this year are the best they have ever received. They will begin cutting mums heavily this week. He says that the fair brought them good business. During the fair their firm showed 300 feet of moving pictures, taken at their greenhouses, using one of the best patronized theaters.

Floyd Bralliar, of the Hillcrest School Farm, has been taking treatment at the Rural Sanitarium recently.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

The market last week was excellent. As fast as stock arrived at the wholesale houses it was bought up at fair prices. All stock was in the best of condition. An abundance of roses of many varieties was received. There was a heavy out-of-town run. Roses were most in demand. Carnations sold readily also. They have improved wonderfully in quantity and quality in the last three weeks. The home-grown stock was the best that has ever been seen here in September. Chrysanthemums are becoming more plentiful, although the demand is not strong. This is due to high prices, say the retailers. A general clean-up is expected for next week, as it is Fashion Show week.

Dahlias sold well last week. There is a fine stock of this flower arriving every day, but prices are low. Lilies are plentiful and bring a fairly good price.

Various Notes.

The J. G. Peppard Seed Co. is keeping its force busy preparing for a lively fall season in seeds. This firm reports an increase in business for the year just ending. They are preparing for a larger business this year. This is one of the largest seed firms this side of the Mississippi.

The nurserymen had a splendid display of fruit of all kinds at the Corn Carnival, and also a good lot of young trees and shrubs.

Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. is cutting a fine lot of roses and carnations. Decoration work is moving fast.

M. H. Smith has some select begonias and his mums are good also.

Arthur Newell reports business good, especially in the house plant line.

T. J. Noll & Co. have received another large order for pots from the park board. Orders for Christmas supplies have commenced to come in earlier and better than last year.

The Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. is receiving a nice lot of Beauties and mums from its greenhouses. Out-of-town business last week was good.

Charles Laundy has his place in good shape. He devotes much of his greenhouse to growing pot plants. Just now he is cutting some nice carnations and mums.

Stovall & Son had a good run on funeral work last week.

W. J. Barnes, 3740 Euclid avenue, has finished work on the fall decorations for the Emery, Bird, Thayer Co., using over 500 plants in all. The chief feature of the decorations this year was the different acalyphas and strobilanthes and a great many palms and ferns.

Burton B. Crane reports business as rather unsteady, but he is well satisfied with the way trade has been all summer.

L. C. Fields has one house in a fine batch of mums. The rest of his place is in pot plants, including poinsettias and begonias.

Mrs. T. A. Moseley reports business as increasing. She is making larger preparations for the fall business than ever before.

The Florists' Club will hold a meeting October 4. W. J. B.

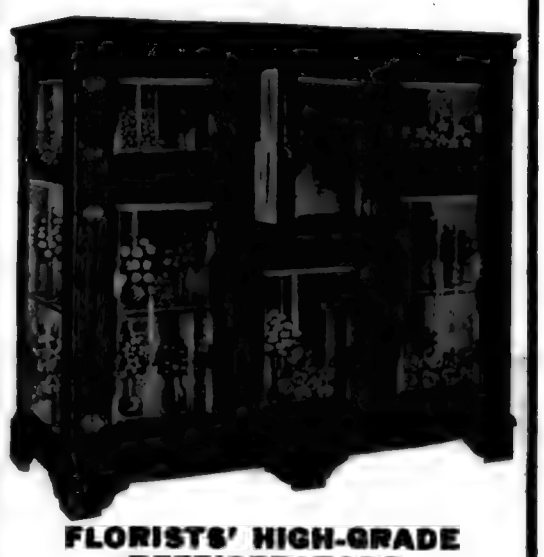
NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

The change to cooler weather last week had a tendency to improve business. It is still too early, however, for really active demand. When the frosts kill the outdoor flowers there will naturally be a much larger demand for flowers from the florists. Several times within the last ten days it has been almost cold enough for a frost.

The windows begin to look more in season. For a long time ferns, gladioli and asters formed the bulk of the window decorations. Now one sees dahlias, lilies, carnations, etc., with some early chrysanthemums, red hot poker, and others. Carnations are more plentiful, but the quality is still poor. Growers, however, have a large supply of fine, stocky plants, and it will not be long before there will be ample supplies of blooms of the finest quality. Only a limited number of chrysanthemums are in the market, and those not of good quality. The mum season is near, however, and better flowers and the finest varieties will be plentiful.

There was a considerable amount of funeral work last week. Counter trade is reported somewhat better.



Various Notes.

Ernest Radany, 596 Central avenue, is making repairs to his greenhouses. He reports business a little quiet yet, but looks for marked improvement after the first frosts.

F. H. Kuehn, 621 Central avenue, is making an addition to one of his greenhouses. Mr. Kuehn, who is situated opposite one of the leading cemeteries of the city, has a large cemetery trade.

A new firm known as Davis & Davis has leased five greenhouses at Central avenue and Grove street, East Orange, just over the Newark line. Charles Hornecker is the lessor. The new firm will conduct a wholesale florists' business. They are building another greenhouse, 17x100, and are putting in a new heating system. For the winter trade the firm has started with a fine lot of chrysanthemums, carnations, snapdragons and sweet peas. They will handle bedding plants and perennials. Although Davis & Davis have had possession of the place only since July 1, their carnations are beginning to bloom and their other specialties will come along on time. In addition to their greenhouse trade they are landscape contractors and tree surgeons. They will start a nursery next spring at Whitehouse, N. J.

H. Hornecker, 75 and 77 Central avenue, East Orange, has given up the greenhouses owned by his father, and with them the wholesale florists' business. Hereafter he will devote his time to the retail trade at the new store and workroom completed about a year ago, and the greenhouses immediately connected therewith. One of these greenhouses, facing Central avenue, he is using as a show house and the others for growing mums, carnations and the flowers he needs for his retail trade.

The Maplewood Dahlia Society's first dahlia show, held in the Maplewood Field Club, was so successful that it was decided to make it an annual affair. There was a large attendance. Forty-six prizes, including silver loving cups, medals, vases and certificates, were awarded.

The tenth annual exhibition of the New Jersey Floricultural Society will be held at Orange, October 4.

The S. A. Rogers Nursery Co. is the trade name that has been adopted by Samuel A. Rogers, 14 Baldwin street, East Orange, and Walter E. Pratt, of Liberty Corners, who conduct a business at 843 and 845 Broad street, Newark. R. B. M.

Saginaw, Mich.—The meeting of the Saginaw-Bay City Floricultural Society will be held October 4, at Martin Keit's, Bay City. Henry W. F. Goetz, of Saginaw, is secretary.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

Cool weather has brought an improvement in the cut flower market. There are not nearly so many flowers in town and the demand is stronger. Asters and gladioli are about done for, although there will be some of both for a time. Dahlias are plentiful, but there are a good many dahlias that do not rank as first-class and so fail to find favor with the buyers. Good dahlias are in demand at fair prices; some of the fancies even bring fancy prices. There is a great variety of roses, greater than usual. It can no longer be charged that the growers confine their efforts to a single variety of each color; there are any number of pinks and a good many reds, several yellows and some fancies. White is the only color not represented by many varieties. The prices of roses have advanced a little.

Carnations show decided improvement, Gorgeous, Mrs. C. W. Ward and several other fancies having moved up to $3 per hundred. The stems have lengthened sufficiently on other varieties to make them more desirable. Orchids are exceedingly plentiful, especially Cattleya labiata and the spray oncidiums. Everyone seems to be on crop, so that there are more than the market will take readily. Easter lilies are fine and sell well.

There are a few gardenias and plenty of good valley. Chrysanthemums can now be had in pink as well as in white and yellow; that is, they can be had by hustling, for only the yellows are at all plentiful. The odds and ends of indoor and outdoor flowers formed an important item of the cut flower list last week.

Current Events.

It is asserted, confidently, that the new fern, Nephrolepis John Wanamaker, will have a great run during October. Deservedly so, for this new variety is considered by good judges to have merit of a high order. A fern that combines the vigor and freedom of the narrow-leaved type of its family with the grace and beauty of the crested type, has a future. The history of this family is rather curious. For ages it was an erect fern, but twenty-five years or so ago came the drooping, so-called Boston type, with its endless sports. A halt has been called on these sports until now they have become rarer. But here is a variety that makes fronds faster than any save Teddy, Jr., and has durability and beauty to boot. Small wonder that the Craigs are enthusiastic about it!

Charles H. Grakelow, representing the estate of Charles F. Krueger, has sold the Reading Terminal flower stand, good will and fixtures to Arthur H. Lanser and Frank Alter, who will trade as the Charles F. Krueger Co. Mr. Lanser is a grower well known in Philadelphia, especially on the Main Line. Mr. Alter had been with Mr. Krueger ten years.

Edward Towill, of Roslyn, dropped in at the store of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. to show some of his new rose seedlings. One produced by a cross between Harry Kirk and Lady Hillingdon is a semi-double bud, pointed, of coppery yellow color, which Mr. Towill considers a producer. Another comes from a cross between Joseph Hill and My Maryland, which seedling was crossed with Mrs. Aaron Ward. The result is a firm flower of pale pink color, faintly suffused with yellow. The first bud was so decidedly like Mrs. Ward in color that it really seemed as though the pedigrees of the two might be mixed, but I have the assurance of Edward Towill, of Roslyn, that the facts are exactly as above stated.

The announcement made in this column September 9, that Renard Bros. had leased the Millbrook Lea Greenhouses, at Whitford, Pa., requires an explanation. Millbrook Lea was the name given to the greenhouse range owned and operated by J. Lehman Maull and J. Lardner Howell, trading as Maull & Howell. There were two distinct ranges, the lower owned by Mr. Maull and the upper one owned by Mr. Howell. The upper houses have been leased by Renard Bros. The lower range continues under the management of John Stanley, formerly manager for Maull & Howell.

Bassett's New Seedling Dahlias.

J. Murray Bassett, of Hammonton, N. J., has a number of fine new seedling dahlias of his own raising. The flowers on these seedlings are large and of good, clear colors. The stems are strong and the foliage, the glory of a fine flower, is remarkably luxuriant. Cultivation and disbudding have been employed by Mr. Bassett in producing these most decorative blooms, which do credit to his skill as a dahlia hybridizer and grower. The descriptions of five of Mr. Bassett's seedlings are as follows:

No. 10 is a bright yellow that is yellow by lamplight, a decided improvement over Yellow Duke. The foliage is firm.

No. 107 is an improvement over Arabella, especially in keeping quality, and it is of a deeper color. The foliage is especially good.

Mrs. H. J. Tiley is of peony type; a deep golden or orange-yellow with extra firm foliage. It is a good keeper.

Mrs. A. K. White is of the semi-peony type. It is of the purest white and a good keeper.

Della Dorsheimer is a near-white show dahlia of good form and stem.

These varieties are all free bloomers, on good stems, with unusually good foliage, and none of them has left my control.

The Riverview Show.

The officer at the newly made Taylor station stood proudly erect at his post. His duties were to prevent collisions between the trains and the motors at Taylor station, as well as between the motorists and the pedestrians. For Taylor station was an important place on the afternoon of Saturday, September 25. The name has been given to that point on the Camden and Amboy division of the Pennsylvania railroad where the highway crosses the tracks at grade directly opposite the Riverview nurseries of Henry A. Dreer, Inc. The making of Taylor station and the appearance is to last eight days only, during the progress of Riverview's great show.

A great show, indeed! The sight from the railroad is magnificent: A long driveway bordered on each side by velvet green lawn, relieved by evergreens and shrubs and canna beds. The vast fields of glorious cannas on either side, all in full bloom, a perfect blaze of gorgeous color, in rich variety, and then, beyond, the dahlias. The scene is full of animation. There are motor cars, filled with expectant visitors, dashing up the driveway. There are people moving about among the beds of flowers, the light-colored dresses of the women and children adding charm to the picture. The entrance driveway ends at the service shed, dividing to right and left. Here the automobiles are parked, presenting an imposing appearance. Nearby, on the lawn at the right, are the booths where flowers are sold and where visitors rest and look over the fields of flowers while seated. The flower booth is simple, yet attractive, a good-sized canvas booth with a counter across the center. On one side are the ladies who are selling the flowers; on the other, the visitors who are buying. On the counter are the dahlias. No wonder the people linger in the doorway of the tent to enjoy the beauty within. It is a temptation to describe the matrons and the maids, their faces alive with interest, but this is a flower show, so the flowers take precedence. The flowers are chiefly dahlias, displayed, for the most part, in vases, a single variety in a vase. They are shown in what may be described as American style, with long stems, displaying buds and a wealth of foliage with the bloom. The effect is pleasing.

The history of this flower booth is interesting. Last year every visitor to the Riverview dahlia show of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., was presented with a box of dahlias. They were intended to encourage a love for flowers among those, usually from a distance, who had come with the idea of learning more about varieties and their cultivation. The result was not wholly satisfactory. Many of the boxes of dahlias fell into the hands of the townspeople, whose aim was to get whatever could be had for nothing, caring not a rap for choice flowers or their culture. So this year a new plan is being tried. A lady of philanthropic, as well as floral tastes, who is described by no less a personage than Herbert G. Tull as being a hustler, has organized a committee of ladies to sell the flowers. Henry A. Dreer, Inc., gave all the flowers to this committee of ladies. The ladies sell all the flowers they can. The proceeds all go to the Martha Washington Memorial, at Valley Forge. The Dreers did not select the object of their generosity. They said please let it be nonsectarian and non-political. The ladies decided it should be ultra-patriotic.

The center of activity is the service shed. Three long tables laden with flowers run its entire length. Palms and foliage add to the decorative effect. While dahlias form the main portion of the exhibition, all the flowers now in bloom on the farm are shown, bulbous, annual, biennial, perennial—and, here is a strong point with the house of Dreer, every one is carefully labeled in clear script. Some of the dahlias are shown in large bunches with foliage and buds, as in the selling booth outside. Others, and these are rarer varieties, are shown in the English style, with short stem, a single bloom only. This display has great value from an educational standpoint, affording opportunity for study of types and colors and for comparison of varieties.

Outside parties of visitors are roaming over the fields of dahlias, cannas and perennials. Those who are fortunate enough to have the chief or one of his lieutenants as a guide are having a treat. The names, the history, the merits of this or that variety, its habits, flow with an ease that is marvelous. They denote close study, intelligent thought and an ability to reason clearly.

The outdoor ramble is undoubtedly the treat of the show. It affords opportunity for successfully sowing the seed of love of floriculture in the heart of many an amateur.

The show will continue until Saturday evening, October 2. With the perfect weather of the opening day, a large attendance all through the week seems assured.

Various Notes.

L. K. Peacock, of Berlin, N. J., will speak on dahlias before the Florists' Club, October 5.

The S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. is receiving fine Ophelia, Hadley and Crimson Queen roses.

It is with deep regret that the local florists hear of the death of Mrs. Krueger, mother of the late Charles F. Krueger, which occurred September 27.

Fred Berger has returned from Seaside Park to the store of William Berger Sons, at Germantown.

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists — those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists— has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now —before you forget it?

Gentlemen:-

During the SIX MONTHS from March 4 to September 4 I have received from other Florists, by mail, telegraph or cable, orders to the amount of $513.25 as a result of my advertisement in the Retailers' department of The Review. With the allowance to senders the record for SIX MONTHS is:

Value of orders received----------	$513.25
Less 30% allowed senders--------	102.60
Net value of orders for SIX MONTHS--	410.65

It should be noted that this showing covers the DULL SUMMER MONTHS, when any addition to a Florists's business is decidedly welcome.

Retail Florists not advertising in The Review should profit by this letter.

Respectfully,

The Market.

With the equinoctial storm of September 21, came the end of the dry, hot spell that for two weeks dominated the cut flower market. The weather last week was ideal and its influence is felt through a decided improvement both in the wholesale and retail trade.

Roses already show better quality and the improvement is welcome, after the weeks of sacrifice. The outlook is encouraging. Prices have been low for American Beauties, the supply being abundant, with much room for improvement in quality. The call for these from the summer resorts is becoming less as society returns to the city. There is a rapidly growing demand for the new roses, and each retailer has a different favorite, with Hadley, Hoosier Beauty, Ophelia, Key, Ward, Stanley, Mock and Russell all in the running.

Cooler weather has benefited carnations. During the hot spell they were not of good quality and were hardly salable, but the tendency now is upward.

The supply of orchids is large and it needs a perfect flower to sell at 25 cents, while many thousands have been sold far below this quotation. There are many oncidiums offered at a nominal cost. The top retail price for the finest cattleyas and dendrobiums was $5 per dozen. Lilies are steadier, with an upward tendency. Valley remains below par, 50 cents to $1 securing much of it. None of it rises above $2.50 per hundred.

A more active trade in chrysanthemums is expected from now until Thanksgiving. Smith's Advance and Golden Glow have already had their day, but the novelties and the old favorites hold the stage. A few asters and gladioli remain, but frost has almost ended the season for these flowers. There remains the usual variety of outdoor flowers, the frosts having missed New York city to date. The dahlia is especially abundant; in fact, it was a dahlia week and many thousands were disposed of. Leading retailers featured it, and some had splendid dahlia windows. These, and the successful exhibition at the Museum of Natural History must have impressed the public with its possibilities for decorative purposes. It is safe to say that 100,000 dahlias were disposed of in New York city last week.

siding. Secretary Young says that efforts in the interest of the national show at Philadelphia and the spring show at New York are resulting well and that prospects for the success of both exhibitions were never brighter.

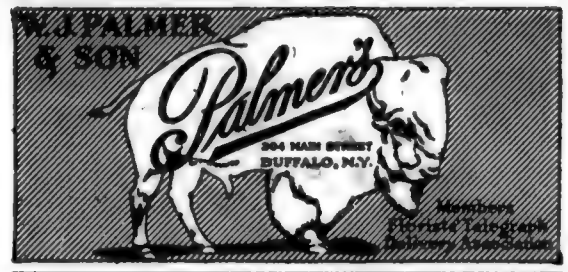
The next meeting of the New York Florists' Club will take place October 10. Special exhibits and a stereopticon lecture will add to the usual attractive program.

The October flower shows will be numerous here and in this vicinity. Glen Cove's dahlia exhibition will be held October 7, and the fall show of the Nassau County Horticultural Society, October 28 and 29. The Morris County Horticultural Society will exhibit at Madison, N. J., October 28 and 29. Orange, N. J., will hold its tenth annual dahlia show October 4. Oyster Bay, L. I., has set October 5 and 6 as the dates of the local show. Red Bank's show will take place October 27 and 28. There are others, some unfortunately conflicting in the matter of dates. Among these is the annual exhibition of the Dutchess County Horticultural Society, coming October 28 and 29.

The horticultural auctions continue every Tuesday and Friday and the attendance is increasing rapidly. The MacNiff Horticultural Co. offered importations of over 20,000 boxwoods from Holland. Local growers are disposing of their surplus palms, ferns and other plants for the retail florists through this medium.

The Stumpp & Walter Co. featured bulbs of every variety last week. The display was artistically arranged with a large painting of the Holland bulb fields in the background.

The Kervan Co. has begun improvements in its Annex, close to the headquarters at 115 West Twenty-eighth street. Mr. Kervan takes an optimistic view of the season's outlook.



The Wholesale Cut Flower Protective Association of New York held its first meeting of the fall season September 25, at Long Island City.

Robert Clifford is again a member of the force of Thomas F. Galvin, Inc., at Fifth avenue and Forty-sixth street, where Frank L. Deery, of Boston, is manager.

George C. Siebrecht has taken advantage of his vacation to personally build a motor boat.

William Kessler is utilizing his entire store and conservatory for his cut flower business, which is growing steadily.

It is rumored that one of the members of a leading wholesale cut flower house is to sever his connection with the firm and establish a business for himself, locating on West Twenty-eighth street.

The new building of the New York Florists' Supply Co. will be ready for use this week. The firm considers it one of the most up-to-date buildings in the country devoted to the florists' supply business.

George J. Polykranas opens his new store, at 104 West Twenty-eighth street, October 1. It is a model and convenient store, located in the heart of the wholesale district.

Anton Schultheis and Mrs. Schultheis, of College Point, returned this week from their western trip, which included the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

David Dean, of Charles Millang's staff, has returned from his vacation in the mountains.

Miss Margaret Hamburger, bookkeeper and stenographer for Woodrow & Marketos, has her own original ideas of advertising, and has produced a unique brochure for the firm's retail customers, that is a credit to the young lady's skill. J. Austin Shaw.

much colder weather of late, the flower market has not responded as had been hoped. While there are fewer flowers now arriving, and less congestion, prices are still discouragingly low on nearly all flowers. We have had one or two light frosts, but not sufficient to do much damage. A killing frost is hoped for as a tonic for depression. Roses are in heavy supply, but have cleaned up a little better; however, prices are low. Beauties are good, as are Ophelia, Hadley, Russell and Hoosier Beauty. A nice lot of Mlle. C. Brunner, Elger and single roses are seen. Carnations have improved in quality with colder weather, but the best flowers have not sold above $1 per hundred. A few single violets appeared this week. Golden Glow is about the only chrysanthemum seen yet and it does not move particularly well.

Asters get smaller, but there is still a large crop arriving. Gladioli are fewer and realize better prices. Valley is selling better; wedding orders have helped sales. Sweet peas are, for the time being, practically out of the market. Lilies sell a little better. Snapdragons, feverfew, cosmos and dahlias all sell slowly and there is not much call for other outdoor flowers. More cattleyas are available, also plenty of Oncidium Rogersii and Dendrobium formosum. Plant trade is now showing a little more life.

Club Meeting.

There was a good attendance September 21 for the first fall meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club. Two new members were elected. It was voted to hold the annual banquet in February. Reports of the picnic committees showed a balance on the right side. Several members spoke on the field days held at Newport and Lexington, and the Breck-Robinson Co. and Newport Horticultural Society were thanked for courtesies extended. It was announced that the National Association of Gardeners will hold its next convention in Boston in December. Action regarding this will be taken later.

A communication referred to the National Association of Gardeners by the Nassau County Horticultural Society on transferring of members from one society to another without fees, where they had paid dues in one society, was received with favor and referred to the executive committee. A discussion arose over resuming landscape classes. Several members favored a longer season, with twenty-five in lieu of eighteen classes. On the motion of F. E. Palmer it was unanimously voted to ask the local S. A. F. convention committee for a list of receipts and disbursements in connection with the Boston, 1914, convention.

M. C. Ebel, of Madison, N. J., who should have spoken, was prevented by sickness from attending. T. J. Grey gave an interesting account of his trip to San Francisco and spoke of the pleasures it had given him. His greatest joy came when the Berkshire hills came in view on the homeward trip. Henry Penn spoke most entertainingly on his transcontinental trip, being especially enthusiastic over southern California and the Canadian Rockies.

Exhibits included a collection of dahlias and hardy perennials from W. A. Manda, represented by Eber Holmes, and Buddleia magnifica and hardy asters from W. N. Craig. The next meeting will come October 19.

Various Notes.

J. K. Chandler & Son, of Tewksbury, have five large houses of chrysanthemums this season. Of pompons they have sixty-five varieties, also a wide assortment of the large-flowered varieties. In carnations they are growing Beacon, White Wonder, Benora, Pink Delight, Yellow Prince and Philadelphia. This firm built two new houses last season, a carnation house 42x250, and a propagating house 20x60.

An effort has been made to revive interest in bowling among the florists. Years ago it was popular, but for some time interest in it has been at a low ebb. A Florists' Bowling Association has been formed. Officers are: President, Seyman Grose, of Carbone's; vice-president, Albert Strumpf, of H. M. Robinson & Co.; secretary and treasurer, C. J. Sloan, of the Flower Exchange; umpire, Geo. W. Hamer. Cups have been donated by several firms and bowling commences October 9 and will continue each Thursday night. Eight teams have already been formed.

Charles Holbrow, of Brighton, is this season growing Killarney, White Killarney, Richmond and Ophelia for roses. In carnations his varieties are Beacon, Benora, Pink Delight, White Enchantress and Alice. A large variety of mums also are grown. All flowers not sold at retail are disposed of at the Flower Exchange.

William E. Cahill, for a number of years with the Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co., and Charles T. Beasley, gardener on a New Jersey estate, and formerly at Hingham, Mass., have formed a partnership and purchased the W. C. Ward establishment in East Milton. They will specialize in pansies, sweet peas, bachelor's buttons and pompon mums. Taking hold as they did during the late heat wave, the members of the new firm have materially reduced their weight, due to hard work.

Lewis Smith, of Tewksbury, has a fine sash house 250 feet long of bachelor's buttons. He removed the sashes from these during the summer. Plants are now lusty and starting to flower.

At the store of Patrick Welch, 262 Devonshire street, I noted extra fine American Beauties for the season, also excellent cattleyas, valley and chrysanthemums. Business is said to be steadily improving.

September 22 when he gave the wholesale rose market a big lift by purchasing 36,000 flowers and sending them by special autos to the various hospitals and charitable institutions in Boston. A shoal of appreciative letters showed how much these gifts were appreciated and the daily press commented at length on it. September 25 orders were filled for twenty shower bouquets for weddings. Funeral orders also continue brisk. Everbearing strawberries in pots and dahlia displays have been special window features here of late.

L. E. Small, of Tewksbury, is probably the most noted and successful grower of bachelor's buttons in America, making shipments to points 1,000 or more miles away. He is this season devoting three large houses to them. His carnations, which include several novelties, could hardly look better.

The annual fruit and vegetable show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society occurs October 2 and 3 and promises to be an excellent one.

William H. Elliott is cutting a splendid lot of Killarney Queen, Hadley, Ophelia, Sunburst and Beauty roses; also a nice lot of Mlle. C. Brunner, Elger, Old Gold and single varieties.

S. E. Spencer, the well known gladiolus specialist of Woburn, was awarded a gold medal for his display at an exhibition in that town last week.

George M. Anderson, of Milton, one of our most respected florists, has leased greenhouses at 499 Center street, Milton. At his new stand he will be able to cater to a large retail trade. We wish him every success.

Nice snapdragons for early in the season are coming from R. D. Kimball, of Waban, and Paul E. Richwagen, of Needham.

E. F. Emery, of Reading, has a splendid lot of carnations this season. His varieties are Beacon, White Wonder, Fenn, Pink Delight and Yellow Prince. He also has two fine houses of Asparagus Sprengeri.

J. A. Nelson, of Framingham, is sending in some fine carnations. Particularly good are Alice, Benora and Matchless.

Buddleia variabilis, in its several forms, is to be seen at some of the stores at this season. It keeps well cut and is excellent in funeral designs. Florists carrying it also have quite a number of calls for plants. We have no more rapid growing and profuse flowering shrub. The blooming season lasts for several months. W. N. C.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

Funeral work caused a little flurry in the market last week, but the hot weather the latter part of the week killed the seasonable improvement shown in business. A good frost is needed to revive trade. Large shipments of stock from both local and outside shippers came in daily. The quality of the roses was not what it should be and consequently prices ranged low. Mums are coming in more freely, with a somewhat better demand. Smith's Advance and Golden Glow are the only varieties available at present. Carnations, too, should be of better quality. These are plentiful. Only a few of the best bring $2 per hundred, but $1 per hundred was the average. Dahlias are not so plentiful as last year at this time. A few select gladioli are arriving. Violets, as yet, are scarce, but with the cooler weather a big crop is promised. Some nice consignments of cosmos are coming in. Asters are still arriving daily and these, with fine lilies and valley, make up the daily offerings.

Various Notes.

The St. Louis county annual fair will be opened October 4, at Maxwelton park. A number of prizes are offered for flowers, plants and fruits.

William C. Young and his son, William C. Young, Jr., of the Young Bros. Floral Co., attended the Illinois state fair, at Springfield, last week. Mr. Young, Sr., who was sick for some time, says he is himself again.

The St. Louis Seed Co. has mailed its annual fall catalogue. The importation of fall bulbs was quite large this year. Mr. Hummert says they have a number of large orders to fill.

sale Floral Co., says that men who keep themselves in the "pink of condition" never get blue and that the members of his firm are in that condition to begin the fall and winter season.

C. Young & Sons Co. will furnish the decorations for the ball of the Veiled Prophet, to be held in the Coliseum October 5. This firm also reports a number of other good decorative jobs booked for October.

Adolph Brix, of the Brix Floral Co., was appointed supervisor of the floral pavilion of the St. Louis War Relief Bazaar, to be held in the Coliseum, October 25 to 31. Ed. Buechel, of the Riessen Floral Co., also is one of the members of this association.

Paddy Patton returned from the Illinois state fair and showed a couple of golf balls he had won. He says all he needs now is a driver, bunker, cleek, a caddy, links, a nineteenth hole and an attack of insanity to be a regular golfer.

Joseph Deutschmann, secretary of the St. Louis County Growers' Association, says there will be a number of important matters to dispose of at the next meeting of the association, to take place October 6, at the Eleven Mile House, and hopes all members will attend.

William Miller, who for the last twelve years was with the W. L. Rock Flower Co., Kansas City, Mo., is now in the employ of Fred C. Weber. Roland E. Hammer, Mr. Weber's son-in-law, is now his bookkeeper.

The many friends of C. E. De Wever, of Olivette, will be pained to learn that he was taken to a sanitarium last week with a badly deranged mind, caused by sickness. Mrs. De Wever intends to sell the establishment in Olivette.

Philip Goebel, one of the large growers in Webster Groves, was in town last week wearing a Panama hat. As it was the only one seen in the wholesale district, the boys got after him, attempting to take it away, but Mr. Goebel cleared away from the crowd and came back saying he had traded the hat for a pair of roller skates.

events for the winter meetings, to which ladies will be invited.

Charles Young, president of the Retail Florists' Association, reports that the meetings of the association have been satisfactorily attended and that the interest displayed by the members is most pleasing to the officers.

Miss Betty Carlston, store manager and buyer for Mullanphy, Seventh and Locust streets, says they turned out an unusual amount of funeral work last week. This company will vacate its present quarters November 1. The new location has not been announced.

Guy Reburn, of A. Henderson & Co., Chicago, and Hart Lehman, demonstrating greenhouse cement putty for the Quality Brands Co., of Cleveland, were in town last week.

August Koch, who has charge of the Garfield Park Conservatory, Chicago, was a recent visitor. Mr. Koch formerly had charge of the economic collection at the Missouri Botanical Garden, so is no stranger in this city.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

ONION promises to be good property again this season.

IT is too late to entertain hope for the bean crop. The supply for 1916 will be, relatively to the demand, the smallest ever known.

THERE are reports of considerable quantities of bulbs that came in on the last trip of the Ryndam being heated when the cases were opened.

SWEET CORN in the principal growing districts, east, middle west and west, has profited by recent warm weather, but there has been too much rain.

THE prospects are for a large enough crop of American grown aster seeds so that the nonarrival of the European stock would not be a vital matter.

THE man who makes the catalogue has a rather more difficult job this year than last. He scarcely can be sure of anything except that nearly all seeds will be scarce.

IT is reported that because of the inability to secure space on the Fabre line boats, one of the Holland bulb houses shipped 1,100 cases, including Romans, Paper Whites and Golden Spurs, from Marseilles as late as September 2.

THE Germain Seed & Plant Co., Los Angeles, last week lost a considerable quantity of wholesale seed stock in a fire that destroyed a warehouse. Their loss is estimated at between $40,000 and $50,000, fully covered by insurance.

BUYERS who have not yet received their French bulbs are making things interesting for the sellers. In some cases delayed delivery is due to inadequate transportation facilities this season, but in other cases it seems to have resulted through placing orders at too low prices with concerns that now feel under no obligations to make delivery.

THE first meeting of the creditors of the Johnson Seed Co., Philadelphia, which was thrown into bankruptcy July 19 and the stock of which was closed out at public sale August 24, will be held at the office of Referee Mellors in Philadelphia October 4. There is in sight only a small dividend for creditors. The receiver has given notice that he will ask double commissions for conducting the business during the thirty-seven days he continued it under the order of the court.

ON the evening of September 20 H. G. Hastings Co., Atlanta, gave its employees a dinner dance in the structure to commemorate the opening of a spacious new addition to its buildings. The size of the Hastings business has grown to such proportions that additions have frequently been necessary, but with the present new addition and improvements W. R. Hastings asserts "the concern has a larger capacity for filling seed mail-orders than any other seed house in these United States." This he thinks "speaks rather well for Atlanta, for Georgia, and the south. It shows that the southern farmer and gardener appreciates the benefits of better seeds and is raising his standard of farming and living.''

THE St. Louis Seed Co. reports the arrival of seven bags of radish, from Rotterdam, direct in bond to St. Louis.

APPARENTLY some of the dealers have oversold on Paper Whites, at least for early delivery, as there are numerous inquiries for round quantities.

EIGHTY barrels and 100 bags of clover seed arrived at New York September 21, on board the steamer Walldyk, from Amsterdam. The two shipments were consigned to J. M. Thorburn & Co. and Hudson & Randolph, respectively.

IMPORTS HEAVY.

The imports of horticultural commodities through the port of New York for the week ending September 18 were heavy. The entries of seeds were as follows:

Kind.	Qu.	Val.	Kind.	Qu.	Val.
Annatto ...	...	$ 13	Cummin.	714	$10,282
Anise	223	1,554	Grass ..	40	326
Canary ...	2,182	8,324	Mustard.	1,229	8,240
Cardamom..	76	2,776	Palm ..	....	300
Celery	330	5,202	Linseed	118,765	292,184
Clover	3	43	Other ..	....	1,455

The imports of trees, plants and bulbs during the same week were valued at $163,740.

DICKINSON'S BIG PLANT.

A Chicago bank has underwritten a bond issue loan of $1,500,000, maturing in two to eight years and bearing six per cent interest, to the Albert Dickinson Co. The loan is secured by the great new west side plant of the Dickinson company and it is of special interest in Chicago financial circles as being not only the largest loan of the year, but the largest closed in the west side in many years.

The Dickinson plant, which has just been completed, occupies over seventy acres, of which sixty acres are owned in fee, bounded by the drainage canal on the north, Thirty-fifth street on the south, the Pennsylvania, the Baltimore & Ohio, and Chicago Junction railroads at Campbell avenue on the east, and California avenue on the west. The buildings, which are of reinforced concrete and steel construction, comprise seven units, consisting of three holding units, each 80x240 feet, of three, four, and five stories in height; also an assembling house, 60x420 feet, four stories high; three working houses, 80x120 feet, one being 200 feet high, and containing 1,100 tons of steel, which, with its large steel tanks, will provide storage for 750,000 bushels of grain. It is stated the buildings are so constructed they can be used for other industrial purposes.

MOTT-LY GLEANINGS.

George Thomson, of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, contrasted an item that appeared in the Boston Beacon of 1675, advertising a shipment of seeds as part of a cargo from Glasgow, with the seed trade of today. His house, for instance, has shipped 900 cartons of seeds to various points this season.

The W. H. Bofferding Co., Minneapolis, remarked upon the fine exhibit of onions at the state fair, grown from their seed. Specimens of Red, White and Yellow Globe were fine, considering the wet season. This firm has a window display of dahlias, all labeled, from which orders are being booked for spring delivery. FRESH CROP GIGANTEUM are due to arrive almost any day now. If you have not ordered you had better order now, if you want prompt shipment. Easter in 1916 falls on April 23rd, which gives plenty of time to flower Giganteum, the most suitable variety for all purposes. The quality of Giganteum you plant depends upon the conditions under which the bulbs are produced in Japan; and that is why most large growers buy Horseshoe Brand Giganteum. It is the brand with the World's Record of flowering results. The prices for fresh importation are as follows:

Size 6x 8 ....$16.00 per case of 400
Size 7x 9 .... 15.00 per case of 300
Size 9x10 .... 19.00 per case of 200

We will place them on storage for you at 15c per case per month, so you can plant them any time up to November, 1916, if you wish it—shipping them as you instruct.

LECHNER BROTHERS, WEBSTER GROVES, MO.

Agents for THE GROWERS' ASSOCIATION, Anna Paulowna, Holland is a splendid companion to Canna Queen Charlotte.

J. H. Smith, of Minneapolis, finds the demand for seeds fully up to the average.

L. L. May, of St. Paul, believes that this year will be a clean-up one in stocks, generally. Corn of all kinds will be scarce and correspondingly high. They have harvested a crop of Datura Stramonium, an herb used for the cure of asthma and hitherto grown in Germany. The two acres of the crop are expected to yield, when dried, 2,000 pounds, at a contract price of 20 cents per pound. It is predicted that, owing to the war, there will be an increasing demand for this plant because of its medical qualities.

The John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., is looking for a big demand for pedigree oats and wheat another season, owing to the enormous yield now being harvested.

Melzer's Seed Store, Watertown, Wis., has enjoyed a prosperous season.

M.

ARGENTINA RESTRICTS IMPORTS.

An Argentine decree of July 5, 1915, which is to go into effect six months from that date, prohibits the importation into Argentina of consignments of alfalfa seed and other forage-plant seeds containing more than ten grains of dodder per kilo, or those of a germinal power (valor cultural) of less than sixty per cent. Shipments of such seeds are to be analyzed by the Argentine agricultural authorities upon importation, and, if they are found not to comply with the requirements, must be returned to the country of exportation or placed in a warehouse designated for the purpose and cleaned at the expense of the importer; otherwise the consignment is to be destroyed without remuneration. The importation of such seeds is limited by the decree to the ports of Buenos Aires, Rosario and Bahia Blanca.

BULB SITUATION IN HOLLAND.

"As a matter of course," says the Holland correspondent of a British trade paper, "the countries that are at war are not taking more than half the usual quantities of any kind of bulbs, and if it was not for the enormous quantities swallowed by the United States, conditions in the bulb district would be far worse than what they are. Notwithstanding this, the cost of production in the face of scarcity of labor will cause a general clearing and reducing of stocks among bulb growers, and this is after all the only practical mode of dealing with the present serious dislocation of all trades.

"Although weather conditions have been far from favorable for the drying and curing of bulbs, which have all been housed by this time, the sale of tulip bulbs has been going on and the bulk of them may be said to have been disposed of. So far, tulips have been selling rapidly and fairly well, considering the abnormal circumstances, but hyacinths are moving slowly, and the smaller sizes, especially, are difficult to dispose of. Crocus have also been a drug in the market so far, notwithstanding that the crop was a small one, and the demand seems to be generally less than usual. Narcissi have sold well and, although prices were not high, they may be said to have been cleared completely and no stocks of any of them are likely to be left on the hands of the growers."

MORE DUTCH BULBS ARRIVE.

Another good-sized shipment of Dutch bulbs arrived at New York September 18, on board the Holland-America steamer Rotterdam, from Rotterdam. It is expected that the Dutch bulb imports will soon begin to slacken in number and size, until the middle of November, when the shipments usually cease. The consignments on board the Rotterdam were:

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Mountain View Floral Co., Portland, Ore.—A condensed catalogue of Oregon field-grown rose bushes, hardy perennials, evergreens and miscellaneous stock; eight pages and cover.

Bees, Ltd., Liverpool, England.—Special trade offer of Bees' "Guarantested" field-grown roses, including tree-form or standard plants as well as general stock; all "low budded on briars."

J. J. Wilson Seed Co., Inc., Newark, N. J.—An 8-page folder, listing bulbs for autumn planting. "Owing to the war in Europe," says the introductory page, "there are many things we are doubtful whether we shall get. We are therefore offering only the articles we are reasonably sure of having, and in this simple way so that we can save you money on the cost of an expensive catalogue."

S. M. Isbell & Co., Jackson, Mich.—An 8-page, illustrated catalogue of bulbs, seed potatoes, grains, grass mixtures and other farm seeds; a compact, businesslike list.

St. Louis Seed Co., St. Louis, Mo.—Two fall catalogues, general and wholesale, both illustrated. The general list consists of twenty pages and cover, and offers bulbs, peonies, ferns, palms, strawberry plants, California privet, grass seeds, mushroom spawn, fertilizers, insecticides, plant tubs, tools and other requisites. The trade list contains fourteen pages and gives chief prominence to bulbs and flower seeds, though miscellaneous supplies also are included.

J. Bolgiano & Son, Baltimore, Md.—"Bolgiano's Bulb Book," an illustrated catalogue of bulbs, bulb fiber, flower seeds, lawn grass seeds, gardeners' tools, hotbed sashes, plant tubs, plant boxes, fertilizers and other supplies. Among the lawn grass seeds, several mixtures are offered, besides distinct varieties of fancy grasses.

Delaware, O.—The Rex Garden, Farm & Floral Co. intends to open a flower shop here October 1.

Chrysanthemum

By Arthur Herrington

Formerly president Chrysanthemum Society of America.

The most complete and comprehensive work on the cultivation of the chrysanthemum that has yet been published in America. Its scope and character may be gleaned from the list of contents, which comprises chapters on composts, planting; benches, boxes or pots; general cultural details; crown and terminal buds; feeding, its object and application; care of the buds; exhibition and judging; specimen plants, plants in pots; raising from seed and hybridizing; sports; hardy chrysanthemums; chrysanthemums for south and west; insect pests and diseases; classification and selection of varieties for special purposes; history of the chrysanthemum, etc. The book will be welcomed for the lucid, comprehensive, as well as the practical character of its contents. Handsomely illustrated. 168 pages, 5x7 inches. Price 50c postpaid.

The Market.

Business continues good. Decorations for weddings and banquets were numerous last week. Practically everything on the market cleans up in fine shape. The weather continues warm and dry, but the nights are becoming cooler, and changes in the varieties of stock offered indicate the end of summer. Roses were noticeably better last week, but the supply is not heavy and more of them could easily be sold. The cut of Irish Elegance is increasing and it is almost monopolized by a few of the large shops. Ophelia and Russell seem to be the most popular. A good many violets are appearing and some are being shipped to near-by points, but neither the quality nor the quantity of the violets will permit heavy shipments for two or three weeks. Chrysanthemums are improving, the yellow varieties being fairly plentiful. October Frost is off crop and, while a fine cut of Queen is expected soon, the present supply of mums is limited. Pompons are doing nicely. The local demand for chrysanthemums has been strong and a large shipping movement should begin in another week. A few sprays of phalænopsis and oncidiums have been appearing. Cattleyas have begun to arrive again, but they still are scarce. Gardenias are snapped up quickly and the sales for them the last few weeks would have been much larger if stock had been available. Amaryllis still arrives in large quantities. Gladioli are having a remarkably long season and there is a good supply in view for next month. Dahlias are fine and seem to find more popularity than before. A few asters still are seen, but they are not of much account. Scattering lots of short sweet peas continue to appear. The carnations show little improvement and those offered move rather slowly. There is a heavy movement of all kinds of greens, ferns, Asparagus plumosus, huckleberry, oak, etc., and a good deal of Eucalyptus robusta, now coming into flower, is used in window displays and decorations. Cyclamen blooms and plants are excellent and more plentiful.

The Dahlia Show.

All those who participated agree that the dahlia show at the Palace of Horticulture, held September 18 and 19, was the largest and finest exhibition of dahlias ever held on the Pacific coast, and some of those who have been around a good deal say it was the best show they have ever seen. A large room facing the South Gardens was occupied by the exhibits. This location was unusually appropriate, for there are many large plantings of dahlias in the South Gardens, now at their best. Several thousand specimen blooms were exhibited, of a wide range of varieties and types, and about fifty prizes were awarded.

In the class open to growers the Lovers' Point Dahlia Garden took a gold medal for the best collection of dahlias. The Bessie Boston Dahlia Farm won a silver medal and four first prizes for the best showings of cactus dahlias, peony-flowered dahlias and collarette dahlias, and second prizes for pompon dahlias, and decorative dahlias. It also won a silver medal for an entry of seedlings. Frank Pelicano took first prize for the best twenty-four decorative dahlias and for fifty blooms of Delice. Mr. Pelicano also won a bronze medal for this year's best seedling, a decorative dahlia of old gold color. Burns & Co., of San Rafael, took second prize for fifty blooms of Geisha. One of the most notable exhibits was that of T. A. Burns, who was awarded a special medal of honor for an exhibit of 1,000 varieties. There were many exhibits by nonprofessionals.

Various Notes.

Notice of the death of Gustave A. Navlet, of Eureka, Cal., will be found in this week's obituary column.

A. O. Stein recently made decorations for a large business luncheon, in which he used more than 133 dozens of pink chrysanthemums. The market had to be scoured for two days to supply the flowers. Mr. Stein is featuring cibotium ferns this season and expresses surprise that this fern is not more popular. He is receiving good stock from H. Plath and E. James.

Mr. Warlow, who recently opened a store at 1336 Polk street, which had been previously run by a Japanese, has discovered that the location is a poor one and is now looking for a more favorable business site.

H. G. George, of 1702 Seventy-third avenue, Oakland, is one of the few American growers who have not quit carnation growing. He has a few regular customers who can be depended upon to take his cut and says he does not believe in abandoning the field in the face of Japanese competition. He makes a specialty of spring bulbous stock.

Burns & Co., of San Rafael, are showing specimens of a newly established seedling dahlia, at the C. Kooyman store. It is said to be a cross between Elsa and Minnie Burgle. It is like the latter in formation, a fine white in color and about seven inches in diameter. Mr. Burns is shipping in a large quantity of fine tuberous begonia blooms, which are receiving a great deal of attention.

C. Kooyman is shipping a great many mums and is experiencing a fine demand for them, both outside and locally. He supplies a large number of chrysanthemums for exposition decorations.

Robert Schenk, who has been connected with several of the leading flower shops at Los Angeles during the last few years, has come to San Francisco and expects to make his home here. H. S. G.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Quite an improvement in business has set in during the last week. Many residents who are frequent patrons of the flower stores are returning from beach and mountain resorts, while the tourists from the middle west and east are still coming in considerable numbers. There is none too much good stock coming in now, though there is considerable second-rate stuff. Good roses are scarce, carnations are fairly good, orchids are not plentiful, and valley is hard to get of good quality. The stores are full of outdoor flowers and ferns. The latter are selling fairly well. There are no good flowering plants to be had. Greens are plentiful.

Various Notes.

George W. Smith reports business good in the landscape end. Several large contracts are keeping him busy. Mr. Smith proposes going into the growing end of the nursery business and has several promising sites in view.

Charles Lewis, of Freeman-Lewis Co., is taking another short vacation.

Fred Howard, as head of the Howard & Smith corporation, is a busy man these days and hard to catch. He reports big sales of roses and other small stock. The cut flower business also keeps up well.

Ed. Howard is now working with his brother, Paul, in the new nursery at Newmark, where they propose growing stock for their landscape work.

J. Dieterich is shipping large consignments of Cocos plumosa to the east.

The removal of the L. A. Floral Co., from 112 Winston street to more commodious quarters on Los Angeles street, is worthy of more than passing note. During the short time that Fred Sperry has been manager of the firm the increase in business has been steady and consistent. He has worked up a business that is taking its place among the most successful in the city.

Tassano Bros. have their new greenhouses at Glendale complete and will begin planting at once.

S. Murata & Co. report fine shipping business and are showing splendid mums from the north. Mr. Murata has removed from the city and now makes his home on Cedar street, Montebello.

At the meeting of the Pasadena Horticultural Society, September 17, the matter of incorporation was again taken up and various questions asked as to the effect it would have upon present members. President Shields announced that James McGilvray had promised to drive Treasurer Wilson over to each meeting to prevent his resignation on account of his taking charge of the Doheney place, in Los Angeles. His announcement was received with loud cheers. Mr. McGilvray urged the members to attend the smoker to be held by the society.

Arrangements for the Pasadena fall show, to be held in Central park, October 28 to 30, are under way. Among the special prizes offered are a silver cup for the best twenty-four cut blooms, offered by Thomas Chisholm, of the Pasadena Nursery, and a cash prize of $25, offered by the Germain Seed & Plant Co., of Los Angeles, for best display of flowers and vegetables.

As a result of a fire which entirely burned out a large warehouse, the Germain Seed & Plant Co. lost a large quantity of seeds and other merchandise. Local papers put the loss of stock at $75,000, but according to M. Meyberg, manager of the company, the loss will be between $40,000 and $50,000. The loss was covered by insurance. Delay has been caused in filling wholesale orders, owing to the lost stock.

I have frequently visited the excellently arranged home nursery and salesyard of the Armstrong Nurseries at Ontario, but had never until last week seen the growing quarters. Mr. Armstrong has some 300 acres, all in nursery stock of various kinds, the fruit end being as well taken care of as the ornamental. Deciduous fruits are grown in immense numbers, as well as citrus, olives and the popular avocados, or alligator pears. In the ornamental end are large blocks of all the most popular conifers, as well as hundreds of thousands of roses and flowering shrubs. J. Elster, formerly with the

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

The fall rains have not yet appeared. Even the equinoctial storm has missed Portland. The conditions are excellent for keeping up the supply of outdoor blooms.

Stock of all sorts is getting more plentiful and is moving fairly well. Single violets, home-grown, have appeared. The first lot of mums has been brought in from California—varieties, Chrysolora and Crocus.

The dahlia show has been the center of interest, and inquiry for dahlia blooms and roots has been strong.

The ground is still too dry for much fall planting to be done and the residence lawns have to be sprinkled.

Dahlia Society Show.

The second annual show of the National Dahlia Society was held here September 23 to 25, and was a surprise to the public and to its promoters in its magnitude and attractiveness. It occupied the entire sixth floor, 100x200, of the new building of the Meier & Frank department store. No entry fee was charged and the show was free to the public. About 1,000 entries were made and were viewed by at least 50,000 people.

According to the statement of Leslie E. Doolittle, judge of the commercial exhibits, it was the largest dahlia exhibition ever given in the United States. Mr. Doolittle showed his deep interest in the show by making an exhibit of fifty varieties of dahlias, all of his own creation, at the Lovers' Point Dahlia Gardens, Pacific Grove, Cal., for which he was given the highest award in the general display at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, September 18 and 19. Among his varieties were Morning Star, Pacific Grove, Sweet Remembrance, Santa Barbara, Oxford, Mary, and Clara Seaton. Other exhibits brought from distant points were five blooms of Sunshine, a new seedling originated by Mrs. C. H. Stout, assistant secretary of the society for New Jersey. They were packed on ice and shipped from her gardens. A single bloom of Dr. Peary was shipped via parcel post from Spokane, by Alexander Carr. There were also the new varieties Laconner and H. Gill, shipped to Clarke Bros. from Seattle; the new dahlia, Henry A. Rhodes, came from Mrs. George Sheffield, of Burton, and several exhibits from the Puget sound district.

Commercial growers exhibiting from 200 to 500 varieties each were Walter A. Martin, W. E. Sherbrooke, of Cornelius, Ore.; Gill Bros. Seed Co., Portland; N. A. Miller, Columbia Dahlia Co., Willamette Dahlia & Floral Co.; Mastick strains, by M. G. Tyler; Spreadborough & Wagner, of Forest Grove, Ore.; Necanicum Inn, of Seaside, Ore. Commercial exhibits other than dahlias were made by the Mountain View Floral Co., Zimmerman Bros., Niklas &

Son, John Zimmerman, George Indermuhle, W. L. Crissey, H. E. Weed Landscape Nursery, J. B. Pilkington, Wilson & Crout Co., Swiss Floral Co. and the Routledge Seed & Floral Co. The Tonseth Floral Co. exhibited an attractive basket of a scarlet dahlia, Minnie Burgle, which proved one of the favorite varieties among the visitors. Several promising seedlings were exhibited by commercial growers and one table held over sixty vases of seedlings entered by amateurs. Among the new varieties was a seedling from Oregon Beauty, grown by the Gill Bros. Seed Co.

The premium list contained 208 prizes open to professional growers of dahlias, forty-four prizes for miscellaneous cut flowers from amateur, semi-professional and juvenile growers; twenty-three prizes for dahlias from juvenile growers, thirty-eight prizes for amateur growers of fall roses, thirty prizes to exhibits of dahlias and novelties for commercial growers, and six prizes for cut flowers other than dahlias, open to commercial growers.

Excepting a few items in the miscellaneous list, entries were made under nearly all the 350 divisions, and according to the judges' report, an average of three entries was made in each class, totaling about 1,000 entries.

The chief credit for the success of the show should be given R. W. Gill, secretary and show manager of the society. President Richard M. Buttle and E. H. White, treasurer, also devoted much time and effort to the exhibition.

Club Meeting.

The Portland Floral Society held a well attended monthly meeting September 21, at its headquarters in the Masonic Temple. H. A. Lewis, president of the Multnomah County Fair Association, reported that the fair last week was a success in every way and that the beds of flowers on the grounds were much admired. On behalf of the directors of the fair he thanked the society for the interest it had taken in providing for the flower beds.

James Forbes, chairman of the Floral Society's committee on exhibitions, and R. W. Gill, reported the completed arrangements for staging the show of the Dahlia Society. Secretary Niklas reported that a meeting of the retailers' committee had been held and several topics of vital interest to themselves discussed. The need for the coöperation of the growers' committee was plainly brought out and William Borsch, chairman of that committee, was urged to call a meeting of all the growers.

McMINNVILLE, OREGON

E. T. Mische related some interesting anecdotes of the conventions which he has attended. He was too modest to say what happened to him at the assembly of park superintendents, but the statement by another member that Mr. Mische was elected president of the national association was applauded vigorously. J. G. Bacher and A. J. Clarke told of the impressions they gained at the S. A. F. conventions.

The trusses of ripe Tresco tomatoes brought in by H. T. Fleishauer were used as decorations at the meeting and were passed around and eaten like bunches of mammoth grapes at the refreshment tables.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Vice-president, John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; Secretary, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

Forty-first annual meeting, Milwaukee, Wis., June 22 to 24, 1916.

FALL orders are not stacking up so well as could be asked.

CERTAIN nurseries that have well equipped landscape departments are booked up for a good autumn season, whereas the general demand for nursery stock for fall delivery is undeniably below normal.

THE annual badge book and membership directory of the Texas Nurserymen's Association contains twenty-seven names. Relative to their numbers, there are no men in the horticultural trades who can make more noise than the Texans.

OCTOBER 5 to 8 will be held the sixth annual citrus seminar at the University of Florida, Gainesville. Lectures, discussions and demonstrations on diseases, pests, fertilizers, refrigeration and other subjects related to the growing and marketing of citrus fruits, make up the program.

FROM all indications there will be no scarcity this season of such nursery stock as has its origin in France and England. The growers there appear to have had access to all the labor that was required to produce a larger output than their home markets will consume, so they are looking to America as about the only outlet for a surplus.

WATSON STARTS FOR HIMSELF.

John Watson, of Newark, N. Y., announces that he has withdrawn from active participation in the business of the Jackson & Perkins Co., nurserymen, in which, however, he will remain a stockholder and director. He intends to engage in business independently, growing and selling ornamentals principally, and to the trade exclusively. This has been his specialty during the ten years he has been a member of the Jackson & Perkins Co. He will sell also fruit tree seedlings, Manetti rose stocks and young ornamentals for nursery planting, these for one of the best growers, graders and packers among the French nurserymen, as well as English Manetti and gooseberries for an English house, and continental goods when the war permits.

A long list of nurserymen here and abroad claim acquaintance with Mr. Watson. He was elected vice-president of the American Association of Nurserymen at its convention last June, is an officer in the Nurserymen's Protective Association and also the Wholesale Ornamental Growers, and holds memberships in the S. A. F., the Rochester Florists' Club and the Western Association of Nurserymen.

THE LARGEST SHADE TREES.

Sycamore Takes Prize.

That the largest shade tree in the United States, as brought to light by the prize contest held by the American Genetic Association, should turn out to be the eastern sycamore is not surprising. The sycamore has long been regarded as the largest deciduous tree in North America, and its range of growth is hardly second to that of any other broad-leaf tree, for it can be found from Maine to Florida, and as far west as Kansas.

The bestowal of the prize on a sycamore at Worthington, Ind., which is forty-two feet three inches in circumference and 150 feet tall, draws attention to the fact that nurserymen are nowadays recommending the species especially for city planting. They say that long experience with sycamores planted in city streets has shown that the species is peculiarly able to withstand the smoke, dust and gases which are usually an unavoidable complement of urban life. In addition, the sycamore is as resistant to attacks of insects and fungi as almost any species, and is a quick grower; at 10 years of age, a healthy sycamore usually is already large enough for shade as well as for decorative purposes. latter, there is hardly any eastern species which is generally held so picturesque as the sycamore. With its strikingly mottled bark and magnificent stature and conformation, the sycamore has a marked individuality and cannot be mistaken for any other species, either in the summer, when the foliage conceals its structural form, or in the winter, when the leaves are absent.

A common objection to the sycamore as a lawn tree is its habit of dropping its leaves before autumn. From this characteristic it is sometimes called a "dirty tree." This drawback, however, is practically the only failing that the sycamore has, and it is offset by many desirable qualities.

Valley Oak Not Useful.

On the other hand, there is little prospect of popularity, foresters say, for the valley oak of California, which was decided to be the largest nut-bearing tree in the United States, the contest unearthing a specimen in San Benito county which is thirty-seven feet six inches in circumference and 125 feet high. The valley oak is a most beautiful tree, but it attains maturity only after 300 or 400 years; its wood is too tough, knotty and otherwise imperfect to be good for lumber; the tree grows too slowly to be planted for shade or decorative purposes, and, being found only in California, it would have a small field of usefulness. Horticulturists say that the valley oak is not popularly considered a nut-bearing tree, for its acorns are not generally used for food, although, of course, they are edible. Foresters say that the chestnut and the black walnut are the largest nut-bearing trees in this country, and the contest did, in fact, unearth a chestnut near Crestmont, N. C., which is thirty-three feet four inches in circumference and about seventy-five feet tall.

Records in Other Species.

The contest brought forth photographs and authentic descriptions of 337 trees in all parts of the United States, making a distinctly valuable contribution to existing knowledge of native trees. It was found that, in all probability, there is no living elm larger than "The Great Elm" at Wethersfield, Conn., which is twenty-eight feet in circumference and about 100 feet tall, and is estimated to be 250 years old. Many remarkable specimens of species which ordinarily attain only small sizes were unearthed by the contest, furnishing new records of maximum growth. For example, a sassafras was brought to light at Horsham, Pa., which is fifteen feet ten inches in circumference at four feet from the ground, whereas not long before this a Georgia town claimed that it had the largest sassafras tree in the world, though this tree was only something over seven feet in circumference. A white birch was found in Massachusetts with a girth of twelve feet two inches; a pecan was found in Louisiana with a circumference of nineteen feet six inches, and a catalpa in Arkansas with a girth of sixteen feet. The tallest tree found is a yellow poplar in North Carolina, which is 198 feet high and has a circumference of thirty-four feet six inches.

The value of the contest lies in its contribution of new information as to the maximum growth attained by deciduous species and the localities in which the different species seem to grow best. The relative sizes of the coniferous species are fairly well established, the bigtree of California, for example, being the largest in the world, but information on the size attained by deciduous trees in this country has been incomplete.

HOUSTON, TEX.

William C. Gloeckner, of Albany, N. Y., has written to R. C. Kerr, president of the Texas State Florists' Association, that he will organize a party from his city for the Houston convention of the S. A. F. He says that the florists of his city expect to take advantage of this opportunity to visit the south. It is likely that this party will go by boat from New York to New Orleans or Galveston. Mr. Gloeckner writes: "Houston is a long way from home, but I am going to do everything in my power to attend the convention next year and I will try to get every florist in Albany to accompany me on this trip." The indications are, with plans being formed so early, that this is going to be a record-breaking convention.

The Texas state flower show promises to exceed last year's show by 100 per cent. About fifty per cent of the florists of the state expect to make exhibits. They realize the value of this from last year's show, and all are coming in this year. Aside from this, all of the out-of-the-state exhibitors of last year and a great many others are planning exhibits for this year. K.

New Nephrolepis Fern

JOHN WANAMAKER

In presenting this fern to the trade, we feel confident that it will make a place for itself.

A "sport" from Nephrolepis Scholzeli, with longer, narrower, gracefully drooping fronds. It is not so compact in growth as Scholzeli, and therefore does not decay in the center, and is a durable house fern. It is a rapid grower, making an abundance of fronds, and is quite distinct from any other Nephrolepis.

Strong plants from 2¼-inch pots, $3.00 per doz., $20.00 per 100, $150.00 per 1000.

The following ready for delivery October 1st: 4-inch pots, $50.00 per 100; 6-inch pots, $1.00 each; 8-inch pots, $2.00 each; specimens in tubs, $5.00 each.

THE THIRD EDITION

OF THE

Album of Designs

(A Book Every Retailer Needs)

THE original Album of Designs was published in response to many requests from florists who felt the need for an up-to-date book that could be used in taking orders for Funeral Designs, Wedding Decorations and Bouquets, Table Decorations and all cut flower work where it was not practicable to show the customer the finished article as it would be when ready for use. With the publication of this album it became possible to show the finished work in beautifully printed pictures. The first edition sold like hot cakes, and a second edition went quickly. Now a third edition is off the press. Everything is in it—all the standard designs and many new and heretofore unpublished pieces.

96 pages, nearly 300 designs and decorations, beautifully printed on heavy glazed paper, handsomely bound in a cover that will stand wear

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

September weddings, though not elaborate, have helped to make trade more active. The weather has become more seasonable and every night and morning the air is crisp. Growers have eagerly welcomed the change, as their stock was progressing too rapidly during the heat wave of two weeks ago. The market shows business fairly active and good business was enjoyed last week. There is a huge quantity of stock on hand. September 26 was the day on which the Roman Catholics observed "the blessing of the graves" in this locality and immense quantities of asters and gladioli were sold. The only difficulty was that the general public demanded cheap flowers, which meant a lot of extra work without any remuneration. Gladioli have about gone, but asters are in fairly good shape. Carnations are plentiful, but they are short-stemmed and there is practically no sale for them. Roses have been plentiful of late. Easter lilies are moving slowly, but not at any extravagant figure. Valley was in good condition and sold well last week. A good supply of orchids is being received and clears nicely. A few gardenias arrived and are sold freely. Gaillardias, anemones, tuberoses, salpiglossis and other hardy annuals are found useful in the making up of cheap baskets.

Various Notes.

Walter Salmon spent the greater part of last week at his farm, at Macedon, N. Y.

Being somewhat short-handed at the wholesale house last week, George Hart has been glad of the services rendered him by his son, Richard.

Visitors to the trade last week included Trautman & Smith, of Geneva, N. Y.; Edward Sick, of Canandaigua, N. Y.; S. W. Morgan, of Le Roy, N. Y., and S. A. Anderson and Jacob Weise, of Buffalo.

George Cramer has returned from a short business trip. He has been looking over a large quantity of specimen rock, with which he will build an extensive rockery. He has been busy making a number of window decorations with the new rock.

Salter Bros., East Main street, are showing a good collection of Boston, Whitmani and maidenhair ferns, as well as large vases of gladioli and hardy hydrangea blooms.

Nearly every uptown florist and a large number of out-of-town concerns were busy with pieces for the funeral of Rev. Rob Roy Converse. More than 200 designs were received, includ-
